Troops Rescue Hijacked Jet

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — Brazilian troops foiled a hijack attempt aboard a Brazilian airliner with tear gas, fire-fighting foam and bullets Wednesday and took four hijackers off the plane. The pilot was shot in the legs and one of the hijackers tried to kill himself.

Forty-one persons were rescued including a Canadian diplomatic courier who described the hijacking as the biggest adventure of his lifetime.

Meanwhile a U.S. airliner, a National Airlines DC-8 with 39 persons aboard, was hijacked to Cuba while en route from San Francisco to Miami. It spent almost 10 hours in Havana, then was allowed to complete its flight.

The Brazilian jet, a Cruzeiro do Sul Caravelle with 34 passengers and seven crew members aboard, was taken over by three men and a woman shortly after it took off from Rio de Janeiro for Buenos Aires.

The woman, who appeared to be in an advanced stage of pregnancy, was carrying the group's arsenal of revolvers in a false baby.

Brazilian authorities said the pilot convinced the hijackers he would have to refuel at Rio for fuel before starting the long flight to Cuba. But Canadian diplomatic courier Leigh N. Sharakland of Ottawa, one of the passengers, said the hijackers told him they wanted to return to Rio and exchange the passengers for 40 political prisoners.

When the plane landed back in Rio, troops stationed its tires with machine gun fire, surrounded it and warned the hijackers they would rush the plane unless the passengers were freed.

"We will kill the passengers one by one," the hijackers radioed back.

Brazilian President Emilio Garrastazu Medici ordered, "the plane must not take off" and added that it would stay there "until every single passenger has been rescued."

Then the troops began their 16-minute operation.

A platoon of steel-helmeted troops took up positions near the rear of the plane. A trooper climbed on its tail, edged his way forward to open a roof door as five engineers sprayed water from brown, colored foam on the plane fruit nose to tail.

Smoke bombs sent up a 30-foot wall of billowing clouds, covering the movements of a third of several men who rushed out from seven points to pry open the emergency exits.

Several passengers, including Shankland, jumped out an emergency exit during the melee.

"And you're sure this will frighten her?"

U.S. May Be Obliged To Challenge Policy

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (Reuters) — The United States may have to challenge the Soviet Union if the Russian arms buildup continues in the Middle East, White House officials said today.

The officials, who cannot be identified, told reporters at a background briefing that the Russian military presence in Egypt might have to be met also by direct Israeli action should it escalate.

But they said a way of hope resulted from the assumption that the Russians might try to cool the situation down because they knew the United States might have to react to the introduction of Soviet pilots and anti-aircraft missiles into Egypt.

The officials said the Russian military presence in Egypt had serious consequences for the United States as well as for Israel because the American 6th Fleet could find it difficult to operate in the Mediterranean in the face of growing Soviet air power there.

If the Russian buildup continues, there would have to be an American counter-reaction, although it does not necessarily mean that Washington would introduce an overwhelming military presence in the Middle East, they said.

Their remarks amplified President Nixon's statement in a televised interview Wednesday night that there was a danger of a big power confrontation in the Middle East and that the United States would not permit Israel's security to be jeopardized.

The White House officials said

Thant Sees Some Progress

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — UN Secretary-General U Thant, encouraged by what he termed "perceptible progress" in Big Four Middle East talks, leaves for Europe tonight amid reports of a shift in Soviet Middle East policy.

Reports Wednesday said Russia no longer is insisting on total Israeli troop withdrawals before the Arab states recognized secure boundaries for Israel.

Four Embassies Are Firebombed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Latin American embassies were firebombed and damaged slightly early today, almost 24 hours after the Inter-American defence board was rocked by a pipe bomb. Police said no one was injured.

There was no indication of who was responsible for today's attack.

A group called Revolutionary Force 7 claimed credit for Wednesday's bombing in a special delivery letter to The Associated Press in which it denounced the defence board and the Organization of American States, the board's parent body.

Today's Molotov cocktail explosions came within 25 minutes of each other at the embassies of Haiti, Argentina, Uruguay and the Dominican Republic, all of which are within a few blocks of one another. The Haitian embassy was first hit, at 2:45 a.m.

Police speculated that the bombings were connected with the current meeting here of OAS foreign ministers.

Cross-Canada Air Record Set

EDMONTON (CP) — An unofficial air speed record from Halifax to Victoria was set Wednesday by a Canadian Armed Forces CF-5 jet aircraft from 434 Squadron stationed at Cold Lake, Alta.

A defence department spokesman said that Capt. R. D. Pattison, 34, of Calgary, made the flight in five hours, 24 minutes and 21 seconds, for an average speed of more than 500 miles an hour.

The 2,800-mile flight, to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the start of the first cross-Canada mail flight, included six-minute refueling stops at Val d'Or, Que., Gimli, Man., and Calgary.

A second Canadian forces CF-5, piloted by Capt. R. R. Clayton, 40, of Kitchener, was forced out of the scheduled dual attempt when a jet aircraft starter unit broke down at Val d'Or after starting the first jet.

Rehearsal of Twelfth Parade Is Staged Without Incident

BELFAST (CP) — About 18,000 militant Protestants paraded without incident through Belfast Wednesday night, but another march 40 miles away touched off minor battling between Protestants and Roman Catholics.

A British army spokesman implied that the disorders in the town of Coalisland were instigated by members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

"Known IRA men were seen in the crowd," the spokesman said. "It proves who is behind the riots."

The rival religious factions buried rocks, bottles and other missiles at each other and at British troops and local police firing tear gas. Four policemen, a soldier and the wounded eyes of 700 British troops. It was a dress rehearsal for the annual parade July 12 to celebrate the 17th century Protestant defeat of Catholic troops at the Battle of the Boyne. The July parade last year touched off Catholic-Protestant warfare that raged for weeks.

Belfast, Londonderry and other towns in Northern Ireland have been the scene of disorders since Friday, when Catholic Bernadette Devlin was jailed for six months for her part in the riots last summer. The army said several IRA men were spotted during last weekend's street battles in Belfast in which six persons were killed and more than 200 wounded.

At Dungarvon Wednesday night, gunmen exploded the home of Austin Curgie, a Catholic member of the Ulster Parliament. Curvie, 33, narrowly missed being hit by one of three bullets which tore into the house as he spoke on the telephone.

British Home Secretary Reginald Maudling returned to London after a two-day visit to Northern Ireland and was expected to report to Prime Minister Edward Heath that London can do little more to cool tempers in the province.

The Protestant Orange Order held four marches peacefully Wednesday under the watchful eyes of 700 British troops. It was a dress rehearsal for the annual parade July 12 to celebrate the 17th century Protestant defeat of Catholic troops at the Battle of the Boyne. The July parade last year touched off Catholic-Protestant warfare that raged for weeks.

Heath Promises Tax Cut As Parliament Convenes

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Heath's new Conservative government unveiled its legislative program today, promising tax cuts and strike curbs at home and a vigorous foreign policy abroad.

In the speech from the throne, read by the Queen at the glittering opening of the 49th Parliament, the Tory government outlined its legislative plans.

The sovereign, arriving in a gilded, horse-drawn coach with Prince Philip, Princess Alice and Prince Charles, spoke to the gemstone-robed House of Lords.

The speech welcomed the talks in Brussels Tuesday on Britain's latest bid to join the European Common Market. It reaffirmed the new government's pledge to strengthen the North Atlantic Alliance.

The speech pledged that the government "will co-operate with our Commonwealth friends in measures aimed at maintaining peace and stability in Commonwealth countries in South-east Asia."

It was a clear reference to Heath's promise to keep British troops East of Suez. The Labor government, defeated in the June 18 elections, had pledged to withdraw British troops from East of Suez by the end of next year.

As expected, the speech also announced that the government will make another attempt to reach a settlement in the breakaway African colony of Rhodesia.

On domestic affairs the speech declared "my government's foremost concern will be to strengthen the economy and curb inflation."

Heath fought his successful election campaign on these pledges. He promised to cut taxes and still keep social services going by improving efficiency and cutting out what he called "wasteful" government spending.

Details of the tax cuts and other measures are expected in the government's first budget, probably in the fall.

Peace Festival Cancellation Brings Youthful Protest

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Mayor J. Russell Scott has turned down a challenge by three Belleville young people to debate in the open air the planned Black Cultural Peace Festival shut down by Belleville city council Monday.

Mayor Scott was challenged to the debate during a 40-minute meeting Tuesday afternoon with Gordon Johnston, Joseph Duguay, and Steven Dougherty.

Mr. Johnston, involved in several youth activities in Belleville, told The Intelligencer this morning that the challenge had been refused because the mayor would be out of town on the proposed debate date — today.

He also said the mayor felt that the other city councillors wouldn't like it.

Mr. Johnston explained what led him and his companions to the mayor's office.

"We wanted to find out why they didn't read the 17-page brief on the festival," he said. Mayor Scott said it wasn't presented.

"We asked why he didn't want the festival and he said they didn't want "100,000 screaming jocks running through Belleville.'

"He asked what we did for Belleville and I told him about pollution probe and the Belleville Week Rock Concert."

Mr. Johnston is an official with the Belleville Pollution Probe and he organized and participated in a Moira River cleanup. He was also chairman of the committee that ran the Belleville Week Rock Concert last September which was one of the biggest making projects in the week-long celebration.

"He said they could not cater to the minority of Belleville," Mr. Johnston continued. "What can we do? We don't vote. We don't pay any taxes."

Mr. Johnston said that he had talked to several businessmen and lawyers in Belleville and the businessmen mainly had wanted to see the festival come here.

"We were going to have a parade," Mr. Johnston said, "but we didn't think that would do anything but create violence and that isn't what we want."

Consulting with lawyers, Mr. Johnston will circulate petitions to get the decision by council revoked.

The mayor cited the problems of Woodstock as seen on the film circulated by the OPP. It's a one - sided view showing nudism. That was a good festival. The peace festival here was not a pop festival. The Hare Krishna people were coming and other people were coming to speak.

"The mayor mentioned that the Black Panthers would come up for it. He said the only reason they would come to Canada was to make trouble."

Not only is Mr. Johnston working on a petition, but he is trying to arrange discussions with the other councillors that voted against the festival.

"If they won't talk to us we'll boycott stores and not compose literature about Belleville, the university city, ostriendly toward its youth and its artists."

The festival was not the only "hassle" that was discussed at the meeting with Mayor Scott.

Another were fusss with Belleville's youth, the scrubbing of plans for a youth hostel, and the Belleville City Police Station, was also discussed.

"Mayor Scott said the city would be paying for everyone eating and sleeping in the hostel, but we've got $200 cash to go toward the creation of the hostel already. That's just to get started," Mr. Johnston said.

"He doesn't like the thought of Belleville becoming a city over for kids. He sees it as an attraction."

Mr. Johnston said Belleville City Police Chief, Douglas Crosbie, felt that the hostel would mean the people in charge might be supporting people with criminal records.

"We're still looking for a place. The $200 was for the old YMCA building, but we're still looking.

"The mayor gave us the impression that they were the city fathers and we shouldn't question their attitude.

"We want to do something for people, not play tennis in the city's parks," Mr. Johnston said.

"We never seem to fight back. We never seem to do anything about not having any rights.

"We're going to keep getting stepped on until we make a stand. People are going to realize we're somebody even though we're young.

"We want to help in the community, but all we ever get is kicked in the head."

Mayor Scott contacted this morning said that he thought the issue was a "dead horse" and that council had already made its decision.

"I merely related to them what council had decided," he said.

Longer Hours For Library

Belleville Public Library will stay open on Wednesday afternoons and evenings beginning September 9, library officials reported this morning.

The library had closed at noon on Wednesday but demand has increased so that the new hours were justified.

The most popular reading item in Belleville at the moment is John Galsworthy's The Forsyte Saga, the work that is the basis for the popular BBC serial currently being shown by the CBC on Sunday evenings. Belleville Public Library has 12 copies of the book.

Policemen's Pay May Be Arbitrated

A spokesman for the Belleville Police Association, currently locked in wage negotiations with the Belleville Police Commission, said this morning that "The negotiations will go to arbitration because the attitude of the Board of Commissioners changes."

The Police Association, in a statement to The Intelligencer, stated that members of the association were surprised to learn they had been offered a 15 per cent increase in salary during negotiations.

Major J. Russell Scott was quoted in The Intelligencer Saturday as explaining that the city had countered police wage demands with a flat 15 per cent increase in one year.

"The negotiating committee of the Police Association at no time has made aware of such an offer," the statement said.

The statement also said that the association felt that the citizens and taxpayers of Belleville should be made aware of the true feeling of the association with regard to the important matter of wage negotiations.

"A short two years ago," the statement continued, "the Belleville Police Association was receiving salary for a constable of $100 less per year than a constable on the Provincial force."

"In comparing with other cities, towns, municipal police and police officers in the province, the local police constable at the present time receiving for his services and supervising from $1,600 to $1,900 less than officers or constables doing the same type of work."

The statement said that because of the success of wage negotiations elsewhere, the members of the Belleville Association was disheartened and morale was at low ebb.

"They (the association members) felt in citizens they should learn via the news media that an offer greater than that presented to them by their negotiating committee," the statement read.

Major Scott explained according to The Intelligencer Saturday, that policemen had been offered 15 per cent in one year and that the Belleville Firemen had been offered 10 per cent for the first year and another 10 per cent for the second year.

"This was before the government set the six per cent limit," the mayor explained.

"We were agreeable to 15 per cent increase," the spokesman for the police association said this morning.

He said the police commission's top offer had been six and 12 per cent increase.

At present a first class constable in Belleville makes $7,776 per year. A probationary constable earns $6,150 per year. Second and third class constables are evenly staggered in between these two figures.

In terms of dollars, the police association is asking for at least $1,000 a year for a first class constable.

Cheesemakers In Trouble

Cheesemaking — one of the Quinte district's oldest industries — is flying signals of ultimate distress.

Spokesmen indicate the industry is in a state of crisis. They warn that home producers are losing thousands of dollars monthly and the situation threatens to decimate the number of Ontario cheese factories.

Many factories may go out of business if the provincial and federal governments do not give more assistance, a group of Central Ontario cheese producers warned yesterday in Campbellford.

The group is an executive committee set up at a hurried meeting of cheesemakers last month to discuss the emergency.

A spokesman for the group said producers are reporting losses of $1,000 to $4,000 on April and May operations — a peak period for the industry.

Among contributing "actors he cited were higher milk prices and an Ontario Milk Marketing Board policy requiring quick payment for milk and a low floor price for cheese.

The board raised the price of industrial milk for cheese, butter and other milk products by 10 cents a hundredweight this year.

In addition, the board also ruled that factories must pay for the milk before the cheese is sold, said the spokesman. This forces producers to move money at high interest rates to make their payments.

One of the Belleville area's major producers, Harold Elliott, proprietor of, Foxboro Cheese Factory, agrees that the industry now is in dire straits.

"We just can't go on operating at a loss," he says.

He agrees many factories face a shutdown.

The situation could be eased by an increase in government support prices, believes Mr. Elliott.

Currently, these run at 48.5 - 47 cents for premium grade cheese.

He believes supports should be boosted to 49.5 cents for top grades.

The bleakness of the industry's situation is emphasized by the fact it now is in the prime production season.

Despite this, cheese factories still are running at a loss.

At 8a peak the industry was one of the Quinte area's economic staples, with a guaranteed export market to the United Kingdom.

Merchants Oppose Jaywalking Bylaw

TRENTON (Staff) — Dundas Street West merchants sent a representative to Monday evening's special meeting of town council in an attempt to dissuade council from passing an anti-jaywalking bylaw.

Jack Delbruyn, the merchants' spokesman, who also talked on behalf of Trenton Chamber of Commerce, said "It would be a blow to downtown shoppers if the main street council only crossed at the crosswalks."

The distance between blocks is too great and this wouldn't be practical or convenient," he added in reference to a bylaw prohibiting jaywalking on Trenton streets.

Mr. Delbruyn then requested that council consider the installation of an additional crosswalk on Dundas West midway between King Street and Division.

He compared his proposed crosswalk with the one on Front Street in Belleville between Victoria Avenue and Campbell Street. He also presented council with a petition which he said was signed by 90 per cent of the merchants on Dundas Street West.

Mayor Duncan McDonald then informed Mr. Delbruyn that council had planned to replace the crosswalk at the corner of Dundas West and King Street with a pedestrian stoplight, and had expressed no intention of passing a bylaw prohibiting jaywalking.

Councillor Ted Parker opposed an anti-jaywalking bylaw, saying that it would back traffic up greatly.

"I can't think of anything less enticing that would discourage people from coming downtown at all," he asserted.

Mr. Delbruyn replied "We have the safety of the citizens in mind and if indeed there will be no bylaw to prohibit people from crossing at their own risk, we would be agreeable."

Council proceeded after the discussion and passed bylaws installing the recommended pedestrian stoplight at Dundas West and King and approving removal of the present crosswalk and overhead sign.

Implementation of council's decision is subject to the approval of the Ontario Department of Transport.

Separate School Board Buys Tweed-Hungerford District HS

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Tweed - Hungerford District High School is now the property of the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board.

The sale was completed and registered June 30 at 4.30 p.m. in the registry office in Belleville.

Douglas Bateman, solicitor for the Hastings county board of education, met with James J. Murphy of Toronto, solicitor for the separate school board, and competed the sale seconds before deadline.

With the turning over of the cheque for the school, the end was written to a torn - year dispute between Tweed ratepayers and the school boards over closure and sale of the high school.

The ratepayers sought to retain secondary education in Tweed village, but the Hastings county board remained firm in its decision to complete the sale. It first agreed to by the old Tweed-Hungerford District High School Board in 1968.

Now that the school is legally and officially theirs, despite the continued silence of the department of education regarding grants for the $225,000 school, the separate school board will use it as a kindergarten through grade 10 institution.

At last Monday's meeting of the Hastings county board of education, Paul Flemitz, a trustee representing the separate school supporters on the public board, suggested that the public system might rent space in the school from the separate school board.

Trustee Macdonald Scott, chairman of the Hastings county board's liaison committee, said the matter would be discussed with the separate school board, but not before the fall.

Tommy Hunter Discusses His Show

Country Holiday Starts Run Here

Country Holiday, the CBC's radio network country and western show, starring Tommy Hunter, will begin its two an-week engagement in Belleville tomorrow night.

Mr. Hunter was in the city Tuesday afternoon to talk with CJBQ radio men and newsmen about it.

Mr. Hunter, most impressive as a businessman in his interviews, joked with his program's producer, John Castalas, in describing why the show was moving to Belleville how it hoped to remain here and the program's content.

"We picked Belleville because it was close (to Toronto)," Mr. Hunter explained.

He said that when the show had decided to leave Lindsay, mainly because that town was too small, its officials had called to some people in other centres looking for "someone enthusiastic" about being host for the program.

"The radio station here was enthusiastic; the mayor was enthusiastic; the Corporation (CBC) became enthusiastic. Belleville was a good area," he said.

The program will serve to attract a king's ransom to country and western music performers in Belleville for the seven weekly shows at Centennial Secondary School.

Mentioned as performers were Gordie Tapp, Don Neuff, George Hamilton IV, Tommy Cash and Hank Snow among others. This Friday's guest is David Houston, star of Heehaw.

Strictly a summer show, the CBC production will be taped every Friday night for the next seven weeks beginning tomorrow night at Centennial Secondary School.

The radio version — one hour of edited music taped from the two - hour live show — will be heard on Sundays.

Admission to the program at Centennial will be $2.75 at the door and $2.50 in advance.

Mr. Hunter, who began to play guitar when he was nine years old in his native Huntsville, Ontario, discussed the possibility of moving to the United States to further his career.

"I don't particularly want to go, but sometimes it's very, very tempting," he said. "I just like staying in Canada. I like our education and the way things are handled. I just don't like their (United States) setup."

He admitted that he would not turn down a profitable television show offer, but said he would not move there with his family but only work there in that case.

Tucker Is Appointed Trenton Poundkeeper

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council ended six months of deliberation Monday evening by appointing Donald Tucker of Stirling as Trenton's poundkeeper and animal control warden.

The agreement between the town and Mr. Tucker becomes effective August 15, 1969 and calls for an annual salary of $2,000.

It will continue in force until January 1, 1971, and from that time on a year-to-year basis provided neither party terminates the agreement by giving three months' notice.

Mr. Tucker, who performs animal control services for other municipalities in the area, operates an animal shelter at Stirling.

He will replace the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society whose contract with the town expires August 4 of this year.

Council decided to hire Mr. Tucker following meetings with him, the Humane Society representatives and a trip to Stirling by clerk O. W. Larry to inspect Mr. Tucker's premises, which are subject to the requirements of the Animals for Research Act 1968-69.

A primary factor that influenced council's decision was money.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said after Monday evening's special council session that the town pays the Humane Society the rate of 30 cents per capita as a maximum of over $7,000 — while Mr. Tucker will receive $2,000 annually.

Memorial Plaques To Be Replaced

TWEED — The bronze plaques with the names of Kaneohoc servicemen who gave their lives in both World Wars, destroyed by vandals, will soon be replaced on the cenotaph in Arden.

A walkathon sponsored by the Arden branch women's auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion raised more than $1,000 to defray the plaques' replacement cost, assisted by some personal donations and other projects.

'Cleric' Convicted For 'Camp' Fraud

TORONTO — A non-existent children's camp and orphanage 10 miles northeast of Marmora, has sent a self-styled church patriarch to jail for nine months.

Guy F. Claude Hamel, who calls himself Claudius I, patriarch of the Old Roman Catholic Church was sentenced here Tuesday for defrauding the public of $54,000.

A general sessions jury convicted Hamel, 35-year-old father of six children, for soliciting thousands of dollars from small business men throughout Ontario, by claiming the money would support an institution for children at Cordova Lake.

Hamel was charged in connection with funds solicited from the public between 1962 and 1969.

Gwendolyn Margaret Davenport, child welfare supervisor for the social and family services department, testified that in 1968 Hamel sought immediate approval for a project to assist homeless children. It would have meant a $1,000,000 contribution by the Ontario government.

She said Hamel brought her a scrapbook of articles indicating a community for 200 homeless children would be built in Havelock, but ended the interview when questions were raised about subscriptions already received.

Hamel wore different kinds of clerical garb during his trial.

Judge W. F. B. Rogers said Hamel, who had undergone psychiatric assessments, lacks a firm grip on reality.

"You are Guy Hamel, not His Holiness Claudius I — there is no such person," said the judge.

He ordered Hamel placed on probation for three years after his release with the provision he must not solicit funds from the public.

'Peace' Movement

There is no knowing just what would have materialized had the so-called Belleville Peace and Brotherhood Festival been given permission to hold its proposed gathering at the Fairgrounds August 2.

We do however have the evidence of other meetings of this nature and it is our opinion that Council's rejection of the festival reflects the view of many that the "peace" movement is one of the big political put-ons of our day.

We are not saying the Belleville Peace and Brotherhood people necessarily belong in this category —but is it not a fact that many of those involved in the peace thing are members of the New Left, radicals whose words and actions bear all the hallmarks of subversion. And far from promoting peace they have a happy knack of attracting to their ranks adherents with a penchant for violence, or for creating trouble themselves.

And why? Because in reality they are concerned not with peace but with creating an atmosphere of dissension and casting doubt on the efforts of those at the national and international level who are genuinely attempting to achieve peace. Yes — in areas like Southeast Asia and the Middle East; and they can now add to these Northern Ireland.

These are the places where the action is and where peace must be established somehow, by those nations who are directly involved and by any others who seek to assist as neutral arbiters. But a peace festival in Belleville on the other hand — by persons of indeterminate political affiliations — what impact could it hope to achieve on those areas of the world where there is conflict?

What do people talk about at such gatherings? After all, who is there among us who does not want peace? The usual format is to deplore the United States' involvement in Southeast Asia (but with the withdrawal from Cambodia, the Americans are now apparently making good their promises to get out of that area as soon as possible); and in host of other political red herrings may be drawn across the scene, before what largely may be an audience of impressionable young people, until "peace" as such gradually fades out in the haze of subtle and impassioned, but largely meaningless, oratory.

This can be only a short step away from the crowd getting stirred up, often by professional agitators, blows being struck, police becoming reluctantly involved and suddenly there are all the elements of real trouble. If drugs are present, with their pushers and users, then the problem is so much the worse.

So the spark from the traffic involved in a potential crowd of thousands, from widely-scattered points in both Canada and the United States, there are all these other imponderables and public relations hazards which Council has seen fit to head off in the general interest of the populace. As it is, Belleville is one of the most peaceful communities in Canada, but its people do not live their lives in the sand; we are all aware of the evils of this modern permissive society and of the eccentricities of various pressure groups. The peace movement generally, we believe, falls into this category, because peace is not really what it is all about.

Loyalist Memories

It is quite a span since Captain Peter Van Alstyne and his fellow Loyalists sailed from New York to settle the area around Adolphustown, but if he were alive today he would surely approve of the provincial government's fine park development and memorial to the pioneers, as well as the museum.

Existing a large stretch of the water separating Lennox and Addington from Prince Edward counties the park area is spacious and attractive. The view from the ferry terminal looking across to Glenora still has that lush concentration of tree-lined hillside and the community and handful of buildings there look strangely like something from medieval European.

The farm homes in the area south from Napanee around Hay Bay and west to the ferry are among the most prosperous and well-kept for many a mile, and some of them are in the Dutch style which might have something to do with Captain Van Alstyne whose forebears were from Holland. Everywhere too there are fine views, cattle grazing and horses being exercised. Typical in fact of the near-at-hand pleasures of the countryside in this part of the world.

MP Pay Raise Unlikely Until After 1972 Election

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — While almost everyone who argued about the federal government was for and price restraint with those controversial six percent guidelines, the House of Commons and Senate accepted it.

At least for the next few months, and just possibly until after the next election.

That is what the silence meant when Parliament adjourned for the Summer without a word of open enquiry about how the Senate Commission was doing with its report and recommendations on pay increases for MPs and Senators.

It was acceptance by reconciliation with the unavoidable.

When the Commission was set up early in the session by Prime Minister Trudeau, it was under some pressure to file its findings with all deliberate speed.

That was taken to mean, at that time by parliamentarians, before the House recessed for the Summer, giving Cabinet until the resumption of the session in the Fall to come to a decision.

It was a foregone conclusion that the Commission's recommendations would be what MPs call "positive," and Cabinet approval was taken for granted.

All the lights were green for go: the gaggle of young freshmen Liberals who initially put on the pay pressure, all but a splinter minority of Liberal veterans, the Conservatives except perhaps for John Diefenbaker, the Creditiste bloc, and most of the New Democrats save Stanley Knowles, Barry Mather and perhaps one or two others.

But Dief and Stanley Knowles, while formidable roadblocks, were not impassable.

And with the Cabinet at least "sympathetic" to the self-pitying cries of penury and deprivation of the young Liberal freshmen, the expected salary raise — up to $30,000 or better, some MPs anticipated — seemed sure enough that some spending commitments just might have been made in advance.

But stay! Only days before the House was scheduled to break for the Summer, Privy Council President Donald Macdonald called together the party House leaders to break the bad news.

All bets for the raise were off.

Nothing doing, ruled Don Macdonald, at least until next Fall at the earliest and, what knows, perhaps not even then.

Why not, the young Liberal freshmen asked the Privy Council President Macdonald, who doubles as Government House leader, gave them the word.

You know why not, don't you, he answered.

And they did.

There was just no way for them to break through to pay dirt when the Government was struggling in vain to enforce the Prices and Incomes Commission's six percent guidelines.

Did they want six percent? If not, did they think the Government could make an exception in their case?

And if the Government did that most unlikely thing, how did they think it would look then all look?

Silence was their answer.

The silence of reconciliation with the inevitable.

Maybe better luck later. A long election campaign Pall-Sharpe odds next year. Best bet: after the '71 election.

Hard going for those good, hard-working, dedicated MPs — and there are a lot of them — who are doing a lot of public service.

But you find it difficult to sorrow for the time - servers, the doodlers, the what's - in - it - for - me regular members of the Tuesday - to - Thursday Club — and there are some of these — who think it a big deal enough just to have the initials MP behind their name without the necessity of justifying it with work.

Many of the 95 MPs serving their first term have said or "threatened," as they have made it stand, that they will not be back in Parliament after the next election unless they get that raise first.

They will not try — no sweat for a sitting MP — for "reconciliation," and if reconsidered against their will, they will not run.

They make it sound as if they were indispensable, that if they will not serve, no one will.

It would make their heads spin to look behind them and see how many just - as - good - or perhaps even - better - men are waiting in line, all queued up for a crack at Parliament and its new "guaranteed annual income" for the winners in the form of a lifetime pension after six years in the Commons.

The unwritten MP will run, and hopefully win, no matter what the pay.

And there are more of that sort than the new spoiled brat breed.

Exploitation?

Ontario Jobs For Girls from Quebec

Montreal Star

Labor Minister Pierre Laporte has made up his mind that there is more exploitation than opportunity in the venture which has arranged summer jobs as mothers' helpers in Ontario. But instead of fulminating that it is time people realized "the era of cheap Quebec labor is over," he might first have considered just how the system found its roots in Internationale.

In Europe it is an "au pair" arrangement, with little more than pocket money involved, the attraction being the learning of another language, of getting to know how others live. Similar exchanges occur between other parts of Canada and Quebec, to the acknowledged benefit of those who can arrange to take part. In Montreal the engagement of young mothers' helpers, who normally accompany the family on holiday outings, has been going on for years, with rates a matter of negotiation.

Granted that the Toronto agency which has been finding places for Quebec girls takes a fee which seems high. But it is a commercial operation covering an apparent void in services of either government or cultural exchange agencies. Girls who have been interviewed seem pleased with arrangements; and the Ontario labor department, which licenses the operation, is much more advanced than ours in coping with the dangers of exploitation.

It would be a pity if Mr. Laporte's attitude should make it impossible for Quebec girls to make a little money while exploring another province and broadening the use of a second language. Better to eliminate the commercialism by attempting to develop an exchange under government auspices — to supplement any school or service club programs that already exist — than to block it altogether.

Canada Must Fight Mobster Threat

Hamilton Spectator

Professional criminals have the jump on police when it comes to wealth, freedom of action and the ability to buy whatever expert talents are needed to help them bleed the public and bamboozle law enforcement.

Canada should be fighting back, hard, against these criminals but this country puts more money and manpower into the preservation of parking tickets than against the hoodlum empire.

Police here acknowledge that the United States-based crime syndicate operates in Ontario and Quebec, and not only in gambling, loan sharking, extortion and drugs but directly or indirectly in many legitimate businesses. The cost of these blood - sucking operations to the taxpayers is unknown but it cannot help being fantastic.

In the United States, where organized crime has been extensively researched, costs run into billions — in taxes, higher prices on goods and services under mob control and, of course, corruption that sometimes places entire cities under gangster domination.

There's only one basic difference between the United States and Canada as far as organized crime is concerned. The Americans are now fighting back hard and many of their mobsters are in jail. In Canada, many of the known representatives of organized crime live like fat rats in the suburbs.

American law enforcement agencies in the big city centres have set up special field offices, co-ordinating all pertinent law enforcement agencies' efforts, with strike forces of expert, well - educated and highly - trained men, whose sole purpose is to get the mobsters.

Canada is deficient in intelligence and defence efforts. There has been no effective co-ordinated attempt to publicly study and assess organized crime. (In fact, there seems to be a quiet conspiracy to hush it up; police are all too reluctant to talk about it for the record, and politicians, even those with limber lips, rarely mention organized crime.)

Without a comprehensive study that would expose the criminal empire to the public, people won't know how much organized crime costs them and how seriously it threatens them. And, until they know, they can't become riled enough to fight back effectively.

Postal Strike and the Public

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In view of the intermittent postal stoppages every citizen has felt the impact. This, no doubt is what the postal workers want, to achieve their aim.

The Government should be commended in its endeavor to hold pay increases at a maximum of six per cent, but the postal employees undoubtedly have legitimate complaints.

While this is going on however, the country as a whole is feeling the results in many ways. Facts and figures will show certain things, but a lot of repercussions in the business world and personal dealings will never get into the newspapers.

There are many scientific advances and government studies in our modern society, but the wonderful method of delivering a letter seem to be a problem.

The political figure who can help in the basic needs of the people is what the citizen craves.

Teachers' Extra-Curricular Burdens

Peterborough Examiner

Teachers are still burdened with a variety of housekeeping and housekeeping duties, they are still confronted by large, often unmanageable class sizes, they are still denied the time necessary to develop imaginative programs and projects, and they are still faced with parents who often have no idea of what the schools are trying to achieve or what they should achieve.

Under these conditions advisory committees by the dozen would not, effort is where they actually count, in the classroom and the teacher-child relationship.

Local school councils, on the other hand, could be extremely useful and could bring about revolutionary changes without the aid of a single legislative change.

In a brief to the Senate committee on poverty, Peterborough MPP and NDP University Affairs critic, Walter Pitman, provided a simple but eminently sensible example. He has been "the nature of the school system" he says, "that much effort is put into educational programs — but so little effort is put into engaging peripheral duties but would provide them an opportunity to become more aware of the problems of the local community and some of its particular needs.

Local school councils could initiate such programs — the helpers could probably be paid out of petty cash — and a variety of others.

The concern voiced by Mr. Collins' committee is legitimate, but we are not convinced that the lobby for a country wide advisory committee is central to, or the first priority in, effective educational reform.

Signing in for OAD Convention

Visitors sign up with OAD officials for the 39th Biennial Convention being held from June 29 to July 5 at the Ontario School for the Deaf. At 2 p.m. Monday registration held in the auditorium were Eugenia Fowler, Kingston; Mrs. T. Henault, Ottawa; Mrs. A. D. Hazlitt, Aurora; Miss N. Aylon, OAD secretary, Toronto, and James Baskerville and Mrs. Baskerville, local convention committee treasurer and assistant, of Richmond Hill.

Belleville Is Host To Deaf Convention

This year marks the 100th Anniversary for the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville. As part of the year's celebrations, this week the annual OSD is host for the 39th Biennial Ontario Association of the Deaf conference.

Says Ontario Premier John P. Roberts, "This year marks a special occasion for the Ontario Association of the Deaf.

"In addition to holding your 39th Biennial Convention here 29 to July 4, this is the 100th anniversary of the OSD in Belleville.

"It is most appropriate that, on this historic occasion, the Association meet at the School for the Deaf."

This is the 12th time the OAD convention has been held in Belleville and has served as a reunion of the Belleville School alumni to "promote the aims and objectives" of the association, as well as for enjoyment.

For the event, invitations were forwarded throughout Ontario, bringing response not only province-wide, but from neighboring provinces as well.

Officials from OSD reported that almost every community accepted the invitation and delegates were on hand for the registration on Monday at 2 p.m. in the auditorium of the OSD.

At 8 p.m. that same day, opening ceremonies with an address by E. Marshall Wick, 1970 convention chairman and Dr. J. G. Torrea, Superintendent, were held with greetings offered by Arthur B. Hazlitt, President and the appointment of the committees for the week's events.

Regular meetings were held on both Tuesday and Wednesday but one of the largest attractions was scheduled for yesterday afternoon.

A Beach Party and picnic were held at the Sandbank Provincial Park at Picton although the gathering experienced intermittent showers. The major event at the outing was the selection of Miss OAD for 1970.

Chosen as the Queen was Mrs. Irvin MacDonald of Amherst, N.S. Although not deaf, she is a teacher at the interprovincial School for the Education of the Deaf, Amherst, as is her husband, a deaf teacher.

Cathy Stewart from Trenton and Mrs. Johanna Hoog of Toronto were chosen princesses.

A tour of the school and further talks were held this morning. This afternoon there are three guest speakers: Dr. David Pelkoff, Dr. J. G. Demeza, and D. E. Kennedy Deaf talks, skits and a talent show will be featured at 4 p.m. with a bingo game scheduled to end the day's activities at 8 p.m.

St. Paul's Anglican, Roslin To Mark 125th Anniversary

One of rural Ontario's most picturesque churches will celebrate a milestone in its long history this coming Sunday.

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Roslin, will mark its 125th anniversary July 5, when three former rectors will return to take the services.

Rev. F. Arthur Smith will be the preacher at the morning service at 11 a.m., assisted by Rev. F. C. Bezzer.

The preacher at the 8 p.m. service will be Rev. Dalton L. Woodward.

The spired white clapboard church was built in 1844 on a clergy reserve, lot 19 in the first concession of Huntingdon township.

But not until 1850 did the parish have its resident clergyman. It was served by travelling missionaries before that date.

The two parishes of Roslin and Tweed were originally formed together, later separated and are now re-joined. The present rector, Rev. Virgil F. Earle, now lives in Tweed, and the old rectory beside the church is the property of Everett Geen.

Changing times have left their physical mark on St. Paul's. The drive shed, an essential in the early days to shelter the horses and buggies during services, has been converted into a parish hall.

To mark the anniversary the parish has published a booklet, outlining the history of the church and listing those who have served it over the last 125 years.

On Sunday, receptions will be held after each service. In the morning, the reception will be in the parish hall. After the evening service, the reception will be held at the home of Everett Geen, the former rectory.

The last Sunday in July, Rev. Robert F. Gardham, another former rector, will return to preach at the services.

Scoring the dogs on their individual performances in obedience exercises was Mrs. Ted Folds, Picton. Tied for second place with 191 points each were a Springer Spaniel, handled by Mrs. Peter Shewchuck, Picton, and a Collie trained by Joanne Perry, East Lake.

Mrs. Sorensen, who became a dog trainer in her native land of Denmark is a noted Collie breeder in the Quinte area, and a member of the Canadian Kennel Club. Her majestic tri-color Collie, Manitou Von Holst, is one of the few dogs in the county to hold a CDX degree (companion dog excellent).

To achieve this degree, dogs must complete a full advanced obedience classes involving retrieving exercises and high, long jumping. Most dog owners enjoy enrolling their pets for basic obedience lessons which include heeling, sitting and staying, on command.

Although Mrs. Sorensen directs each owner in training his or her dog and points out faults in performance, the actual is handled by his master.

Proposals in obedience school are not uncommon. "Owners must do quite a bit of walking and running with their dogs during classes and this can become too strenuous for some older people," notes Mrs. Sorensen.

Most of the dogs enrolled do complete the course, however, and receive their diplomas.

School is open to dogs of all breeds from miniature poodles to St. Bernards. Many of the graduates are enrolled a second time by their owners for refresher courses in canine etiquette.

The obedience lessons offered at Deseo Kennels are planned to make pets more enjoyable companions for their owners. Often handlers decide to progress to advanced obedience training classes in preparation for show competition with their dogs.

"It's a dog's life" today is a phrase with a new twist for the "in" canine can boast a CDX degree, following his registered name.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Basic Cookie Dough; Five Fancy Varieties

By MARY MOORE

Ten years ago a recipe for Jam-Filled and Decorated Cookies caused such a stir in our cookie-conscious audience that I have had to make hundreds of reprints to fill requests for more copies.

They still come in and because that recipe calls for one heaby dough I think our new young bakers would appreciate it. It would make a good insert for a bride's cookbook if you ask me.

BASIC COOKIE DOUGH —

FIVE FANCY VARIETIES

2¾ cups sifted cake flour
2 tsps. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
¾ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tbsp. cream
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter or margarine and sugar together; beat until light. Add eggs, cream and vanilla; beat until fluffy. Stir in dry ingredients until blended. Shape into ball and wrap in waxed paper. Chill 2 hrs. Divide dough in halves. Return ½ to refrigerator. Break off pieces of dough; flour the palms of your hands and shape into balls 1" in diameter. Place on buttered cookie sheets and press down with flat bottom of a floured tumbler. Place 2" apart. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 8 min., having cookie sheets at center of oven. Do not brown those cookies at all. I made 4 doz.

FIVE VARIATIONS

1) Put two cookies together with pineapple jam, roll edges in melted bitter chocolate then in finely chopped Brazils.

2) Brush top with egg white and dip entire top in chocolate shot.

3) Put together with apple jelly, roll edges in thin plain icing - sugar - egg - white - frosting (egg white leftover from dipping tops of number 2) and then in coconut.

4) On top of about eight cookies place 1 tsp. pineapple jam; swirl around it some of the plain white icing, then dip tops quickly in coconut.

5) Add a little melted butter to the leftover melted chocolate, spread tops of remaining cookies with it, and quickly dip in finely chopped Brazils.

This makes a pretty variety of five cookies which are nourishing and tempting and perfect to serve with tea or coffee for a teatime or late night snack.

Successful Living

Young Man Sorry He Broke Up with Her

By DOROTHY CLARK

Dear Doris: I broke up with a girl about three months ago, because I wanted to have a little fun on my own, going out with the boys.

I want her back but don't quite know how to go about it. She's going with another guy now. I've written her a letter practically begging, but to no avail.

It isn't as easy as some people might think, asking a girl to come back. After you've told her you wanted a break. Ever since I broke up I can't seem to get on my two feet.

I live in a place where there are hardly any girls to even talk to. Do you think I can get her back by writing her, or other means? — Made a Mistake.

Dear Made: We learn the hard way. Who could blame your ex-girl friend for taking a dim view about another date?

Write her, once more, in a particularly attractive vein — but no sob stories. If she says no, accept it. Talk to those hardly-any girls.

Love doesn't always strike like lightning. You don't have to have a crush on a girl to enjoy her company.

Dear Doris: I have several nieces and nephews who have suddenly been brought up by their mother while their father was away on road construction jobs. I feel these children lack much as far as dating and drinking are concerned.

Would you please advise me, and recommend books?

— Family Matter.

Dear Family Matter: Dear Ann Landers, Abigail Van Buren, Emily Post.

Aunts have an advantage. They can take nieces and nephews without laying down the law. They can help their youngsters to think for themselves, without being too critical.

About drinking:

(1) Some grab for a drink as a dowsing man would for a straw — to help them to let themselves go. Then they end up looking foolish.

(2) It takes a large person more liquor before he gets tipsy.

(3) Alcohol is absorbed through the walls of the stomach and small intestine; results are immediate. Food in the stomach slows down the absorption. (Hint: Eat a sandwich before leaving home.)

(4) Drivers are at least 25 ways to say no when offered a drink. Examples: "I feel good enough already"; "I can get the same effect just by taking off my glasses", "I'm allergic to alcohol."

(5) Two beers contain more calories than a piece of pie, a cream puff or a candy bar. (Calorie counters please note.)

I'm sending you my list of recommended books on sex and dating. Good luck!

Dear Doris: I was interested in your note about Esperanto as an aid to communication between nations. Wouldn't it be wonderful if a person could learn one language and get around the world with it?

Where does one get information re Esperanto? For lazy folk like I am it might be just the thing. — Hopeful.

Dear Hopeful: Esperanto enthusiasts think it is tops. For one thing all verbs are regular — no irregular and easy to handle. For another, Esperanto clicks exist in every country. For a third, you can find pen pals in the Esperanto handbook, listed according to country and age and interests.

There are numerous clubs in many Canadian centres. Ask your public library where to write for them.

Have you an idea or question? — that you'd like to share? Write to Doris!).

The Experts Say

New Industry Found by Accident

OTTAWA (CP) — In 1952, Clarence Birdseye, a young American inventor, died, furthering in Labrador and accidentally discovered the secret that enabled a new industry: frozen foods.

He saw Eskimos catching fish in 50-below-zero weather. The federal fisheries department sends results in a booklet called Take a Pack of Frozen Fillets.

The fish froze almost as soon as they were taken from the water. Eaten months later, they tasted freshly caught.

Today a wide variety of meats and fish is filleted, packaged and frozen in either raw or pre-cooked form.

The department's booklet gives hints for buying frozen fillets, including advice to make sure of blind quality by buying packs showing a maple-leaf inspect containing the words "Canada Inspected."

It suggests that fillets be bought in a "cool market where the frozen-fish case is clean, orderly, free from frost and ice and—most important—the visible temperature indicator reads zero degrees fahrenheit or lower."

There is a line on the inner side of most freezer cabinets showing what food should not be stacked. Avoid packages above it.

If fillets must be thawed—in order, for example, to separate them for individual cooking, frying or broiling—schedule thawing so that they will be ready for cooking when thawed.

Loss of nutritious juices contained when only partial thawing is complete. Do not hold thawed fillets longer than a day.

To thaw a one-pound fillet block just enough to ease cutting, remove it from the package and leave at room temperature for 30 minutes.

When frozen fillets are completely, place the unopened package in the refrigerator. Allow 24 hours to thaw a one-pound block and 18 to 20 hours for a pack of individual fillets.

For quicker complete thawing, place the unopened package in a deep dish and cover it with cold water. Place the dish (unless it is fully running cold-water tap) and allow it to sit one to three hours.

Complete thawing at room temperature, or by immersion in hot water, is not recommended, as these two juices move readily this way.

Previous to her marriage on Saturday, Miss Lee O'Connor (nee Judith Millikin) was honored at a kitchen shower given by Miss Ann Miller of Trenton, and a miscellaneous shower by co-hostesses Mrs. Jim Bedore, Mrs. Rick McKee and Miss Margaret O-Connor.

Mrs. Marg Cooke, manager of LePage Real Estate in Belleville, explains her job and the problems it entails.

City Woman Manager Of Real Estate Office

Women's Editor's Note: This is number is the series of local women who are following a career in positions primarily held by men.

Very few women have jobs as managers of real estate firms but one of the few is Mrs. Marg Cooke who manages one in Belleville.

Mrs. Cooke has been manager of LePage Real Estate since January, 1969. She was formerly in sales with another local real estate firm for seven years. Now she has 12 employees serving under her direction and seven of them are men.

"A breakthrough has definitely taken place in the company" she said. "I am the one only female manager in about 58 years."

It is the policy of the firm to promote people within the company and some women are suited to the business world she went on. However, there is one drawback — women in the business world must be able to think like a man in order to be successful. Wages are equal for both sexes since real estate employees in this firm are paid according to production.

Her job involves such things as dealing with developers and townships; being familiar with politics affecting land in various areas and generally being able to handle any problem which arises. The problems vary each week.

Foundation Planting Outlined

MARMORA — An outdoor meeting of Marmora Horticultural Society held at the home of Mrs. Granville Mudkjohn, Crowe Bay Road was well attended by members.

Larry Johnson, agricultural and gardener, of Belleville, discussed foundation planting, types of grass suitable for sowing in particular locations, and different types of shrubs suitable for planting in the district and for houses of one and two stories.

He also pointed out that insecticide treatment properly given could prevent the death of trees and keep them healthy. The discussions were continued indoors, and a question and answer period proved most informative to the gardners.

Thanks to Mr. Johnson on behalf of all present were expressed by Mrs. Charles Lajoie.

During a short business meeting chaired by president, Frank Foster, there was discussion on the planting of a plot at the fireball and a night chosen to complete this work. Two horticultural books will be purchased by the Society, one for use by members, and the other to be presented to Marmora Public Library. A. M. Jones will lead a panel discussion on gardening at the September meeting.

WHY HARMFUL TENSION MAKES YOU SICK

Why do we get sick? Why do we die? The most reasonable explanation yet comes from Dr. Hans Selye, director of the University of Montreal's Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery. He says: "A motor car doesn't suddenly stop running because of old age. It stops because of some billions of some part that has worn out. It is the same with people. Under continuous stress — either physical or mental — some vital part gives away, leading to a variety of illnesses, and eventually death." A feature article in July Reader's Digest tells about different types of stress, and what can be done to minimize their ill effects. It shows how to cope with destructive stress, how you could sleep better, work better and even live longer. Get your July Reader's Digest today!

White Cane Club Holds Picnic

The Belleville White Cane Club ended its 1969-70 season with a picnic on Saturday, June 27 at the Recreation Centre. Many members from Belleville and Trenton with their friends attended.

The activities for the afternoon included both individual and team contests. At the close of activities a picnic supper was served with ice cream donated by the Kinette Club.

Miss Pat Baverstock, president of the club, spoke briefly to those present and thanked all those who had helped with the picnic. Special mention was made of the generous contributions given by Matrons Rollins and the Moose Lodge.

Women's Section Conducts Bridge

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club women's section sponsored a mixed bridge session recently with 27 tables in play at the Club hall.

Convenors for the event were Mrs. Bruce Monolf and Mrs. Bruce Curtis who welcomed the guests and Curtis distributed the prizes for both the bridges and a number of draws.

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

The annual Grade VIII graduation party was held recently in the school auditorium. The auditorium was colorfully decorated in a "deep sea setting" by Miss Dorothy Thompson and some of the art students. The graduates marched into the auditorium during the processional which was played by the school band. The playing of "O Canada" was followed by a few words of welcome by Mrs. Herb Cavalier, president of the Home and School Association.

Barry Bevvin, music instructor, conducted the school band in two renditions.

Trophies were awarded to the following: girls' athletic award in, Penny Hughes, awarded by Mrs. Reid; boys' athletic award to Terry Wray, by Mr. Ted Butcher; girls' academic improvement award to Diane Hannah, by Mr. Terry Marson; vice-principal; boys' academic improvement to Stephen Price, by Mr. Leo McQuaid, principal.

Previous to the presenting of certificates which are a remembrance of King George School presented by the Home and School Association, Mr. McQuaid spoke briefly to the students on behalf of the staff.

The valedictory address was delivered by George Wrey, who first dealt with the years he has spend in public school and expressed appreciation to past teachers. In looking to the future he stated, "Wherever we go we will find that we will only get out of high school what we put into it. We must put aside childlike wishes ourselves to get the maximum of efficiency of the area of interest that we may have."

In conclusion he stated that one must go to high school with a good positive attitude towards getting an education and that one would depend upon what the individual puts into it. "Life in a secondary school can be interesting, challenging and definitely worthwhile," he concluded.

The students departed to their various rooms during the recessional and remained for the reading of "The Sum." a local group.

Refreshments were served by parents of the Home and School Association.

WEDDING

O'CONNOR — MILLIKIN

MARMORA — St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, was the scene of the double - ring ceremony on Saturday, June 27 of Judith Ann Millikin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Millikin, Kingston, and Lee Kennedy O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bren O'Connor, RR 2, Marmora.

Rev. Father Joseph Donnelly, cousin of the bridegroom, celebrated the Nuptial Mass, assisted by Rev. Father Phillip Horrigan. Organist was Peter Nearny of Kingston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin with delicate bands of guipure lace enhancing the stand-up collar, three - quarter sleeves and waist. The detachable train was also edged with matching lace. A headdress of seed pearls and white rosebuds held her shoulder-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses on ivy streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Joanne Millikin of Kingston, sister of the bride, who wore a floor - length gown of purple crystal crepe, featuring side insets of mauve.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rick McKee of London, Miss Margaret O'Connor of Marmora, sisters of the groom, Miss Ann Miller of Trenton and Mrs. Jim Bedore of Peterborough. They were dressed similarly in mauve crystal floor - length gowns with side insets in purple. Their bouquets were white daisies with mauve streamers.

Flower girl was Miss Cynthia Millikin, sister of the bride, dressed in a mauve pant suit and carrying a basket of yellow roses and white daisies. Ring bearer was the bride's brother, Michael Millikin.

Best man was Dennis O-Connor, brother of the groom, and ushers were brothers, Brian, Donald, Paul and Edward O'Connor.

A reception followed at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Kingston. For their two-month vacation in Florida, the bride travelled in a sleeveless white lace dress with black accessories, and her corsage was of yellow sweetheart roses.

On return, Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will live in Trenton.

Ann Landers

Compulsive Behavior Calls for Treatment

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am worried about our 13-year-old son. He has an uncontrollable urge to do certain simple things over and over again in order to satisfy himself. For example, he must write at least two words with every crayon in the box before he puts the box away. He must empty his piggy bank and count all his savings every night before he goes to bed. Sometimes he counts the money three and four times.

ANN LANDERS

Three weeks ago I took him to our pediatrician. He said the child is mentally ill and needs help. When my husband learned the visits would cost $15 each he said, "What nonsense! We can't afford it. Just make the kid stop the foolishness!"

Last night the boy was preparing for bed. He put his pajama tops on backwards, then forwards, then backwards, then frontwards. He was crying from frustration and kept repeating, "My mind makes me do this!" His dad came into the room and shouted, "If you don't cut out this crazy stuff you'll have to spend the rest of your life in an insane asylum!"

Please tell me what to do. I am — WORRIED SICK.

DEAR WORRIED: Insist that your husband talk to the boy's doctor. The father needs to have some understanding of the youngster's compulsive behavior. You have a sick child on your hands and he will probably become sicker if he is not treated. Threatening the boy will only make him more compulsive and possibly non-functional. If this happens, the $15 visits will seem like nothing compared with what will have to be done to make him well.

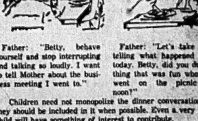
DEAR ANN LANDERS: A distant cousin moved to this city a few months ago. She has a charming husband and nice children who are the same age as ours.

We have tried to be helpful — done everything we can think of including finding them a lovely home in our neighborhood. On three occasions, we invited friends in so they could meet interesting people. Herein lies the problem.

It seems whenever we are in a crowd, my cousin tells some tasteless "Do You Remember-When" story dating back to our childhood. Either her memory is a lot better than mine or she is a liar. Furthermore, I resent such lines as these: "As you know — your mother's house was always a mess." And: "That was the evening your dad got so stiff they had to carry him out." Last night she volunteered this little knife in the back: "You always loved to come to our house on Sundays because you never had a date and you knew I'd have at least three extra fellows hanging around."

I'm beginning to think my cousin is not much of a friend. Am I super-sentitive? Her face is a study in sweet innocence when she makes these cutting remarks. It's hard to believe she is intentionally destructive I need an unbiased opinion. How should I deal with her? — WAY BACK WHEN.



DEAR WAY: The next time the Friendly Neighborhood Cobra surfaces with one of her well-masked attacks on your jugular, don't just sit there. Tell her in unmistakable language that her tongue is sharper than her memory and you don't know what in the world she is talking about.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Betty, behave yourself and stop interrupting and talking so loudly. I want to tell Mother about the business meeting I went to."

Father: "Let's take turns telling what happened to us today, Betty, did you do anything that was fun when you went on the picnic this noon?"

Children need not monopolize the dinner conversation, but they should be included in it when possible. Even a very young child will have something of interest to contribute.

Political Leaders Join Celebrations And Protesters March on July 1 Holiday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

During skunks, and boyhood dreams were the order of the day as two political leaders added individual tributes to celebrations by millions of Canadians Wednesday, the 103rd Dominion Day holiday since Confederation.

Politicians have each known to be told to go fly a kite, and although Prime Minister Trudeau did try his hand at it in Manitoba, he found there success in scrambling over a moving 1882 steam locomotive and fulfilling a boyhood dream of operating its throttle.

Falling flat on his face after tripping on a shoelace and taking a turbulent trip aboard a Red River paddlesteamer didn't deter Mr. Trudeau from participating in celebrations which also marked Manitoba's centennial.

Not to be outdone in seconds, Premier John Robarts of Ontario let the kites in the children and chose instead a colorful balloon, filled with helium.

His flight, which took an unscheduled course that had officials worried until the balloon landed safely, was part of opening ceremonies of the Canadian open golf championship which starts today at London, Ont.

Protest demonstrations were in evidence in three cities.

In Ottawa more than 200 paraded on Parliament Hill to protest what they called racist treatment of young drug users. A spokesman for the group, which included people from as far away as California, said they were objecting to young people being jailed for simple possession and added that while older people can do the same thing are overlooked.

About 300 had gathered in east-end Lafontaine Park and tried to march south toward city hall to demonstrate for a free Quebec, before police dispersed the crowd.

More than 200 young people demonstrated outside Winnipeg Stadium in a vain attempt to get free admission to a cross country rock music concert, which played in Toronto last weekend. At least 10,000 paid to attend.

Police reported no injuries, and only a few arrests in the incidents.

On a quieter note, more than 1,000 children trekked across Government House lawns in Ottawa to meet Governor-General Roland Michener, and then mounted ponies, climbed on to a ferris wheel or watched clowns and magicians.

In British Columbia, 1,000 persons consumed 20 barbecued lambs at the annual Saturna Island barbecue in the Gulf of Georgia while 10,000 attended the annual salmon bake-cook-out at Stevenson. Thousands more flocked to beaches and other carnivals to watch aquatic skydivers entertained others in Vancouver Island.

A sour note came from Whitehorse, YT where the territorial council charged that the Yukon is still not officially owned by Canada, but merely administered by the federal government.

The charge came with the tabling of a paper prepared by the federal government in reply to questions about the date the Yukon was transferred by the British government to Canada.

For many Canadians it was a holiday in name only as they already had Monday off for a long weekend, or were playing on a Friday holiday. Slot holidayers were out in force in most areas.

Thousands thronged down town Toronto for street dancing and a beauty contest at city hall as an eight-day international carnival organized by 35 ethnic groups ended.

A spectacular 40-minute fireworks display over the Detroit River was seen by more than 100,000 in Windsor, Ont., during the 15th annual Windsor-Detroit Freedom Festival.

Thousands sweltered through humid 90-degree weather in the morning in what is expected to be the contestants for the title of Miss International Freedom Festival, eventually won by Joyce Ridley, 22, of Dresden, Ont.

Sports was high on the agenda for many. At Montreal's Blue Bonnets Raceway, a capacity crowd of 41,761 watched Fresh Yankee win the $16,600 Montreal Trot to break the Canadian record for money won by a race horse. The first-place money of 18,230 brought the seven-year-old trotter's lifetime earnings to $381,993. The former record was $380,304.

At Jarry Park, 25,623 baseball fans got an unexpected treat when Montreal Expos swept both games of a doubleheader from Philadelphia Phillies, 11-1 and 4-1.

By midnight, more than 112,000 had visited Man and His World on the site of Expo 67.

It was a double celebration in Ottawa for Eppie Wiekes of Thornhill, Ont., who all but clinched the Canadian road racing championship by coasting to an easy victory in the fourth race of the Gulf Canada series before 25,000 spectators.

Role Changing Says Primate

TORONTO (CP) — Archbishop Howard H. Clark, who retires Aug. 31 after 18 years as primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, feels the role of the primate has undergone change.

He says there had been a feeling the primate should be only chairman of the house of bishops and president of the general synod but now the primate has become a spokesman for the church at national and international levels.

"The post is one where there is a great need for sensitivity, because it isn't your personal opinions you're expressing," he said in an interview.

"And yet, you have to be completely honest because if you say what you think people would like to hear, or what the church would want to hear, then you might be compromising a fundamental honesty and that I think every Christian should have."

A new primate will be elected when the general synod meets next January.

Sydney J. Harris Says

'The Public' Doesn't Exist

Thoughts at Large:

The second-rate is to be despised only when it pretends to be more or better than it is; an honest craftsmanlike work, that respects its own limitations (the way a good mystery book does) is preferable to a pretentious "serious" novel that is inflated with self-importance.

It has always struck me as unseemly when wives applaud their husbands' speeches; some odd strain of propriety in my nature persists in regarding this as somehow vulgar.

Both those persons who secretly consider themselves "dull" and those who consider themselves "good" ought to reflect on the maxim of Montaigne: "I have never seen a greater miracle or monster than myself."

It's a delicate matter to compliment an older woman without obliquely making her feel that you've guessed her true age.

One of the most treacherous phrases in the lexicon of argument is "the public"—for there is in fact no such thing, only a congeries of different publics, forever shifting and reforming their constituency.

Why is it called a "sot" job when it's the hardest of all to get?

It's strange how the people who regard it as an infringement of personal liberties if society should decide to limit the number of children we might have, don't at all consider it a loss of freedom that we are permitted only one husband or wife at a time; but if the state has the acknowledged right to enforce monogamy, why not the number of progeny? (And please don't quote the Bible at me, in defense of "multiplying"; all the Old Testament patriarchs had numerous wives, but that didn't stop ecclesiastical authorities from eventually banning polygamy.)

Speaking of children, any parent, at any time during an argument with a teen-ager, who remarks "When I was your age . . . " deserves exactly the scorn he or she gets.

The next hardest thing to giving up smoking is to avoid substituting something for it, like smugness.

For a shrewd understanding of feminine psychology, it's hard to beat J. B. Priestley's observation: "She was not pretty, but she might have been handsome if somebody had kept telling her that she was pretty."

Internes have to spend considerable time in emergency rooms before they're equipped to make life - and - death decisions; then why shouldn't judges be compelled to spend a couple of months working in jails before they're considered qualified to sit on the bench?

Robarts Flies Balloon Some Thought Him Lost

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — As provincial police began an "observation search" for Premier John Robarts Wednesday night, the premier was making a champagne toast with three friends in the gondola of a helium balloon floating over southwestern Ontario.

Because the premier's flight had not been fully explained to the news media in advance, reporters and some officials became concerned when eyewitnesses reported the balloon heading into darkness and thunderbowers east of here, rather than north to Stratford as had been scheduled.

But the balloonists were never lost during the "fantastic" two-hour flight to a farmer's field 37 miles to the east, the premier said on his return here.

"You know it's a fantastic experience . . . we never had any problem because the truck was following us all the way," the premier said.

The premier boarded the gondola about 6 p.m. for a publicity flight in connection with the Canadian open golf championship starting today. A pro-amateur tournament had been held earlier Wednesday.

With him were Colin Brown, an insurance company agent, and the co-owners of the balloon, Vladoslr Kavan, vice president of Ramset Fasteners Ltd., and Charles Raleigh, an executive of Canadian Comstock Ltd. Both Mr. Kavan and Mr. Raleigh are licensed pilots.

The original plan was for a two-hour flight north to Stratford, because that was the direction of the wind. But the wind later veered to the southeast, and the balloon went with it.

Mr. Kavan said later that walkie-talkie radios were carried in the gondola to communicate with a truck and cars following the balloon's path.

When the balloon came down shortly after 8 p.m. near La Salette, about four miles north of Delhi, the premier and his companions were driven back to the country club.

In the interim, provincial police in the Delhi area had been put on the alert to be on the lookout for the balloon. But at no time was it reported missing or as active search ordered, a provincial police spokesman said at Tillsonburg.

The premier was installed as a balloonist, in the initiation ceremony, Mr. Roberts submitted to having champagne and sand, taken from the ballast bags, poured over his head by his companions—followed by a champagne toast.

"The premier was a sport—I have never seen a man enter a gondola and agree to ascend, so readily," Mr. Kavan said.

PROJECT APOLLO: THE WAY TO THE MOON — by F. J. Booker.

The landing of men on the moon has been accomplished with such precision and apparent ease that it is easy to forget what lies behind it. The history of Project Apollo, and of the techniques and equipment that were evolved to put men on the moon for the first time, are quite as exciting and important as the flights themselves, as we have seen them on television.

First on the moon is history, but it is also the chronicle of any and all men who unite to meet the unspoken challenge posed by the unknown. It is the exclusive story of Apollo II and the thrilling and personal experiences of the three astronauts who put men on the Moon.

SPACE — by Patrick Moore.

In this book Patrick Moore tells the full story of space exploration from the very earliest theories to the recent lunar landings and interplanetary probes. He describes how the Greek philosophers recorded the first serious thoughts about space travel, how the Arab astronomers were the first to appreciate that the earth's atmosphere likes out with increasing height above the ground, and how the very first science fiction story — Lucian's True History (the story of a Moon Voyage) was written as long ago as A.D. 150.

HISTORY OF ROCKETRY AND SPACE TRAVEL — by Wernher Von Braun.

The study of astronautical history is exciting and rewarding because one learns of the prescience and insight of brilliant intellects over the centuries. One learns also that improvements in technology ideas were largely the result of study and research by individuals. These individuals, caught up in a dream, were driven relentlessly by the excitement of a concept and the possibility of contributing to its fulfillment. These stories make exciting reading.

FOOTPRINTS ON THE MOON — by the Writers and Editors of The Associated Press.

"Tranquility base here. The Eagle has landed." With these words, three intrepid space explorers made their lives unique in history by taking the first giant steps to the stars — a landing on the moon. In an era marked by wars and human strife, the astronauts gave people of the world a spiritual lift by making the major news event of this century one of man's achievements rather than his failures. "Footprints on the moon" is the story of how man forged the weapons to free himself from the bonds that hold him to his native planet.

Suddenly, with the launching of Sputnik I in 1957, the world entered the space Age. The literature of astronautics is enormous, and has been expanding explosively in the last few years; no subject has ever generated so much of what can only be called premature history. The stories that are in this book were chosen by Mr. Clarke for the vividness of their writing and the dramatic events they portray.

Queen's Tour Will Be Broadcast in Eskimo

OTTAWA (CP) — Activities of the Royal Family during next week's tour of the Northwest Territories will be broadcast in Eskimo by the CBC's northern service.

While the BBC Royal affairs reporter, Roy Allison, translates his description of the tour in dulcet English, Eskish Monarik, 39, will be broadcasting in the vowel-laden Eskimo tongue to his countrymen.

Allison and Monarik are among 74 reporters, broadcasters and photographers to have seats on the Boeing 727 that will serve as the press plane for much of the tour.

A seat costs $1,000 and the CBC has reserved 24. The CBC also will have 135 reporters, directors, producers and technicians awaiting the Royal Family in Winnipeg.

CTV, the CBC's rival network, is sending a team of three on the Boeing.

The CBC, which had more men in Mexico City for the 1968 Olympics than there were competitors, regards its team of 24 as an exercise in restraint.

The team will cover the English and French television and radio networks, the international service and the northern service.

The restraint is partially accounted for, it is understood, by the fact that the corporation had to persuade its French side to send anyone.

The CBC will provide the only direct coverage in French. French-language newspapers in Quebec and New Brunswick will depend on translated copy from reporters of The Canadian Press.

The Canadian Press will send two reporters and three photographers. One Broadcast News reporter will also cover the tour.

Altogether, there will be about 30 television and radio men on the tour, 15 photographers and about 30 newspaper reporters or columnists.

Czech Defects

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Czech diplomat in Washington has defected and is seeking asylum in the United States, the State Department disclosed Wednesday.

He was identified as 46-year-old Antonin Nenko, a scientific affairs officer who came to the Czechoslovak embassy in January, 1969, as a second secretary.

Department press officer Carl Bartch said Mr. Nenko "got in touch with U.S. government officials" last Monday and "has requested permission to remain in the U.S. That request is under consideration."

Potato Quotas Are Deplored

TORONTO (CP) — Quotas placed on Canadian potatoes shipped to the United States are detrimental to Canadian growers and should be eliminated, provincial agriculture ministers agreed Wednesday.

At the closing session of a conference sponsored by the Ontario government, the ministers were unanimous in urging complete tariff, equalization on potato sales.

There now is a 37½-cent a hundredweight duty on table potatoes moving either way across the Canada-United States border.

However, while American potatoes coming into Canada are not subject to quota restrictions, Canadian producers must pay an additional 37 cents a hundredweight on potatoes shipped in excess of annual quotas of 45,000,000 pounds of table potatoes and 114,000,000 pounds of seed potatoes.

Dealing with apples, the ministers decided to seek ways of correcting problems involved in the inter-provincial trade of apples, which in the past has disrupted organized marketing efforts in some jurisdictions.

U. S. Faces Shortage Of Power

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, President Nixon's science adviser, said Wednesday a nation-wide campaign to turn off unnecessary lights may be needed this summer to help avoid brownouts in the United States.

Such a campaign would also include plans to reduce the use of air conditioners and other electrical equipment to a minimum, Dr. DuBridge said in a speech prepared for the American Nuclear Society.

New Moves Urged To Control Economy

TORONTO (CP) — New measures to control foreign economic influence in Canada and establish a national regulatory body to police them were reported Tuesday to be among recommendations being prepared by a parliamentary external affairs committee.

The Telegram and The Star say in Ottawa stories that the report suggests guidelines to prevent either foreign companies or international unions from infringing on Canada's sovereignty. The newspapers say policing will be done by an alien control agency with headquarters in Winnipeg and branches throughout the country.

Charges Against Two Police Officers Detailed

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police Tuesday released charges under which two of the force's senior officers will appear at a hearing here starting July 15.

Supt. Albert Wilson and Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger were charged Monday under the Ontario Police Act in connection with social contacts with George Duke, an Oakville, businessman. They were suspended from the force last week.

Supt. Wilson is to appear on five charges and Staff Supt. Rodger on three charges.

The charges against Supt. Wilson allege that he:

—Acted in a manner likely to bring discredit upon the reputation of the force by associating with Mr. Duke, being aware that he had a criminal record.

—Acted in a manner prejudicial to discipline by failing to transmit a lawful order to subordinates.

—Disobeyed a lawful order not to associate with Mr. Duke (two charges).

The charges against Staff Supt. Rodger allege that he:

—Acted in a manner likely to bring discredit upon the reputation of the force by associating with Mr. Duke.

—Neglected to carry out a lawful order by failing to instruct personnel to refrain from further contact with Mr. Duke.

—Disobeyed a lawful order not to associate with Mr. Duke.

The OPP said that Supt. Wilson will appear before T. B. Trimble, QPP Deputy Commissioner, while Staff Supt. Rodger will appear before J. L. Needham, QPP assistant commissioner.

The two men were suspended after New Democratic Party member Dr. Morton Shulman (Toronto—High Park) charged earlier this month in the legislature that senior OPP officers had social contacts with Mr. Duke.

Mr. Duke was deported to Canada from the United States in 1962 after serving a prison term in connection with a $400,000 jewel robbery.

Breathalyzer Is Assailed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The compulsory breath test will likely convict one innocent person for—every six legitimately convicted, an expert in metabolism and toxicology said in an interview Tuesday.

Dr. I. M. Rabinowitch, a retired researcher at McGill University and Montreal General Hospital, said the law is worthless. "The breathalyzer, or any other breath test, has no place in a court of justice."

Use of Pesticides on Farm Defended

TORONTO (CP) — Charges that agriculture has contributed to pollution through the wide use of pesticides have been disproved by government research, provincial agriculture ministers said Wednesday.

At a conference sponsored by the Ontario government, the ministers said that without the meaningful contribution made by pesticides to agricultural productivity, there would be great difficulty in producing enough food for the world's population.

Recent public outcrys against all forms of pollution have resulted in Ontario banning general use of the insecticide DDT and permitting only selected use under strict control by certain sectors of agriculture.

Contrary to popular opinion, the ministers said, the major factor in world food production has not been fertility, but rather chemical means of controlling pests.

Referring to recent suggestions that pesticides be replaced by biological means of insect control, they said research in this area has been going on for many years.

"Until such results can be assessed and proven to be acceptable, agriculture has no alternative but to utilize pesticides with care and caution. If the food needs of the world's population are to be adequately met," they said.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — The annual Point Anne United Church Sunday School picnic was held in the Canada Cement Park Saturday, June 27. Lunch was served in the Sunday School rooms by teachers of the primary children.

Just Society Seizes House

TORONTO (CP) — About 40 members of a poor peoples' group, The Just Society, helped an evicted mother of five to move into a vacant Ontario Housing Corp. unit Wednesday, leaving another fatherless family of three homeless.

H. W. Saters, OHC managing director, said in an interview he will seek to lay charges of illegal entry against the society as well as starting legal proceedings to remove Mrs. Audrey Wilson and her five children, ranging in age from four to 16, from the OHC apartment.

"I'm getting a little sick and tired of these neo-political groups like The Just Society," Mr. Saters said. "The sad part is that the society, really just a bunch of anarchists, has stolen a home from a family. . . ."

The OHC leased the apartment to Mrs. Dianne Donally and her three children after she went on the OHC waiting list some time ago. She now is staying in a hotel paid for by the OHC.

Mrs. Wilson said in an interview she was evicted from her previous OHC apartment because she refused to pay all of the $135-a-month rent, claiming it had been raised without reason from the $163 a month she had been paying earlier.

Mushrooms Might Fill World Protein Needs

THE HAGUE (AP) — "There are over 2,000,000,000 mushrooms here," Canadian Prof. Naim Kosaric said, holding up a small mailbox bottle filled with dark gray powder.

"They are dehydrated, of course, and are one-cell mushrooms, but in liquid with their favorite food, natural gas, they may be the answer to the world protein shortage."

Kosaric is professor of food engineering at the University of Western Ontario. He spoke about unconventional foods at the World Food Congress, with a report on research done in Canada.

Single-cell protein sources are algae, bacteria, yeasts and mildew "mushrooms" which thrive on petroleum wastes, natural gas, or even polluted water. One type of mushroom likes paper-mill wastes, turning them into edible protein.

Several countries are studying single-cell protein possibilities. The dream is to find cheap and practical ways to make it in pure form.

Research began 10 years ago at British Petroleum in France is at a commercial stage, but Kosaric says his "mushrooms" are richer, purer, and possibly even easier to grow.

British Petroleum began with the anti-pollution idea of using petroleum residues as food for single-cell protein. This followed a suggestion by J. C. Senez, director of bacterial chemistry at Marseille.

Kosaric said Canada's "mushroom" mature in 30 minutes.

"Given entirely proper conditions and sufficient natural gas, one mushroom could, theoretically, reproduce to reach 400 times the total mass of the entire world in just two days," he said.

Rain No Friend to Firemen: Races Washed Out 'til Friday

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Rain could be a fireman's best friend.

There were no fires in Belleville Wednesday, however, and the city Firefighters' Association pet charity project — the Dominion Day Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Motorcycle Races — fizzled in the face of a two - hour afternoon downpour.

With $200 sunk into organizing the third annual event, race chairman Wally Istead is banking on the public to bail the firemen and their Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club cohorts out of their damp predicament.

"We're going ahead with the races Friday night at the same time (practice — 6 p.m., eliminations — 8 o'clock) and just hope the public supports us the way they have in the past."

In the first two years the Firefighters' project netted $2,700 for the Muscular Dystrophy campaign, in addition to paying prize money for 50-entry fields and meeting track expenses. Last year's July 1st races drew an estimated 4,000 spectators to the Fairgrounds.

Wednesday's races were called off around 6 p.m. when what had been a steady drizzle turned into a steadier downpour. "Up to then, we could have run the races with no problem at all," said chairman Istead. "The rain had just taken the dust off the track. We wouldn't have had to water it down before the races like we usually do."

The races could probably have gone ahead as scheduled as it was, but fears of a pathetically small turnout of spectators forced the postponement decision.

"The drivers were all ready to go," Istead revealed. "Most of them are racing for the competition. Two even said they'd donate their prize money to the Muscular Dystrophy campaign."

If the drivers and organizers are optimistic about Friday night, the weatherman is not. The long range forecast called for a continuation of shower activity right through until Friday night.

"It'll take a real downpour to cancel Friday's races," said fireman Istead. "As long as the chief referee says the bikes can run, we're going to go ahead. We can't keep asking the drivers to come back."

One driver the Belleville race organizers definitely hope will be back Friday night is Yvon Dubamel, five-time Canadian dirt - track champion whose success in the United States motorcycle circuit makes his Canadian racing appearances rare.

Dubamel showed up at the Fairgrounds Wednesday with his Jawa pit crew, but reportedly drove back to Quebec after the race postponement was announced.

Top expert contender Jean Marc Houde has booked into a motel until Friday's races, as has Bob Swadling, 11-e Windsor area speedster who took top junior honors driving 250 CC in last August's Canadian Nationals at Belleville.

Organizers hope their attendance is enough to make Dubamel want to show up Friday.

The umbrella tells the story of Wednesday's planned Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Motorcycle Races at the Belleville Fairgrounds. An afternoon downpour forced the Belleville Firefighters' Association to postpone their third annual fund-raising event to Friday night.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1975

Canadian junior wrestling champions Robert Stitt and Harold Brant add the three medals they captured at the championship meet in Calgary, last weekend to their impressive trophy collection. Stitt won a gold medal in the 114½-pound freestyle and added a third place finish in the Greco-Roman competition. Brant took first place in the heavyweight freestyle event.

'Reversal' Gives City Second Canadian Title

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Harold Brant, an 18 - year old Moira Secondary School student gained the most important "reversal" of his wrestling career Sunday, when he was awarded first place in the junior heavyweight section of the Canadian wrestling championships.

A mix-up in the scoring had given the initial victory to Brant's final round opponent Kevin Kittick of Chippewa, Ontario. Each wrestler had two points at the end of the match, but Kittick was charged twice with stalling which gave Brant the win.

The win by the Shannonville heavyweight gave Belleville - area wrestlers a total of three medals in the all-Canadian events, as Centennial Secondary student Robert Stitt added a bronze medal in the Greco - Roman wrestling category to his victory in the 114½ pound junior freestyle. Robert, 18, and brother David, 24, monopolized their weight division, as David won a gold medal in the senior event. Both completed under the banner of the Hen&Non Wrestling Club.

Weighing a "mere" 207 pounds put Brant at a distinct disadvantage in his final match against the 290 - pound Kittick. What strategy did he use against a 290 - pound opponent? "You make sure that you don't wind up underneath him," smiles Harold.

The finals' match was his third of the tournament after he recorded wins by a pin and a decision in his first two contests.

Stitt had a tougher course in his title as he lost a decision in his first match. "I find it harder to fight well in the first bouts," he claims. "I have to build up almost a hate for my opponent and I just wasn't mentally ready for the first match." He received of five consecutive victories in his remaining bouts to clinch his win.

The strain of entering both the freestyle and the senior Greco - Roman events caught up to the Belleville lightweight as he was pinned by the eventual champion of the latter event. "I was pretty tired," he admitted, "but there was no question about it, he was a better wrestler."

Speed was the key to the heavyweight champion's gold-medal performance. "I like to keep my weight right around 200 pounds," says Brant, "It gives me a big advantage in quickness over most of the people that I wrestle against."

Stitt credits his five years of judo training for much of his wrestling success. "Much of my wrestling is judo," he claims. "I've spent five years learning to get out of many of the basic holds Pinell in wrestling. Also, a hip throw is an often - used move in freestyle wrestling and I've learned a counter for it, from judo, which is probably my best move."

He prefers the freestyle wrestling to Greco - Roman. The former permits use of feet and legs in the various throws.

The victories by the Belleville wrestlers are even more impressive because of their lack of training, and the importance of conditioning in the vent.

"I'd have to say that conditioning is the most important part of wrestling. You have to have the staying power for a full ten minutes," says Brant. His lightweight counterpart agrees that, "Being in shape and finishing off your moves are probably the two most important things."

Neither youth has been able to maintain a regular schedule since the close of the high school wrestling season, because of lack of training facilities and competition.

The boys had the advantage of a week's training under Hamilton Wrestling Club coach Doug Howard at McMaster University, and a two-week training period at the University of Alberta, prior to the championships.

"If it wasn't for the help I got from Doug Howard, I'm sure I wouldn't have won my event," claims Brant.

Pointers Nail Corby's To Draw Bead on Second

A five-run, third-inning outburst carried the Point Anne Comenitzen to an 8-3 victory over Corby's Distillery in Commercial League Softball action Tuesday night.

The victory moved the Comenitzen to within two points of the second-place Sjoson's team.

Jamie Hunter picked up the win settling down after a shaky first inning when he allowed two runs on three hits.

He finished with a seven-hitter while fanning five and walking one.

Rick Rosebrush was the big gun at bat for Point Anne getting three singles and driving in two runs. Jim Harwood with a single and a double also drove in two runs as did Larry Fraser with his two singles.

Corby's shortlived first-inning lead was spanked by Chuck Rowbotham's double, driving in two runs, but it was the last time they were to have the lead.

Pat Scollard was tagged with the loss allowing nine hits while fanning three and walking five. His two singles led his team at bat also.

Doubles by Rowbotham and Don Smith plus singles from Gary Goyer, Ken Brooks and Wayne Bunnett were the other Corby safeties.

Wednesday night's scheduled games in the Commercial League were postponed because of rain.

Combines Suffer Consecutive Upsets

CNR Combines were staggered for the second consecutive time as AOCO sprung an 8-7 Industrial Softball League upset on the trimmers, while in the other Tuesday night contest, it was Union Carbide over Fort Office 8-3.

Ron McCoy was the big gun in the American Optical win, looking after the pitching chores and driving in five runs. His three-run double in the bottom of the seventh inning brought AOCO back from a 7-5 deficit.

McCoy gave up 11 hits in two-win, walking five men and striking out a pair. Greg Bellis took the loss as he allowed a dozen safeties. He fanned four batters and didn't walk a man.

Smith had three hits to pace the winners with Segriff, Sanford, Martin and Nobles getting two apiece.

Inability to cash in on their scoring chances cost the Post Office their loss to Union Carbide as they stranded 13 baserunners.

Ken Osborne pitched the win for Union Carbide, weathering 13 hits, walking five and fanning five. Paul Williams and George Johnson worked for the losers giving up 16 hits and three bases on balls. They struck out three batters.

Osborne aided his own cause by slamming a homer, double and single, with Bill Barberstock adding a homer and a single. Jack Hughes added a double and two singles, with Garnet Bird belting a solo homer.

Brian Gariepy was the top Post Office batter clouting two singles and two doubles. John Bolton, Dave McIlwee, Gord St. Louis and Glynn Reynolds each had two safeties.

Belleville opens the schedule at 3:30 p.m. Saturday against Madoc. Second round play will begin at 11:30 a.m.

The "B" final will be played at the Alemite at 4 p.m. with the "A" championship slated for two hours later.

Dingman Passes Cooney in Points

Riverview Speedway Demolition Day program read to be continued Saturday' as rain forced the cancellation of three feature events.

The 15 lap Feature, the Powder Puff race and the figure eight demolition derby will all be held Sunday night at the regular weekly speedway meet.

In the racing that did take place Wednesday, the overall point leadership found 1969 champion Sam Dingman re-forming to his familiar first-place position.

A win in the six-cylinder qualifying race and a second in the feature found Dingman in to a 12-point lead over runner-up Bill Cooney.

The eight - cylinder class still has George Pettingill as its leader a scant eight points ahead of Bob Pruthomme. Pettingill is also only 13 points behind Dingman in the race for the Silver Platen, Riverview's top award.

Danny Reid was again unable to reach the winners' circle Wednesday and his lead in the checkered flag trophy race had dwindled considerably. His eight victories give him a slim lead of one win over Dingman, Jim Woof and John Sinclair.

The six cylinder feature saw Doug Davis take top honors with Dingman second and John Sinclair third. Jim Woof captured the checkered flag in the eight cylinder feature with Early Cooney and second to Dowey Reid third.

Consolation winners were Wayne Foster in the six cylinder and Larry Stalzey in the eight-cylinder.

Lacrosse Nets Lonely

One was the loneliest tumbler in Belleville Minor Lacrosse games Tuesday as the losing league could each count.

Y's Men Whipped

Close games were not to be in Belleville Minor Lacrosse games Tuesday night as the Dairy Queen whipped the Y's Men's Club 6-1 and Atlas Van Lines blanked Bob's Sports 8-0.

Brent Walmsley fired three goals and Glen Edwards two to lead the Dairy Queen attack. Steve Wilson scored the other goal for the Dairy and John Geen replied for the Men's Club.

Bob Richardson accounted for half the Atlas goals, scoring four times with Jeff Belanger getting the other two and Pat Nuttall accounting for the single tally.

The bantam games saw Belleville East Hill pour Trenton Lions Club 14-4 while Belleville West'Hill edged Gilbert Hotel 4-3.

The East Hill used four pitchers to stop Trenton on eight hits. Peter Molaski, Terry Ray, Pat McKenny and Greg Bradshaw covered the six-inn ings between them.

McKenny aided his own cause with a triple, double and single. Terry Ray with a double and single and Peter Bird with a triple were other Belleville hitters.

Dave Van Fleet went the distance for the losing Lions, allowing nine hits while striking out 12 and walking five. Steve Gale was tagged with the single and Charles Brown with two singles provided the support at the plate for Van Fleet.

In Trenton, Gary Christopher and Doug Alberton pitched the win for the West Hill allowing six hits and striking out nine. Base hit support came from Paul Chaconage with two singles, Dave Drake, Abrams and Greg Crenkright.

Don Armstrong fired five-hit ball as the Gilbert team had but still was the recipient of the loss. He fanned nine batters and walked five.

In the tadpole game Plane's, hurlers Dale McTaggart and Corey Parks "combined" on 5 batters in gaining the victory. McTaggart also powered his slugging ability hitting a home run, triple and single. Parks had a triple, a home run and single was the other big gun for Plane's.

Shawn McDonnell hit a home run and a single to lead the Metalmen at the plate.

Lacrosse Entry Frustrated

Belleville's entry in the Quinte Lacrosse League found the action frustrating this week as they dropped a pair 7-6 games to Picton Monday night and Tweed Tuesday night.

In Tweed Tuesday a three-goal effort by Greg Scarlett fell short as Belleville dropped its second game in two nights. Dave Drake, Steve Peconi and Randy Lambert accounted for the other Belleville goals.

Parsons Win Again

The game must go on and on it went through the rain and mud at Zwick's Island with the result being a 3-1 victory for the Belleville Parsons over the Belleville Eagles in Bay of Quinte Soccer League action.

A first-half goal by Kevin Kirby gave the Parsons the lead which they held until 18 minutes remaining in the game.

Bob Watson tied the game for the Eagles during a defensive lapse by the Parsons but two minutes later the Eagles' jubilation was suddenly cut short as Kirby headed his second goal into an upper corner giving the Parsons their margin of victory.

Moscow Trip Next?

"That's just great. I'm really happy for him. I've been trying to work on some sort of scholarship for Harold in the States — he wants to take criminology — and what he accomplished at Calgary will really help his chances."

David Sitzi, who had to be carried from the mat after an exhausting victory in the senior 114½ - pound freestyle competition will be travelling to Edmonton for the World Championships of July 4th and on to Edinburgh, Scotland for the Commonwealth Games, July 16.

Younger brother Robert and Brent are not so fortunate. The Junior World Championships are not held this year, but both Belleville champions have received offers to compete in a number of different tournaments, including one in Moscow next December.

Planes Climb on Kinsmen

Plane's Concrete jumped on the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors for nine runs in the first four innings to move into first place in the South Hastings League standings Tuesday.

Bob Chappell blanked the Kinsmen for five innings before a triple by Brian Coughlin gave the Juniors their only marker in the 9-1 loss. He threw a six - hitter, while fanning nine and issuing two free passes.

The winners got all their runs off starter Terry Meagher and Glenn Carleton, before Wayne McTaggart came on to hurl four innings of scoreless, one - hit ball. The trio allowed eight hits and three walks, while setting six men down on strikes.

Ron Urch slugged a bases-loaded triple and added a single to lead the winners at the plate. Eric Emerson added a double and single and John Tweedy had a pair of safeties. Singles went to Bob Laffan, Ted Abrams and Larry Adams.

Brian Coughlin was tops for Belleville with a triple and two singles. Steve Rushlow had a double and Wayne McTaggart and Dale Duvall chipped in singles.

DENNY McLAIN

Fans Kinder to McLain Than Yanks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denny McLain returned to the baseball wars Wednesday night and the 26-year-old ace righthander of the Detroit Tigers was tagged for five runs and eight hits, including three homers, in 8 1-3 innings.

But he wasn't involved in the decision as Mickey Stanley singled home an unearned run in the 11th inning for a 6-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

"I was scared as hell, to be truthful," McLain admitted after getting several thunderous ovations from a packed house of 52,063, largest Tiger Stadium crowd in nine years, larger than any of the Detroit crowds during the 1968 World Series.

"I think it's the most scared I've been since I was in a plane which had one engine go bad a few years ago. As a matter of fact, before I threw the first pitch I asked Al Kaline, 'What the hell am I doing here?'

"I feel pretty good, but I'm not satisfied because I didn't go nine innings. I'm not thinking like a pitcher yet. I made a couple of mistakes."

Jerry Kenney, Thurman Munson and Bobby Murcer hit the pitchers out of the park.

"I really thought I was going to cry for a minute or swallow my tongue," McLain said of the crowd response to his first appearance since he was suspended from baseball for involvement with gamblers. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn decided that McLain was duped into investing in a Flint, Mich., bookmaking operation.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore Orioles blanked Cleveland Indians 3-0, Minnesota Twins edged Kansas City Royals 2-1 in 10 innings, California Angels shaded Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, Oakland Athletics zipped Chicago White Sox 3-0 and Boston Red Sox beat Washington Senators 6-4.

The Yankees dropped four games behind Baltimore in the East Division when Jim Palmer hurled an eighth-hitter as the Orioles beat the Indians for the eighth straight time this season.

Bateman Changes Jarry Park Tune

MONTREAL (CP) — The boors have turned to cheers for catcher John Bateman of Montreal Expos.

Bateman was given a standing ovation Wednesday night by 25,523 fans watching the National League Expos sweep a doubleheader from Philadelphia Phillies 11-1 and 4-1.

The ovation came during the ninth inning of the first game when it was announced that Bateman had been chosen Expos player of the month by the Montreal chapter of the Baseball Writers of America Association.

"I didn't know what to think," said Bateman. "I just didn't know what to do. I have never received an ovation like that before. It was just great."

Bateman just couldn't get untracked last year. He started slowly, then injured a finger on his right hand in May. He lost the No. 1 catching job to Ron Brand and saw little action the rest of the way.

The Jarry Park fans apparently didn't feel that Bateman was doing anything for the Expos last year and he was the the target of constant booing.

Things started off poorly again for Bateman in 1970. He was fined $200 by manager Gene Mauch in spring training for being overweight. In the second-to-last exhibition game, Bateman suffered a bruised kidney and was sidelined in the early weeks of the season.

When he came back to the lineup, he had his troubles and the "boo-birds" were at him again. In recent weeks, however, Bateman has been a key factor in Montreal victories.

He is currently hitting .229 and has eight home runs and 34 runs batted in.

"The writers made a great choice, said Mauch. "Without a doubt he deserved the award.

"It is a mark of a great catcher when he nurses a pitcher through a few weak innings like Bateman did with Rich Nye in the first game. Nye was dead and Bateman and Bateman just guided him through."

The victories Wednesday night and an 8-1 win Tuesday over Philadelphia gave the Expos a sweep of the three-game series and marked the first time the Expos have swept a series at Jarry Park.

Montreal also extended its winning streak to four games. Expos have won seven of their last nine games.

Tonight the Expos play host to St. Louis Cardinals with Carl Morton (8-5) scheduled to pitch for Montreal against Mike Torrez.

Helms Likes New Cincinnati Home

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Homers are hardly Tommy Helms' thing. But he slugged the Cincinnati Reds' first in their new Riverfront Stadium ballpark Wednesday night as they ripped Atlanta Braves 9-2 in the National League.

The homer was Helms' first since the fourth game of the 1969 season and only the 15th of his big league career.

Helms savored his glory after the game. It's about time I hit a homer," he said. Asked how far he thought his shot traveled, Helms replied, "It's 330 feet down the left field line and I must have hit it 332."

The Cubs finally won a game, ending their longest losing streak since 1944 on Ferguson Jenkins' four-hitter over the Cardinals. A four-run seventh inning with Ken Boyer singles by Billy Williams, Jim Hickman and Ron Santo, broke up a scoreless duel between Jenkins and St. Louis rookie Jerry Reuss.

"We finally had some hits at the right time," noted Manager Leo Durocher. "I've had about five stronger games," said Jenkins. "Four of them I lost and one of them I won. They gave me some runs. I can win. I need runs, that's all." . . .

Pros Demonstrate Their Clear Edge At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON (AP) — The clear superiority of the promoter-controlled professionals has been underlined once again at the all-England lawn tennis championships. Four of them have reached the men's singles semi-finals, scheduled for today.

Fans lined up all night for standing room on the centre court as Taylor hoped to become the first Briton to reach the men's finals since Bunny Austin in 1938. But many fans — even British fans — would like to see Rosewall win Wimbledon at last.

The 35-year-old Australian lost in the finals of 1954 and 1956. Then he turned professional and was lost to Wimbledon until open tennis was inaugurated two years ago.

Taylor never has beaten Rosewall, or even won a set against him.

The rugged British left-hander took 29 minutes Wednesday to finish off his quarter-finals match against Clark Graebner of the United States, which had been interrupted by rain the previous night.

Open Cup Unlikely

United States tennis officials were to make another attempt today to get the Davis Cup thrown open to contracted professionals—but with scant chance of success.

The matter is to the annual meeting of the Davis Cup nations, to be held in London today, were convinced that the proposals for an open tournament would be thrown out once more.

The U.S., defending champion, has filed the resolution favoring an open Davis Cup.

Australia, now lady weakened as a Davis Cup power because so many of its stars have turned pro, is certain to support the American proposal. So is Britain, which pioneered open tennis.

But most of the European countries, which stand little chance of reaching the challenge round, are expected to vote no.

"PLENTY OF FREE PARKING SPACE"

Advance Sale 16,000 For Ottawa, All-Stars

OTTAWA (CP) — A threat of showers hangs over tonight's Canadian Football League All-Star encounter but the heavy advance sale assures promoters of the largest crowd ever to see such a game.

At least 16,000 seats have already been sold and Gary Schreiber, handling the administration of the game for the CFL Players Association, said Wednesday he is looking for at least 25,000 in Lansdowne Park, home of the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Five previous all-star games, played in the 1950s after the Grey Cup game, never drew more than 15,000 and some of them considerably fewer.

Schreiber said tonight's game —featuring the Grey Cup-winning Riders and four players from each of the remaining eight CFL teams—would have been a financial success with a crowd of 15,000.

Coach Eagle Keys of Saskatchewan Roughriders allowed fans to stay around. Earlier the cream of the CFL took an hour off to sign autographs and have their pictures taken with an estimated 1,000 Ottawa youngsters.

Gotta announced Wednesday night he would use Russ Jackson, Gary Wood and Billy Van Burkleo as quarterbacks against the All-Stars.

This is Jackson's last appearance in an Ottawa uniform. He retired last year after leading Ottawa to national titles in 1968 and 1969.

Wood, a former New York Giant, is expected to become Ottawa's No. 1 quarterback this year. Van Burkleo, backup for Jackson last season, will definitely play defence this season after trying for the starting quarterback job.

Prince Charles, who arrives here today to start a royal visit, is to watch the second half of tonight's game and later go onto the field to award cups to the winning team and to the most valuable player.

The CBC national network will carry the game starting at 8 p.m. EDT but the Ottawa area will be blacked out as is usual in regular CFL games.

A new wrinkle is a Canadian Radio-Television Commission decision which bans Ottawa's two cable TV outlets from picking up the game signal from the CTV outlet in Montreal.

Riders have always contended that the cable stations were the big reason they couldn't attract a full house in their park, which holds in excess of 27,000.

Defending Champ Aaron Doesn't Like What He Sees

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Tommy Aaron, who opens defence of his Canadian open golf championship today at the plush London Hunt and Country Club, indicated Wednesday he isn't particularly pleased with what he sees here.

The native of Calloway Gardens, Ga., was critical of the lush fairway grass and specifically of the monstrous greens that face the players consistently over the three-blocked par 70, 7,196-yard course.

Most of the tournament players have commented on the size of the greens, but Aaron was the first to be openly critical although he hastened to agree that the course was well-conditioned and the greens running true.

"But I personally prefer shorter grass on the fairways . . . and smaller greens." He said it meant little to get on the greens.

"You haven't really accomplished much hitting those greens unless it's close to the pin," said Aaron. "If pin placements were behind the numerous traps that encompass the front of the greens and the greens are firm, the ball could slide far beyond the pins forcing two- and three-put greens and thereby reducing the number of under-par holes."

Winner of the $125,000 Canadian Open Sarazen $25,000 and the Seagram's Gold Cup, emblematic of Canada's amateur golf championship.

Mike Hill of Jackson, Mich., led the pros in Wednesday's pro-am warm-up, carding a course record 65 with rounds of 32-33. Second-place honors went to Gibby Gilbert of Hollywood, Fla., whose 67 equalled the previous course record set by amateur Gary Cowen of Kitchener, Ont., and tied eight times years ago by George Knudson of Toronto.

Both Hill and Gilbert played in the afternoon as did veteran Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, Va., whose 69 grouped him at third place with Lee Elder of Washington, D.C., Larry Ehrsen of Douglas, Ga., and Art Wall Jr. of Honesdale, Pa.

The victory was worth $500 to Hill, younger brother of four veteran Dave Hill who pulled out of the Open because of fatigue. Gilbert took second-place money of $425. Third place was worth $306.25.

Aaron, who won the 1969 Canadian Open in an 18-hole playoff with Sneed at the Pinegrove Country Club in St. Luc, Que., played the course here for the first time June 3 when he carded a one-over-par 73 to set the mark at which Canadian golfers would shoot during National Golf Week.

Sneed also took a swipe at the greens following the pro-am, suggesting there was "enough room to plant corn and make a bit of money." The 38-year-old veteran is only a one-time winner of the Canadian Open, tested the course for the first time Wednesday.

Chi Chi Rodriguez supported Aaron's contention that the fault the greens was the least of the golfer's worries. He noted parenthetically the 155-yard, par five first hole, considered one of the most difficult holes on Canadian golf courses.

A natural water hazard faces golfers about halfway down the fairway and water in front of the green prevents many from reaching the green in two.

"If they moved the tees to where the amateurs tee off, many of us would probably chance clearing the water," said Rodriguez. "Right now, there's no way."

The Open gets under way here today when 144 golfers, including 20 Canadians, tee off. Low 70 and ties after play Friday enter the final two days of the tournament Saturday and Sunday.

OHA's Junior Owners Don't Buy New Rules

TORONTO (CP) — Club owners in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series said Tuesday their teams will not scrimmage with any club in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that uses over-age players or receives special financial assistance through the CAHA.

The club owners, in a telegram to the CAHA, said they are "surprised and concerned that the NHL (National Hockey League) would endorse an agreement that places one league on a different basis from another league of the same category."

The CAHA, backed by the NHL, last month made some concessions to Western Canada junior clubs if they would join into the CAHA, from which they had been independent for two years.

The Western teams were given the right to use four over-age players on the ice for the first year of their return and two during the second year, after which a seven-age players would be permitted.

The Western teams also were given $5,000 in travel expense funds in addition to $5,000 for player development also given the Ontario and Quebec junior clubs.

Ontario, Quebec and the Western teams are classified as Tier 1 clubs while all other junior clubs in Canada are classified as Tier 2. The CAHA has not yet decided whether Tier 1 or Tier 2 clubs will compete for the Memorial Cup, the top prize in Canadian junior hockey.

Sport Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Tuesday the league has no thought of further expansion "before 1973-74 at the outset." Campbell said he was speaking hypothetically in an interview at Fredericton last Saturday in which he was quoted as saying the NHL will add four more teams, probably by 1973. "There is no consideration being given to expansion at this time," he said. The Fredericton report said Campbell expected Atlanta, Kansas City, Dallas and Seattle to be in the league by 1973. The NHL president said he used the four cities as theoretical areas that could possibly strengthen the league's position in various geographical areas.

HENLEY ON THAMES, England (CP) — Four jittery Canadian oarsmen ran into steering problems Wednesday as Toronto Argonauts became first-round losers in the Royal Henley Regatta. The straight four crew lost to Britain's Derby Rowing Club by 2¼ lengths over the one-mile, 550-yard Thames River course. The winning time in the Wyfold Cup event was eight minutes, four seconds. Argos moved into a short lead at the start but they veered off course and struck a marker buoy. Derby took advantage of this lapse and opened up a two-length lead by the one-quarter-mile mark.

MONTREAL (CP) — A crowd of 41,576, described as the most ever at a Canadian sporting event, Wednesday night watched Fresh Yankee claim a record for earnings by a Canadian-bred horse in winning the $15,000 Montreal Trot at Blue Bonnets. The seven-year-old mare, driven by Joe O'Brien and owned by Duncan Mashfield of Sydney, N.S., beat Crain Hanover by three-quarters of a length, posting a strong 2:02 3-5 mile. Fresh Yankee's prize of $9,250 brought her total winnings to $581,302, topping Northern Dancer's lifetime earnings of $580,806. However, the famed Dancer, a Kentucky Derby winner, started only 18 times and never finished out of the money. Fresh Yankee had a 26-23-12 record for 105 starts up to this year.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ripple Wietzes of Thornhill, Ont., all but clinched the Canadian road racing championship Wednesday, coasting to an easy victory in the fourth race of the Golf Canada series. Wietzes, in a Formula A McLaren racer, overpowered the 15-car field which had to contend with a bumpy track and a steady rainfall. About 25,000 spectators at the Rockcliffe Airport site saw a number of drivers, including Wietzes, spin out on the slippery, 2.3-mile circuit.

Billy Cooper Says:
Golf's Million Dollar Winner
THROUGH THE BACK

Accelerating the club-head through the ball is important to every golf shot, from irons to putts. This is the familiar "hitting through the ball." It merely means that you should not do anything to impede the forward progression of the club-head in the impact area.

Since golf is indeed a game of feel, I think most club players would benefit from this practice exercise:

Using a short iron, swing hard, on more than three-quarters, then with the left hand in control get the feeling that you are "flushing" the ball. Too the ball up on a peg if this helps give you confidence.

Then when you actually play, be unhibited at impact. Firm-pushing or steering will contain nothing but problems.

Cosy Piles Up Early Lead in 9-2 Victory

The Cosy Grill confined all their scoring to two innings but it was more than sufficient to pick up a Ladies' Softball League victory over Artistic Ladies Wear.

The 13 victory kept the Cosy girls in the thick of the race for first place in the league.

Sandra Claus fanned three in picking up the victory and also hit a triple to support her cause. Sharon Francis punched a home run and Pat Robson, a double to lead the Cosy team at bat.

Sue Marion took the loss for Artistic, recording one strikeout and two walks. Dubbies from Marion and Linda Boyle were the big hitters for Artistic.

Rivetted

In a Tuesday night, minor soccer league bout, the Steelworkers pawsses rivetted a tight 6-5 win over Sepp's Italia Pizzeria.

Lions Midgets Hit Cold Spell

The Belleville Lion's Midgets run into cold weather and an equally cold reception from Cobourg as they dropped a close 3-2 Eastern Ontario Baseball Association verdict in Cobourg Tuesday.

Belleville hurler Stan Brooks fired three - hit ball against Cobourg but two hit batters in the eighth inning allowed the winning run to cross the plate. Brooks fanned seven batters and walked only one in pitching his second game in three days.

Livingston allowed just three singles on the Cobourg mound, one each to Paul Wolfe, Barry Culkin and Doug Dermeth, in his nine - inning stint.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

'Cerebral Accident' Is Not Accidental

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Just what does a "cerebral vascular accident" signify? Does it usually come on after an accident and a bump in the head? — Mrs. S.

Comment: Usually there's no connection between an accident and a cerebral vascular accident. I admit it's a very confusing term. What it means is that there has been some interruption in the normal circulation of the brain.

The three most common forms of involvement are 1. Hemorrhage from an artery similar to what occurs when a coronary artery is plugged by a thrombus. 2. Embolism — in which a cerebral vessel is completely or partially shut off by something floating in the blood stream.

Many cerebral accidents are due to temporary spasm of a blood vessel. When this is relieved, symptoms such as numbness, paralysis, etc., quickly disappear. So you see, Mrs. S., a person may have a cerebral accident while "safely" sitting or lying down.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Although I've been married three times (one months I'm still a virgin. I don't know what to do about it. I have some fear of going all the way. My husband wants me to visit my family doctor but I'm ashamed to tell him.

Is it true that there are women with this problem and that doctors can help them? I understand it's a relatively simple operation to break through the tissue of a stubborn hymen.

Would you please let me know if this is true? I love my husband very much and want to start a family. Can you advise? — Mrs. W.

Comment: It's not usual, but not rare. I suggest you take it up with your family doctor, Ashamed? He won't consider it a laughing matter. Incidentally, a very minor operation will solve your problem.

For Mr. C.: It is not true that "arcus senilis" (a white ring around the edge of the cornea) indicates that there is an excess of cholesterol in the blood. The simplest way to check on it is to have a blood cholesterol test.

For Mrs. O.: It is true that tiredness and arthritis often come together. In fact I advise that you cut down on some of your activities. I think you are overdoing it. Indirectly, by resting more, you will be helping your arthritis — and feeling less tired. Cutting down on your aspirin will make you less sleepy.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 14½ - year - old girl, and have never had any serious illnesses. I have a craving for ice. I've been told by a girl friend that I could be lacking iron. Someone else, watching me eat ice, told me that I should be checked for diabetes. Could one of these things be the reason for my ice-craving? — Miss K.

Comment: I doubt that such craving is usually associated with diabetes. But I believe that your girl friend may be on the right track. When people crave a lot of ice, or starch, or (in children) dirt, we call the abnormal condition "pica."

In many such patients we have found that they had an unsuspected anemia. After other doctors put them on iron medication for a while, the craving disappeared. Why not ask your parents to check with your family doctor?

For Mrs. M.: I can't guess-timate your'e next, but it's true that "twins run in a family" — especially when there's a history of twins born in your husband's family as well.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For July 3

Your birthday today: Your personal magnetic qualities seem to public view in the year ahead. Much of what clutters your path now must be cleared off in the next month or two. Your attention is divided between the past and the future — the need for planning. Sentimental ties take on deeper meanings. Today's natives are often impulsive, gifted, apt to follow special interests in extensive detail over long periods.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): A home incident causes excitement, presents sudden, choices. Pause for reflection before reacting. Expect the evening hours to be busy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Working up the workweek deserves extra attention, since a rather different state of affairs prevails when you get to next week's work.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Settle down; exercise patience. Don't scatter energy and money. A bright remark may hit an unexpected mark with damaging results.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): There's a reward for being imperturbable today. You might even have to explain your weekend. Depend more on your own resources than anything from loved ones.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): New secrets are divulged, what people have done and said. Do not react until you have thought out the consequences. There is likely nothing much to do but to keep it off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Friends are enthusiastic over some commercial scheme which is not for you. Do nothing that creates a rift or widens a difference between people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): If you can manage to put an early end to the workweek, do so. Let things drift as gently as you know how. The evening turns out to be lots of fun.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Just when everything looks marvelous, you find suddenly that you're over your head. Just go along with others for today. Evening hours are better, but don't expect too much.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your current projects should be given a rest. After the uphill path of today, give yourself time to recover. The long weekend is more complex than convenient.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Relationships, challenge your talents for keeping things together. Keep your mind on what you are doing, for a lapse in judgment's neglect may be hazardous.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Finishing the workweek turns out to be complicated, with unexpected complications what should be done and how. Keep things gentle and simple for those you care about.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It is difficult to keep routines going. Your consideration is not demanding attention is appreciated. The evening turns out rather nice surprises.

Five Held For Bank Robberies

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Tuesday four Toronto men and a Montreal man have been series of break-ins and bank robberies in several Canadian cities.

Twenty charges have been laid against Michael Seer, 28, Francesco Diriete, 19, Jack Evans Jr., 23, and Hiram Berry, 27 all of Toronto, and Richard Lee Greene, 28, of Montreal.

Investigation by a special squad of 13 Toronto detectives began after Trevor Poll, a 42-year-old dishwasher, was beaten to death during a break-in June 8 at a downtown Toronto restaurant. Police in Vancouver, Calgary, Montreal and Halifax also are helping with the investigation.

Police said the slaying remains unsolved, but charges have been laid in two break-ins at the same restaurant April 13 and 11.

Spaghetti Junction

The Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, better known as Highway 401, runs 510 miles from Windsor to the Quebec border. The highway was started in the 1950s and completed in 1968. Probably the most impressive stretch is that part of the highway which runs across the top of Toronto with intricate interchanges such as the Spadina interchange, also known to motorists as "Spaghetti Junction." Prairie Dog Central Rambles With Trudeau Seated in Cab

WINNIPEG (CP) — Listen to the rumble, the rattle and the roar of the Prairie Dog Central, a pre-diesel dinosaur of a locomotive, and you understand how much fun Prime Minister Trudeau had on Centennial Manitoba on Dominion Day.

Just being at the throttle of the old 1912 fire-eater was, he said, the fulfilment of a boyhood dream.

To get in the cab as it huffed and puffed toward Lower Fort Garry, Mr. Trudeau spontaneously parted company with his coterie of cabinet ministers and trod a precarious caliwalk-and-handrail course.

Old engine No. 3 wasn't highballing, but she was moving along as the prime minister made his way from the baggage car, past the coal tender, and into a position where he could have a hand at the throttle and blow that beautifully erie steam whistle.

It was a good start to a jaunty day with beautiful weather. At the fort, Mr. Trudeau, rakish in a railwayman's peaked cap, bounded down from the locomotive instead of using the VIP exit from one of the vintage coaches that made up the train.

Later there were some adventurous moments aboard a paddlewheel steamer and other happenings—such as the prime minister tripping over his shoelaces and taking a face-forward fall. But history was given its innings.

Mr. Trudeau and 28-plus members of his cabinet arrived here Tuesday evening by jet for a symbolic cabinet meeting at the restored lower fort on the Red River 9 miles north of Winnipeg.

As expected, the cabinet meeting lasted only about 30 minutes. But it heard a proclamation in the name of the Queen calling on Canadians everywhere to salute Manitoba and celebrate the province's 100th birthday.

After the proclamation was read from an outdoor stage during a program televised live nationally by the CBC, there was one abortive attempt at ho-ho-ling.

"Relax, buster," was the Trudeau rejoinder. "You can't carry the world on your shoulders every day—this is a fun day."

The reply drew wild applause from the crowd.

Mr. Trudeau in his brief remarks gave history's due to the lower fort, a Hudson's Bay Co. post dating back to 1822 and now a national historic park.

He noted that its buildings have seen much of the history of Manitoba and the Northwest: as the HBC's governors residence, a military garrison, a centre of trade, farming and shipbuilding and even, at one point, a provincial penitentiary.

Also he gave a tip of the hat to the native population.

"The earliest inhabitants of this part of the world were the Indians, whose knowledge of their environment and whose skill in adapting to it has, in many ways, never been surpassed. We have much to learn from them."

After the lower fort program was over, the Ottawa party and other dignitaries including Premier Ed Schreyer boarded a paddlewheel steamer for Selkirk and were literally blown around a bend in the Red River when prairie breezes suddenly gusted to gale force.

The craft was blown past the town and it took nearly half an hour to get it back to the dock, where the wind slammed the paddlewheeler against the pier.

Everywhere he went Mr. Trudeau was greeted enthusiastically, a Liberal in the heartland of what is Canada's only New Democratic Party provincial administration.

National Farmers Union Calls For Boycott of Borden Firm

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP) — The National Farmers Union called Tuesday for a boycott of all Ontario products of the Borden Co. Ltd. in response to an injunction the firm obtained to Borden plant here.

Walter Miller, vice-president of the farmers' union, also announced he will not hold a scheduled meeting with Borden officials in Toronto to discuss the importing of whole milk powder by Borden from Ireland, the cause of the farmers' protest.

The 80 Borden workers, members of Local 440, Wholesale Union, did not cross the farmers' picket line Monday because they feared for their safety, plant manager Roy Knott said Monday.

After the injunction was served on the farmers, they dispersed their pickets in front of the plant. Workers filed in five minutes later.

Mr. Miller said the boycott at Borden products would be in effect from one of the farmers' union-wide.

A. E. Golden of Toronto, solicitor for the NFU, said Tuesday that action will be taken in Toronto to have the injunction lifted which is prohibiting the farmers from picking the Borden plant.

John Burridge of Woodstock, counsel for Bordens, said the main reason the firm sought an injunction was that the farmers' union and pickets have no links with Bordens.

Police Pension Increased

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council Tuesday approved a 25-per-cent increase in pensions for Metro policemen and integrated the police pension plan into the Canada Pension Plan.

Under a new bylaw all officers will be guaranteed a future service pension equal to 2.2 per cent of aggregate salary, an increase from 1.75 per cent.

This means an officer who has earned $300,000 during his years of services would receive a pension of $6,600 a year instead of $5,250, an increase of 25 per cent.

MEET QUEBEC'S NEW PREMIER: ROBERT BOURASSA
From their earliest meetings, boyhood chums recall Robert Bourassa's ambition to become Premier of Canada's largest Province. At 36 years of age, his dream has been realized as he guides the destiny of 6 million Quebecers at a critical point in history. Only a year ago he was a political unknown who once considered joining Rene Levesque's separatist party. Today, he considers the challenge of his Liberal Party is "to show that Quebec can remain a part of Canada." What makes Robert Bourassa unlike any previous Quebec Premier? What drives him to devote most of his waking hours to his work? How does he plan to turn some $150 million back into job-training Quebec's declining Lowscale agricultural area to Ontario? What special qualities does a young man of thirty-six possess to meet the challenge of "willing to take leadership of Canada" and "fight for improved financial balance?" The spectacular rise of Robert Bourassa from his middle-class circumstances in Montreal to the challenges he faces today as Premier of Quebec is told in a feature article in July Reader's Digest. QUESTION: We are taking our family to the Maritimes in August and would like to know the main points of interest, motel and guest house rates, and a good route there and back.

ANSWER: Tourist Attractions — The Maritimes are a perfect place for family groups to visit. In New Brunswick, the drive along the St. Joan River is a lovely trip. Some of the best streams in Canada to fish are New Brunswick's Miramichi and Restigouche rivers, where it costs $30 a day with a guide. Fundy National Park — is New Brunswick's pride and joy. It is an 80 square mile wilderness on the shores of the Ba yof Fundy, which has the most spectacular tides in the world. Some 224 new tenting sites have shores of the Bay of Fundy, total to 950 serviced sites and 300 partially serviced. One problem with Fundy is that the water most days is very cold.

New Brunswick features several freaks of nature, mostly tied in with Fundy's tides. They cause the tidal bore on the Petticdiac River - a wall of water which flows uphill at Moncton and leads the rest of the river behind it. The reversing falls at Saint John, N.B. is a great tourist attraction. The tide tables are available at most tourist offices.

Near Moncton, N.B., off the Trans - Canada Highway, is the famous magnetic hill. It is an optical illusion and appears to make your car coast uphill. If it is swimming you're after, head for Prince Edward Island National Park, where the water is in the seventies in July and August, and there are enough miles of sandy beaches to give you privacy. There are also golfing, boating, tennis, lawn bowling and hiking within the park. A point of interest at Cavendish Beach is Green Gables, the farmhouse immortalized in the novel "Anne of Green Gables". Open daily 9-9 the farm has been converted into an 18-hole golf course. Charlottetown is the capital of Prince Edward Island. is the commercial and educational centre of the province and has a fine harbor. One of the features during August is harness racing.

The Cabot Trail in Nova Scotia (named for John Cabot, who planted the British flag on the north eastern tip of the island five years after Columbus made his famous voyage) is a 184-mile drive considered one of the most beautiful drives in the Western Hemisphere. It is a good road overlooking a wild coastline, with coves, bays and harbors, and beaches set against a backdrop of woodlands, mountains, lakes and farmland. Tourist should phone ahead for reservations here, because motels and guest houses fill up early and traffic gets heavy during July and August.

Baddeck on Cape Breton Island is in a region famous for its scenery. Yachting and fishing are popular sports here. Three miles from the town is the former home of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone. The Alexander Graham Bell Museum on the east edge of town displays many models and photographs of Bell's inventions. Open daily 9-9, July 1 to Labor Day.

Cape Breton Highland National Park, in the northern part of Cape Breton Island, was the mightiest fort in French North America and is being restored to look as it did when Wolfe and the British Army captured it in 1758. The project which will cost an estimated $12 million is to be completed in 1972.

Halifax, capital of Nova Scotia, is worth a one-day stop. It is the home of universities and colleges. The harbor is one of the finest in the world. Tours of city and harbors are available, as are charter fishing excursions that are popular when the bluefin tuna run from early August to October.

Peggy's Cove, the picture postcard community a few miles southwest of Halifax is included by most tourists. Off the main road anywhere on the Atlantic coast of Nova Scotia you'll find pretty fishing villages which will capture your fancy.

The Neptune Theatre in Halifax and the Confederation Theatre at Charlottetown are about the closest thing to nightlife you'll find in the Maritimes.

All through the Maritimes you'll find prices are very reasonable. Government-inspected guest houses charge as little as $2.50 a night and a couple can find a good motel for less than $10.00 a night.

Canadian Route — take 401 to Montreal, Trans-Canada or No. 20 to Quebec City, and No. 2 or Trans-Canada to Nova Scotia.

Return U.S. Route — follow No. 1 along the coast of New Brunswick, No. 2 or 202 through New England States, No. 3 through New York State to Watertown, 81 to Ivy Lea Bridge.

Canadian Route — Belleville to Sydney, N.S. — 1,202 miles. U.S. Route — Belleville to Sydney, N.S. — 1,136 miles.

Threats Said Made On Reserve

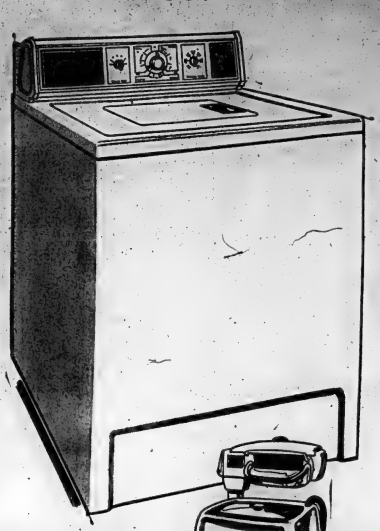
BRANTFORD (CP) — The elected band council of the nearby Six Nations Indian Reserve charged Wednesday that reserve residents have been intimidated into supporting the maverick Iroquois Confederacy.

In a statement, the council said reserve Indians were told they would be "run off their property" if they did not support the confederacy.

The confederacy a week ago took over the council house and declared the reserve an independent nation, saying a poll has shown the backing of most of the 8,000 residents.

The statement blamed the confederacy chiefs, who were ousted from power in the 1920s, for the loss of most of the lands which were formerly Indian property.

It said the confederacy council — a group of hereditary chiefs — in 1841 "made a general surrender of all lands not being occupied and used by the people of the Six Nations without asking the people to approve . . . the action."



OTTAWA (CP) — Government officials have not appeared impressed at the claim June 18 of Chief Emerson Hill that his Iroquois Confederacy passport was accepted and stamped by Great Britain, Sweden and Finland on a recent trip.

"It doesn't matter to us what other countries require to admit visitors," said a spokesman for the Indian affairs department.

"That it absolutely does not mean the confederacy is a sovereign body."

Cambodia Says Reds Preparing to Attack

SEATO Wants Talks

MANILA (Reuters) — The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization urged today a political settlement for Cambodia and expressed readiness to support diplomatic efforts to achieve an international solution of its problems.

A joint communique issued at the end of a two-day ministerial conference reconciled earlier calls by Thailand for more intense activity, U.S. assumption of a relatively middle-of-the-road position and a Philippine warning against upsetting an Asian peace effort when calls for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Cambodia.

The communique said Cambodia's right to neutrality must be the basis of a settlement, adding that North Vietnam had for years violated Cambodian territory and neutrality.

It condemned North Vietnamese military attacks on Cambodia and expressed understanding of the Cambodian appeal for help in resisting Communist attempts to dominate it.

"While noting that Cambodia had no choice but to resist the use of force with force, the council agreed that the cause of peace in Southeast Asia could best be furthered by encouraging a political solution based on Cambodia's desire to maintain her sovereignty and neutrality," the communique said.

Seven of the eight SEATO nations—the United States, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Pakistan, Britain and Thailand—attended the council of ministers conference.

France, which began a boycott of SEATO in 1967, did not attend. Britain and Pakistan were represented by delegates below foreign minister rank, and South Vietnam attended as an observer.

The council applauded efforts of many nations to bring about a diplomatic solution in Cambodia and withdrawal of all foreign troops.

"It expressed the hope that a solution to the problem of Cambodia would lead to a more general settlement in Southeast Asia," the communique said.

The council members expressed their readiness to lend all possible assistance to diplomatic efforts to achieve an international solution.

Big Offensive Said in Offing

PHNOM PENH (CP) — Newly reinforced Communist divisions are preparing for a major new offensive in Cambodia, the military command said today.

A spokesman said a major threat is developing around Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, with fresh Communist troops moving into position outside the city. The highway between Kompong Thom and Phnom Penh was still closed despite efforts of several Cambodian battalions to clear it.

A month-long siege of Kompong Thom was broken in late June with the help of United States fighter-bombers.

The spokesman also reported more harassing attacks in the Siem Reap-Angkor area in northeast Cambodia and near provincial capitals south and east of Phnom Penh.

Sweeps by South Vietnamese troops north of Phnom Penh and by the Cambodian army south and southwest of the capital have reduced the threat to Phnom Penh for the moment, the spokesman said.

But the enemy forces were unable to bring the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese to battle. And, the spokesman said, as the Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops leave an area, the Communists return and continue their preparations for new attacks.

Informed government sources in Bangkok said Thai air force planes struck Communist targets inside Cambodia Wednesday at the request of a Cambodian military commander who fled into Thailand with 100 of his men.

The attack was carried out in the western Cambodian province of Preah Vihear, about six miles from the Thai border province of Si Sa Ket, the sources said. It would be the first Thai action ever taken against Communists inside Cambodia.

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Deposed Cambodian head of state Norodom Sihanouk was given a hero's welcome by several hundred thousand cheering and flag-waving people on his return to Peking from a visit to North Korea, the New China news agency said today.

Sihanouk arrived here shortly after the start in Phnom Penh of his trial in absentia on charges of crimes against the state.

New China said Chinese Premier Chou En-lai was among high ranking officials at Peking station who welcome the former Cambodian ruler Thursday.

The prince and the Chinese leaders then drove in open cars through streets decorated with flags.

The elaborate and enthusiastic welcome were regarded by observers here as an emphatic reaffirmation of Peking's support for the prince, who has vowed to overthrow the regime which toppled him from power in Phnom Penh March 18.

McGovern Makes Hay From Cambodia Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George S. McGovern, a likely Democratic contender for the presidency in 1972, has parlayed the U.S. operation in Cambodia into a publicity triumph of substantial proportions.

From the day U.S. troops entered Cambodia, the South Dakota Democrat has been among the most vocal critics of the attack.

He demanded equal time on television to answer President Nixon's criticism of McGovern's amendment to withdraw all U.S. troops from Southeast Asia by July 1, 1971.

All three networks turned down the request Thursday.

McGovern made the request following Nixon's foreign policy talks with network correspondents Wednesday.

The amendment has been the vehicle for McGovern's activities.

He and co-sponsors bought a half hour of network television time to explain it, have raised close to $500 000 and have organized a national campaign to win support, including an unprecedented effort to influence a Senate vote with television advertising spots.

So far, the effort has paid off handsomely for McGovern. He has kept in the public eye even though his amendment to cut off all funds for U.S. operations in Vietnam after next June 30 does not come up for Senate debate until later in the summer.

McGovern has become identified with opposition to Nixon's war policies far more than most of his other potential rivals for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

Army Recruiting Office In Belfast Is Blasted

BELFAST (AP) — Two bombs wrecked a British army recruiting office early today during a visit to Northern Ireland by British defence officials inspecting troops sent to quell religious rioting in the province.

No one was injured in the Belfast blasts.

Elsewhere in the city, army experts removed a third bomb from the headquarters of the Unionist party, which represents Northern Ireland's ruling Protestant majority.

Police said a fire caused by arson damaged a Roman Catholic school that had survived two other arson attempts.

Troops and police units guarding police headquarters and telephone and electricity relay stations were reinforced today against possible further bomb attacks. Some windows in the buildings were sandbagged.

Lord Balniel, top aide to British Defence Minister Lord Carrington, and Gen. Sir Geoffrey Baker, army chief of staff, visited troops manning the lines between Catholic and Protestant districts in Belfast.

Peacekeeping troops have been stationed in Northern Ireland since widespread disorders last year, following Catholic pressure for civil rights reforms. A defence ministry spokesman said 200 more policemen were arriving today, bringing the total number of soldiers to about 11,500.

Prince Starts Visit

OTTAWA (CP)—Prince Charles kicked off his busy three-day visit to Ottawa Thursday by dining with Governor-General Roland Michener and taking in his first North American football game.

He carried on today with visits to Parliament and the National Press Club. A garden party and dinner-dance at Government House fills out his second day in the capital.

After arriving in Ottawa early Thursday evening, the Prince grabbed a bite with the governor-general, changed his clothes, and joined the Canadian football League game between the CFL all-stars and the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders at half-time.

The prince received posiers on the Canadian game from Gery Schreiber, president of the CFL Players Association. Also in the royal box at centre field were Health Minister John Munro, Rider owner David Loeb and their wives.

Prince Charles presented the winners' trophy to all-star captain Greg Findlay of the British Columbia Lions, who led the team in a 35-14 win over the Riders. Ron Lancaster, the wining quarterback, received the outstanding player award from the future king.

The prince had arrived on a Canadian Forces aircraft from Toronto, where he debarked from a regularly-scheduled Air Canada flight from London.

His famous Windsor profile was tanned. He wore a brown suit, blue shirt and striped paisley tie, changing to a light blue suit and shirt and maroon tie for the game.

Israelis Trap Saboteurs

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli army patrol caught a band of Arab saboteurs from Jordan in open country west of the Jordan River Thursday night and killed nine of them, the Israeli military command reported today.

It was the largest number of Arab guerrillas slain in one encounter since May 29, when 18 Syrians were killed south of the Sea of Galilee.

A spokesman said the Arabs had slipped into the occupied territory on the West bank of the river near the King Abdullah bridge, which is three miles north of the Dead Sea.

There were no Israeli casualties, the spokesman added.

Viet Cong Paid Rent To Prince

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — The Viet Cong paid rent to deposed Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk for the sanctuaries they used to launch attacks against Vietnam, a court was told here today.

One witness, a village headman, said that even after the prince was overthrown March 18 the Viet Cong demanded the harn of money they claimed to have paid the deposed leader.

Village chief Kim Hee, from Svay Rieng province which juts into South Vietnam as the Parrot's Beak, said he was confronted by a Viet Cong officer who told him the money was paid to the prince for permission to stay in Cambodia.

Sihanouk, ousted by Premier Lon Nol, has established a government-in-exile in Peking and has thrown his support behind both Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrillas in an effort to regain power.

"It's al there—folklore, sectarian politics, just like Nazi Germany," Stewart Meacham says. "It's scary, it really is."

But no one can safely predict the reaction of the disorganized left—the collection of rioting revolutionaries, Yippies, politicized hippies and street people who had targeted it under names like the White Panthers, the Up Against-the-Wall and STP.

No More Royal Names For County Schools

Royalty is out, as far as Hastings county board of education is concerned.

The Queen herself, through Canada's Governor General, has indicated that the royal family is applied to use of names of its members on public buildings.

There is so much red tape to naming a school after royalty now that there's no way another county school will ever carry a monarch's name," observed trustee Macdonald Smith of Belleville.

"The request had to go through the Secretary of State and then to England, accompanied by plans."

The board set a policy this week on naming of future schools.

Trustees gave the nod to names of famous Canadians of either national or local importance and will encourage public participation in naming of schools.

It vetoed use of the cities and names of board employees or trustees and clarification of place names within the county.

Fire Destroys Milford Barn

The blaze broke out shortly after 9 p.m. and first was noticed by Mr. Taylor's wife, who called in an alarm to the South Marysburg Fire Department. Cause of the fire is undetermined. Efforts to, smother the flames proved futile, but nearby buildings were saved when fire fighters doused them with water to prevent the fire from spreading.

Several pieces of farm machinery along with 3,000 bales of hay were lost in the fire. Mr. Taylor, however, had not yet drawn this year's hay crop into the barn. His loss is partially covered with insurance.

Wellington Native Honored in U.S.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. A. O. Bradley, Wellington, he is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, where he received his bachelor's and master's degrees. Dr. Bradley received his Ph. D. in theoretical and applied statistics at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

Credited with bringing the Department of Statistics international prominence, Dr. Bradley was elected recently to the Research Statistical Institute. He initiated the Florida State University department 11 years ago and has acted as chairman since that time.

Bradley's contributions to FSU were outlined in an announcement by Paul D. Doig, vice-president for academic affairs at FSU. "Ralph Bradley came in 1958 to organize a Department of Statistics, the first faculty consisting of himself and two others who transferred from the Department of Mathematics. The department, 11 years later, is rated as the strongest in the southeast and one of the most reputable in the country.

"Vigorously administering and promoting the department, Ralph Bradley has remained active in professional activities outside the university, continued his own personal research and publications, has taught a variety of courses ranging from introductory statistics to advanced research seminars, and has served the university when called upon."

During the school year more than 3,000 students graduated from FSU. More than 30 Ph. D. degrees have been awarded in statistics under Dr. Bradley's leadership and over 30 graduates students and 20 faculty members are expected for the fall term.

This summer Dr. Bradley will continue his research in mathematical statistics while spending a month in British Columbia as a visiting professor at the University of Victoria.

Among his credits, Dr. Bradley is a Fellow in the Institute of Mathematical Statistics and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is the associate editor of a journal of the biometrical society, "Biometrics". Since 1963 Dr. Bradley has listed 51 publications. His selection as FSU's Distinguished Professor of the year 1970-71 follows 11 years of dedication to his chosen profession.

Building inspector, Grant Stickle, reported this morning that building permits were issued in June for Belleville residential unit construction totalling $436,000.

This total is for 52 housing units, seven single family dwellings and 51 apartment units. The largest single permit was for new senior citizens' housing on Turnbull Street.

By comparison, permits issued in June 1969 were for 107 housing units; of these, seven were for single family dwellings and 13 for apartment units.

Fire Destroys Milford Barn

The blaze broke out shortly after 9 p.m. and first was noticed by Mr. Taylor's wife, who called in an alarm to the South Marysburg Fire Department. Cause of the fire is undetermined. Efforts to, smother the flames proved futile, but nearby buildings were saved when fire fighters doused them with water to prevent the fire from spreading.

Several pieces of farm machinery along with 3,000 bales of hay were lost in the fire. Mr. Taylor, however, had not yet drawn this year's hay crop into the barn. His loss is partially covered with insurance.

O'Flynn Resigns As School Trustee

John O'Flynn, Belleville solicitor, has resigned from his position as a trustee of the Hastings county board of education.

In his letter of resignation, read at Monday night's board O'Flynn said he could no longer fulfill the residence requirements for a trustee since he has moved to a new house in Ameliasburg.

"I hope that living in Prince Edward county will entitle one to sit around this table in the future," he said in his letter.

Northern's Stack Coming Down

The tallest industrial landmark in the city — Northern Electric's 135 foot chimney stack — is coming down.

It is being demolished as part of Northern's attack on industrial pollution.

The last coal burning boiler at the plant served by the chimney, is being replaced with a modern gas burning unit. Since the coal fueled boiler generates 1,300 tons of coal annually, the reduction in air pollution it expected to be considerable.

The chimney stack has served the plant for 22 years. Because it is surrounded by existing buildings, the normal method of demolition using explosives cannot be used. Instead, the chimney is being dismantled brick by brick, a job that will take about two weeks to complete.

The job is being done by two University of Toronto students employed by the contractor as steeplejacks.

Farmers Organize to Protest Taxes

Hastings County Milk Committee members agreed last night to support a resolution for removal of educational tax assessment from agricultural land.

But the 20 members present at a meeting in Shirley last night refused to go along with a recommendation from the Federation of Agriculture to withhold their school taxes.

The Hastings County Milk Committee motion called for the cost of education to be removed from taxes on property. Local members of the committee agreed they didn't object to paying school taxes on their houses and barns.

They were unenthusiastic about withholding school taxes.

Hastings county Warden John Wilkes went on record as opposing such a move.

"If you want anything from the government, prepare a petition and brief," he said. "I think you can do more on a diplomatic course than by trying to force."

County clerk Carl Bateman said that when the school board budget is broken down, after grants, subsidies and urban taxes are removed from the revenue, less than 30 per cent of the board's receipts come from farm assessment.

"Therefore," he said, "if you withhold your taxes, I can't see that it would have much effect on the county's education budget."

The campaign to withhold educational taxes, sponsored by the Federation of Agriculture, is gathering momentum throughout Ontario.

By standing together and refusing to pay their educational tax levy, the farmers hope to obtain government action.

At a meeting in Trenton June 18, members of the Hastings county Federation of Agriculture heard Homer Bennett of Forester's Falls say: "The farmers and the OFA are under responsible and militant at the same time. They are fighting for a better system."

He urged his listeners to send in petitions to the OFA, protesting the present educational tax system, in the hope that the government will act before farmers have to withhold their taxes.

In Lennox and Addington, its county Federation of Agriculture has conducted a survey, comparing the educational taxes paid by rural and urban dwellers.

Average school tax paid by farmers in the county was found to be $614; urban dwellers in Napanee paid an average of $233

In Lennox and Addington, farmers are mounting a campaign to have school taxes based on income rather than property.

In the survey, educational taxes were figured for entire farm operations, including the dwelling, farm buildings, and land. In the case of townspeople, tax was calculated on their homes, businesses, offices or stores and the business tax was included. Apartment houses and cottages were omitted.

Education taxes paid by farmers in the sampling ranged from a low of $225 to a high of $1,656.

Among Napanee people, doctors pay the highest education tax, averaging $97. Lawyers follow closely, paying an average of $384. Bank managers and other executive businessmen averaged $285 and seven secondary school teachers surveyed were found to pay an average of $198. The local member of parliament pays $148.

A spokesman for the Lennox and Addington Federation said that the survey's results support the farmers' claim that they pay more than their fair share of education costs.

The results of the survey will be sent to the Toronto head office of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

Armed Robbery Suspect Sought

Belleville City Police are investigating a report early today that occurred last night on the Bay Bridge Road near Zwicky's Island.

According to Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, a Belleville woman, driving Palmerston Ave. Street, was on foot in the area when she was approached by a man.

The man was carrying a gun and a knife and stole $6 from her.

She later flagged down a police patrol car on Dundas Street and told the officer in it of the incident.

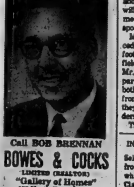
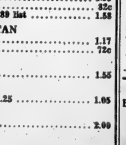
Sport Skill School Planned by YMCA

Plans for the YMCA's sports' skill school are nearing completion, Jim Hughes, YMCA Physical Director and Physical Education teacher, is at the helm of the new program that will provide boys 13 to 15 years with training in many of today's popular sports.

The boys entered in this program will be those entering high school this fall or those who have been in high school for one or two years.



The program will instruct boys in rules, game strategy and game techniques so they will be well-educated in the mechanics of competative sport.



Major emphasis will be placed on the fundamentals of football, wrestling, track and field, basketball and aquatics. Mr. Hughes pointed out that participants would benefit both from the competitive and from the spectator level for they will achieve a better understanding of sports.

There will be two separate skill school sessions, one from July 6 to 17 and one from July 20 to 31. Instruction will begin at 10 a.m. and last to 3.30. Monday through Friday during the two program periods.

275 Units Needed

Blood Donor Clinic Welcomes Everyone

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary will conduct its second blood donor clinic of 1970 Monday at the Canadian Legion Hall on Quinte Street.

Mrs. Marg Berry, chairman of the auxiliary's blood donor clinic, urges area residents to "open a blood bank account."

"It is essential that a minimum of 275 units of blood be collected on Monday, but we are hoping for 300 units," Mrs. Berry explained.

"During the summer months, with so many regular donors away on vacations, supplies in central banks are much lower than usual," said Mrs. Berry, "and yet the need for blood goes on every day of the year."

Visitors, tourists and high school students are particularly welcome to attend the clinic which runs from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 6.30 to 8.30 p.m.

Trained nurses and aides from one of four provincial depots will be on hand to collect the blood at Monday's clinic and preparations have been made for extra beds and attendants to speed the donors through.

Refreshments will be served by members of St. George's Anglican Church.

'A' Types Need Urgent

TRENTON (Staff) — Specific blood types are being sought for Monday's blood donor clinic at the Legion Hall on Quinte Street.

Mrs. Marg Berry, head of Trenton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary blood donor committee, said the request from the central depot in Toronto is "not unusual."

She reported that 10 units of A negative are needed for open heart surgery at a Toronto hospital next Tuesday while eight units of A positive are also needed Tuesday for the same purpose at another hospital.

Pollution Probe Organized

MARMORA — A group of concerned residents met in Marmora Town Hall last week to investigate pollution in the Marmora area. The meeting was chaired by Vaughn Glover, Jr., who has undertaken to lead a pollution probe in this area.

Garbage disposal in cottage and rural areas will be discussed with the township council at its next meeting.

Heads of committees were appointed as follows to investigate pollution in these areas: Beaver Creek, Doug Vincent; Blairton Bay and incoming water, Otto Lingertat and Tom Brooks; Crowe Lake and River (above dam), Varn Caverly and Forest Dennis (in co-ordination with the Crowe Lake Cottage Owners Association); Crowe Lake (below dam), Bill Monk and Nick Price; Marmora Township, to be named.

Any person interested in working on any of these committees is asked to contact committee organizer or Vaughn Glover, Jr.

The Hastings County Health Unit, Belleville will be contacted and requested to send a representative to the next Pollution Probe meeting on July 6.

It's Finally Moving Day For Assessment Office

TRENTON (Staff — Today is the long - awaited "moving day" for employees of the Prince Edward - Hastings regional assessment branch.

Some preliminary moving chores were done Thursday but today moving vans will transport desks and other office equipment from the assessment branch's temporary headquarters on Quinte Street to the spanking new home — Ontario House on Division Street.

Regional assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson said that 25 employees were already situated in Ontario House with the remaining 35 expected to move in today, included in this number are casual help to assist in winding up and verifying the two-county census taken recently.

Mr. Thompson said that more furniture would arrive next week, adding "I hope to be fully operational by July 15."

According to Mr. Thompson the new 7,000 - square - foot first floor facilities in Ontario House are "150 per cent better than our temporary headquarters — there just really isn't any comparison at all."

The regional assessment branch will have paved parking facilities for both staff and visitors on the north side of the two storey brick structure, now nearing completion.

Since its inception January 1, the regional assessment branch has operated out of temporary headquarters in the A and P building on Quinte Street.

Red Cross Meeting

The June meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society was well attended. President Mrs. J. R. March reported that Red Cross activities would go forward with vigor during July and Augst. All committees will be reporting again in September.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $2,807. Mrs. A. H. Ketchem stated that 79 homes with 129 children were served by 15 homemakers.

A bale containing 218 articles was sent to Toronto from the Women's Work department. These supplies are stockpiled in warehouses strategically located throughout the world. It is significant that the cash grant to Peru from Canadian Red Cross included $2,500 from Red Cross Youth. To date, the societies of 12 nations have sent aid to the earthquake victims.

Murray Workman stated that the Elsmere's pool would be the centre for the Water Safety program for the summer. Paul Black will be in charge. A competent staff is ready to take over in the Tyendenaga area.

There were actually fewer drownings in Canada in 1969 than in 1949. In view of the increased population, the effort of 19 years seems to be paying off.

Everyone present at the meeting received with regret the announcement that Fred Beeby will resign the chairmanship of the blood donor committee after he has completed his work for the August clinic. He has commitments that will keep him out of Canada for a couple of years.

CBC Smartens Up

CBC television newscasts in recent weeks have toned down their lurid, anti-American bias almost to the point of neutrality. We say 'almost,' because the content of reports from Washington still gives prominence to the critics of President Nixon's policy in Southeast Asia, and while criticism is inevitable we see no reason why all the emphasis should be on it to the exclusion of any word of favor on the U.S. withdrawal from Cambodia and of troops from Vietnam.

To refer to quite another aspect of CBC programming, the television network's woman announcer, Cathy Kneen, seems to be gaining more favor than her hapless predecessor, Maggie Morris. The latter was dismissed recently because it was felt she had developed a "provincial" Canada-type accent.

Certainly what little we hear of Mrs. Kneen is acceptable. We wonder though when the CBC is going to forsake its almost total male exclusiveness and train some more women announcers. As it is we do not even get to see Mrs. Kneen. Other countries (Britain and New Zealand for example) have long since had women announcers and they make a welcome change.

At present there is only one other woman announcer in the English network — a summer relief in Ottawa, but there is talk of having at least one in this category in every region. As for permanent women announcers, Chief announcer John Ras says current austerity may delay that for a time. Maybe one day then. The network needs a bit of glamor.

The City Scene

Belleville is looking its best in these days of mid-summer sunshine. There are the flowers of course, splashing color from gardens around the city, and in the parks.

And now that school is out there are many more handsome young people around, looking happy as they get together downtown, with the girls making the most of what may (or may not) be the swan-song of the mini-skirt.

As Joyce Carter of The Globe and Mail put it recently: "I could be dead wrong, but I have a funny feeling that the midiskirt (expected in the fall) may not make it."

The Toronto fashion writer was in New York recently and she quoted Marjorie Deane of the Tobe Report, a prestige organization which advises many of the leading stores, as saying that the long skirt "is a flash in the pan — next year we will have forgotten it happened."

Meanwhile Joyce Carter also reports that every 5th Avenue window is bedecked with midis — and though she says the coats don't look too terrible, "most of the dresses are dreary disasters."

And so the fashion upheaval continues its fascinating way — but to return to the Belleville scene with its flowers, leafy avenues and pleasant youngsters just out of school. All of us doubtless have our favorite places in the city — and they are numerous — but one prospect we enjoy particularly is the view up the hill to Church street from Pinnacle at Campbell. There is the shade from the trees, the library on one corner and the county building on the other and when the kids make their way back and forth from school, or even now while they are on vacation, it is a scene for either the cameraman or artist, so many facets there are to it.

It would be interesting to know other people's favorite haunts or city scenes. Perhaps those same young people — and adults too — would like to write and let us know.

Face-lift

It is amazing what a clean-up of a commercial area, residential district or individual building can accomplish. In Toronto for example you see the results of renovation and modernization of homes and streets amid surrounding business complexes.

Here in Belleville we have been afforded a fine example of civic pride in the "face-lift" of the city hall. Sandblasting has been completed on a large portion of the building and the beneficial results are immediately apparent to passers-by.

With increasing competition from new commercial projects attracted to Belleville, the downtown area must look to its laurels. City Hall's lead is encouraging.

800,000 Acres of Desert Reclaimed

Egypt: Bombs, Refugees, Flies, Heat and Desert

This is another in a series of articles on the Middle East by Cy Fox of the London staff of The Canadian Press, who visited Egypt on both sides of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

By CY FOX

CAIRO (CP) — The impact on Egyptian civilians of their country's war with Israel has been felt most painfully by people whose home towns are in the path of enemy bombardment.

About 500,000 such Egyptians have been uprooted and transferred, either by their own means or with government-ordered help, to safer parts of their national territory—places like the sun-baked village of Mansurabiza, a Nile Valley community south of Cairo.

There, 445 civilians live in the converted classrooms of a school which once served just 200 children. They are part of the much-vaunted network of social-service centres organized by President Nasser's military revolution.

By the mid-1960s there were 350 of these centres providing health, education and agricultural services to peasants who for centuries had been the helpless victims of landlord exploitation and of such diseases as bilharzia, which reduces farmers to chronic exhaustion through its attacks on the liver and bladder.

At the Mansurabiza social centre, visitors are greeted by proprietary and sleepingly incapable of the slightest physical effort—are still being treated by staff doctors.

But the centre also must attend to the medical and other needs of the 89 evacuee families from the embattled Suez area.

Typical is the homework whose fisherman husband has been shot dead by Israeli bombardment and whose current accommodation at Mansurabiza resembles an ordinary bed-sitting room except for the big strips of schoolroom blackboard heavily visible behind piles of possessions.

The evacuees—Egyptian officials avoid calling them refugees—are allowed to live freely in Mansurabiza rather than being regimented in the fashion of a frontier camp.

Each family receives from the government between £12 and £18 Egyptian (between $40 and $60 Canadian at current exchange rates) a month, depending on its size, plus other free goods and services.

The men, now working in nearby food and handicraft plants, were mainly fishermen, farmers and small transportmen moved by Nasser's government from the Suez Canal Zone after Israeli bombardments reached lethal proportions there in late 1967.

Better-off civilians, including teachers and professional people, were able to arrange controlled transfers on their own initiative.

The less fortunate were brought out in buses and trucks, a vast job finished about a year ago.

Down in Mansurabiza, flies swarm over scenes of the evacuee children, 39 of whom have been born since the first refugee families arrived there.

But for this part of the world conditions seem good, certainly better than those prevailing during the pre-1952-barring feckless who work the land with plows powered by water buffalo and against a background of village life resplendent of an era long predating the industrial age.

West of the approaches to Mansurabiza, and dominating the desert expanse which community pressure is on the relatively lush Nile Valley, loom dozens of ghostly grey pyramids—another legacy of ancient times.

The desert is traditionally considered the enemy of Egypt's efforts to bring additional production more into line with the needs of its mushrooming population.

But one planning official insisted that in fact this vast expanse of arid-seeming no man's land may prove a friend if reclamation efforts pay off.

Water, however, has slowed down development in this respect.

Instead of going after new stretches of desert for reclamation, Egypt has had to cut drastically its ambitious land development programs on a land already reclaimed.

Some 800,000 acres of desert have been reclaimed from cotton-growing arable land, but only half of these are as yet under active cultivation, having exports plenty to do despite the war-imposed curbs on what would have been more free-flowing commercial activities.

War has had similar effects on other areas of economic development, which felt the shock of Egypt's blitzkrieg defeat by Israel in 1967.

But investment has started to flow again, though still short of the level originally envisaged for the country at the end of the 1960s growth.

Hardest hit by the circumstances of crisis was the housing program.

The Nasser government insists that in this field it had accumulated a sufficiently solid backlog of achievement by 1967 to make the war-enforced cutbacks bearable.

The military situation also has forced some modification of vital programs for developing new secondary industries in a country which for too long had to depend on production of raw material like cotton, only to see it stripped elsewhere for processing.

Despite the present circumstances, Egyptian officials are trying to press ahead with industrial growth, including efforts to triple steel production within a few years.

Meanwhile there are continued increases in oil production and further advances in industries producing chemical fertilizers, and in the assembly of automobiles.

Egypt also has great promise as a haven for tourists, although assessment of the present hostilities serve to scare away many possible visitors.

Tourist hotels abound on the country's Mediterranean and Red Sea coasts, and its network of modern civilian airports are another potential lure for world travelers.

The years of trenches travel agents were brought in to see that Egypt was ready to welcome tourists are planning while counting west of Alexandria, the beginnings of skin-diving in the Red Sea.

Capital headed around on the country's Mediterranean and Red Sea coasts, and its network of modern civilian airports are another potential lure for world travelers.

The years of trenches travel agents were brought in to see that Egypt was ready to welcome tourists are planning while counting west of Alexandria, the beginnings of skin-diving in the Red Sea.

As for oil, Egyptian officials boomed the lines of petroleum-rich Sinai but maintain that their oil production today, at the tribunal that Israeli-held area, is three times what it was in 1967.

And while the volume of exported raw cotton is down from previous years, the production is emphasized as a consequence of the entire emphasis on land put on producing cotton within Egypt's own borders.

The Egyptians have plunged into export of articles like fragrances and lately cotton-fed a fine purchase of wheat from Canada.

They appreciate Red Europe's willingness to buy their industrial products as part payment for goods shipped here from the Communist bloc.

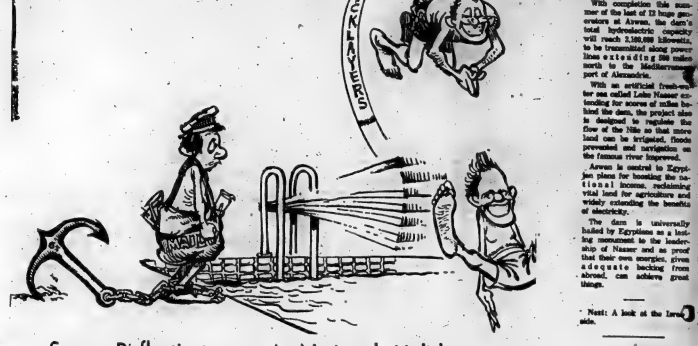
To skeptical suggestions that the quality of their goods, Egyptians reply that their long term economic interest is more to benefit their standards of production.

Yet unfastening contentions continue about Egypt's ability to pay for what it buys, and the standard of the country's industrialization.

"Industrial—the heaviest meant as payment for official favors—is still a widespread practice in the police, customs and other government services" though not at higher administrative levels, wrote British journalist Peter Mansfield in the 1969 edition of his book, Nasser's Egypt.

Similarly worrisome, particularly to visitors short of time, is the inconvenience of services such as the country's railway and international airline.

But all Egypt is proud of the great Aswan dam built with Soviet support after Anglo-American withdrawal of the project in 1956.



With completion this summer of the last of 12 huge generators at Aswan, the dam's total hydroelectric capacity will reach 2,100,000 kilowatts, to be transmitted along power lines extending 600 miles north to the Mediterranean port of Alexandria.

With an artificial fresh-water sea called Lake Nasser extending for scores of miles behind the dam, the project also is designed to regulate the flow of the Nile so that more land can be irrigated, floods prevented and navigation on the famous river improved.

Aswan is evidence to Egyptian plans for boosting the national income, reclaiming vital land for agricultural use and widely extending the benefits of electricity.

The dam is universally hailed by Egyptians as a lasting monument to the leadership of Nasser and an opportunity that their own energies, given adequate backing from abroad, can achieve great things.

Some Reflections on A National Holiday

Ottawa Journal

Canadians are somewhat embarrassed by shows of patriotism. Once every 100 years or so some public emotion is acceptable, even desirable. Manitoba's binge on the centennial of becoming a part of Canada is highly respectable. But not fireworks every year. No orgies of oratory. Our celebrations are almost private occasions.

Perhaps our thoughts about our country are too deep or too inarticulate to be made into a liturgy of nationalistic ritual. Some say that Canada is simply so vast that its unity and wholeness are lost on the individual. Yet what myths (and myths are not necessarily untrue) Canadians do hold about their country are usually founded upon some aspect of its very vastness, and diversity.

No, it is not the great stretch of Canada, nor even the transigent regionalism — at once a strength and a danger — which has made us almost congenitally incapable of celebrating July 1 with chest-thumping pride.

The stock reason usually given why the character of Canada's national day is so different from the American July 4 is that, this country does require a revolution to bring it into being.

The first official recognition of the movement to Confederation is usually acknowledged to be that contained in the speech by the Governor General, Sir Edmund Head, on proroguing the legislature in 1856:

"I propose, in the course of the recess, to communicate with Her Majesty's Government, and with the Governments of our sister Colonies, on another matter of very great importance. I am desirous of inviting them to discuss with us the principles on which a bond of a Federal character, uniting the Provinces of British North America, may perhaps hereafter be practicable."

That's the way it all began: no shots, no Boston Tea Party, no Paul Revere. Bureaucratic, official prose and nine years of discussions do not inspire flag-waving.

Yet it is not only because Canada came peaceably into existence as a state that casual and informal character is be uneasy about demonstrations of flamboyant patriotism. Indeed, the tension has never been something Canadians could take for granted. The heightened economic forces and geography have been powerful centrifugal forces. The duality on which Canada was founded is a source of richness but also diversity. But it has also imposed burdens of nationhood which continue to test our commitment to this country.

July 1 is thus more a day of national renewal than boasting self - glorification: it is a time of reassessment and gratitude rather than empty celebration. Ours is a remarkably free country, a rich and resourceful land. To realize its awesome potential required the efforts of all its citizens, not merely the conventional sentiments of a facile patriotism.

Praise For River Clean-Up

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to express my appreciation and thanks to the person responsible for the extensive campaign to clean Moira River, at the mouth of the river at Victoria Park and along the Bay of Quinte shore.

As a boat owner I have for several years gone along the shore line in Victoria Harbour from the railroad bridge to the end of the park and picked out much debris several times each year to try to clean up the shoreline.

The effort made yesterday was much appreciated and if everyone would help to keep this debris out of the water we would have a nice looking harbour and park.

My thanks again to all who helped.

David K. Bruce

Leading U.S. Diplomat to Negotiate in Paris

Bruce, 73, was senior ambassador when he retired in March, 1969, after eight years as U.S. ambassador to Britain—the longest tenure this post.

President Kennedy had named him to the London assignment and President Johnson kept him there. Before that he had served as ambassador to France under President Truman and ambassador to West Germany under President Eisenhower.

More than a year ago, Nixon commented that he and his four immediate predecessors in the White House had disagreed on many things but "agreed that David Bruce was a giant."

Other admirers have termed him "the most professional of non-professional diplomats." And the London Sunday Times called him "a most skilful practitioner of diplomacy, a shrewd and intelligent observer of men and affairs."

David Kirkpatrick Este Bruce was born in Baltimore, the son of William Cabel Bruce, who was Democratic senator from Maryland from 1923 to 1929.

He entered Princeton University in 1914. Two years later he left school, enlisted in the army and won a battlefield promotion to lieutenant with the field artillery in France.

He entered public life in 1924 when he was elected to the Maryland House of Delegates.

He joined the foreign service as a vice-consul in 1926, was posted to Italy and there completed personally on Mussolini about his baggage not being delivered. When he got home from the interview, the bags were there.

Tall and slender, Bruce has an air of easy informality. As a fellow diplomat put it, "He wears the striped pants only when he has to."

His first marriage to Alisa Mellon, daughter of one-time Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon, ended in divorce in 1945. Then he was married to Evangeline Bell, daughter of a foreign service officer. They have three children.

Non-paying Customers A Problem in Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Picton merchants remarking "its a shame" this summer are not referring to bargain prices. At least three Main Street businesses already have reported shoplifting increasing in their stores.

A hardware store manager noted yesterday he is steadily losing items of merchandise from his shelves. This week a quantity of ammunition was taken shortly after being placed on display. A power drill valued at about $25 also disappeared recently. The biggest bargain secured by a non-paying customer, however, proved to be a power lawnmower stocked from a sidewalk display of garden tools.

Observed the store's manager, "People take anything they want but just hate to pay for it". He added the majority of offenders caught by his clerks are older teenagers and young adults.

"The kids are warned, but we will prosecute any adults we catch," he said.

He commented that despite the fact his store has several clerks working in the aisles, shoppers planning to take merchandise are basically not intimidated by their vigilance.

Although a new grocery may be the in thing to steal in the summer season, one Picton jeweller observes he is losing merchandise all year round. In an attempt to curb customer self service on a non-paying basis he has removed several carving displays from his counters.

The manager of a Picton variety store said shoplifting is common in his store but drops a little during the summer months. He explained that most youngsters entering the store are usually accompanied by their parents if they are vacationers in Picton. Under parental supervision he finds the children seldom take items from the counters although the store, is self-service operated. The manager remarked that when children are discovered shoplifting often a warning is the only penalty exacted by the store. Adults who attempt to go on unauthorized bargain hunts are prosecuted.

Shoplifting in downtown apparel shops also occurs frequently. Picton police Sgt. Scott Hole observed yesterday teenagers often shop in small groups, splitting merchandise from the stores.

He noted that most of those young people do not actually regard their actions as stealing. "Their skewered reasonalizes just aren't big enough to pay for the clothes that are popular today and often they will do anything to get them," he said.

Sgt. Hole felt that teens caught shoplifting should not be let off with just a warning, since it could tempt them to steal merchandise a second time.

The usual penalty for a first offender, he noted, is a year's probation if the stolen items are recovered. During this 12-month period, the offender may be required to make a monthly report to authorities. The police sergeant did not outline an increase in the number of shoplifting incidents reported recently despite merchants' observations.

One businessman referred to a campaign to stamp out loses through shoplifting backed by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. However, the Picton Chamber of Commerce, Jack Purtelle, said yesterday, that every shoplifting is a legal matter and not an issue for resolution by the chamber.

Mr. Purtelle added that if shoplifting is a problem in your problem, the situation could be brought before chamber members for discussion.

Man of Peace Award Sunday

The recipient of the Man of the Year Peace Award, presented annually at the rededication of the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park in Trenton, will be announced on Sunday, July 3 at 2 p.m.

From a group of nominees, the award is given to the Canadian citizen who has made, in the opinion of the selection committee, his greatest contribution to international peace and Canadian unity in the previous year or years.

Among those nominated locally is Judge J. C. Anderson, representing Hastings County. Other nominees on a national scale are General E. L. M. Burns, Stanley Burke, John Diefenbaker, Pierre Elliott, Stanley Knowles, Jules Leger, Chester Ronning and Arnold Smith.

Assistance in the choice of the Man of the Year award was requested from the editors of The Globe and Mail, Toronto Star, The Toronto Telegram, Ottawa Citizen, Ottawa Journal, and from the CBC.

Metro Action Helped Hastings

Pink Rating of Metro Toronto school boards by their teachers "wasn't all bad" as it worked out in the smaller provincial centres.

The pink listing, and retaliatory blues ban imposed by the Ontario Trustees' Council, delayed recruiting of teachers until June 15 as a result. Hastings county trustees learned, was a staggering reduction in the cost of teacher hiring.

By hiring secondary teachers quickly, instead of delaying the program out from April 15 to the end of June, the board saved $10,000 of its $11,000 hiring budget for 1979.

The money in the hiring budget goes to pay for newspaper advertising and rental of suites of rooms for interviewing teachers in large cities.

Macdonald Smith of Belleville noted the beneficial effects of the pink listing for outlying boards and said the Trustees' Council is exploring ways of reducing the hiring period, and subsequently the costs, in future years.

Volunteers Are Needed To Fill Summer Gaps

Community needs don't take a vacation in the summer holidays.

In fact, the vacation period increases the demand for many social services and the volunteers to staff them.

The volunteer bureau of United Community Services is still looking for people to assist with summer programs. Anyone who can spare a few hours of the long, lazy days of summer to help the troubled will be doubly welcomed at the volunteer bureau office.

Drivers are needed to transport 60 children to the YMCA day camp in the morning and pick them up again at 4.30 p.m.

Transportation is urgently needed every other Wednesday afternoon to take people to Kingston for standing appointments. These people have no means and no method of transportation unless volunteer drivers offer their services.

A troubled child badly needs a Big Brother — a man to take him to the beach or on an outing once a week or more.

Young people, 16 years and over are needed to work with children in summer programs.

Those who can afford a few hours a week of their time to keep these vital services operating for the summer are asked to call Mrs. Freeman Burrows, director of the volunteer bureau, at 962-9551.

Board to Meet Twice Monthly

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward County board of education have agreed to schedule two full meetings monthly, abandoning their former marathon sessions which frequently ran until 2 a.m.

The first of these "mini meetings" will be held July 13 followed one week later by a second session.

In a press release, board members observed, "Since inception, the Prince Edward County board of education has conducted only one regular scheduled board meeting per month. It is hoped that by moving to two regularly scheduled meetings per month, taxpayers will be given a better opportunity to attend and obtain first - hand knowledge of board proceedings and decisions."

On index, industrials rose .34 to 151.86 and golds .35 to 180.11. Base metals were down .36 to 89.76 and western oils .07 to 122.86.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 350,000 shares, down from 379,000 at the same time Thursday.

The rise this morning was a continuation of a small advance Thursday which interrupted three consecutive losing sessions.

Largest gains were in beverages, merchandising and construction and materials sectors.

Among advancing stocks, Walker-Gooderham was up ¾ to 45¾, Canada Permanent Trust ½ to 35, Dustbane ¼ to 7¼, Union Gas ¼ to 13¾ and Dynasty 13 cents to $8.75.

Labatt dropped ½ to 21¼, Dome Pete ⅛ to 39⅝, Alberta Gas Trunk ⅛ to 41 and Bank of Montreal ¼ to 14¾.

IOS Ltd. was up 15 cents to $3.15. The stock resumed trading after being suspended since June 17.

Thursday the market also edged upward.

On index, industrials rose .11 to 151.54 and golds 2.33 to 180.66. Base metals were down .19 to 89.94 and western oils 2.46 to 121.79.

Volume was 1,136,000 shares, down from 1,851,000 Tuesday.

It was the third-lowest volume this year.

The market was closed Wednesday to observe Dominion Day.

Losses outnumbered gains 215 to 153 with 128 issues unchanged.

The market drifted throughout the day, maintaining a small gain in morning trading, and surging at noon. Prices nudged upward in late trading.

Trading has been lackluster for several weeks while investors wait on the sidelines for an upward trend.

Analysts say there has been no news to spark a rally or to spur interest in trading.

The only large gains were in oil refining and industrial mining sectors.

WHY HARMFUL TENSION MAKES YOU SICK

Why do we get sick? Why do we die? The most reasonable explanation yet comes from Dr. Hans Selye, director of the University of Montreal's Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery. He says, "A motor car doesn't suddenly cease running because of old age. It stops because of some failure of some part that has worn out. It is the same with people. Usually, continuous stress — either physical or mental — produces the disease." Stress, leading to a variety of illnesses, is discussed in detail in a feature article in July Reader's Digest with related Gilbreth types of stress, and what can be done to minimize their ill effects. It shows how to cope with destructive emotions, how you could sleep better, work better and even live longer. Get your July Reader's Digest today!

Northern Visitors Entertained

As all Guides know this is the Jubilee year in Guiding — Guides throughout Canada are celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding. As part of the celebration the Belleville Guides decided to do something special — the result: three visiting Guides from Moose Factory and Moosonee. They are two young Cree Indians and another girl from the service base at Moosonee.

Expenses of the girls were paid from the funds collected by the Guides as a result of various projects carried out throughout the year, such as car washes and bake sales. Twenty-three girls and their leaders worked hard to give the girls a chance to visit either Guides away from home.

Today they are all going to camp for a couple of days and the guests leave for home July 13.

The three visitors are Paula Morrison, 13 and Madeline Visitor, 13 both of Moose Factory and Sandra Freeland, 13 of the Canadian Forces (Air Force) Base at Moosonee."

Ann Landers

Young Reader Says Thanks to Columnist

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wrote to you once before — ten years ago. You were seeking your youngest reader. I was eight years old at the time. I said I didn't have any problems but maybe I was your youngest reader, and — as it turned out, I was! You printed my picture in The Daily Oklahoman. I'm sure you don't remember me but my name is Nancy Ann Deeds. I am seeking the clipping from that ten years ago to refresh your memory.

I graduated from Dover High School in May — valedictorian of my class. This summer I am attending Oklahoma State University.

ANN LANDERS

I wanted you to know, Ann Landers, that I have read your column religiously and you have had a strong influence on my life. You have taught me many things — not only through your column, but through books, including the clipping from ten years ago to refresh your memory.

Please keep up the wonderful work. You help so many people and you perform a very valuable service. — Sincerely, NANCY ANN COUNTS.

DEAR NANCY: What a beautiful letter! Thank you so very much. It will appear the day before my birthday which is the fourth of July — as a present to myself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was happily married for 34 years and the mother of six children. My husband passed away suddenly. While going through his personal belongings, I discovered he had had a mistress for at-least-five years.

I debated for several weeks as to whether I should get in touch with the woman. Finally I decided I had to meet her, so I gave her a call and invited her to my home. She told me she had known my husband before the war — that she loved him and he loved her. He married me instead because we were officially engaged and he felt it was his moral obligation. This woman married shortly after and she and her husband have seven children.

How could I have been so blind! I loved my husband so completely and I was sure he returned that love. Now I can't even pray in peace. Whenever I see his face I see her face too.

I can't eat or sleep. I'm afraid I will become ill and die and no one will be here to take care of my children. Please help me. — LOST EVERYTHING.

DEAR LOST: You will recover from this blow because you must. Your children need you and you cannot fail them. Talking out your grief with a therapist might be useful. Perhaps your husband was one of those rare people who could be able to compartmentalize his life totally. If he was such a person his affair with this woman was a thing separate and apart from his family life. It in no way diminished his love for you. I am not attempting to justify his unfaithfulness — only to explain it. Good luck and God bless.

Confidential to IN LOVE WITH A DENTIST: Hang up your track shoes, Dearie. Don't call him unless you have a toothache. A man runs fastest when a woman is chasing him.

Batch of Muffins for Freezer

By MARY MOORE

Letter from Laura G.S. gave recipe and samples of Lillian's Bran Muffins. This 24-muffin batch deserves colored specs for their flavor is excellent, and freezer owners, they freeze.

LILLIAN'S BRAN MUFFINS
(6 - 2½") will freeze)

3 cups all bran (or 1 cup plain bran and 1 cup all bran)
1 cup boiling water
1¼ cups brown sugar
½ cup margarine
½ cups buttermilk or sour milk (or scored sweet milk — see below)
2 eggs (beaten if desired)
2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1¼ tsps. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
2 tsps. vanilla
½ cup dates, chopped

Pour the boiling water over the bran to soak while you cream together the brown sugar and margarine. Add scored bran and beat in. (If you are scoring sweet milk stir 2 tbsps. lemon juice or vinegar into 1½ cups sweet milk and let stand about 10 min.) Add buttermilk or sour milk. Sift together the flour, baking soda and salt and add the chopped dates to them to dredge them, then add to wet mixture. Stir in along with eggs and vanilla until just blended.

Spoon into buttered 2½" muffin tins (generously 'tuther) and bake 20 min. at 400 deg. Fahr. (You may question my figures: the muffin tins do measure 2½" but the finished muffins only measure 2½".)

I think we have reached a new high with these bran muffins and thank you Lillian for them. I hope my mothers with daughters 10 years and older will encourage them to best up a batch of Lillian's Muffins. Great egg hooters.

Points for Parents

By MARY HEYDON

Mother: "The minute I put Jerry down, he runs off and I end up chasing him. Even when I speak him, he doesn't come with me, I hate to take him in the grocery store or even go for a walk with him."

Some children seem to be born adventurers and enjoy being chased, even if the chase ends in punishment. By 2, a child should be able to control his desire to dash off.

Successful Living

A Prayer to Keep in Mind

By DORIS CLARK

Lord, Thou knowest better than I know myself that I am growing older and will some day be old. Keep me from the habit of thinking I must say something on every subject and on every occasion. Free me from more of wisdom. It seems a pity not to use it all, but Thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end.

Keep my mind free from the recital of endless details. Seal my lips on my aches and pains; they are increasing and love of rehearsing them is becoming sweeter as the years go by.

I dare not ask for improved memory, but for a growing coolness when my memory seems to clash with the memories of others. Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally I may be mistaken.

Keep me reasonably sweet; I do not want to be a saint — some of them are hard to live with; but a sour old person is one of the crowning works of the devil. Give me the ability to see good things in unexpected places and talents in unexpected people, and give me, O Lord, the grace to tell them so.—Amen.

Dear Doris: I am going steady with a married man who is 14 years older than me. We are very much in love and must see each other every day. I feel as though he be seen with him in public and want him to come to my graduation dance with me.

He is a little skeptical about taking me as he is still living together with his wife and children and he is afraid his wife will tell my mother. When he is legally separated he will meet my parents and I know they will accept him.

Isn't this one way to prove his love for me? — Skeptical.

Dear Skeptical: I'm skeptical too — about what all your friends will think when you take a married man to your graduation. Skeptical about his willingness to leave his wife and children. Skeptical about your parents' acceptance of him. Skeptical about using such an occasion as a means of proving his love."

Is my memory bad and clear that you should not go to your graduation dance — or anywhere else — with a very much married man?

Dear Doris: My problem is facial hair, especially on my chin and upper lip. I tweeze the hairs, but they grow back. I've considered electrolysis but I went to a woman who had an electric needle in her home. It was costly. The hair came back; and also my skin was punctured so badly that it left scars. — Unwanted Hair.

Dear Unwanted: There are assorted ways of coping with all - too - common facial hair: tweezing, if they are scattered; waxing and pulling, if they are very numerous; shaving, if they are thick. There is no evidence that shaving stimulates growth.

I am sorry about your experience with electrolysis. In the hands of an expert, this method can be fairly successful; it has the advantage of being permanent. But you must have a highly qualified practitioner. I am sending you my 10 - cent leaflet on "Removing Unwanted Hair," which goes into all this.

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

MD Benefit Race Here Proves That Motorcyclists Not All Bad

by
Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

It disturbs Bob Swaddling that the public seems to think most motorcyclists are hoods or hell's angels — "one percenters," as the saying goes.

"Just look at the guys that are here for this race in Belleville," the boyish 36-year-old gasbured toward the Fairgrounds track. "Um, less you've a big name and have a company sponsorship, you've lucky to break even in any kind of racing. But look at the turnout you have here — and how many people ever hear this sort of thing about riders?"

"This sort of thing" is the third annual Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Motorcycle Races, from which some of Canada's top dirt - track racers get only 40 per cent of the take, with the lion's share — $2,700 in the past two years — marking the Belleville Firefighters' contribution to their pet charity.

Swaddling looks more like a theatre usher than the usual mind's - eye concept of a dirt - tracker. The short, 160-pound - blood isn't the type you'd expect would want to tear around a half - mile oval in half a minute.

But Swaddling — and a dozen other expert - rated drivers — are the cream of the racing crop in the 40-entry field the city Firefighters hope will draw another capacity crowd to the Fairgrounds tonight for the 8 p.m. fund-raiser on wheels.

Swaddling and top contender Jean-Marc Houde were two of the competitors who stayed over in Belleville when rain washed out the races Wednesday.

"I'm happy if I win enough money to pay my motel bill," says Swaddling, a Kingsville, Ont., native who does most of his racing for trophies across the border in Michigan.

"I got exactly $21 for winning the Canadian Junior Nationals in Belleville last August, so I'm not in it for the money," he chuckles.

His performance in junior 250 CC competition last year did not go unnoticed by the Canadian Motorcycle Association, who promptly elevated the 20 - year - old to expert status in the company of such select speedsters as Dave Sehl and Yvon Duhamel.

Swaddling isn't modest about his skills. He wants a crack at Eric Cheeseman, champion Duhamel here tonight. "I watched him last year and I don't think he's that fast."

Much of Swaddling's optimism rests on the fine form of a new bike he and mechanic Lew Fitch just bought from Kawasaki dealer and driver Doug Lather.

"The new ridden it — except up a laneway," says Swaddling. "It's 60 pounds lighter than my other 250 — and a lot more powerful."

Both machines stored in the shop of Lew Fitch's van are Yamaha - powered, although the new one is a conglomerate. Fitch's van also Swedish - wheels, California frame, Japanese tires, etc.

The Swaddling-Fitch team hope they have better luck than Houde, the 1969 dirt racer, who had his engine seize up on him as soon as he crossed the finish line first in the opening junior 250 CC heat at last year's Muscular Dystrophy race.

He's opted against using the rear brake that drivers are being permitted to use by the CMA for the first time in dirt - tracking.

"If you've got time to use a brake, you've got time to miss a guy," he reasons.

Mechanic Fitch, 36, knows a good rider when he sees one. That's what made him give up racing himself.

"I first met Bob about six years ago — when he was just 14. He whomped me in a scramble and I figured I'd better hang up the shoe and join him!"

Keep 'em Tight

When you're turning a half-mile dirt track at speeds in the 70-80 mile-an-hour vicinity, you can't afford to have any loose connections. Windsor area driver Bob Swaddling and mechanic Lew Fitch prepare their entry for tonight's third annual Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Motorcycle Races at Belleville's Fairgrounds.

Printers Get Little Help To Retain Industrial Lead

The Intelligencer got by with a little help from their friend Johnson friends Thursday, the Printers held onto the Industrial Softball League's top spot thanks to their own 5-4 win over the Fire Department and Mead Johnson's 13-8 win over CN Telpos.

Union Carbide took over second place in the 11-team standings by pounding CIC 8-2 in the other league contest.

The Intell spotted the Firemen four first - inning runs, three of which came on Ralph Bonnheuser's towering home run, but pitcher Ron Colloden settled down to toss a nine - three - hitter at the firemen, walking only three, and striking out as many.

Harold Redquest's last - bat wrong - field single drove across the winning run. Redquest and Eric Emerson, with two hits each, drove in all the Intell runs. Colloden also collected two safeties to aid his own cause in the 57-minute game.

Bob Davenport went all the way in defeat for the Firemen, giving up nine hits, walking three and striking out the same number.

Mead Johnson pounded out 16 hits off Turbo pitcher Rod Bennett for their 12 runs to force a second - place tie with the tradesmen. Brown held the winners scoreless on one hit over the last two innings.

Young paced the winners with a homer and two singles, with Finkle contributing a homer and double, and May and Lessels three safeties each.

Steve White went the route to pick up the win for Mead, giving up 14 hits, walking five and fanning three.

Everyone in the Union Carbide lineup hit safely in their 8-2 win over UIC. The 16-hit attack against Carl Gauthier and Kingsley was backed up by eight - hit pitching from Ken Osborne.

Gauthier and Kingsley were the victims of the 16 - hit attack, walking six batters and fanning three.

Osborne allowed eight hits, while fanning three and not walking a batter.

Folmanteer had a double and Single for Union Carbide, with Little, Bird, Salkowitz, Jack Hughes, High and Bill Hughes getting two "hits" apiece.

Smith, Kingsley, Collins and Chase were best for the loser, each collecting a pair of safeties.

Read Miss Kinsmen Boat

Read missed their chance to move back into sole possession of first place as they were upset by the Kinsmen Juniors 5-2 in South Hastings League action Thursday night.

John Noakes pitched seven innings of five - hit ball giving up both runs while fanning four and walking two. Wayne McTaggart came on on the eighth and pitched no hit ball for the rest of the game. He struck out three Read batters.

Terry Meagher exhibited his hitting prowess by cranking a home run and a double and Brian Coughlan notched three singles to pace the Kinsmen's attack. Pitcher Noakes wasn't content with just pitching, helping his own cause with two singles. Glenn Carleton, Rick Meagher and Wayne McTaggart all had singles to round out the Belleville hitting corps.

Pete Hanley with a double and singles from Steve White, Carm Milligan, Ken Abrams and Larry Coffey were the only batters for Read to reach Noakes.

Tad Pair Mow Down 18

Runs were in abundance in Thursday nights Belleville Minor Baseball schedule as Plane's Concrete tadpoles whipped Motorland Chrysler 13-2, Alhambra 109 tykes outslugged Wannamaker's Esso 18-10 and in an exhibition action Belleville CBRT peewees defeated Carmel 9-6.

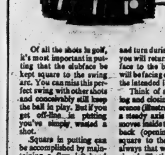
Tony Parks and Dane McTaggart combined to tan 18 batters in picking up the Plane's victory, McTaggart also had three singles and a double to lead his team at bat. Other hitters were Steve Meeks with two singles and a triple and Blane Waddell with a double and single.

Steve Belch and Clarence Broekema were touched for the loss fanning 13 batters but giving up 17 walks. Broekema and Brad Bagley with singles were the Motorland hitters.

Eleven strikeouts led Gary Stapley and Billy Sills to an Alhambra victory. The pitchers also proved to be the sluggers as Stapley hit a homer, double, and a single and Sills punched a triple and two singles. Marty Henderson with a triple and three singles kept pace with the two pitchers.

Chris Ripley went the distance for Wannamaker's fanning eight batters and walking eight. Bruce Hamilton with a triple and single and Ripley with two doubles paced the Esso hitters.

The peewee exhibition game saw Belleville pitchers fire eight hit ball in recording the victory over Carmel. Mike McClelland and Clyde Routley worked the CBRT mound fanning seven and walking six batters. Billy Turner with a triple and double and a double and single from Billy Whalen and McClelland were the big hitters for Belleville.



Bruce MacDonald went the complete game for Carmel striking out nine and walking nine. Rod Dafoe and Jim Carmel peewees with three singles and MacDonald had a double to complete the top hitters.

Billy Casper Says:

Golf's Million Dollar Winner

KEEP PUTTER FACE SQUARE

Of all the shots in golf, it's most important in putting that the clubface be kept square to the swing arc. You can miss this perfect swing with other shots and conceivably still keep the ball in play. But if you get off-line in putting you're simply wasted a shot.

Square in putting can be accomplished by maintaining a firm left hand grip throughout the stroke. If your left hand and wrist do not twist and turn during the stroke, you will return the putter face to the ball so that it will be facing exactly down the intended initial line.

Think of a door opening and closing in this fashion (illustration). It has a steady axis and while it moves inside the line going back (opening), it stays square to the arc and is always that way when it's closed. That's the way to putt.

City, Cementmen Lower Boom

Commercial League hitters were "in the groove" last night as City Hotel and Point Anne piled up 17 runs between them in taking a pair of wins over Sinsens and Corby's.

Six runs in the first five innings chased Sinsen starter Howard Jeffs, bringing on Bob Swan who pitched three-hit ball for 3 1/3 innings.

Altogether the pair allowed nine hits while walking two and striking out six batters.

Bob Ethier mowed down five Sinsen batters to record the victory. He gave up six hits, fanning a half dozen while not walking a man. He fired no hit ball until the fifth inning losing his shutout in the top of the seventh.

A walk, an error and consecutive base hits by Lyle Wannamaker, Don Gardiner, Cliff Sinsenan and Garry Gow spotted the winners to a three-run lead in the first inning.

Gardiner poled a long home run to left field in the fourth to add to his first-inning safety, while Lyle Wannamaker had a double and single. Doug Murray was the only other City batter with two hits.

Sinsens	000 000 2 - 2 5 3
City	421 100 x - 8 9 2

Six runs in the fourth inning carried Point Anne to a 9-4 win over Corby's as Don Hookway hurled a two-hit shutout.

Holoway set 12 men down, passing two batters, Gerry on strikes, while issuing free Genesaurus worked in a losing effort, allowing seven hits and two walks, while fanning four batters. Five errors in the top of the fourth hampered the Corby pitchers's efforts.

Fielding miscues told much of the story as the losers committed eight errors, while Point Anne booted one ball.

Jim Harwood and Rick Rosebush paced the Point Anne attack with a double and single each, while Ray Sommers and Larry Fraser came through with the other hits.

A first-inning single by Bob Wannamaker and a seventh-inning double by Gary Geyer were the only Corby safeties.

Corby's	000 000 0 - 4 2 3

Stars Don't Find Riders Rough

OTTAWA (CP) — Quarterback Ronnie Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders typified brightest of them all Thursday night as the CFL Canadian Football League All-Stars humbled Ottawa Rough Riders 35-14 at Lansdowne Park.

Sharing quarterbacking duties with Sonny Wade of Montreal Alouettes, Lancaster completed 18 of 33 passes for 241 yards, one of them a 70-yard pass and run touchdown with British Columbia's Jim Young on the receiving end.

Lancaster was also on field for the other three all-star touchdowns, scored by Dennis Duncan of Montreal, Bill Symons of Toronto Argonauts and George Reed of Saskatchewan.

Ted Gerela of Lions added field goals of 29 and 38 yards and booted three converts. The winners got their first two points from a safety touch.

The 23,084 fans in the park reward their approval as Prince Charles presented a trophy to, Lancaster who had been voted as the outstanding player of the game by football writers.

Riders, last year's Grey Cup champions, were overshadowed in every department by the 32 players making up the all-star team. Four players were chosen from each of the other eight clubs in the CFL.

Rookie John Pell intercepted a Lancaster pass at the Ottawa goal and took it back 70 yards. Gary Wood, a former New York Giant, passed to Wayne Giardino for 13 yards and then Wood tossed 26 yards to flanker Whit Tucker for the score.

Billy Van Burkleo, who shared quarterbacking duties with Wood and retired Russ Jackson, picked off a Sonny Wade pass and ran 70 yards for the second Rider touchdown.

With a rookie quarterback going most of the way and without the 1969 breakaway speed of Vic Washington and the long-scoring threat of Margene Adkins, Riders were never in the running.

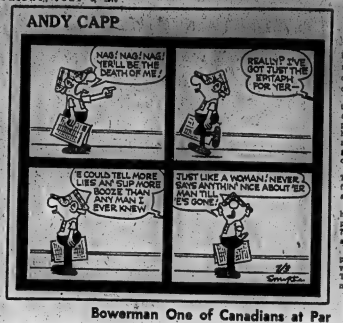
They were held to a miserable 11 yards rushing and Giardino got seven of them in five cracks at the All-Star line.

Not even the magic of Jackson was available to Riders. He started the game for them, and came on late in the fourth quarter when some heroics were called for.

But all Jackson could manage was to complete three of eight passes for 28 yards and two of his throws were intercepted.

Wood, who set the stands buzzing by completing his first two throws of the game, one for the Tucker score, ended the evening completing five of 15 throws for 80 yards. Van Burkleo was two for four for 25 yards.

On the All-Star front, Wade was good on 10 of 19 throws for 141 yards, giving the winners a total of 382 yards in the air. The Rider total was 113.



And while Riders scratched for 11 yards on the ground, Reed alone got 72 on 15 carries for the Stars and with Duncan and Symons, accounted for the lion's share of the 181 total.

Kings, Bush On Move

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League announced Thursday they are switching their pre-season training camp to Victoria. In past years the team has trained at Barrie. General manager Larry Regan said that inexperienced in western Canada more nearly approximate those the Kings will find on the west coast when the regular season opens.

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League announced Thursday that Eddie Bush will coach the team for the 1970-71 season. Bush, who coached Hamilton Red Wings of the Ontario Hockey Association last season, replaced Turk Broda as the Aces coach.

Bowerman One of Canadians at Par

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Gary Pitchford, a 24-year-old professional from Toronto, shot a five-under-par 67 Thursday to lead-five Canadians who broke par in the first round of the Canadian Open golf championship.

Pitchford was tied with John Kennedy of Edgemont, Pa., one stroke behind Art Wall of Honesdale, Pa., and George Archer of Gilroy, Calif., both with 68. Gibby Gilbert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., holds the first-round lead with a seven-under-par 65.

The other Canadians with sub-par rounds were Al Balding of Toronto and amateur Nick Weslock of Brantford, both with 69; amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener at 70 and Jack Bissegger of Ste. Julie, Que., at 71.

Four other Canadians matched par 72, including Belleville native Gary Bowerman (36-36). A total of 30 native golfers entered, including five only four amateurs in the tournament which started with a field of 144.

Wayne McDonald of Brampton, at 73, and Dale Talion of Toronto at 81 were the other amateurs.

Gilbert's Phone Tips Paying

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The biggest names in the game are missing but there's plenty of color in this year's Canadian open golf championship.

Gibby Gilbert, who has cold the professional circuit twice and now gets tips on how best to play by long distance telephone, held the lead and the course record of seven-under-par 65 going into today's second round of the $125,000 tournament.

Wall shot six birdies, but said his greatest shots were to save par, as he scrambled over the 7,168-yard, par-72 London Hunt and Country Club layout.

And Archer, the man who was picked as a pre-tournament favorite by defending champion Tommy Aaron, corrects his own mistakes by playing back his group of eight at two-under-par 70, while professionals George Knudsen of Toronto and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., both finished the day with even par 72s along with Adrien Bigras of Rosegarey, Que.

Two other Canadians, Gary Bowerman of Belleville and Toronto and Bob McLenden of Birmingham, Ala., are tied-for-third at 72.

He returned in 1968 but again failed and did not try again until February this year.

He posted his first tour victory by winning the Houston Champions International tournament earlier this year, and now has almost $40,000 in earnings for 1970.

"But my game went sour in Cleveland last week," he said after setting the course record Thursday. "I called Joe Gerlak, the pro at the Hollywood, Fla., Golf and Country Club, and told him how the ball was reading. He told me I was using too much wrist."

Bateman Slams Expos to Fifth Straight Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took the Montreal Expos almost a year and a half to roll up a five-game winning string, not nearly as long as John Bateman waited to rip the first grand slam of the career.

Bateman, the Expos catcher, slammed the grand slam in the opening inning off, St. Louis right-hander Mike Torrez and finished with seven runs batted in as Montreal whipped the Cardinals 13-10 Thursday night, extending their winning streak to five in a row.

It was his first grand slam ever in organized ball, said the burly 27-year-old veteran of 10 professional campaigns, eight in the majors. "It sure felt good. It was a hanging slider and I'm sure he Torrez didn't want to put it there."

The Expos exploded for a six-run first inning and held off the Birds for the longest victory streak in their less than two years of existence. The second-year expansion club won four straight in September of last year.

In other National League contests, the Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets, 6-1 and 3-2 and Cincinnati Reds nipped Atlanta Braves 3-1 in the only games scheduled.

Bateman, who has been hitting at a .287 clip since June 10, added a two-run double in the second and delivered another run on a grounder. The seven RBI also set a club record.

Joe Hague drove in five runs for the Cards with a pair of homers while Carl Morton, 9-3, picked up the victory for Montreal.

JOHN BATEMAN

Bateman, batting .195 three weeks ago, has upped his average to .232 and doubled six homers and 21 RBI in that span.

He now has nine home runs and 31 runs driven in.

The 6-foot-3, 220-pounder was the Expos No. 3 choice in the expansion draft in 1968 where he was plucked from the Houston Astros. He missed the first month of the season when he was on the disabled list, with a sore kidney.

"I got off to a slow start due to the injury," the Killeen, Tex., native said. "And when I came back I concentrated on catching rather than on hitting. My hitting started to improve when I started to go to right rather than pulling it all the time."

Big John was named the Expos most valuable player for the month of June and Manager Gene Mauch has declared that "John is my No. 1 catcher as long as he is here."

The Mets are still No. 1 in the tight East Division battle but are now in a flat-footed tie for the spot with the idle Pittsburgh Pirates after Thursday's double defeat.

John Bench drove in both Cincinnati runs and Jim Merritt rolled to his 12th victory, tops in the majors. It was the Reds' seventh triumph in eight games while the Braves had dropped nine of their last 10.

Yanks' Clarke Grade A Spoiler

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The making of a no-hitter is a once-in-a-lifetime fling for most pitchers. The breaking of one is becoming second nature to Horace Clarke.

Clarke, who had ruined two previous no-hit bids this season with ninth inning singles, put his whammy on Joe Niekro Thursday night, beating out an infield tap in the ninth for the New York Yankees' lone hit in a 5-0 loss to the Detroit Tigers.

Niekro, who limited the Yanks to two walks before Clarke's one-out spoiler, joined Kansas City's Jim Rooker and Boston's Sonny Siebert on the New York second baseman's list of ninth inning victims.

Elsewhere in the AL, Cleveland Indians outlasted Baltimore Orioles 10-9, Minnesota Twins defeated Kansas City Royals 5-3; Oakland Athletics trimmed the Chicago White Sox 10-6; California Angels slugged Milwaukee Brewers 10-7 and, Boston Red Sox blanked Washington Senators 5-0.

After Niekro got the first out in the ninth at Detroit, Clarke sent a bouncer into the hole between first and second. Tigers' second baseman Dick McAuliffe, who had 10 assists in the game, raced to his left, flagged down the ball and threw to Niekro, covering first, but Clarke barely beat it.

"I knew when I caught the ball I wasn't on the bag," Niekro said. "I wish they gave me an error on it, but that's the way it goes."

Niekro, 9-6, gave himself all the support he needed with a two-run single in the second inning. Jim Price and Jim Northrup homered for the Tigers.

Expos Plan Try-out Camps

MONTREAL (CP) Montreal Expos of baseball's National League announced Thursday they will stage try-out camps throughout Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and parts of the northeastern United States during July and August. Ron Piche and Claude St. Vincent, two former professional and Canadian-born players, will be the instructors. Rodger Bruiotte will visit try-out centres ahead of the instructors, co-ordinating advance arrangements and publicity. This is the first time a major league club has attempted such a broad tryout program in Canada. Boys between the ages of 15 and 19 will be eligible for the try-outs.

Hockey Scholarships Here!

TORONTO (CP) — Scholarships to help hockey players through university and bursaries to assist them at other levels was announced Thursday by Hockey Canada.

Ten of each will be awarded this year, with the deadline for application July 31. Value of the awards is up to $2,000 each.

Charles Hay, president of Hockey Canada, said his organization will finance the plan the first year — with a tax-deductible fund drive from there on — and "negotiations are under way to create a pilot program with the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada for 1971-72."

The idea is for the ADCC to grade applicants scholastically with Hockey Canada grading them on their hockey-playing ability. Eventually, a joint body then would choose the recipients.

"We wish to divide the scholarships equally across the country so we don't have a concentration of scholarship awardees centralized in any one particular university, Hay said.

"We are co-operating with the universities to make certain the awarding of scholarships does not unbalance the level of competition. Each applicant must indicate his choice of three or four universities he would be willing to attend."

Hay said "as far as possible, we'll let him go to the school of his choice."

Purpose of the scholarships is to "encourage talented boys to finish their education," Canada. About 250 people leave Canada each year and get scholarships in the United States because of their hockey-playing ability. Many stay there and are lost to our economy and our country."

Sudbury Warns Raiders

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the Sudbury arena commission said Thursday that if the Ontario Hockey Association continues to raid Northern Ontario Hockey Association clubs the commission "is prepared to drop junior hockey" at the municipally-owned rink.

Dr. Don Stortini was complaining about the two-tier system in junior hockey initiated last month by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Leagues in the top tier, such as the OHA, are allowed to draft players from second-tier leagues, such as the NOHA.

"We can't tell our fans we are giving them good junior hockey if our best players continue to go south to the OHA," Dr. Stortini said in an interview.

"We have the fourth-largest arena in Ontario and the sixth-largest population centre. Who has the right to decide that Peterborough or Oshawa or Niagara Falls (all with OHA teams) should have better hockey than we do?"

Dr. Stortini said tax dollars "have been spent in Northern Ontario teaching kids how to play hockey in the playgrounds, church leagues, midget leagues and school leagues."

"Yet the scouts come up from the OHA and take the best kids away.

Policy Under Discussion

Saskatchewan NDP Closes Leadership Convention to Press

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan New Democratic Party resumes closed panel discussions on policy for the 1970s today after reversing its open-to-the-press policy established five years ago.

The three-day policy and leadership convention ends Saturday with the election of a successor to retiring Woodrow Lloyd, 58.

When the question of closing panel discussions was presented Thursday only three of the almost 300 delegates indicated opposition.

Later at a meeting of the Waffle Group—NDP members who support the views of Melville Watkins, a Toronto economist, and who want to return to the party's original socialist philosophy—two reporters were ejected forcibly by women delegates.

The group was meeting to decide its strategy for the panel discussions and, after first voting to allow the reporters to remain, the delegates asked them to leave.

Two left but two others elected to remain and were lifted from their chairs and pushed out the door by four women delegates.

Allan Blakeney, the Regina MLA and national NDP president who is a candidate for the Saskatchewan leadership, said the party found that after five years the policy of allowing reporters in to observe the panel discussions "just didn't work out."

"The party members must have a place and opportunity to discuss electoral matters without having a selected portion of the discussions appearing in the press," he said in an interview.

He said the panels during the last five open years have become sterile, because of the presence of the press.

But there was speculation the provincial NDP council recommended closing the discussions because of dissension within the party since the emergence of the Waffle Group which is questioning the policies of the party.

Mr. Lloyd and party president Bev Currie of Swift Current, commented. Mr. Currie, in his report, referred to a highly vocal minority which has been critical of the party executive. Mr. Lloyd, in reference to the Left-Right issue, said "such an on-going and out-reaching process inevitably produces some conflict of opinion."

Maudling Is Asked About Acceptance By Britain of Iroquois' Own Passport

LONDON (CP) — Home Secretary Reginald Maudling was asked Thursday how an Iroquois chief from Ontario managed to enter Britain on documents drawn up by himself and other tribal leaders.

John Page, Conservative MP for Harrow West, asked Maudling to give a written answer to the question "on what grounds he accepts passports issued by the Iroquois in Canada."

The question was occasioned by the arrival at London's Heathrow Airport recently of Iroquois chief Emmerson Hill of Brantford, Ont. Hill was returning to Canada from a lecture tour of Sweden, where he spoke on the theme of Iroquois "Independence."

Lawyer Martin Lowe said he represented Hill after the 49-year-old chief planned a stop-over in Britain but refused to produce a Canadian passport when asked to do so by immigration officials.

Lowe said that instead Hill insisted that he be allowed to use type-written travel documents drafted by himself and five other tribal chiefs.

After almost two hours, the normally-strict immigration men gave way and Hill stayed in London until his return to Canada, Lowe said.

Lowe said that during the immigration wrangle he produced historical support for Hill's contention that the Iroquois documents were valid for entry into the country.

In the end, the immigration officials had to rely on the evidence produced in Hill's behalf, home office headquarters being long since closed for the day, Lowe said.

The chief himself "appeared to enjoy it all," said Lowe.

Hill especially revelled in telling the immigration men that no one asked their ancestors for passports when they landed in Canada for the first time, and Lowe added:

"It was all done as a matter of principle as far as he (Hill) was concerned and he went home happily the following Sunday."

New Minister of Europe Opens Euromart Talks

LONDON (Reuters) — Anthony Barber, Britain's new "minister for Europe," brings to his task bubbling enthusiasm, terrier-like persistence and a huge capacity for hard work.

Barber, newly appointed Prime Minister Edward Heath to head the British drive into Europe, made Britain's third bid for admission to the Common Market when negotiations began in Luxembourg Wednesday. The two previous attempts were blocked by France in 1963 and 1967.

His official cabinet title is Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and he succeeds the former Labor government's nominee, George Thomson, as the minister with special responsibility for European affairs.

Like Heath a dedicated European, but keenly aware of rumblings of discontent among Conservative party legislators, Barber faces a delicate task.

Political observers see his assignment as one of the most explosive confronting a Conservative government which surprisingly toppled Labor from power in the June 18 general election.

This is not in the least daunting to Barber, 56 years old July 4 and one of three sons of a Yorkshire industrialist who made their own way into top posts in government, banking and journalism.

"He has an immense dedication to work," said his brother Noel, a leading British journalist. The third brother, Kenneth, started in a bank before the war and wound up a successful bank executive.

Barber has yet to develop an overwhelming emotional commitment to the European ideal.

In his new post, he retains his old job as Conservative party chairman, enabling him to keep a useful check on rank-and-file trends.

Educated at a northern England school and at Oxford, Barber started his professional life as a lawyer. He joined the army when war broke out, fired one of the last guns at the evacuation of the British Expeditionary Force from Dunkerque in 1940, and then transferred to the Royal Air Force as a Spitfire fighter pilot.

Shot down over the English Channel in 1942, and held as a prisoner-of-war in Germany and Poland, he married Audrey, a pro-Nazi Danish laborer, making use of his fluency in his mother's language.

While in captivity, he studied for a law degree and in due course won first-class honors.

Entering politics in peacetime, he went up to congratulate a young Conservative delegate named Jean Asquith on her speech at an annual party conference—and later married her. They have two daughters in their late teens, Josephine and Louise.

Despite his relish for work, the new "Mr. Europe" has an enormous sense of fun which finds its outlet in lighthearted jokes and conversation. He specializes in do-it-yourself handiwork, including installing a camouflaged water tap in his living room for diluting drinks.

Large Caches of Guns Uncovered

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard was reported hot on the trail of an Irish arms smuggling ring today following large hauls of machine-guns, rifles and ammunition in raids on London houses.

Detectives raided three homes Saturday night and seized four heavy machine-guns, dozens of rifles, other automatic weapons including sub-machine-guns, 21,000 rounds of ammunition and other military equipment, sources said today.

Two married couples and four men were taken in for questioning.

The operation, carried out following an undisclosed tipoff to police, was the biggest of its kind in London in years. It was believed co-ordinated with similar dragnets in Ireland.

The weapons and munitions were said to be prepared for shipment to Ireland, where new fighting between Protestants and Roman Catholics broke out in Northern Ireland during the weekend.

A Dublin court Thursday acquitted Neil Blaney, the former agriculture minister of the Irish Republic, of being involved in a plot to smuggle arms through the Republic to Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland. The court ruled there was insufficient evidence. But former finance minister Charles Haughey and three other men were ordered to stand trial on charges of conspiring to import arms between March 1 and April 24.

Both Blaney and Haughey were dismissed by Irish Premier Jack Lynch in May when Lynch told Parliament of the plot to bring arms into Ireland from Europe.

The situation in Northern Ireland was generally quiet, but Rev. Ian Paisley, the Protestant extremist, kicked up a fuss in the Ulster Parliament Thursday.

Paisley got into an argument with Attorney-General Basil Kerry over literature distributed during the recent British election campaign. Paisley ignored the speaker's request to return to his seat and was ejected from the chamber by a vote of the members.

As a sergeant-at-arms ushered him out, he shouted: "If you would lend me a sword, I would decapitate a few of these people before I leave."

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Group three of Westminster UCW is sponsoring a strawberry and ice cream social on Wednesday, July 7 in the lower auditorium of Westminster United Church.

Hostess will be one of the UCW units at the church on Wednesday with Mrs. Kenneth Bush and Mrs. George Bilham in charge of the devotional service.

An "At Home" was held at Westminster United Church Sunday afternoon for Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Waldman who were celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

On Sunday, July 4 the service at Westminster United Church will be conducted by the women of the UCW. Following the service a potluck picnic will be held at Cove Beach in Prince Edward County at 1 p.m.

Recently a surprise shower was held for Miss Ann Wilson of Toronto who was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilson. She was the bonee of Mrs. G. Nowe. She received gifts from the women of the Bible study group.

Farms Visited

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Six provincial ministers of agriculture and four deputy ministers made a tour of Lambton County Thursday visiting several farms in the area.

The ministers came from Toronto where they had been meeting for three days for discussions, and took a firm stand on the controlled use of pesticides.

William Stewart, the Ontario minister, was host to H. A. Runte, Alberta; Adrian Lemaque, New Brunswick; Cyril Shelford, British Columbia; Normand Toupin, Quebec and Daniel MacDonald, Prince Edward Island.

Deputy ministers representing other provinces were Doug Parks, Nova Scotia; Gerry O'Riley, Newfoundland; Murray Cormack, Manitoba and Harold Horner, Saskatchewan.

Heath Immediately Comes Under Wilson's Fire on New Policies

LONDON (CP) — Yachtsman-Prime Minister Edward Heath faced heavy seas from the Labor opposition today as his Conservative government assessed a new political course for Britain.

He was under sharp fire from former prime minister Wilson soon after laying down the general lines of his program at Thursday's opening of the new Parliament following his upset victory in the general election of June 18.

Wilson tackled the new government over its bulldozed policies on immigration, turbulent Northern Ireland, industrial relations and the controversial issue of supplying arms to apartheid South Africa.

The newly-deposed government head, now apparently comfortable on the opposition benches, also balled at the Conservatives for their domestic pronouncements in the speech from the throne read by the Queen at Parliament's opening.

While the throne speech made only a guarded reference to breakaway Rhodesia and none to arms for South Africa, Wilson went into the attack on both issues as the Commons met after the formal ceremonies of opening in the House of Lords.

He charged that Heath's government would be reduced to international impotence if it pursued previously-declared policies concerning the two countries.

Worse, he said, these would destroy Labor's heritage of policies rooted in morality and idealism.

On Rhodesia, the throne speech said-only that the Conservatives would try to find a "sensible and just" solution in accordance with the "five principles" of British negotiation based on progress toward black African majority rule in the white-governed former colony. Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith has made it plain these are not acceptable to him.

On South Africa, Wilson said that if the Conservatives went on with their election campaign policy of considering the supply of arms to that country—chief of by Labor—Heath soon would find himself at the head of a shrunken Commonwealth.

The new prime minister made a cautious reply to his attack, without fully revealing Tory thinking. But what had important, laurels both north and south of the Zambesi River. It did not condone racialist practices but would not be pushed into course that could do Britain great damage while having no practical value.

As the Northern Ireland cauldron bubbled, Wilson accused the Tories of early fumbling on that explosive situation.

Education Is Being Resumed for Children of Ibo Tribe

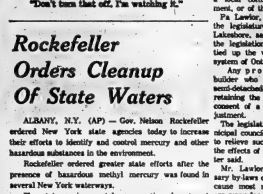
Many have become parents since their classes ended in 1967. Others are war veterans with officers' commissions.

School buildings suffered damage from attacks during the war, and property was looted as ground changed hands back and forth. Today desks and laboratories are nearly impossible to find.



In East Central state, heartland of the Ibos, authorities estimate that the number of school-age youths has risen 50 per cent from a pre-war total of 450,000. Despite this rise it appears that peak attendance during the coming school year will be lower than the pre-war level.

An official says that $53,000,000 is planned for education this year but that $40,000,000 would be needed to restore adequately the crippled school system.

To help the impoverished Ibo population, school fees have been cut to half, but many parents say they cannot afford even the lowered fees.

The United Nations' Children Fund has pledged to provide basic equipment for 1,000 primary schools and 135 secondary schools. UNICEF has also budgeted a $1,000,000 for new books.

A key problem is to get aluminum roofing over some 500 war-damaged school buildings.

Subdivision Control Said to Be Obstacle to Land Transfer

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation that imposes subdivision and part-lot control on all lands in Ontario was criticized Thursday by a New Democratic Party spokesman as a source of financial harm to property owners.

The legislation, a series of amendments to the Ontario Planning Act, was introduced by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough June 18 and given royal assent June 26, the day the legislature recessed for the summer.

It makes all land in the province subject to subdivision control and part-lot control. Land cannot be subdivided into subdivided lots be divided into part lots, without the consent of a local committee of adjustment, or of the minister.

Pa Lawlor, NDP member of the legislature for Toronto Lakeshore, said in a statement the legislation has "effectively tied up the whole land transfer system of Ontario."

Any property owner or builder who tried to sell one semi-detached bungalow while retaining the other had to get consent of a committee of adjustment.

The legislation permits a municipal council to pass a by-law to relieve such properties from the effects of the act, the minister said.

Mr. Lawlor said the necessary by-laws can't be passed because most municipal councils are away for the summer, leaving up thousands of sales until fall.

Toronto lawyer Alan Berek said in an interview he had three conveyances of land returned at the land titles office in Oshawa. He predicted bankruptcy for builders and building supply firms unless something is done.

Mr. Berek said waivers from local adjustment committees could take up to two months to complete. In the meantime, he said, the builders cannot transfer the deed to the homeowner and homeowners therefore might not be permitted to move in.

Rockefeller Orders Cleanup Of State Waters

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller ordered New York state agencies today to increase their efforts to identify and control mercury and other hazardous substances in the environment.

Rockefeller ordered greater state efforts after the presence of hazardous methyl mercury was found in several New York waterways.

The state environmental conservation department has closed Onondaga Lake to fishing and has warned fishermen against eating fish takes from Lakes Erie, Ontario and Champlain and the Niagara, Oswego and St. Lawrence rivers, pending further tests.

Rockefeller said state's drinking water supplies have been found to be safe.

Inco Says It Has Acquired Right to Emit Fumes

SUDBURY (CP) — A Waters Township couple waited too long before suing International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. for damages allegedly caused by Inco fumes, the company said in a statement Thursday.

Eliel and Toivo Palonen are asking Inco for $85,000 for damages allegedly caused by poisonous fumes emitted from smoke stacks at Inco's Copper Cliff ore concentrator.

A Supreme Court writ sworn out by the couple also charges that Mrs. Palonen suffered serious and permanent eye injuries and developed a skin condition as a result of the fumes.

But in its statement of defence, Inco claims the Palonens have gone beyond the time limit set by law. The statute cited by the company states that court action must begin no later than 20 years after the event on which it is based.

Inco said it has been emitting fumes in or about Copper Cliff for more than 30 years and therefore has the right to continue to do so.

The Palonens said they have been living in their home for more than 27 years.

They are seeking $25,000 for property depreciation and $10,000 for limited use of their home, $25,000 for general damages and $10,000 for special damages.

They claim the concentrator was carelessly and negligently built near their home.

The couple also charges that they cannot enjoy the sunlight and parity of air because fumes from the concentrator hang over their land.

In the writ served to Inco in late March, they were seeking an interim and permanent injunction forcing Inco to stop emission of fumes.

The Inco statement says the Palonens have no right to an injunction since they did not object to the fumes until 1969.

If Mrs. Palonen suffered any injuries, Inco argues, they were not caused by an act or negligence by Inco. In any event, Inco claims, she failed to lessen her damages by seeking immediate medical attention.

The statement says damages claimed by the couple are too excessive, too remote and speculative. It says Tudor Palonen has already accepted annual payments for the property damage.

Duke Planning Suit for Libel

TORONTO (CP) — Oakville businessman George Clinton Duke has issued a writ alleging he was libelled by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for High Park.

Harvey Sadler, lawyer for Mr. Duke, said Thursday the writ was filed at Osgoode Hall Monday.

Arrests End House Occupation

TORONTO (CP) — The occupation of an Ontario Housing Corp. apartment by a number of five and members of a poor peoples' society ended Thursday when police arrested and charged 22 men and women.

The police action came after the board of directors of the OHC decided to take legal action Thursday morning. Thursday afternoon, about two dozen police officers arrived at the apartment occupied by Mrs. Wilson Tuesday night. Mrs. Wilson and Just Society members left the apartment quietly and were removed in two paddy wagons.

Later they were charged with forcible detainer—a charge referring to the possession of another's property in a manner likely to cause a breach of the peace—and mischief.

Those charged are expected to appear in court today.

Earlier, a statement by OHC managing director H. E. Saters was released in which Mr. Saters said OHC officials had been authorized to swear an information against Mrs. Wilson for occupying the apartment without OHC permission. Mrs. Wilson claimed she and her family of five had nowhere else to go after the rent on their privately-owned three-bedroom apartment was raised.

Mr. Saters said the board felt it had a legal and moral responsibility to take action because Diane Donnelly and her three children had already signed a lease for the apartment and paid the first month's rent, and because the board considered Mrs. Wilson's occupation "a clear case of illegal entry."

Mrs. Donnelly was allocated the OHC apartment after she was asked to vacate privately-owned accommodation because the owner wanted to move in. While she was preparing to move in to the OHC unit, Mrs. Wilson's family occupied it.

Mrs. Donnelly and her family at present are living at an hotel paid for by the OHC.

Mrs. Wilson and her children have been given emergency help by the Canadian Red Cross.

They have moved into a motel unit which contains a kitchen for which the Red Cross will pay three nights' accommodation.

France Will Explode H-bomb

PARIS (Reuters) — France will explode her third hydrogen bomb in the atmosphere today —despite protests from home and abroad—as she works to improve her thermonuclear arsenal.

The 11-bomb is scheduled to be detonated at 2:30 p.m. EDT, weather permitting, from a balloon 600 yards above the Mururoa Atoll lagoon in French Polynesia.

Watching the blast will be Defence Minister Michel Debre and senior armed forces officers from the deck of the cruiser Jeanne Grause, which will be positioned about 60 miles from the blast area, 720 miles southeast of Tahiti.

Foreign and French journalists also will watch the test, the first time they have been given such an opportunity.

Despite the protests, President Georges Pompidou has given the go-ahead for the current series of nuclear and thermonuclear tests. The last series was held in 1966, when former president Charles de Gaulle was in power.

Pompidou also has stuck to de Gaulle's policy of refusing to sign the Moscow partial nuclear test-ban treaty and the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

The French so far have exploded 24 nuclear devices, 16 in the Sahara Desert and 8 in the South Pacific. They include two 15-bomb blasts in 1966.

Protests over the testing have come from opposition groups and parties in France and from such countries as Australia, Japan and some South American nations.

Attorney-general Says Magistrate Was in Error

CALGARY (CP) — Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart said Thursday that Magistrate Jean Justason had no jurisdiction to rule the Alberta driver-dement system invalid.

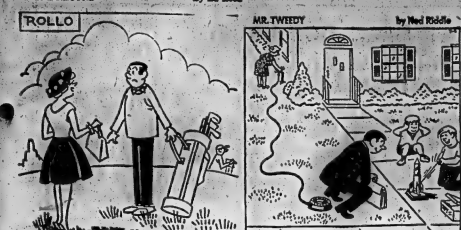
in an effort to allay mounting apprehension, two French scientists working in Tahiti said this week that the Pacific nuclear tests have caused no significant increase in the level of radioactivity in the area, halfway between Brisbane, Australia, and Santiago, Chile.

More than 25,000 samples of fish, shell fish, land and vegetables from all over French Polynesia have been examined at the radiological survey laboratory in Papeete, Tahiti, since the first Pacific test six years ago.



"None of the samples showed a radioactive level dangerous to man when they were exposed to sophisticated monitoring experiments," Joseph Roger, head of the laboratory, said.

Gen. Andre Ashenhardt, head of the combined biological control service which supplies samples to the laboratory, claimed that the first four low-power tests in the current series leading up to today's H-bomb blast had caused a slight increase in the level of the radioactive isotope Iodine-131 in Tahiti's milk.

But that represents 1-50th of the permissible level, he said.

The French admit that their nuclear program already is two years behind schedule, due to both financial and technical difficulties.

They already are looking to next year's test program to complete the miniaturization of their nuclear weapons, including ground-to-ground intermediate ballistic missiles for the army and Polaris-type missiles for the navy's nuclear-powered submarines, which go into service in the next two years.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: A friend of mine has five lovely children but the third one who is a very bright 3½-year-old boy does not speak. All the other children chatter all the time but he sits quietly and says nothing.

He seems to understand when you talk to him, but all he does is grunt and grin. He is very sensitive and cries while he doesn't get his way with his brothers and sisters. If you raise your voice, he falls back on the floor and bangs his head hard in frustration.

His mother says he is only acting and is a phony. She spanks him often but nothing seems to help. She says that every since infancy she has never heard him make any sound except crying.

He would play quietly for hours in his playpen and fall asleep quietly. If his mother is on the phone or goes outside in the yard for a few minutes, he will cry and holler. His brother who is 6 and a sister who is 8 play with him sometimes, and he seems to enjoy it.

His mother says she had a difficult birth with him, and the doctors said they had a hard time getting him to breathe. Other than that she doesn't know why he should be acting so. His mother and grandmother are both nurses.

What I can't understand is why they dismiss and ignore the poor child as if they are ashamed of him.

She reads your column. Perhaps you can offer some advice that she can follow. For some reason, she has never taken the child to the baby doctor since he had all his shots. Don't you think he needs a doctor's care? — Mrs. D.

Comment: I'd say it's long overdue. My first guess is that the child has a hearing problem. With his birth history it's also possible he may have some brain damage. Those are guesses. He may even be a "slow starter" in the speech arena. But time has arrived for medical investigation. As a nurse, I think your friend will agree.

For Mr. O.: Chances are you will yawn as you read this. Some people are so sensitive to others who yawn that they yawn, too. The reason? I wish I knew. There are few things so contagious as a yawn. It can spread through a group within seconds. (I've yawned four times while writing this.) Perhaps nature was telling me I needed a few deep breaths

For Mrs. N.: The thermometer is a handy instrument to have around the house. Everyone should own one. Sometimes it isn't used often enough when an apparently happy, coordinated child becomes difficult and cranky.

You can't always tell if he has fever by feeling his forehead. Many mothers are surprised to find fever after saying, "I'm sure he hasn't any. His forehead is as cool as mine."

For Mr. T.: Having Buerger's disease, you undoubtedly are addicted to cigarettes. I don't know why this is. Perhaps the need for tobacco is in some way tied in with the type of individual who eventually gets this disease of the arteries.

I have known quite a few Buerger's patients, with leg or legs already amputated because of gangrene, who still can't stop smoking — although warned they may also lose their arms. (Perhaps investigators of the cigarette habit should spend more time studying Buerger's patients.

For Mrs. H.: I've known many people who stand on their heads a few minutes a day. They think it brings good health. If you like it, too, I'm in favor — if your own doctor agrees. Personally, I believe there are more congestional ways of staying healthy.

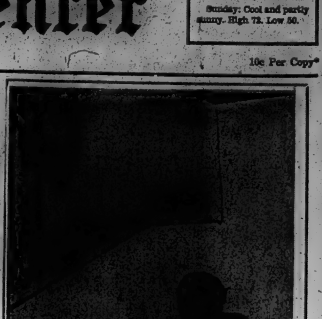
Holiday Britons Die in Jet Crash

BARCELONA, Spain (CP) — The wreckage of a British jetliner reported missing Friday with 112 persons aboard was found today on a mountainside about 30 miles north of Barcelona. A spokesman for the Spanish air ministry said in Madrid that it appears there were no survivors.

There were 104 passengers aboard—63 men, 35 women, three children and a baby—and seven crew members. All the passengers were from the northern part of England en route to a 13-day vacation in Spain.

Officials said it might be hours before rescuers would be able to reach the scene and report on the extent of the accident. They were hampered by rough terrain and heavy rain.

The wreckage of the chartered Dan-Air Comet jet was found in the Montseny Mountains near the town of San Celoni about 12 hours after the craft lost radio contact with Barcelona airport just minutes before its expected landing.



The jet was reported at about 4,000 feet when it lost radio contact. The British consulate in Barcelona said it had word that the plane crashed at an elevation of 3,400 feet.

Earlier reports said the plane might have plunged into the sea, but the wreckage was spotted from the air on Aguila Mountain.

The wreckage was first sighted today by an Iberia Airlines caterpillar helicopter on a flight from Frankfurt to Barcelona, an airport spokesman said.

The plane headed over Western France and the Pyrenees Mountains into Spain.

Charles Smash At Ball

The 21-year-old prince danced until 12:30 a.m. following a dinner at Government House, leaving matrons and maidens bedazzled in his wake.

It was a follow-up to a Government House garden party earlier in the day, when Senator Josie Quart showed up to meet the prince for the second time.

There he danced mostly with Jocelyne Reuben—blonde, 22, pretty, and the niece of Prime Minister Trudeau.

He also danced with Jobs Mabrey, 19, Miss Canada for 1968, whose earlier partner—the afore-mentioned Mr. Trudeau—came on dashing in a lion suit, white boots and an Apache scarf.

Between the garden party, which skimmed the guests, and the dinner-dance, where there were 72, most of them young, the prince carried off the first full day in Canada with real social success.

Most of those at the party were in their 30s. They included Boston Bruins super-star Bobby Orr, 23, and skiing star Betsy Clifford, 16, both of whom left before midnight.

Among the guests was Ronald Shackleton of Belleville, a psychology graduate now employed with the Indian affairs department.

This is Prince Minister Trudeau, Anne. He's a bachelor!

Storm's Aftermath

A schoolhouse, one mile north of Shannonville, had some of its roof ripped off by tornado-type winds during last night's massive electric storm which damaged the entire Quinte area. The schoolyard was also strewn with broken and uprooted trees.

Storm Rips Quinte With Fierce Winds

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Quinte district today is recovering from the sting of one of the fiercest squalls to lash the area in years.

Violent lightning, high winds and drenching rain whipped the area for nearly an hour Friday night, blacking out power and communications facilities, uprooting trees and causing scattered property damage.

More than an inch of rain was recorded through the night in Belleville. At CFB Trenton the duty forecaster reported winds gusting up to 82 miles an hour.

But the intensity of the winds varied.

North of Shannonville, a Tyendinaga township resident reported a school house damaged and trees uprooted by the squall.

Public service crews were still working over a wide area this morning after night-long restoration operations in the storm's wake.

The storm's furious hallmark was its vivid lightning — described by one public utilities veteran as the worst in memory.

Riots Worst So Far

BELFAST (AP) — House-to-house battling between Roman Catholic dissidents and British soldiers raged through the night in the Northern Ireland capital, but the guns grew quiet as dawn broke today.

The night of violence, one of the worst so far in the capital, left five civilians killed, including two gunmen, authorities said. In addition, 79 civilians, 19 soldiers and one policeman were injured. There were 154 arrests.

As soon as the shooting stopped the soldiers started a house-to-house search of the entire area, and military headquarters said a curfew would remain in force until further notice.

An army spokesman said today that the arms search in the predominantly Roman Catholic Lower Falls district had uncovered 23 pistols, 23 rifles, two sub-machine-guns, one carbine, six grenades, six packs of explosives, 100 ammunitions, two shotguns and 1,000 rounds of ammunition.

Residents were not allowed to leave their homes for over two days, but an army spokesman said the restrictions might be lifted for about two hours later in the day so housewives could do their shopping for the weekend.

Only essential services such as bread and milk deliveries and ambulances and fire trucks were permitted to enter the 10-block curfew zone. All vehicles were being searched.

Many observers believed the fighting could no longer be considered communal rioting between Roman Catholic and Protestants, but had become open war between Britain and Irish republicans.

The night-long violence started with an army raid on an arms cache in a Roman Catholic stronghold. Protesting Roman Catholic crowds swelled into rock- and bottle-throwing mobs, and the melee turned into a full-scale battle between civilians firing automatic weapons and some 1,000 British soldiers.

No Irish Protestant riots were believed involved in the fighting.

Non-Partisan Celebration

Divided U.S. Tests July 4 Holiday as Honor America Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided United States of America today marked the 194th anniversary of the founding of the republic.

Some were disillusioned but others celebrated in the fashion suggested by John Adams after the Declaration of Independence was adopted by the Continental Congress.

The Fourth of July should be commemorated "as the day of deliverance . . . with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other," Adams wrote.

Across the land were parades, picnics and even an old-fashioned watermelon-cutting here and there.

The U.S. capital had them all in a special "Honor America Day" program. A prayer service led by evangelist Billy Graham; a procession of flags, military music, a folklife festival, entertainment and fireworks.

Graham, in his prepared text, said Americans are "fiercely facing and desperately trying to solve almost insoluble social, moral and spiritual problems."

"Let those who claim they want to improve the nation by destroying it join all of us in a new unity and a new dedication by peaceful means to make the dreams of personal and national life a reality, of freedom a reality, of social justice a reality, and of peace a reality."

There were those who disagreed, and many of the New Left planned to ignore the rally. Others disagreed and promised to demonstrate their opposition. Dissidents on the left characterized Honor America Day as a war rally, designed to drew support for President Nixon's war policies.

A group of several hundred young people were dispersed Friday night by park police after rocks were thrown at a choral group practising for the July Fourth program.

One of several small groups that scattered from the area moved near the White House and tore down about 30 American flags, setting 11 on fire, police said. Other demonstrators moved in small groups through the downtown section, smashing a few windows.

Two park policemen were injured at the monument grounds. One suffered a broken jaw, and a second was cut, but there was no word on how they were injured. Both men were in satisfactory condition in hospital early today.

Five persons were arrested by police, including two charged with assault.

In addition to breaking up the rock-tossing crowd police dispersed a group gathered to view a program on the Mall not connected to the Honor America Day activities.

Hope and other rally sponsors decried any pro-war sentiment in planning the celebration—and promised Honor America Day would be free of politics and partisanship.

"We have witnessed countless demonstrations against one aspect or another of American life," said Hope. "Now we feel it is time to get out and demonstrate for something."

In Philadelphia, the cradle of the republic, actor Howard Keel was to read the Declaration of Independence.

Riots

near the city centre. Other parts of the country were quiet.

As the army moved forward under a hail of rocks, bottles, homemade bombs and gasoline bombs, a helicopter hovered overhead and warned through a bullhorn that gunmen and bombers were liable to be shot.

The thump of heavy explosions sounded crackling gunfire, the shattering of bottles and the clang of gas grenades.

A bomb blew out the front offices of the Belfast News Letter newspaper, injuring three of the staff and a passerby. Another damaged St. Bridget's Roman Catholic Church, and a third exploded behind a gasoline station in a Protestant area.

British army soldiers stood grim-faced at their posts as women and children were evacuated from the 50 streets around the Falls Road battleground. Then the troops moved in firing at rooftop snipers.

"We are being pinned down and moving from door to door under fairly constant fire," an army spokesman said. "The troops are returning the fire where appropriate. They are being shot at from all directions and the shooting appears widespread.

With the coming of daylight more than 2,000 soldiers, backed by armored cars, were picking their way through the Falls Road area from house to house, shooting at snipers. The five-square-mile area was under an indefinite curfew, clamped down at 10:30 p.m. Friday.

"I don't understand this situation," said a Northern Ireland government source. "This is the crackdown—it has had to come for the troublemakers."

Eleven persons have been were killed last weekend in battles between Roman Catholics and Protestants.

The violence started with Roman Catholic demonstrations in opposition to the jailing of Bernadette Devlin, a 21-year-old member of the British Parliament who is an outspoken advocate of civil rights for Northern Ireland's Catholic minority. Miss Devlin was sentenced to six months in prison for leading anti-Protestant riots in Northern Ireland last summer.

35-day Voyage

Belleville Woman and Husband Beat Seasickness, Atlantic

A former Belleville woman has recently received recognition for her sailing heroism, the result of a trans-Atlantic sailing voyage with her husband.

The woman is Mrs. John Standley, but she is better known in Belleville as Bobbie Touchie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Touchie of 51 Alexander Street.

Bobbie attended secondary school in Belleville at BCVS and she trained at and was graduated from the Belleville General Hospital as a nurse.

She now makes her home in Weston where her husband has a general medical practice.

Mrs. Standley and her husband returned from the harrowing journey Saturday, docking their sloop, Mary Poppins, at Port Credit.

Dr. and Mrs. Standley made no special claims about their hurricane-battered adventures aboard the craft.

"It has been done many times before," he said, "but not by us."

And never, one guessed, by a husband and wife team with such a long history of seasickness — "We would both get sick every time we sailed out on Lake Ontario."

Another doctor took over Dr. Standley's June Street surgery for a year. Mary Poppins was shipped to England and launched in Hampshire last July for a testing south-coast cruise.

"I was sick all the way from England to Gibraltar," Bobby recalled, "but I forced myself to keep on eating. Starting from England, sunburn was no problem. By the time we reached hot sunshine we were ready for it."

The Mary Poppins was equipped with a self-steering gear, allowing Captain Standley relief from continuous duty at the tiller. Crossing from Spain to Morocco, however, he was required to fight a particularly determined storm.

"I arrived in Casablanca absolutely exhausted," Dr. Standley said. "For me that was the roughest part of the entire trip."

Before leaving the Canary Islands for the Trade Winds route to Barbados, Mary Poppins was joined by a large woman and a trimaran sailed by three young Swedes with scant idea of navigation.

Force 8 winds quickly split up the small convoy of mutual comfort. The Standleys also found themselves becalmed for days. "We read voraciously, we talked and we slept."

The first half of the long haul to Barabados took 25 days. The second half was completed in 10 with the doctor making port "right on the button" and justifiably jubilant about his prowess with a sextant.

In Barabados they met old-timer transatlantic conquerors, the cockleshell people defying one of the oldest and the last of this earth's frontiers.

"There are four bad accidents each year," Dr. Standley said. "There were also three abandoned yachts we had struck it together. Oddly enough nobody talked about sailing."

Mary Poppins becomes a floating restaurant and surgery. Those Swedes in the trimaran caught up with us, but had suffered a rough time. Twenty days of coffee and a handful of flour, no food scurvy, another hurt-bed. It was the first time I'd seen such cases in my medical career."

Dr. Standley and his wife are already talking about another trip in six or seven years.

"I wouldn't go alone," he said. "That puts too much strain on the rear mind. I wouldn't have another man with me. Risk of arguments. No it will be Bobbie and me together and on our own in whatever we decide to do. The challenge will be with ourselves alone."

A bus will travel through the city every Sunday offering to pick up any senior citizens who wish to enjoy Zwick's scenic landscape for an afternoon.

Moira, along East Moira to West Moira to Yeomans, across to W. Bridge, up Dundas at 1:15 p.m. follows to Zwick's.

The bus will stop at intersections to pick up passengers. Would-be travellers are asked to raise their hands so the bus driver will be sure to stop.

TORONTO (CP) — Three persons were charged Friday with conspiring to commit theft and fraud in connection with a large-scale cash-refund swindle by employees of a T. Eaton Co. store in suburban Don Mills.

Police said a warrant for the arrest of a fourth person has been issued.

Police valued the merchandise involved, mainly jewellry and appliances, at upwards of $100,000.

Accompanied by high winds, the result was a series of power failures caused by lightning and felled trees and limbs.

In Belleville, where the squall hit about 11 p.m., there was to a 44,000-volt line on Elmer Street caused a blackout lasting about 15 minutes for two-thirds of the city, said an utilities spokesman.

Crews worked through the night to repair what utilities manager E. L. Burnham described as "quite a bit of damage" caused by lightning and falling tree limbs.

"We've been hit hard," said a Bell Telephone spokesman in Belleville today — 12 hours after the storm.

"Reports of damage are coming in now so fast we're swamped. We've called all our crews in."

He said approximately 1,000 workers were involved in the massive repair operation over the area including Madoc, Stirling, Trenton and Picton.

Today, city public works crews were still on the job clearing up the debris that dumped power and telephone lines.

In downtown Belleville traffic lights were blacked out and police were dispatched to main intersections to keep late Friday - night traffic flowing.

Some 1.2 inches of rain were recorded through the night at the city's filtering plant.

The plant and Belleville General Hospital were among the only facilities which switched to emergency power generators when the blackout struck.

BGH spokesman said the blackout caused no problems.

Provincial police reported trees down on main roads over a wide area — Highway 2 near Bayside, the Wallbridge Road and Redeerville Road in Ameliasburg township.

In rural areas still blacked out by early - morning milking time, dairy farmers faced the problem of inoperative equipment.

However, no serious incidents were reported in the townships of Prince Edward and Hastings counties during the storm's passage.

Provincial police at Picton and Belleville said no reports of major damage had been received at OPP detachments in the area.

On the Shannonville Gravel Road, about a mile north of Highway 2, four trees on the property of Mrs. W. E. Hicks were uprooted and the roof of a nearby vacant schoolhouse damaged.

Mrs. Ken Vivian reported no damage in the village, but the squall was the worst she remembers.

"I never saw a storm like it here," she said.

Intensive Care Unit In Trenton Hospital

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton Memorial Hospital has a new intensive care unit, the result of a fund raising campaign that netted $20,000.

D. H. Fairbairn, chairman of the public relations committee for the hospital board of directors, said this morning that the unit's equipment, costing $20,000, had been procured and installed.

The unit includes specialized monitoring and resuscitation devices. It is designed so that a nurse in a central location can read television-type indicators showing the second-to-second status of the cardiac and respiratory systems of each patient.

In addition it has an audio facility which alerts staff to significant changes or irregularities in the heartbeat.

The new unit will be dedicated to the memory of S. G. Graham, a long-time chairman of the hospital board.

A dedication service will be held in September to which the general public will be invited. Visitors will then have an opportunity to see the new equipment in operation.

Canadian Caribou Effort in Peru 'One of Our Finest'

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The red carpet was rolled out Friday afternoon at CFB Trenton for the return of five 424 Squadron Caribou aircraft and 70 men from earthquake relief operations in Peru.

Major - general A. C. Hull, chief of Air Transport Command, brigadier - general Bert Allison, chief of staff operations for ATC, and base commander Harold Carswell headed the official greeting party, while the wives and families of many of the men were also in attendance.

"Canada probably made the most significant contribution of all the countries who sent aid," said major-general Hull of the Canadian effort.

"From our point o view it was a good operation very well done by everybody involved," he said of four relief operation which began June 3 when the five Caribous and a Hercules aircraft left Trenton for Peru.

Col. Carswell praised the relief effort as "one of the finest operations ever performed by the Canadian Forces."

Lt.-col. W. I. Butchart, the 424 squadron commander who directed Canadian relief operations, noted: "This was our first disaster response of this magnitude but we went down and met the need."

"You'd have to be there and see it," he said. "Words cannot express how bad it was."

He said that when the Caribou aircraft, which have short takeoff and landing capabilities, reached the earthen airstrip at Anta near the disaster area, there were hundreds of wounded, starving people and orphans who had been unattended for up to a week.

"There were difficulties primarily because the airfields hadn't existed three days before we got there," Lt.-col. Butchart added.

"The Andes present some of the world's most difficult flying terrain and during takeoffs and landings our aircraft were operating at only 60 to 70 per cent of their efficiency at base Trenton," the relief operations director explained.

"Basically we train for this type of operation in United Nations standby duty and this type of flying is what the Caribou is designed for.

"Everybody just went all out," he said, "normal standards of effort were greatly exceeded just by the sheer necessity of the life-saving operation."

"The enthusiasm, the energy and the hours our crews worked were just fantastic," said Major Jack Donald, who piloted one of the five Caribou aircraft.

"During the first week the need was so great and we did everything we could," he added.

Major Donald explained that the twin-engine Caribou aircraft took medical supplies, clothing, and food into small emergency airstrips at Anta and Cares then returned to Lima with injured disaster victims.

"The people are very stoic," he said of the Indian natives who live in the Andes.

"They accept this as just another hardship in a life of hardships," he noted.

Initially the Canadian Caribous were the only fixed-wing aircraft capable of reaching the disaster areas but with the extension of the airstrip at Anta four - engine aircraft with a larger capacity came into service.

Canadian crews made their last flights to the disaster area June 28 and next day began preparations for the long flight home.

The five Caribous departed from Lima Tuesday at 8 a.m. and made overnight stops at Panama, Jamaica, and the United States during the return flight.

Park Dale Year Book A Credit to Students

Park Dale School in west Belleville has done it again— this time with a full - sized school year book that would do credit to any secondary institution.

Focus 69-70 was put out by pupils from kindergarten to Grade 8 with the help of teacher Mrs. Sandra Brown.

The thick volume reflects the enterprise of the school community — now becoming a tradition at Parkdale.

This year the effort turned maxi — with contributions from almost everyone in the school. All the usual ingredients of a school year book are there — from the principal's message, through class pictures, the joke section to pupil - written reports of the school year.

Principal B. A. Wright said each family in the school community was given one free copy of Focus 69-70, published at a cost of $1.20 a copy.

The Home and School Association underwrote the costs, and additional funds were raised by the sale of class pictures originally taken for the year book.

The school staff typed and duplicated the pages and the pupils assembled them. The photographs were taken by a Quinte Secondary School student. The magazine is liberally sprinkled with formal class pictures and candid shots.

Reports cover every school event from a down-east sardine and dulse lunch-party given by the principal to a snake capturing expedition and trips to Sudbury and Niagara Falls.

The Maritime sea weed was reported to be too salty, and the snake mortality in captivity is painfully recorded.

The excursions get in-depth treatment — from the preliminary bird feeder building project to finance the trip to Sudbury to the pupils' impressions.

"Altogether, the best part of the trip to me was the sleep, which really wasn't very long," reported one pupil.

"I was fascinated by how close the States is to Canada," records a pupil about Niagara Falls.

But one pint-sized pollution prober wrote an observation that would do credit to any sharp-eyed reporter.

"What amazed me most was the pollution the Americans dump into OUR Niagara River," wrote Phillip King. "Across from the Sir Adam Beck plant was a miniature waterfall of chemical wastes falling from a pipe at the top of the gorge on the American side. I think our Canadian government should do something about this."

Capsule comments contributed by the primary pupils on what they like about school proved recess is still the run away winner.

And one budding diplomat limited her contributions in the "happiness is" section to a compliment for her teacher — "Happiness is Miss Lewis".

Art work and poems by the pupils complete the year book — a must for every adult who likes to peep occasionally into the fascinating world of childhood.

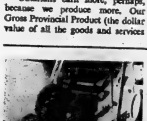
Author Dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Frances Parkinson Keyes, internationally - known author and widow of a New Hampshire governor and U.S. senator, died at her home here Friday after a long illness. Mrs. Keyes was 84.

Mrs. Keyes wrote more than 30 books, novels and travel publications, including the best-seller Dinner at Antoine's. Her most recent book, published in 1968, was The Heritage.

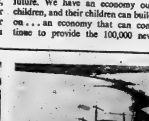
Among her most prominent books with New Orleans and Louisiana-laid scenes were Crescent Carnival, The River Road and Once on Esplanade.

She was associate editor of Good Housekeeping magazine from 1923 to 1935 and editor of the National Historical Magazine from 1937 to 1939.



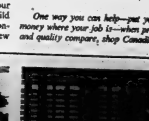
Ontario incomes have doubled in 12 years. That's something your children can build on.

Ontario youngsters can look forward to the future with more confidence than almost anyone. They'll inherit an economic giant with a remarkable record of accomplishment. Few places in the world, for example, can equal our record for rising incomes. Our pay envelopes are twice what they were in 1957, yet prices have gone up just 33%.



Ontarians earn more, perhaps, because we produce more. Our Gross Provincial Product (the dollar value of all the goods and services produced) has doubled in the last decade. By 1969 it had reached $32.3 billion and projections show we could reach $52 billion by 1975. Today we account for more than half of Canada's manufactured goods and 80% of Canada's fully manufactured exports. Nice work!

Because of the way we work, Ontario is in good shape to face the future. We have an economy our children, and their children can build on . . . an economy that can continue to provide the 100,000 new jobs we need each year to accommodate our growing labour force. Though, our dollar and our economy face many challenges these days, Ontario has built the foundation to meet them. But, it's not our style to stand on our record. We must keep growing and keep building our economy.



One way you can help—put your money where your job is—when price and quality compare, shop Canadian.

Ontario's educational system is growing to provide the skills and knowledge that are vital to a growing economy. The Province today has 16 universities with a student population that has doubled in the last four years. And we've created 26 community colleges in three years to give Ontarians the widest educational opportunities.

Our growing economy places growing demands on electrical power. Nuclear generating stations, like the one above under construction near Pickering, will help supply keep pace with all demand. This station will be one of the largest in the world.

Wages aren't all that have been going up in Ontario. There's been a lot rising in steel and concrete to house our expanding population and industry. Last year over one third of all the money invested in construction in Canada was invested in Ontario.

Canada's life style of tomorrow presents many challenges. But it's Ontario's style to meet these challenges today.

Too Late

Bernadette Devlin's exclamation, in the midst of her shirt-sewing chores in Armagh women's prison — "Have they all gone mad?" — is a classic example of attempting to lock the barn door after the horse has fled. She was talking to a fellow MP who visited her in the wake of Ulster's latest riots.

Miss Devlin, at 23 Britain's youngest MP — she represents Mid-Ulster — has sufficient influence in Northern Ireland that she could have cooled tempers there long ago. She could have done so by calling on all factions to end their senseless confrontation. As it is she is now serving time for exhorting Catholic rioters to "kill the . . ." (referring to the police) in last year's riots in Londonderry...

But it is not enough to blame only Bernadette Devlin, for events have long since escalated to include other demagogue voices and factions. What began originally as a campaign for civil rights by Catholics (starting with regard to jobs and housing) now threatens to become an inferno fanned by what a Belfast newspaper accurately describes as Ulster's "tyrannical hatreds."

It is all the more tragic for the fact that as in most situations of this kind only a minority are involved. There are 1,500,000 people in Northern Ireland of whom perhaps only a few thousand — principally in Belfast and Londonderry — have been involved in actual rioting. Some sections of the media perpetuate the myth that the whole province and its population are engaged in a virtual blood-bath, as for example when the CBC in its newscasts refers to "riot-devastated Northern Ireland."

But serious the situation certainly is and at least one CBC representative — London correspondent Michael Maclear — reporting from Belfast, is correct in saying that it "defies solution." The grass-roots, working man in Ulster, nurtured on centuries of political and religious brainwashing, starved of many of the necessities of this world, the streets and the public house his only escape from the crushing boredom of tenement life, is the catalyst in this descent toward disaster. The teenagers reported involved in today's troubles are the latter-day inheritors of this very limited tragedy. You cannot reason with such people.

Now July 12 — the anniversary of the Protestant victory in the Battle of the Boyne in 1690 — casts a further shadow over the immediate future. Some marches have been banned, but to ban this one would be tantamount to political suicide. Amid all this trouble there was one small bright spot recently — the offer by Irish republican Premier Jack Lynch to send fire engines to Belfast — an offer which was courteously declined. It was a reminder of those days of the not too far distant past when former Ulster Premier Terence O'Neill and his southern counterpart met for talks and both Irelands were getting along tolerably well.

Bay Bridge—Again

Last Sunday's Bay Bridge debacle is yet another reminder that the time has long since come to establish an overhead bridge which would facilitate the movement of traffic between Hastings and Prince Edward counties and prevent the tie-ups caused at present.

Even without the hour-long wait motorists endured Sunday, the halting of traffic to permit boat traffic to pass is an anachronistic situation in an era of fast communications.

There are any number of reasons why such a situation should not be tolerated and every driver held up in this fashion could list them. Not least of them are the reasons of health; what if someone takes ill, suffers a heart attack or whatever?

And of course there are personal and business reasons. This sort of perennial traffic tie-up is something that cannot be ignored. It necessitated calling in provincial police from both Belleville and Picton and rerouting of cars through Trenton and Deseronto.

A new, overhead bridge is needed. Sunday's episode was the last straw.

Prince Charles

Prince Charles' get-together with a group of young Canadians dancing pachesi in Ottawa last night was another example of this young man's likeable ways. Some 80 guests were invited to the dinner-dance at Government House and there now are some happy young Canadian girls who, like the teenage squaredancers in Auckland, N.Z. recently, can boast of having had a dance with the heir to the Throne. It also presents Charles as a fresh and personable member of the Royal Family, one who may do much to hold the Commonwealth together in the days that lie ahead.

Some Civil Servants Make Double MPs Salary

$4 Million in 1950, Parliament Now Costs $25 Million

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa — Parliament costs an annual $25,000,000 and is going to cost a good deal more when MPs and Senators get the increase in pay and allowances that is all but inevitable.

Just 20 years ago it cost only $3,900,000.

But MPs and Senators were getting $8,000.

The Commons in those days sat only five or perhaps six months a year, and being an MP was still pretty much of a part-time job.

The Senate convened even more infrequently.

And together, the Commons spending of a national budget that, by today's standards would not meet the financial needs of one of the bigger provinces.

But Parliament is big business now, directing the nation's largest enterprise, the $13,000,000,000 federal government operation.

And being a Member of Parliament — mind you, a first class MP, dedicated both to the service of his local constituency, region, province and county is a busy man — is a big businesstype job with heavy responsibilities and pressures you would not believe.

He has now paid $12,000, plus a tax-free $8,000 expense allowance, together with some pretty rewarding fringe benefits.

He is asking for more.

The demand — and for a good many MPs, the actual need — will be difficult for the commission to deny.

In any rational determination, the commission likely is considering two key questions:

1. Is an MP's pay in line with the going rate of the competition in his quiet unrelished (field)?

2. Is it sufficient to allow him to discharge his multiple responsibilities to his constituency and obligations to his family without actual personal financial sacrifice?

Now, as to whether his pay is in line with the competition, these are some of the pertinent points:

a. Members of the provincial legislatures in Ontario and Quebec, who work a shorter session, have smaller constituencies and lesser responsibilities receive as much and sometimes more than a federal MP.

b. Some executives and special assistants, all departmental deputy ministers, and more than 600 senior civil servants are better paid, many of them getting double an MP's income.

Possible conclusion: an MP should be in a position of equality with those with whom he must deal daily. It could be difficult for him to conduct his business with deputies, assistant deputies, crown corporation executives, special cabinet advisers and an army senior civil servants who make much more than he — and know it.

Now, as to whether his pay is sufficient for him to discharge both his parliamentary and family responsibilities adequately without actual continuing personal financial loss, these are some of the points to be assessed:

a. The total $18,000 paid an MP comprises a basic $12,000 salary plus $6,000 in tax-free expense allowance, and he does have to meet some exceptional and quite extraordinary costs.

b. He must maintain a position of stature in his home riding at least equal to that he enjoyed or believes elsewhere by Parliament. An incautious few have burned their home bridges to become year-round Ottawa residents, but how this experiment is to work out remains uncertain.

c. If he has school - age children and hopes to enjoy some semblance of family life, he must establish a second residence in Ottawa. Or he is expected to live in a boarding house, hotel room or bachelor apartment, going home only on weekends!

d. If he is to keep in touch with his constituents, he must get around his riding pretty regularly. And while he gets free transportation to and from Ottawa, travelling around, his riding is at his own expense. There are a few MPs whose whole $6,000 expense allowance goes in constituency travel with the average leveling out at around $1,000. Even big city MPs must move around their ridings, even if it's only by bus.

e. An MP has to be elected. And this can cost money — personal, not party funds — as much, the record shows, as $120,000 and as little as $500. But those are the freaky extremes. Turn to the record again and find that few persons through a campaign for less than $5,000. There have been six elections in 10 years, four of them in the last eight.

f. An MP has no choice but to contribute to every worthy call and cause in his constituency. No he passes him by. His hospitality costs can be enormous. Constituents come to call on him in Ottawaand many must be lunched in the parliamentary restaurant. A bus or train or plane load with the touring school kids from back home can cost him $50 to feed even in the rock-bottom price parliamentary cafeteria.

There are many first class MPs who have these and more expenses, and need and deserve more money. There are a few second-raters, too.

They Seek Perfection

They enter as housewives, stenographers and students. But the young women graduates of Munich's most unique school come out as something more — perfect hostesses. The school is designed to train women for professional catering at congresses, exhibitions, aboard passenger ships and on sightseeing buses. They learn everything from languages to being perfect waitresses and even the basics of the history of art. The first rule taught is never to say "I don't know." During the 1972 Olympics in the German city some 1,200 hostesses will be on hand. (German Features picture)

Council's Rejection of Festival

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Your editorial "regarding the proposed Belleville Peace and Brotherhood of Man Festival injected sanity into an issue rapidly becoming clouded with emotional outbursts on the part of some of our more eccentric elements.

In voicing the festival, city council must have considered the disastrous consequences accompanying similarly innocuous-sounding gatherings on the North American continent.

A paucity of information surrounded an event alleged to have been in the discussion stage since April. No clear-cut program was announced. Only generalizations as "shocking" youth that there are more things in life than drugs, materialism," and an optimistic promise of "immense benefits" really emerged from all the ballyhoo. An odd name here and there was announced, coupled with suggestions of seminars, workshops, rock bands and exhibitions, but little or nothing was advanced to show how peace, or the brotherhood of man stood to benefit.

Not fully explained was how the Black Culture Workshop of Toronto chose Belleville for the dubious honor of hosting the so-called festival. Surely the Toronto area offered far more fertile grounds for such a proposed extravaganza than Belleville.

Even more difficult to understand was the association with peace of a West Indian steel band. Few students and staff of the Sir George Williams University might be inclined to be incredulous of such a suggestion in the light of the recent exposure they had in West Indian "culture". For that matter, so might the Canadian residents of Port-of-Spain, who saw Brotherhood Week in this country celebrated in Trinidad with the smashing of their property and threats in their life.

The effects on peace resulting from such a gathering would be nil. As history so frequently shows, peace is usually best maintained by having a bigger stick than the other fellow, and letting him know it will be used should the occasion arise.

I do not know of any instances where the peace of the world was preserved by long-haired youngsters cavorting around to rock music, indulging in drugs, or attending so-called "revivals".

Of course such things may never have happened if the festival had been given the go-ahead, but with the evidence we have before us, it was a breath of similar gatherings, city council took the only responsible action open to them. Any other decision would have been tantamount to legislating a disruption of the peace and tranquility of the community as a whole.

No one doubts the sincerity of those aldermen who voted in favor of the festival. In voicing or assuring to learn from Alderman Robin Jeffrey that "city parks and recreation representatives don't legislate through hysteria or fear, but from facts", I am sure that our loquacious lady alderman must be aware that many of these so-called peace gatherings end in anything but peace, frequently with violence, and often tragically in death. These are "facts".

Gathering of the Clans

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

May I have space in your paper to highly commend the Kinsmen for all their efforts for a wonderful afternoon entertainment Sunday.

It was an outstanding program of beautiful music and dancing which will be long remembered by all who attended the event I'm sure.

This is what is needed in Belleville, live entertainment and what better way of raising funds for charitable purposes than this method.

Let the Kinsmen Clubs plan such events for the Belleville and rural communities and I'm sure every one will back them up financially by their attendance.

NDP's MacDonald Quits Provincial Leadership

Ottawa Journal

The provincial New Democratic Party which he led for the past 17 years has never made an impact in the fiefdoms of Eastern Ontario; but Richard Bell, the former Carleton MP, echoed a common feeling in one campaign when he said: "We (the Conservatives) would be in trouble if Don MacDonald was Liberal leader."

When he was elected leader, the NDP was all but destroyed by a series of self-inflicted wounds and by the rise of Leslie Frost, a new Conservative premier.

MacDonald's tireless campaigning and enthusiasm has given the party a sound electoral foundation, but he does not have the charisma to make it acknowledged by some observers as the "unofficial" opposition and the most serious electoral threat to the conservative government.

But the New Democratic Party in Ontario is an uneasy coalition between an increasingly reactionary labor wing and an increasingly radical intellectual clique. MacDonald has been worn down playing buffer between them.

He says he is leaving now to avoid a divisive leadership campaign before the next crucial election campaign but his departure could well remove the last effective party's most appealing assets.

To win, the NDP must appeal to the great middle mass of Ontario voters and these traditionally prefer the devil we know to the one we don't.

The Rise and Fall of Indonesia's Dr. Sukarno

Christian Science Monitor

Dr. Sukarno, Indonesia's first president who passed away June 21, was one of the most dynamic and most remarkable of the leaders that have emerged since World War II.

He not only led Indonesia to independence. He cemented its unity, a greater task in a country of 116 million inhabitants living on 3,000 islands.

Dr. Sukarno won the revolution that ended Dutch colonial rule. But he lost the revolution. He was corrupted by his own sense of power and overwhelming ego. His was a tragedy.

He was the only man in modern history who managed to keep himself in power for more than two years without having the support of a political party of his own or control of the army. Throughout this time he kept a balance between the army on his right and the strong Communist party on his left.

In the end he leaned too far towards the Communists, and gave at least tacit approval to the abortive Communist putsch of Sep. 30, 1965, which was ruthlessly crushed by the army.

By this time Indonesia's economy was an a chaotic state. Dr. Sukarno had squandered the resources of foreign aid on prestige projects. He was leading his people down a path which they did not want to take. The man who had had such a tremendous gift for communicating with his people was no longer listening to them.

But his demotion was a gradual process. Step by step he was stripped of his titles, Prime Minister, President for life. He was placed under house arrest.

Dr. Sukarno had enormous leadership capacities. He devoted his life to building the Indonesian nation. At the height of his power his golden voice and warm personality kept the country together.

Despite his downfall he will be remembered by Indonesians as the George Washington of the part he played in founding the republic.

'Jesus Freaks' Making Scene At Hippie-haven at Berkeley

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — As they put it, they've been "turned on by Jesus." And things seem different. Most of them are hippies. Others are "straight" kids. In either case, they're making their presence felt around the University of California campus here.

They're called "Jesus Freaks," a term originally applied in derision, but which they gladly accept. After all, the term, "Christian" itself originally was used in pagan mockery of the early believers in Christ.

"Jesus is back!" said a tall, barefoot, long-haired lad, handing out evangelical tracts to passing students. "Take a trip with the Lord—it's the greatest."

Here and there about the campus, on class days and weekends, it's easy to spot these special kind of radicals in clusters of youths, "rapping" about Jesus in arguments with assorted New Left advocates.

Wherever the "Jesus Freaks" hold forth, there usually is a sizable crowd.

"One way! One way!" they signal about Christ, with a single finger held aloft, instead of the "V"-peace-victory sign.

Regularly, they also make forays into downtown San Francisco, displaying their signs, "Jesus Saves," and speaking on sidewalks outside the "skin" bars featuring nude dancers.

"I've been through grass, the heavyweight stuff, LSD and speed, and all the meditation-breathing bit, and it just freaked me out of my head," said one of them, a thin, bearded young man. "But Jesus is very true, very real. He's our thing."

Formally, the "Jesus Freaks" are known as the Christian World Liberation Front. They began appearing around Berkeley about a year ago, adding a new element to a campus of 28,000 students known for its turmoils and radical movements—Marxists, Maoists, Free-Speechers, war resisters.

The "Jesus Freaks" also are anti-Vietnam war and generally anti-establishment, even anti-church as far as the church institutions are concerned, claiming it has become stuffy, stiff and lost its sense of the "Spirit," the mysteries of joy.

The straight church is too uptight," said one young man in black pullover shirt, beads and striped pants. "But Jesus is a real revolutionary, a man of the people."

There are no regularly kept statistics on the "Jesus Freaks," but authorities say that 300 to 400 of them are active here, and the number grows with frequent converts, who are channelled into Bible study groups. Those on drugs also are given medical help.

Many of them have taken up a communal-style living, in imitation of early Christians, living in groups in houses scattered in residential areas with names such as House of Acts, Tree of Life, Fish House.

Some are disciplined communities including married couples; others are more casual, offering a young person a pad and food, along with Bible talk.

In Spain, a group of 130 priests have protested the sentencing of a fellow priest, Rev. Mariano Gamo, to three years in prison for subversion, after he carried out against social-economic deprivations of his parishioners.

In Burgos, Spain, several Basque priests have been imprisoned.

In the Philippines, the government has ordered an investigation of "religious personalities actively engaged in various efforts to promote restlessness and disorder."

TO BAN KISSING

CALCUTTA (AP) — Eastern India's West Bengal state announced it will ban kissing in films even if the central Indian government decides to allow it. Cinematic kissing "might cause great harm to society as it would act as a brain softener," West Bengal's education minister said.

Church Versus State Strife Looming on Two Continents

NEW YORK (AP) — Storms are brewing between church and state in several countries in South America and Africa. The sharpest, open conflict seems to be building up in white-run Rhodesia.

There, Protestant and Roman Catholic churchmen have asserted their defiance of a new land act dividing the country into black and white areas and prohibiting racial mixing in church worship or institutional staffs without special permits.

The church "cannot in conscience and will not in practice accept any limitation of our freedom to deal with all people irrespective of race," the Roman Catholic prelates have declared, calling the discrimination laws "contrary to Christian faith."

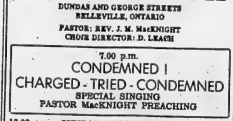
Anglican, Methodist and United churches subsequently took their stand with the Roman Catholics in a common front challenging the regime's segregation policies and fund cuts for mission schools for Africans.

The churches also said they will disobey a law requiring that they register as "voluntary organizations" and will close hospitals and mission schools rather than submit to the restrictions.

Strains between church and state also were intensifying in several South American countries, particularly in Brazil, on the eve of a scheduled global assembly there this summer of the Lutheran World Federation.

A German Lutheran committee, voicing dismay at reports of "tortures and other atrocities" abridging human rights under Brazil's military regime, have asked a review of the decision to hold the meeting there.

Brazilian churchmen themselves have run the government trouble with the government. Eleven priests are in prison on charges of aiding revolutionaries, and a bishop has been indicted on subversion charges after publicly complaining that a parishioner was tortured while in army custody.



In some other South American countries, including Paraguay and Colombia, there also have been rising tensions between churchmen and government.

The Paraguayan government some time ago shut down the Roman Catholic weekly, Comunidad. The only protests against alleged "persecution" of the church. Two militant priests were expelled. Archbishop

Interdenominational Services Arranged

For the second summer season, the congregation of St. John's Anglican Church, Cayne, is sponsoring open-air Sunday morning services at Bon Echo Provincial Park on Mazinaw Lake.

The interdenominational services, co-ordinated by Church Army Captain William Ranson, are attended by campers at Bon Echo, cottagers vacationers in the area, and many local families. American and Canadian clergymen and laymen from various Christian denominations will take part. Services this summer will be held each Sunday at 10.45 a.m. until August 30. They started June 28.

Churches Patterned After GM

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Frank C. Peters, president of Waterloo Lutheran University, believes church organizational structure is patterned too frequently after General Motors rather than the New Testament.

As one of a team of five, unpaid ministers at Kitchener Mennonite Brethren Church, he has helped decentralize the authority in his church.

Working under the theological concept of the priesthood of all believers, the Brethren Church has no appointed minister but rather uses a team system of five members including a farmer, a high school teacher and a university registrar.

Dr. Peters, an ordained Mennonite minister who co-ordinates the ministry team, says the concept of shared leadership or a plural ministry is a vital part of the Anabaptist and Mennonite tradition.

"Our fathers of Reformation time," he said in an interview, "were known as radical disciples."

"In this they resembled the early Christians who were accused of turning the world upside down. The early Mennonite Brethren were also known as radicals in their insistence on changes within the church structure."

In the church's "consensus meeting", the whole congregation engages in participatory democracy. Young and old are free to take part in the discussion which results in a declaration of congregational consensus or policy matters.

Dr. Peters doesn't suggest that the unpaid minister will be the rule for the future, but he is persuaded that more churches will be adopting similar approaches.

Churches in the future, he predicts, will be split between voluntary shared leadership and those that retain a more conventional organization.

Clubs End for Summer Months

For the last meeting of the 1969-70 season of the Women's Study Guild the members and guests enjoyed an "Evening with Stephen Leacock".

Since Leacock's sister, Daisy Burrowes lived on Dufferin Ave., in Belleville it was most appropriate that the meeting was held at the home of her former friends on Dufferin Ave., Mrs. George Wishart and Mrs. J. A. Buchanan.

Prior to the program, the annual business meeting was held with reports given. A letter was read from the adopted child, Marilyn Cohen at Marseille and a cheque was forwarded to Cansave for her support.

Officers for next year were elected as follows: vice-president, Mrs. George Wishart; secretary, Mrs. L. F. Reid; treasurer, Miss Olive Elson. Since no president was elected Mrs. Wishart consented to organize the committees for the 70-71 season and chair the September meeting. This will be held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds and Mrs. D. MacKinnon will be the guest speaker.

Mrs. Reynolds presented the devotional.

The two hostesses, Mrs. Wishart and Mrs. Buchanan were in charge of the program and had many personal recollections and anecdotes to relate. Miss Olive Elson acted as master of ceremonies and opened the program by explaining the Stephen Leacock Centennial arrangements and the ways in which the town of Orillia was honoring him. Fay Mowat, formerly of Belleville, was this year's winner of the Stephen Leacock memorial award for humor. She then spoke of the recently released book "The Man in the Panama Hat" written by Elizabeth Kimball, Stephen Leacock's niece and introduced a tableau of some of the events in his life enacted by Miss Helen Sulman.

Mrs. Buchanan gave a short account of his life and career. Sixty - one books on economy, history and politics as well as other subjects have been published and 36 books of humor. It was pointed out that the sarcasm and satire in his writings was never directed against people but against social issues and customs of his time.

Mrs. Wishart added more about his character, personality and family life. She said that his anecdotes produced laughter that unites, not divides and that his writings were anecdotes, not stories with plots. She read a brief illustrating her point.

Mrs. R. Roulet reviewed "Sunshine Sketches" written in 1912 and read excerpts from it. Miss Sulman brought the program to a close with a reading of one of Leacock's amusing stories. Mrs. K. Daley, president expressed the appreciation of the members and all the guests to those who presented the program.

BELLEVILLE ART ASSOCIATION

Last week the members of the Belleville Art Association, with their husbands and wives, concluded another season of art activities with a dinner in the banquet room of the Sun Luck Gardens.

The president, Oscar Bonis, presented the past-president, Bea Williamson, with a small gift from the club in appreciation of her contribution to the organization during her term of office.

The evening was rounded out with a short artistic program involving everyone, including the non-painting guests. Dorothy Brown illustrated a method of "light and environment" she had learned at a recent leadership training course at Queen's Park whereby two or more projectors can be used to create moving patterns of color in time to music.

Each person made a colored slide, then everyone participated in combining the slides in a project varied colorful designs on the wall.

The group will continue to meet in small painting groups during the summer months and renew their regular schedule in September.

WEDDING RING CLUB

The Wedding Ring Club of College Hill United Church held their final meeting of the year June 22 with a picnic at the club taking their wives to Lakeshore Lodge for a roast beef dinner. After dinner the meeting was held with Ron McDonald, the outgoing president thanking the executive for their wonderful support. Ron, Jean Campbell and Kay Dowling conducted the rest of the meeting. The new executive for the year was named as follows: presidents, John and Kay Dowling; vice-presidents, Bill and Louise Sallans; treasurer, Jack and Helen McLaren; secretary, Don and Muriel Dafoe; card convener, Tony and Vivian Lepore; social convener, Merrill and Eleanor Waitè and press reporter, Ida Dafoe.

John Dowling announced that Ron and Frayne McDonald were celebrating their 21st wedding anniversary and congratulations were offered. The president spoke of getting more members for next year and having a suggestion box for new ideas. The meeting closed with the friendship circle. On the return trip home in the bus, Bill Sallans played his accordion and a rousing sing-song was held.

Joint Ceremony Installs Officers

First Dairy Utensils Were Mainly of Wood

Cattle came to Canada with the first settlers at French Canada in the early 1600s. Milk and butter became important foods. Butter could be exchanged for goods and was a major source of income. By 1850 in a year then 10,000,000 pounds of homemade butter was being exported from Canada, which would indicate about every housewife had an interest in the butter industry.

The first dairy utensils were mainly of wood. Wooden pails for milk had one long slotted stave as a handle and shallow wooden tubs for setting out cream. Few of these survive. They were replaced by earthenware, which is much easier to clean, as soon as it became available.

Early churns were wooden and the simplest was the dash churn. In an effort to produce more butter, various mechanical churns were invented — rocker, swing square, and eventually the barrel churn. Many of these survive, as do pottery dash churns which continued to be made until World War II.

After churning, butter had to be worked. Working removes the moisture. This was done in a bowl with a paddle for small amounts, and on a V-shaped table with a rotating notched rolling pin for large amounts. Most old butter bowls, particularly birch, have a notch or crack at the edge, which is intentional and not caused by age. It was used to drain off excess water or the separating curds and whey. The notch wal cut by a bow string and is frequently very irregular.

Butter pats and molds appeared quite early as an individual mark of the maker. These, along with other pieces made of hard wood, usually maple sometimes butternut. The square, undecorated, one-pound molds continue to be made.

Ground wooden paddles, known as Scotch hands, were also used in working butter before any kind of butter bulk. They are not as expensive as molds, usually about $4 a pair. Molds bring $10 or more, depending on design. Wooden paddles are useful as salad servers and hand-gouged paddles like those shown sell for as much as $20 each. Part bowls sell for high prices; good examples go for close to $100

Nuns' Habits Inspire Creation Of the "At Home" Look for Men

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Louis Beral's interest in nuns' habits has led him to create an at-home for men.

He calls it a Kun Robe because it is trimmed with applique work done specially for him by the Kuna Indians of Panama's San Blas Islands.

Commissioned last year to create a new habit for the nursing Sisters of St. Joseph at Hotel Dieu hospital here, he studied the many sizes and styles of habit they wear he had to design one garment. The habit's clear, simple, unadorned and comfortable lines had to be suited to every female figure type and size.

After much experimenting, the designer found himself increasingly excited with his work. The new engrossing line he was developing gave a new way out of the problem of non-art, non-music, non-culture and non-fashion."

He feels now he has the silhouette that will move easily into the fashion of the next 20 years. Already it's the base of most of his designs.

In 20 years, there will be no such thing as fashion, says Beral, who depends on fashion for his livelihood.

"We'll all wear uniforms similar to the del, a Mongol garment worn by both sexes," he says.

Beral feels the craftsman will come into his own in this next fashion era. The long silhouette will be a foundation for good accessories, he says.

"There will not be new things every second week, as we have been lately. People will do as they please in fashion, but in much better taste.

"They will return to good conversation and a better communication with each other."

The designer feels people will become more interested in their fellow men as their preoccupation with such things as fashion lessens. He says there will be a truer meaning of living together.

As this deeper living takes hold, men and women will gradually begin to dress alike and the long skirt will be the length for both sexes, he says.

With this feeling of uniform, or like - per - most, Beral came up with his latest garments recently—at-home robes for men. He trimmed the standup collar and pockets with applique work in bright colors. He even made a long velvet one to wear to the opening of the Show Festival Theatre at Port Dalhousie on the Lake in June.

To make sure they would really go down with men, he tried them out on professional men, including the crown attorney in St. Catharines. All say they are comfortable and practical.

Beral has been consistently ahead of his time in the fashion field, even when showing with the Association of Canadian Couturiers. Ten years ago he had miniskirts on his drawing board—when they were ridiculed. He designed maxi-coats for day wear years before women started wearing them.

Six and a half years ago he stressed hostess gowns and lounge pyjamas, four years before they caught on in a big way.

If Beral's past feeling for trends is any criterion, by 1980 all men and women will look just like "people." And Beral will be just one more designer out of a job.

Points for Parents

Mother: "Laura is such a baby about the water. I know she'll have fun once she gets over her fear. I'll take her in even if she screams and she'll soon see it's fun."

Mother: "Laura enjoys playing in the sand at the edge of the lake. She dabbles her feet in the water once in awhile, but will have to get used to it before she is ready to go in, even if I'm carrying her."

LODGING AND SHELTER
(Conclusion)

"From frequenting the world a wonderful clarity of human judgment is acquired." — Michel de Montaigne, (1533-1592).

Speaking of inns, as we did last week, we asked Miss Laura Riggs, 21 Queen Street, (who with others in a party from Belleville and elsewhere, recently toured the Orient,) to describe for our readers a Japanese inn or ryokan.

Upon consenting to do so, Miss Riggs says:

"First, may I say, the Japanese Hotel Association has set aside a major number of their western-style rooms for the comfort of Expo 70 visitors from overseas. Travel western style in Japan is enjoyable.

"However most visitors party, everyone was keen to look forward to spending at least one night at a Japanese inn, as our party did at Hakone, an island place about a day's bus ride from Tokyo.

"Our ryokan (pronounced ree-ok-an) named the Hotel Komeiden held a quiet beauty situated as all such inns are by a garden with a waterfall, a scene all rooms have by means of dividing panelslides.

"Sliding panels also divide the private bath which consists of a room with a tap where one washes and rinses the body before entering a deep sunken tub filled with hot water in which one luxuriates and relaxes. Shelves, not books, hold towels and folded kimonos.

"The room is furnished with a table and two flat - backed, near - legless chairs. On a shelf are a pair of straw-woven slippers and two kimonos one for each guest; one of silk, for day and one of cotton for sleeping.

"The beds, with snowy-white sheets are spread at night of eiderdown for cool nights, are rolled up and laid on shelves during the day. At the proper time in the evening, they are taken down and unrolled on the sweet-smelling tatami (straw padded floor coverings) which, by the way, one never walks with shoes.

"To accommodate our 44 countries. Funds are raised by the sale of "disaster boxes" used by each family, with twice yearly services — Thanksgiving and Easter; also through a prayer and fasting breakfast. Money is saved through abstaining from eating, and this resulted in raising over a million dollars last year.

Almost 500 radio stations carry the Spanish broadcasts alone, which are supported entirely by the Nazarene World Mission Department. Meetings are held where structures from various countries are worn, or where various menus are eaten, encouraging the members to "tell where they ate". The men take an active part in the monthly missionary meeting.

Mrs. Hazel Tummon thanked Mrs. Thomas for her interesting and informative program.

Past president, Nora Elliot chaired the business meeting that followed, and informed the society that she is unable to accept the president's chair this season. Also the delegate, Mrs. Hazel Blakely, chosen to attend the conference, is unable to fulfill her duties owing to ill health at this time, and Mrs. Votsary, the alternate delegate has agreed to take her place.

Mrs. Pamela Rawlings closed with prayer, and the meeting adjourned.

WESLEYAN METHODIST WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The June meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist Women's Missionary Society was held in the home of Mrs. Laurie Elliott, Corbyville, on Thursday, June 18 with 20 members and eight visitors present.

A favorite chorus sing-song was enjoyed and Mrs. Doris Cummings gave the devotions on the subject, "Expectation" which means "pre-conceived judgment or leaning toward one side of a question, without having just grounds or being sufficient knowledge is obtained". She also quoted a writer who said "Ignorance is the mother of prejudice and the antidote — God's love in us, and reaching through us. Mrs. Alberta Metz Votsary then sang a hymn.

Prayer time was held with Mrs. Joyce Conroy, Mrs. Hazel Tummon and Mrs. Mildred Shetler leading.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Betty Thomas, from the Trenton Church of the Nazarene gave an enlightening resume of the missionary program of the denomination. Began in 1908, a missionary emphasis was written into the constitution from the beginning with a formal society as such organized in 1918. Today they have 534 missionaries, serving

Indian Youth Desire Education

By DORIS CLARK

The question is often asked, "Is the prevalence of illiteracy in India due to a lack of interest or a lack of opportunity?" Read the following story:

The poor people of an Indian village heard that a school and teacher had been provided for a neighboring village. They applied for equal treatment but were turned down because of a lack of funds. They built a mud-walled school themselves. They then applied for a teacher which was supplied by the Bikaner Adult Education Association, which we support.

This school is now in operation every night and has an enrolment of 25 pupils, five to ten years of age. The young people must attend school in the evening because they work in the daytime minding young children, gathering wood, making bricks in order to help support the family.

There are 10 such evening schools giving educational opportunities to upwards of 400 young people. — World Literacy of Canada.

Dear Doris; Can you tell me what the old, fat, but modest, female is supposed to wear? Don't the designers and the store buyers have any fashions in mind but the young, slim and sophisticated? Must we resort to sacks of sacks?

There is an eager, to - buy population of old women just waiting for some bright guys to produce pretty clothes; women who have the money to buy them but who, because of advanced years and their accompanying physical debilities, cannot accept these less dresses, sheaths or "skimmers." — Nonna.

We need modernized sarongs, sorlee lisse and sleeves to cover up jelly - like arm sagging flesh. We need dresses that will give some grace to (often unavoidable) pot bellies and rear - end spread — not accentuate them. We just want pretty clothes that don't make us look like old fools. The same goes for nightwear.

Do we have to look ridiculous in "clothes for the Mother Hubbards!" The latter are so unflattering that we might be accused of trying to placate St. Peter at the pearly gates. I protest. — Norma, M.

Dear Norma: Couldn't agree more. One fashion spot, I know has a sales clerk who looks the mature woman up and down, shakes her head and says, "Too young!" But we couldn't fit you. Our sizes only go up to 11."

Dear Doris: Why do 250 or more wedding guests, already seated for supper, rise to say Grace, when in our own homes we always remain seated? Which is proper?

I attend a lot of receptions and when there are 250 chairs are pushed back what a noise! — A Curious Cranley Gal.

Dear Gal: It seems that many long years ago we all stood to ask the blessing on our food, whether at home or out of it. But alas! We have become lax; in many homes we don't address the Almighty at all.

Perhaps this is why guests tend to seat themselves at a reception, rather than standing behind their chairs. I guess even the scraping sounds of chairs can be deafening.

(Talking it over helps. Write to Doris for help with your dilemma, care of this newspaper.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Speeded-Up Potato Salad

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am begging a "recipe" again. I hope you have something similar—it's the potato salad they use in "cafes" or in the "department eating centres" like . . . . . etc. It's like mashed potatoes with a fleck of carrot, celery, onion, (I think) it's sure delicious. It's a change from what I always made like cutting the cold potatoes into chunks, with onion, hard-boiled eggs, etc. This may be put through the fine blade of the meat grinder maybe? It has me puzzled as to the flavor. It was delicious anyway. Maybe you have an idea of what I am looking for, as you always help so well. Sometimes anyone asks your help.—Mrs. Pearl W.

ANSWER: Thank you. I will have to test your mashed potato salad after I find and buy and taste it but I will try to produce a reasonable facsimile about immediately. The idea of mashed potatoes in a salad does not appeal.

Meanwhile I will give you a speeded-up version that I made for a cookout we had this week.

SPEEDED-UP POTATO SALAD (Serves 8-10)

1 cup fresh frozen mixed vegetables cooked, drained and chilled
3 green onion, chopped, including green top
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. MSG
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing (or more)

Scrub and cook five or six large potatoes with their skins on until barely tender. Drain, chill and peel. Cut into ¼" cubes. Measure. Cook the 1 cup fresh frozen mixed vegetables about 2 min. Drain and chill. Add to prepared potatoes along with onion, salt and MSG and carefully stir in the mayonnaise until all potatoes are coated. Chill. Sprinkle top with chopped parsley.

NOTE: You will notice that this potato salad does not call for hard-cooked eggs and that the fresh frozen vegetables speed up the preparation time considerably. I have had many comments from readers about the time-consuming steps in making potato salad so I think this will be a compromise for you Mrs. Pearl W. However you have a nice recipe for Mashed Potato Salad for I am going to work on it.

Teener Wants Mom To Be More Strict

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This may be the craziest letter you've ever received. How can I get my mother to be more strict? I'm 17, a high school senior, and on the lazy side. Last term Mom let me sleep too late several mornings then she drove me to school or sent me in a taxi. I'm ashamed of myself. She should have made me walk.

I can talk Mom into anything. I missed a lot of school for phony reasons. She should have made me go. When I see my friends' mothers give them orders, I get jealous. What can I do about this problem? — PLAIN MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE: I could write a book on your problem — and one day I might. The essence is as follows: No motivation, no initiative, no sense of responsibility. You have been incapacitated by an overcaring mother who thought she was doing you a favor by making life easy and convenient.

It's hard to grow up when you don't have to — and this is what's wrong with too many kids today. They are immature, irresponsible, and ill-equipped to face life because they had moms like yours and dads who were too busy to notice. At least you recognize the problem and that's an important step in the right direction. I'm afraid you're going to have to solve it yourself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the wife who complained because her husband kept inviting the poker club to their house brought back memories. My husband was another generous guy who was forever volunteering our home for committee meetings. Some weeks 4 and 5 people here four evenings in a row. This meant cleaning the place from top to bottom, baking cakes, pies, cookies, making sandwiches, coffee, buying candy, cigarettes, cigars, soft drinks — the whole bit. It took a lot of time and energy, not to mention the dent it made in my grocery budget.

One day I told Tom I had a meeting of my own and everything was in the fridge so he could help himself.

I returned home to find him madder than a wet hen. When I asked, "How was the committee meeting, dear?" He replied, "Terrible! I don't know what went on I was so busy waiting on people all night!" I replied, "Oh, I'm sorry, honey. It's a lot of work, isn't it?" He got the point and it made a lasting impression because we've had very few meetings at our house since then.

If you think my experience will help the wife of some other overly generous husband, please print this letter. — EX-HOSTESS.

DEAR EX: Here 'tis. And thanks for the suggestion. It might not help, but it sure as heck can't hurt.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm mad enough to chew nails. In the past six weeks, I've seen four TV shows revolving around childless couples. The actors (supposedly doctors or other well educated people) made the statement, "To adopt a child just isn't the same as having your own."

I'd like to say a couple of things to the idiots who call themselves TV script writers. We adopted a little boy and later I gave birth to another boy. There is absolutely no difference in my feelings. My second thought is neatly embodied in this little poem: "Not flesh of my flesh, nor bone of my bone, But still miraculously my own. Never forget, for a single minute: You didn't grow under my heart, but in it." — LUCKY MOTHER.

DEAR LUCKY: Your children are lucky, too. Thanks for writing.

A Real Movie

Canadian Film Praised

TORONTO (CP) — A British-based movie Canadian movie about two young men who drift to Montreal and participate in the Montreal Expo has opened to lavish critical acclaim.

Goin' Down the Road was made by Don Shebib, 33, a Toronto director who began with a $19,000 grant from the Canadian Film Development Corp. and "Expo fever."

When he finished he had the story of Pete and Joey, two young men who grow up in the Maritimes, experience the Scotia and decide to head for the easy money they believe awaits them in Toronto.

It opened Thursday night in Toronto and prompted critic Clyde Gilmour of The Telegram to call it a "human tale."

It is not known if the admirable film, he said in his review, "certainly one of the best ever made in this country."

Mr. Gilmour praised writer Donald Brittain and "great credit for the unconscious absurdity that often underlies colloquial speech" and director Shebib for lampooning the "pay-later school of hotshot prosperity without laying on the satire too heavily."

Comparing the film with Easy Rider and Midnight Cowboy, Mr. Rubes said Goin' Down the Road "rolls beneath the fashionable plane of both movies" and, although perhaps less spectacular, it is "really very honest and credible."

He said it "cost a mere fraction of any contemporary, not an art film, not an embarrassing piece of double-bill fodder, but a real movie."

"And best of all, the fact that it is Canadian is almost irrelevant; it is an excellent picture by any standard."

They take jobs as unskilled workers in a cardboard-bottling plant, drink beer after hours and vandalize at girls in miniskirts.

Pete, played by Doug McGrath, a former Nova Scotian, is aggressive and touchy and finds it difficult to make friends. He takes a gruesome view of his abilities and believes he has a high destiny.

Joey, played by Paul Bradley of Toronto, believes he is born to live a second-rate life and is willing to settle for little. He believes that sooner or later he will find a girl and settle down to family life.

Almost overnight they are enticed into doing by easy-finance schemes. These are forms of opulence colleagues when layoffs at the bottling plant put them out of jobs.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Four Seek Saskatchewan NDP Role

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan New Democratic Party ends its annual convention today by choosing a successor to retiring leader Woodrow Lloyd.

The four leadership candidates attended a beer pit session Friday night during which 800 delegates badgered them with policy questions.

The two-hour session was the climax of five days of televised, but did not generate any heated arguments.

The candidates are: George Taylor, 54, a Saskatoon lawyer and alderman; Allan Blakeney, 44, of Regina, deputy provincial leader and national NDP president; Roy Romanow, 32, MLA and Saskatoon lawyer and Don Mitchell, 36, of Moose Jaw, a political science teaching assistant at the University of Saskatoon.

A new, invigorated variety of socialism is supposed to be the main thrust of the candidates' remarks, particularly Mr. Mitchell's.

Mr. Taylor said the party must "rededicate itself to the principles of socialism" and remain a people's movement.

Mr. Romanow said the party must adopt a new sense of purpose to build democratic socialism.

Mr. Blakeney, believed to hold a slight edge in the leadership race, said people must be convinced the NDP wants and is committed to social change and has the will, ability and the know-how to do the job.

At one point during the question period, a young woman asked the candidates to comment on the provision of communications chapters in the control information and perform abortions.

She specifically asked Mr. Blakeney to explain his "outrageous exploitation of women" at the convention—apparently a reference to distribution of Blakeney campaign buttons and literature by several young high school girls, attired in green mini-dresses.

He said he spent 15 minutes talking to the girls what he wanted of them and "two hours replying to their questions about what I had in mind for Saskatchewan." He said their questions were "searching" ones.

Examination Due For Quiet Child

Within weeks on a high protein diet, low in carbohydrates, the thyroid extract pills, I felt like I were crazy. I have no blurred vision. I can be with people and enjoy living again. I have been helped so very much. I hope this letter helps others, too. — Mrs. W.

Comment: I believe that so many people are thinking that the designation "you're neurotic" without at least having checkups on blood sugar and thyroid gland. Findings may be normal. But you can't be sure until we take the tests, can we?

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I suffer from many tiny veins on my legs. Also behind my knees. Can they be due to hardening of the arteries? — Mrs. R.

Comment: Arteriosclerosis doesn't cause these "spider veins." What to do? Injections rarely help if the veins are tiny. Post masks sure that you do not wear any tightly constricting girdles or garter belts which tend to form varicose veins. Elevate your legs frequently.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is a cerebral aneurysm? Can it be detected in advance? — Mr. R.

Comment: It is a weakening in the wall of an artery causing it to balloon out. In some rare cases patients are born with such aneurysms (congenital). In others, they are caused by diseases such as atherosclerosis, etc.

By special injection methods and X rays they may sometimes be detected in advance — but such tests are not performed routinely. Only when the patient presents suspicious symptoms which your doctor feels require investigation.

For Mrs. J. Some people have one mild attack of hives and never have another. Better not borrow trouble.

Portugal Upset With Vatican

ROME (AP) — Portugal's ambassador to the Vatican, called home in a sudden diplomatic bustup between his country and the Holy See, flew to Lisbon today but predicted that he would return.

Ambassador Eduardo Brazao sought to dampen speculation that Lisbon may break diplomatic relations with the Vatican. Asked before he boarded his plane whether he would be back in Rome, he said: "I hope so. I am almost sure of it."

He said his recall was "a normal call for consultations in what for us is a very unpleasant matter."

But Brazao made no attempt to hide Portugal's irritation over an audience granted by Pope Paul last Wednesday to rebel leaders from Portugal's three African territories.

The brief audience touched off the most serious crisis between the Vatican and a Roman Catholic country in more than a century. Portugal delivered a formal protest to the Vatican and then recalled Brazao.

In Lisbon, Brazao's recall caught most diplomatic observers by surprise. And most citizens of the predominantly Roman Catholic country didn't even know about it because of a strict censorship ban imposed on the news by the government.

Government officials acknowledged that Brazao had been summoned to Lisbon, but gave short of breaking diplomatic relations. But they refused to speak for publication.

"The ambassador is on his way back to Lisbon but there will be no communique on this matter," a foreign ministry spokesman said.

The three rebel leaders who met with Pope Paul are Marcelino dos Santos, head of the Mozambique Liberation Movement Frelimo; Amilcar Cabral, leader of PAIGC, the African party seeking independence for Portuguese Guinea and Cape Verde; and Agostinho Neto of MPLA, the Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

The pontiff met with them Wednesday while they were in Rome to attend a conference on "solidarity with the people of the Portuguese colonies" sponsored by her-wing organizations.

Msgr. Giuseppe Maria Sensi, the papal nuncio to Portugal—the Vatican's ambassador—was unavailable for comment. One of his aides denied reports that he was about to leave for consultations at the Vatican.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

For many years low-functioning thyroid gland (lazy thyroid) was overlooked by many physicians. Those tired, nervous patients were labeled as neurotics. I doubt that any doctor now foregoes a PBI test to establish conclusive examination when suspicious that the "neurotic" may have thyroidal cause for his symptoms.

Likewise, for too many years, we disregarded the possibility that a weak nervous patient might be helped by hypoglycemia (hypercanalism). Now, doctors are becoming more and more aware of the possibility. They are ordering blood sugar curves on these patients. I have written many columns on this important subject. The following letter is in reply to one of these.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm a victim of low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). Other doctors always pushed it off as nervous. They called me a neurotic. Some gave me tranquilizers, which didn't help. This went on for three years.

Finally, I went to the doctor who delivered my children. He sent me for an eye examination as I had blurred vision. I also had pain in my temple and back. Nervousness, creepy feeling from temple to forehead.

My heart palpitated. I couldn't sleep. I was always tired.

I became worse in a crowded store and around people at parties. I thought everyone knew that something was wrong with me. I couldn't stand noise, and as Mrs. C. said in her letter to you, I also craved sweets all the time.

The eye doctor sent me for a five - hour glucose tolerance test and PBI. Not only did I have hypoglycemia; my thyroid was lazy.

Pit Stop

This was one of the slower scenes around the Belleville Fairgrounds track Friday night as drivers Bob Swaddling and Yvon Duhamel discuss strategy before time trials at the third annual Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Motorcycle Races. Swaddling won his class making his first appearance in expert ranks while Duhamel — five-time national dirt-track champion — had to settle for a second-place finish.

Fraser Second Fiddle Too Long to Be Slighted

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

Hamilton's "Moe" Fraser has been playing second and third fiddle to motorcycle racing's big names for a long time, and he wasn't about to let anyone slight a win over five — time Canadian dirt-track champion Yvon Duhamel.

Fraser pulled the upset in the finale of last night's third annual Muscular Dystrophy Benefit races as he posed the night - entry expert 750 CC class four miles around the Fairgrounds oval in a blistering three minutes and 10 seconds.

"Is that right, Well, that's might nice of him" Fraser snapped after hearing that Duhamel, himself the last on one of his rare ones in Canadian racing — on fellows of his favor — can still drive to perform one simple task before the night - lap final, namely to turn on his bike.

Duhamel, riding a sleek Jawa speedway bike in the new 750 CC expert competition, got bested by Fraser on the very first turn of the third and final heat after he had breezed to wins in the preliminaries.

Fraser were all listed as probable starters in what could be the most exciting dirt track race on a Canadian Motorcycle Association track at the August 30 Kellville Nationals.

Fraser nearly swept both expert events, but literally didn't have enough horsehoses going for him in the 250 CC competition.

His Spanish-built Bultaco seized on the first corner of the expert 250 final after he had breezed to wins in the two preliminary heats, fronting the field on every lap.

Twenty-year-old Bob Swaddling, making his first appearance in expert ranks, wasn't pressed too much by Hamilton brothers Jim and Bob Kelly and took up where Fraser left off.

The diminutive Kingsville Yamaha rider had been Fraser's only threat, running second in both the first two heats. He had one explanation for his instant expert success — "I found a horseshoe on the track when I was walking around it this afternoon," smiled Swaddling. "I'm just glad I picked it up."

The race program — already postponed once from Wednesday because of rain — was completed barely 30 minutes before a forecast cloudburst made the scene.

And after thinking the postponement could cost them any chance of making a sizeable contribution to the Muscular Dystrophy campaign, the Belleville Pacesetters Association — thanks to some 3,000 spectators — raised more than $900 for their primary charitable project.

Recreation Department Hub

Not Much Pay in Helping Minor Sports

By RANDY DERRY
Staff Sportswriter

One would think the running of such a diversified and elaborate organization as is the Belleville Recreation Department must involve the hiring of vast numbers of people skilled in varying aspects of the social structure comprising the work of the department. Surely high wages are freely paid as the different phases in the program, ranging from square dancing to minor lacrosse, can be run smoothly and professionally.?

And wouldn't the time involved in running these programs amount to at least a forty - hour work week making the jobs worth every penny of the huge pay cheques? It all seems reasonable enough, but Belleville's Recreation Department offers entertainment and recreation to the entire district operating on a 70 per cent voluntary basis.

"Volunteers are the backbone of this operation and without them we just couldn't operate," says assistant Recreation director Cliff Belch.

"Minor sports is probably one of the biggest programs in our organization and we must have at least 500 volunteers without whom the sports program couldn't possibly exist." adds Belch.

The volunteers who work eight hours a day at their own job also give up two or three hours every night so as to insure the smooth running of their own particular phase in the department. Volunteers could donate their time as umpires, coaches, drivers and league executives, to keep hundreds of young and old alike busy and entertained.

Some even take on two or three jobs a year, coaching hockey in the winter and baseball in the summer, with self-satisfaction their only return.

The sports - minded volunteers are kept busy running the ten various activities in the sports field including baseball, girls and boys softball, soccer, hockey, lacrosse, and tennis. Recent additions to the program such as soccer and lacrosse have increased the volunteer requirement and future needs will further increase the demand.

Not limited to sports the Recreation department's volunteer ranks for other programs revel in the high hundreds to cover such activities as yoga, or one of more than 70 member organizations like the Quinte Arts Council.

"Truthfully without volunteers we would have to pay people to run the various programs and we just don't have the budget to do that" said Belch, "without volunteers, this organization is dead."

Sometimes golfers are so intent on keeping the head down and staring at the ball during the swing that they inadvertently restrict the swing. This happens when the chin is "buried" in the chest at address and left there during the swing. The left shoulder may strike your chin on the backswing, which would upset your rhythm.

At address, stick your chin out a little to avoid this problem. This will clear a path for your shoulders as they turn. It also helps you keep your back relatively straight. What's a golfer buchos over, he can't swing freely.

Frosty Friday Victory Gives Posties Fifth Spot

The Post Office made good use of a rare Friday night game as they whipped Deloro Smeltie 17-3 and jumped into fifth position in the Industrial Softball League standings.

Paul Williams picked up the victory for the Posties, firing nine-hit ball and fanning eight while walking three Smelter batters.

Shaw Perfecting Backhand While Making Local Net Name

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

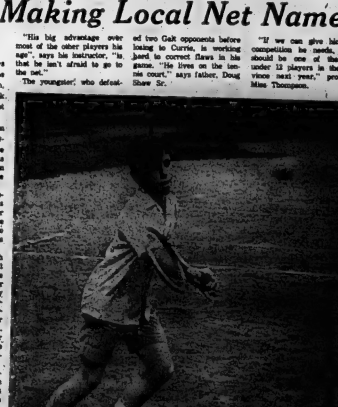
Doug Shaw, who plies his winter sports talents with the Towers Novice hockey team, is working seven days a week at developing a backhand shot worthy of Rocket Richard.

Opposing netminders can breathe a sigh of relief, however, as Shaw's practising is aimed at tennis opponents across Ontario, rather than the hapless contestants of the enemy ice hockey nets.

The 11 - year - old net prodigy made the quarter finals of the Ontario Closed "under 12" championships before bowing in straight sets to Jim Currie of Agincourt this week.

"Doug has at least as much ability of any of the boys that I have coached in the 12 division." claims instructor Ann Thompson. "The only thing he lacks is experience and we're trying to arrange a number of summer competitions to help him. We'd like to find a sponsor for tennis to help with the costs of allowing the youngsters to compete."

After only two years of tennis competition, the Queen Victoria School student has displayed enough potential to rank among the top age-group players in the province, despite an announced preference for hockey. Among his other athletic preferences are soccer and baseball.



Shaw was the only member of the Quinte Tennis Club team to advance as far as the quarter - finals, as Rob Woodley, John Loder and Allan Bellamy were all eliminated in competition.

"I think the toughest part of tennis to learn is the backhand", says Doug. "They all game and my serve are pretty good now, but I still have some trouble with the backhand."

"His big advantage over most of the other players his age", says his instructor, "is that he isn't afraid to go to the net."

The youngster, who defeated two Galt opponents before losing to Currie, is working hard to correct flaws in his backhand. He lives on the tennis court," says father, Doug Shaw Sr.

"If we can give him the competition he needs, Doug should be one of the top, under 12 players in the province next year," promised Miss Thompson.

Smashing

Young Doug Shaw has a lot of tennis form for an 11-year-old. The Quinte Tennis Club member won his district age-class title and went all the way to the provincial quarter-finals before being eliminated this week in Toronto.

Second Straight 68

Unknown Stone Enjoys One-stroke Edge

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bob Stone, a 45-year-old Kenora City native, emerged from obscurity to edge the Professional Golfers' Association tour with a one-stroke lead going into today's third round of the Canadian open championship.

Stone calmly overcame heat and humidity on the 7,168-yard, par 72 London Hunt and Country Club course to collect his second four-under par 68 and a 138 total.

Stone and Wall were among the late finishers in the field of 144 professionals and amateurs entered in the $125,000 tournament. The winner receives $25,000 in Canadian funds.

Rodriguez scored a 67—the best round of the day—to go with his opening 73 and a 139 total.

One stroke back are the leading Canadian amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., who scored an eagle-three on the par-five 13th, and professional Al Balding of Toronto, who was highly critical of the severe change in pin placements in the huge greens.

Stone, who earlier won the satellite division of the Citrus Open and who has collected only $14,336 on the pro tour so far this year, agreed with Balding's assessment of the pin placements.

"The pins were a little more difficult to hit today but I still seemed to be getting closer to them which made putting that much easier."

Stone, on the tour only three years, complained about the 82-degree temperature and intense humidity, but the uncomfortable atmosphere didn't prevent him from making birdies on the second, 4th, 10th, 11th and 13th holes.

He spoiled his five-under when he went one over on the 18th hole.

"I dropped it down over the cliff there and had to chip back up through the trees and then I two-putted."

Wall also agreed with Balding that the pin placements should not have been changed as much from where they were the first day.

"Mind you, I think we expected them to stick the pins off in those corners, but we didn't expect them to do it today."

Balding had four birdies but emerged from the round only one under par after going one over on three holes.

"I think I played it pretty steady game," the Toronto pro said, "but it was damned hot out there.

"And I really think the difference in pin placements between yesterday and today was too severe.

"Today the placements were 100 times tougher—well, at least 98; times tougher—than yesterday. And being in the afternoon round the greens were a little hard."

An seven 70 players, including three of the four Canadian amateurs entered, made the cut at 147.

First-round leader Gibby Gilbert, who had a 66 Thursday, blew to a 77 but still made the cut with a 145 total.

Gary Pitchford of Toronto, the leading Canadian after the first round with a 67, dropped to an 83 and failed to make the final two rounds.

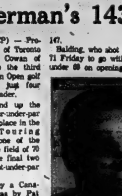
Other Canadians who qualified for the last 36 holes today and Sunday were George Knudson of Toronto with a 146, Jack Bissegger of Ste. Julie, Que., 142;

Bowerman's 143 Well Under Open Cut

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Professional Al Balding of Toronto and amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener went into the third round of the Canadian Open championship today just four strokes behind the leader.

Both golfers wound up the first 36 holes at four-under-par 140, tied for seventh place in the 72-hole tournament. Touring professional Bob Stone of the United States led the field of 75 that qualified for the final two rounds with an eight-under-par 138.

The last victory by a Canadian in the Open was by Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon in 1954.



A total of eight Canadians, including amateur Lee Weslock of Burlington, Ont., shot 147 or better to qualify for the final two rounds.

The list included touring professional George Knudson of Toronto, Jack Bissegger of Ste. Julie, Que., Weslock, Gary Bowerman of Toronto and Belleville, and Adrian Bigras of Rosemere, Que.

Knudson qualified with a two-under 142, while the other four finished at 143.

Wayne McDonald of Brampton, one of the four amateurs who qualified for the Open, also made the cut with a three-over 147.

Balding, who shot a one-under 71 Friday to go with his threecised the 7,168-yard London Hunt Club layout.

GARY BOWERMAN

He said the pin placements, changed each night, were "at least 100 per cent more difficult than on Thursday."

Cowan, after shooting a two-under-par 70 on the opening day, duplicated the round in Friday's test.

Cowan, of Kitchener, smashed his nine iron on the par-4 ninth hole while coming out of the rough beside a tree.

"It was right up against the trunk and I knew I had to use an iron to get out," he said. "I decided to use a nine because I had another nine iron in my car.

"I tried to let the handle go as soon as I hit the ball to make it save it, but it just broke in my hand."

The shot was good enough to save par, although he was forced to finish the round without a nine iron. Tournament rules specify that clubs cannot be replaced during a round, but Cowan can use the other nine iron in today's third round.

He also scored an eagle-three on the 13th hole, sinking his 35-foot shot from the fringe of the green by dragging a seven iron across the ball.

He said he hit 15 of the 18 greens in regulation, but wished the rest of his putts would drop.

"I was almost always within birdie range, but they wouldn't drop in," he said.

Conditions to Worsen

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A Professional Golfers' Association official Friday called the layout for the Canadian open golf championship and said players can expect conditions to worsen before they are finished.

The London Hunt and Country Club's tree-lined fairways and greens, designed by Tom Jones, internationally-known golf course architect, came under criticism earlier in the week by Tommy Aaron, the 1969 champion.

Brock, Allen Fatal

MONTREAL (CP) — Lou Brock's three-run homer in the second inning and a two-run blast by Richie Allen in the seventh powered St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-7 victory over Montreal Friday night that ended the Expos' winning string at five games.

Brock's fifth homer of the year climaxed a five-run explosion that sent the Cardinals ahead 6-1.

Gary Sutherland and Bob Bailey each drove in a pair of Montreal runs in the sixth, cutting the margin to 7-5, but Allen provided the clubbing in the seventh with his 22nd homer following a double by Joe Hague.

Montreal rebounded with two more runs in the eighth on double by Coco Laboy and Sutherland and an RBI single by pinch-hitter Ron Brand before reliever Alan Hrabosky ended the threat, preserving Chuck Taylor's third victory against five losses.

Joe Torre's double, an error by shortstop Bobby Wine and a walk filled the bases in the second before Taylor lined a two-run single and Brock unloaded against Expo starter Bill Stoneman.

Home Runs Rock NL Parks

Twenty-six home runs rocketed out of National Baseball League parks Friday with Atlanta Braves Mike Lum accounting for three in one game as the Braves rolled to an 8-1, 8-4 doubleheader sweep over San Diego Padres.

Lum drove in five runs with his second, third and fourth homers of the season plus a base-loaded walk.

His teammates socked four more homers, Rico Carty connecting in each game, and Sonny Jackson hit five in the twin bill for a two-team total of 12.

Roberto Clemente and Gene Alley divided four of six Pittsburgh Pirates homers as the Pirates outslugged the Chicago Cubs 16-14 and Willie Davis provided the big punch as Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Francisco Giants 8-6 in afternoon games.

In evening action, homers by Lou Brock and Richie Allen powered St. Louis Cardinals past Montreal Expos 9-7; Houston Astros drubbed Cincinnati Reds 10-4 in the nightcap of a doubleheader after a 4-0 first game loss and the New York Mets edged Philadelphia Phillies 4-3.

Lum, filling in for Hank Aaron in the Braves-Padres opener despite a painful thigh injury, crashed a 400-foot, two-run homer in the second inning, walked with the bases full in the third and hit bases-empty homers in the fifth and seventh.

He said afterward he had no alternative but to clear the fences. "I couldn't run if I didn't," he conceded.

Aaron returned to the Braves' line-up in the nightcap and hit his 24th homer of the year, while Carty unloaded his 20th and Orlando Cepeda his 14th. The long-ball barrage enabled knuckleballer Phil Niekro to withstand solo blasts by the Padres' Steve Hunts, Ollie Brown, Tommy Dean and Ramon Webster.

Jim Nash breezed to his 10th victory in the opener, scattering six hits and blanking the Padres until Clarence Gaston homered in the eighth.

Alley's second homer, a two-run shot in the ninth, was the winning blow in a late offensive circus at Chicago that produced 40 hits, 22 by the Pirates, who blew an early 7-1 lead.

Al Oliver and Bill Mazeroski also homered for the winners and Billy Williams, with a grand slam, and Willie Smith connected for the Cubs, who have lost 13 of their last 14 starts.

Willie Davis lashed a home run, triple and two singles, driving in three runs and leading the Dodgers past the Giants in a split two circuit clouts by Bobby Bonds, Davis' RBI single in the eighth capped a tie-breaking two-run rally.

Ironically, both the potent Reds and the Astros went homerless in their doubleheader split at Cincinnati's new Riverfront Stadium.

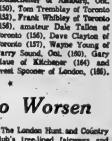
Felipe Alou grounded the next one into a game-ending double play.

"I started thinking about the no-hitter in the ninth inning when I saw all those zeroes on the scoreboard," Wright confessed. "I tried not to think about it. I went straight to the runway in the dugout and tried to push it out of my mind, but I couldn't.



"There's no way I can describe the feeling deep down inside. When I first realized I had it, I felt like I could run forever for a second, then deliriously happy."

Minnesota remained four games ahead of the Angels in the East as Jim Perry breezed to his 13th victory and his 12th triumph. Harmon Killebrew walloped his 23rd homer, a three-run job, and rookie Danny Thompson contributed three hits.

Lefty Mike Cuellar stopped the Tigers on four hits as the Orioles boosted their lead in the East to five games over the floundering Yankees. The Orioles scored three runs on sacrifice flies and another on a wild pitch in handing Mickey Lolich, 6-10, his fifth straight setback.

Bernie Allen slammed a two-run homer and reliever David Knowles put down threats in the seventh, eighth and ninth as the Senators stopped the Yankees. John Ellis homered for the losers.

The Red Sox won their opener from the Indians on Carl Yastrzemski's tie-breaking homer in the eighth, then rallied for two seventh-inning runs to take the nightcap. The winning run scored on third baseman Graig Nettles' throwing error.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Ken Rosewall, 35-year-old Australian tennis wizard, had a chance today to join Margaret Court and Billie Jean King as the year's Wimbledon record-breakers.

Rosewall was to face John Newcombe in the men's final of the All-England championships. Rosewall would be the oldest man ever to win his first Wimbledon singles title if victorious.

Mrs. Court, of Australia, took the women's crown Friday by defeating Mrs. King of the U.S. 14-12, 11-9 in the longest and most-gruelling women's final in Wimbledon history.

Voting Sunday

Mexico Likely to Elect Advocate of Order as President

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Echeverria Alvarez will be elected Mexico's president Sunday if the pattern of the last 40 years holds up—and it is expected to.

He is the candidate of the Institutional Revolutionary party, the PRI. It has not lost an election shows a mayoralty since it was formed after the Mexican revolution.

Echeverria, 48, vows in reaffirm the "Latin spirit" of Mexico, which serves as a buffer zone between all Latin America and the neighbors of the north.

He is a lawyer, a former interior minister—the country's top policeman—and a strong advocate of law and order.

The experts predict that Echeverria will win the presidential race by a wide margin to succeed President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz who could not seek re-election under the constitution.

Echeverria, a third-generation Mexican born in the capital Jan. 17, 1922, exudes national pride and independence for his country of almost 50,000,000.

"Mexico will never accept the false prosperity of a colony or step down from the place it earned among free peoples through its historic efforts," he said during a campaign speech.

He has described his political position as "neither to the right, nor the left, nor static in the center, but upward and onward with the constitution."

"Upward and Onward," is his campaign slogan.

His party, in which he has devoted 34 years, has been said to have no single ideological base, but shifts with the times. The three other political parties often say that when they come up with a good idea PRI steals it and makes it its own.

Echeverria, a favorite of Mexican history and admittedly guided by principles of the 1910 revolution, says the country's problems include agricultural reform methods, 130,000 more jobs a year for a booming population and radical educational reform.

The only other candidate is Ezrain Gonzales Morfin, 49, of National Action, a conservative party which has attracted the young and is linked to the Roman Catholic Church. Although 24-year-olds have been given the right to vote, Gonzales Morfin is not expected to pose much of a threat at the polls.

The only other two legal parties in Mexico—the Popular Socialist party and the party of the Authentic Revolution, have endorsed Echeverria.

Mexico, with a long history of non-intervention, is a haven for Latin American political exiles. It will not change these basic policies—at least under an Echeverria presidency.

Canadian Dies After Fast

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — A young Canadian who fasted 30 days for "universal citizenship" after being jailed for illegal entry into the United States died Friday.

The Whatcom County coroner has not given a cause of death for Robert Lyle Gonet, 23, of London, Ont.

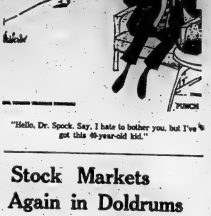
The Whatcom County coroner office said it was unable to convince federal U.S. authorities to order Gonet's release before it was apparent he was weakening.

Undersheriff Lu Bissellon said he attempted for two hours Thursday to obtain a physician to examine Gonet. He said the doctor who finally agreed to see Gonet in his office ordered him taken immediately to a hospital, where he died.

Deputies said Gonet was partly incoherent when taken to the physician but was heard to say he was fasting for universal citizenship.

Bissellon said Gonet told him he was the son of God and was ordered by God to enter the United States. Bissellon said he believe Gonet was suffering after-effects of drug use.

Gonet was arrested June 12 for illegal entry into the U.S. U.S. Commissioner Richard Benson ordered Gonet to serve 30 days in the county jail before deportation.



He ate two forced meals before stating he was going on a 40-days fast.

Bissellon, who said he learned of the fast Tuesday, said he was not concerned since many prisoners threaten to go on a hunger strike but do not carry it out.

He said he talked to Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Schaaf, in the U.S. Thursday and Schaaf told him the U.S. Marshal's office was not anxious to have Gonet hospitalized since it would require a special guard.

Bissellon said Schaaf told him the U.S. attorney's office did not want to suspend Gonet's sentence because it was felt he would try to make another illegal entry.

Lewis Picks Up Strong Support In Bid for Leadership of NDP

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, 33-year-old MPP for Scarborough West, seems certain to win the leadership of the Ontario New Democrats, with majority support from organized labor behind him.

Mr. Lewis' official announcement of his candidacy Friday for the leadership post, Donald MacDonald, 38, said last week he will retire at the party's convention Oct. 3 after 17 years as head of the Ontario NDP.

However, Mr. Lewis had been expected to announce his candidacy for several weeks and many of the 1,200 delegates to the convention have already declared their support.

Party sources say that besides the commitments of prominent trade unionists and 14 of the 21 NDP MPPs in the 117-seat legislature, Mr. Lewis has assurances of strong support from key constituency workers across the province.

He is expected to get almost solid backing from NDP constituency workers in the London, Windsor and St. Catharines area and all of Northern Ontario. Strong support is also certain in Toronto and Hamilton.

This rush of commitments for Mr. Lewis means any other candidates for the leadership will have to mount a strong campaign to win over possible waverers.

One likely challenger is Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) who said Friday that NDP'ers from the Ottawa, Guelph and Toronto areas have been urging him to run. He promised a definite decision next week.

The radical Waffle group, which claims 60 members in Ontario, will hold a conference July 11 and 12 in Toronto, at which James Laxer, 28-year-old history lecturer from Queen's University, is expected to be chosen the challenger for the leadership.

Announcing his candidacy at a news conference, Mr. Lewis made it clear he is campaigning for the post for the leadership not against the Conservative government of Premier John Robarts, who will likely call a provincial election in about two years.

He promised the NDP will give the Conservatives "a rising-by-riding, province-wide battle." He said the NDP now has reached the point where it can win every riding by intensive canvassing and he dismissed the 28 Liberal MPPs as a dying force in provincial politics.

Mr. Lewis read the names of 14 MPPs committed to support him. Notably absent were the names of Mr. MacDonald, who is remaining neutral, and Dr. Morton Shulman, who said he is waiting to see whether Mr. Pitman challenges for the leadership.

Following the announcement, prominent trade union leaders Mr. formerly supported Mr. MacDonald signaled a possible challenge from Mr. Lewis, declaring they now wi support the younger man.

Included were David Archer, president of the 100,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, and OFL secretary-treasurer Terry Meagher.

Mr. Lewis said he has been promised solid support among key trade union leaders including the United Auto Workers, the United Steelworkers of America, the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the Canadian Food and Allied Workers. Trade unionists make up about one-quarter of NDP convention delegates.

Following the news conference, Mr. Lewis left for a swing through Ontario. He will be talking to NDP supporters and municipal officials about the issues he intends to use to boost NDP support against the Robarts government.

Included are a guaranteed annual income for those in need, increased recreational and pool water for al Ontarians and the establishment of rubas of good corporate citizenship aimed at giving Canadians control over the behavior of United States businesses operating in Canada.

Stock Markets Again in Doldrums

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets were in the doldrums again this week as trading dropped to record lows.

Markets were closed Dominion Day.

The Toronto Stock Exchange, Canada's largest, posted new of its worst trading sessions in recent history with an average of 1,238,000 shared traded on each of the four sessions.

Trading dropped to a 19-year low Friday with only 949,000 shares changing hands. The previous low was on April 18, 1960, when 801,000 shares traded.

The Toronto exchange's industrial index, a barometer of market movement, posted a fractional loss, down 1.01 points to 181.81.

The only gaining index was golds, which advanced 2.23 points to 190.15.

Financial observers say gold and gold stocks are a traditional hedge in an uncertain economy.

Investors have avoided markets since the end of a sharp three-day rally in May.

Since that time, markets have drifted with only small dips and rises each session.

Trading has dropped consistently each week.

Most observers agree a major economic or political development is necessary to jar investors from their wait-and-see attitude.

On index at Toronto, base metals fell .32 to 89.85 and western oils 8.86 to 121.80. Volume was 5,122,000 shares.

Gains outnumbered losses 254 to 243 with 363 issues unchanged.

Combined volume was 2,360,000 shares, compared with 2,633,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 194 to 94.

Housing Director Criticized by Reid

TORONTO (CP) — H. W. Sutera, retiring as managing director of the Ontario Housing Corp., was charged Friday with intimidating a poverty-stricken family which moved into a vacant OHC apartment earlier in the week.

Tom Reid; Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough East, said he would ask the government to investigate Mr. Sutera's actions in threatening to remove the family from the OHC waiting list.

He told a news conference that Mr. Sutera's statement was "intimidation outside the laws of Ontario and outside due process."

"Mr. Sutera has set himself up as judge and jury in his own arbitrary court," Mr. Reid said.

Mr. Sutera said in an interview that his threat was "a figure of speech" and applicants are never removed from the OHC list.

Stanley Randall, minister responsible for housing, said he will not act upon Mr. Reid's call for an investigation but will leave the matter in the hands of the OHC, which was "not vindictive."

Audrey Wilson and her five children moved into the vacant apartment Thursday with the help of 21 members of the Just Society after being forced to move from a privately-owned apartment.

Mrs. Wilson and the Just Society members were arrested Thursday and charged with forcible detainer and mischief. Forcible detainer is the possession of another's property in a manner likely to raise a breach of the peace. The defendants were remanded Friday to July 16.

NEW POACHER

MINDEN, Ont. (CP) — Conservation officer Austin Henderson says he has a problem with a new type of poacher. While checking the pickerel run at nearby Fenelon Falls he saw a large black Labrador retriever walk into the water and grasp a pickerel in his mouth even though the season hadn't opened yet.

Campaign Already Started

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis began a weekend tour Friday night sounding as if he already was engaged in a provincial election campaign, rather than drumming up support for his candidacy for the leadership of the Ontario New Democratic Party.

Mr. Lewis, 33, MPP for Scarborough West, is visiting Windsor, Port Elgin and London in talk to NDP supporters and municipal officials in the wake of his announcement earlier. Friday that he is a candidate for the leadership post to be vacated by Donald MacDonald at the party's convention Oct.2.

He told a news conference here he does not see the NDP Waffle group as significant opposition to his candidacy, but he declined to comment on where competition might come from.

James Laxer, 22, a lecturer at Queen's University in Kingston is expected to be chosen by the Waffle group to contest the leadership and Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) also is seen as a possible challenger.

The leadership contest took second place at the news conference to Mr. Lewis' enunciation of the policies of Premier John Robarts' Conservative government.

He criticized the government for "recklessly" wasting money and for its failure to provide economic security for the working man, describing the Robarts administration as bureaucratic rather than humanistic.

Mr. Lewis said the government's actions in respect to the issue of mercury pollution showed it could not take effective action against big business.

Toronto Airliner Crash Kills 108

Firemen Check Wreckage

Plane Shook' House

TORONTO (CP) — "Get out of the house! Get out of the house!"

John Burgana, 19, screamed at his parents and seven brothers and sisters who were sleeping early Sunday as a crippled Air Canada DC-8 headed toward the family's frame farmhouse in the rolling countryside, about four miles north of Toronto International Airport.

The plane, which carried 108 persons to their death, plunged into the bank of a creek, 75 feet from the Burgana house.

Sytze Burgana, whose wife Jacoa is expecting her 11th child, said he heard a tremendous explosion when the plane struck the ground in his vegetable garden, shaking the house and smashing windows.

He ran to the field "as that yellow insulation stuff fell like snow."

"Everything was silent except for a hissing sound coming out of the hole," he said.

"There were no screams or anything like that."

The Dutch-born farmer said he had "lived here for four years and watched planes come and go and never feared a thing —then this happens."

John was the only member of the family awake.

"I could see this plane, and one wing was totally on fire," he said.

"It was turning and then just came down and exploded.

"I figured we were goners. I went out but I saw nothing at all. They didn't have a chance."

As he stood in the yard, John

No Distress Call Was Made

TORONTO (CP) — Ted Morris, public relations spokesman for Air Canada, said Sunday there was no distress call from the pilot of flight 621 during the trip from Montreal to Toronto before it crashed into a field near Toronto airport, killing all 108 persons aboard.

"There was no prior emergency call in the air. There were no crash trucks called out and no ambulances. Whatever happened, it happened as the plane entered the glide path."

Troops Accused Of Looting

BELFAST (AP) — British troops faced new trouble today after breaking up bloody street riots for the second straight weekend. Angry residents accused soldiers of looting and damaging their homes.

The bitter complaints came from the Roman Catholic Falls Road area where troops enforced a curfew and conducted a house-to-house arms search, following five deaths in rioting Friday night and Saturday.

Engine Lost While Landing

TORONTO (CP) — Investigators today began a painstaking reconstruction of the last minutes of Air Canada flight 621 in an effort to determine the cause of Sunday's crash which killed all 108 persons aboard.

The Super DC-8 jet crashed only 75 feet from a farmhouse 3¾ miles north of Toronto International Airport after an abortive attempt to land for a brief stopover on a flight to Los Angeles from Montreal.

The victims of the second worst air disaster in Canada's history included 75 paying passengers, most of them from Quebec and California, two infants, 22 Air Canada employees and a crew of nine.

"Everything was silent except for a hissing sound coming out of the hole," said farmer Sytze Burgana, the first witness on the scene after the four-engine liner crashed in his vegetable patch at 8:10 a.m.

"There were no screams or anything like that."

A shoe, part of a stewardess's uniform, a child's doll and a 35-foot piece of wingtip were among the few recognizable pieces of debris scattered in the fields and trees around a scorched hole 25 feet wide and up to seven feet deep.

W. M. Hose of the federal department of transport, who is heading the investigation, said tapes from the plane's flight recorder, found at the crash site, are being studied for clues.

Teams of investigators were set up to study control tower tape recordings of conversation with the pilot, Capt. Peter Hamilton of Montreal, interview eye-witnesses and examine the wreckage.

Ortisal believes the crash marked the first time that a jet aircraft lost an engine while attempting to land.

And because it was unprecedented, officials said, pilot Peter Hamilton had to decide how to land without previous experience to guide him.

He decided to let the close-to-stalling, 350,000-pound plane back into the air and swing around on three engines for another attempt at landing.

An Air Canada spokesman said the circumstances of the crash were so unusual "that it will probably mean a new section will have to be written into flying manuals around the world."

Witnesses disagreed on whether the plane touched down on the runway before taking off again. They were also unsure why Hamilton did not go through with the landing, even if it meant slewing off the runway on to grass at the edge of the concrete.

But they said that because dropping an engine on landing has not been a part of the jet-age experience, no one alive today knows precisely what circumstances Hamilton had to face.

An Air Canada spokesman noted that many of the passengers were Americans returning home on the holiday weekend, but that even so the plane was not carrying its peak load of 189 passengers.

"Yesterday (Saturday) or tomorrow (Monday), it would have been full," he said.

There were conflicting reports of what happened at the airport when the giant jet—a stretched version of the DC-8 made its landing approach to runway 23 in near-perfect flying weather.

Ground control officials and police were quoted as saying the pilot had radioed that one of

Fog Lifts as Queen Begins First Royal Tour of Arctic

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — New Arctic harbtown beckoned Queen Elizabeth today.

Chancy murrow-chilling weather could do nothing Sunday to diminish the first day of the first royal tour of Canada's most northernmost reaches.

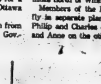
Months of laborious planning and genuine anticipation, would have been knocked cockeyed if the royal flight from London had not been able to put down at this Baffin Island starting point of a historic centennial year visit to the Northwest Territories.

But a fog that looked as though it was settling in for the summer relented at the last minute and plans for a diversion of the royal jet to Ottawa were made redundant.

Prince Charles, who had flown from Ottawa the previous day with Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener, was able to stride up the passenger ramp, exactly on schedule at 11 a.m. EDT, for a brief private reunion with the arriving party — the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne.

Also on hand when the Queen emerged moments later from her chartered Air Canada DC-8 jet was Prime Minister Trudeau, whose own flight from Ottawa had arrived just 12 minutes before hers.

Next scheduled stop in the 11-day tour marking the co-centennials of the Territories and Manitoba is Resolute, in the Queen Elizabeth Islands above Canada's Arctic mainland and 1,682 miles north of Winnipeg.



Members of the Royal Family will fly in separate planes to Resolute — Philip and Charles on one, the Queen and Anne on the other — with father and son making a side flight to an oil site in the Arctic Islands.

They will reunite later in the day at Inuvik, a Mackenzie Delta administrative centre which, with a population exceeding 3,000, is the largest Canadian community north of the Arctic Circle.

Still those are all events in the making, and it was at Frobisher that most of the royal party got a real look at the North — Philip's Arctic learning days go back to 1864. He already has visited many points on the centennial itinerary.

Also at Frobisher Bay the Queen learned of the jet-crash tragedy at Toronto with a death toll of 108. She expressed to Prime Minister Trudeau "her most sincere sympathy" and said she and her family were "extremely distressed" by the news.

Prince Jigs For Cod

Times of pick-up . . . !!!!

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Prince Charles fished for cod on the ice floes here in a midnight fishing expedition Saturday.

"Every so often, the ice went bar-umps, and I was afraid I was going to go with it," he said later. He found the ice more exciting than the fishing.

He caught about a dozen small cod, hooking them on the body by jigging a line up and down between the floes.

"Not one took the hook in the mouth," he said.

It had been hoped to take the Prince fishing for grayling or Arctic char on the Sylvia Grinnell River near here. But the river is choked with ice and the fish, prized by many anglers, aren't running.

Honor America Day Is Festive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Americans who converged on the U.S. capital Saturday to honor their country on its 194th birthday or to protest its policies returned home with memories of a festive occasion and warnings of a dismal future.

The day was an old-fashioned Fourth of July in many ways, with ovation, brass bands, fireworks and spectacular entertainment. But it also brought signs of dissent and, in some cases, sounds of violence.

Quinte Stores Picketed

Labor Fights Shoe Imports

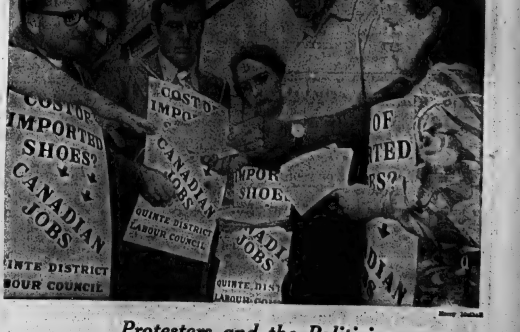
By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A Quinte-organized labor demonstration may set the pattern for a cross-Canada movement protesting the job threat of foreign imports.

That was the indication in Belleville Saturday as the Quinte District Labor Council launched an area-wide demonstration against imports of foreign shoes.

Thousands of pamphlets were distributed outside shoe stores in the city, as well as in Trenton, Picton, Stirling, Warkworth and Campbellford.

About 100 placarded picketers were marshalled for the protest by the labor council and district Boot and Shoe Workers' Union organizers.



The union, with locals at Stirling and the big Bata Shoe plant in Batawa, joined with the labor council a month ago to seek government and public action on sales of foreign-made footwear.

Saturday climaxed the campaign to date — and with that the Quinte protests may have set the example for a national campaign.

Kenneth Scott, regional director of the Boot and Shoe Workers, hailed the united seeking government attention, could launch demonstrations coast-to-coast.

"We're seriously considering continuing this kind of action in Toronto and other large cities across Canada, to bring the attention of the government — and wake it up —to the fact that something must be done," he told a conference of labor officials and local federal politicians at the Army, Navy and Air Force building.

Two Day Camps Announced by Y

Belleville Family YMCA will operate two types of day camps this summer: Kinder-Camp for five, six and seven-year-olds and a Summer Adventure Program for eight-to-12-year-olds.

Kinder-Camp is a new concept and includes time for swim instruction, nature games, sing-songs, light gymnastics, craft lessons, walks and excursions.

Summer Adventure Program for 8-12-year-olds will be based on a different theme every week. Participants will have a trip to the beach once a week as well as an excursion to a Southeastern Ontario tourist attraction. One week they will go to Old Fort Henry, another to Bowmanville Zoo, and yet another to Gananoque for the 1,000 Islands' boat tour.

Adventurers will also have craft instruction, campfires, cookouts and periods of swimming and hiking.

The two-day camp programmes will bridge the gap between the child's families' urban environment and the less familiar natural one. On a day-to-day basis, children may have an organized period of outdoor living.

Cost is $8 per week for Y members and $10 per week for non-members. The programme is under way now and will last to the end of July. Children may join any time for a week or the entire period.

A U.S. Rendezvous in Quinte

Belleville and the Bay of Quinte became a rendezvous for U.S. yachts and cruisers during the July 4 weekend. A favorite point of call was this cove off Massassaga Point, south of the city, where members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club joined the visiting flotilla Saturday. The event even saw two bands embark from Belleville — Joe Burchill's All Stars and the Quinte Sea Cadets.

Imports Threaten 100,000 Canadian Jobs—Hees

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Foreign imports are threatening the jobs of 100,000 Canadian workers, George Hees, MP, Prince Edward - Hastings warned Saturday.

The Hees prediction was not only one in a series of gloomy forecasts on the impact of imports from low wage countries made during a conference of local federal politicians and leading labor spokesmen in Belleville.

The conference was called by the Quinte District Labor Council, to coincide an area-wide picketing of shoe stores protesting sales of foreign-made footwear.

The conference was called to articulate the protest — which saw thousands of pamphlets distributed by store pickeers in towns within a 30 - mile radius of Belleville.

Mr. Hees called on the federal government to apply quotas against imports from low-wage countries.

Such imports, he said, are making serious inroads into sales of Canadian textiles, footwear and electronic equipment.

Foreign takeover of Canadian market has been accelerated by placing the Canadian dollar on a floating exchange rate. The government could use a current $500 million surplus to subsidize exports while Canadian industries are adjusting to the recently - imposed dollar.

"... If this steady takeover of the Canadian market is not curbed, these industries and a good chance of being eliminated, and more than 100,000 jobs will be lost," claimed Mr. Hees.

"All other countries protect their industries which are endangered and Canada has no alternative but to do the same."

"... If this steady takeover of the Canadian market is not curbed, these industries and a good chance of being lost to the Canadian economy."

Terry Meagher, secretary-treasurer, Ontario Federation of Labor, said more than labor was "very, very concerned" about the federal government's attitude to the situation.

Were shoe workers seeking more than a six per cent increase they would get government attention, he said.

"Now that many people are threatened with an income of zero, there seems to be absolutely no reaction in Ottawa.

"I think this is a very good example of why the trade union movement in Canada does not wish to co-operate with this government," said Mr. Meagher.

Canadian consumers, he added, would not benefit from any erosion of national industry by imports.

Once the competition of Canadian industry was removed, prices for imported shoes could be set at will.

Henry Noakes, Canadian Labor Congress district representative, said the CLC already had urged the government to assist workers, industries and regions affected by lower trade barriers.

Ian Reilly, Boot and Shoe Workers district representative, accused the federal government of delaying tactics when confronted recently by labor spokesmen protesting work problems.

Mr. Reilly also was critical of the absence of local provincial politicians from the conference.

Of four MPPs constituted, only Norris Whitney, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, had indicated he couldn't attend.

Yet, said Mr. Reilly, 1,000 shoe workers in the area — breadwinners for perhaps 5,000 — could be cast on provincial welfare rolls if local shoe factories closed.

"They (the MPPs) should be here and they are not," said Mr. Reilly, "I think there's something drastically wrong . . . ."

She Saved His Life

Mrs. Fern Greer of Northport conveys by writing with Sidney Wall of Detroit, Michigan, a former OSD student who's life she helped save on April 26, 1942. Mr. Wall, then 28, attempted to swim from a dock to Moscow Isle because exhausted and was sinking when Mrs. Greer, then Fern Belnap, saw him and brought her father to rescue the drowning man.

Their Reunion Delayed For Twenty-eight Years

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Grinning widely, the man shook the hand of a lady he hadn't seen for 28 years.

The last time Sidney Wall saw Mrs. Fern Greer he was in the water and what had begin as a return to the haunts of his youth when he was a student at OSD had turned into near tragedy.

Then almost 28 years of age, Fern Belnap observed the struggles of the young man in the water and ran to tell her father, Manley Belnap of Rossmore, who rescued the exhausted Mr. Wall who had begun to sink.

This all happened on the afternoon of Sunday, April 26, 1942. Sidney Wall, 28 of Leamington was reported in a state of complete collapse by Dr. Earl MacDonald at the Belleville General Hospital, and was released later the same day.

In his first attempt to thank Miss Belnap, Mr. Wall visited her home in the fall of 1942, shortly after the death of Mr. Belnap. Unfortunately Mrs. Belnap was present.

On Saturday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Greer the former Fern Belnap, the reunion was complete.

Conversing quietly in the Greer's living room, 26 years of information was discussed with the aid of pencil and paper, with which Mr. Wall communicates with most people.

"I was pretty frightened at time," Mrs. Greer commented of that Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Wall commented that he often thinks of the little girl who helped to rescue him.

"I love to fish and was always playing around the water," he wrote.

Mr. Wall wanted to show his deep appreciation and upon presenting Mrs. Greer with a gift said, "I can spend a little for one who did a great deal for me . . . I can't tell you how much I've looked forward to meeting you"

A printer with the Detroit News, in Detroit, Michigan, Mr. Wall returned to Belleville this past week for the 29th Biennial OAD convention held at the OSD.

"I hope to bring my wife with me when the OSD has its 100th Anniversary because in October 20th," he said.

Another reunion is tentatively planned for that same time when Mr. Wall will again meet Mrs. Greer and her 16-year-old daughter Lorie. Unfortunately Mrs. Belnap was resting and Mr. Greer was away when the reunion took place.

"But maybe we can all get together next time," he reiterated.

A few pictures were taken and addresses were exchanged and the two parted company.

"I remembered the incident clearly," said Mrs. Greer.

Sidney Wall won't forget, for as he puts it, "I've got Mrs. Greer to thank for my being here; she saw me in trouble and if she hadn't a body would have heard me in the houses."

It's taken 28 years, but Mr. Wall explained that it was worth it to meet again.

The Workers

Who are the "silent majority?" Who are the people who perhaps think little of politics, who have no truck with the "weak and brainless mob" Sir Irish author St. John Ervine has termed them, who do a job and try to improve their corner of the world, who are self-reliant enough that they are not forever moaning that their community has nothing to offer them?

We think one in this category is Claude Clement, whom Ontario Open golf champion Billy Wright of Edmonton largely credits for his recent victory in that event.

Mr. Clement is a winter-time camp cook in the Northwest Territories and a pro caddy on the summer golf tour. Now there is a fine combination of "work if you have-was one, and we would recommend it, or some similar activity or combination of activities, to young people who are having difficulty finding work.

A similar example of resourcefulness in our own midst is Judy Burns, 19-year-old psychology major who, unable to find work in Toronto, returned to Belleville and is shining shoes at a Front Street variety store.

Maybe there is an element of luck in finding work of this nature, but with determination and the right attitude it is surprising what a young person can find to do.

By the Lake

North of Kaladar, en route to Bon Echo Park, lies Beaver Lake and it was while stopped their briefly on a recent vacation that we encountered an interesting group of people — and a comely young friend of theirs.

Seated at several picnic tables joined together were about a dozen women and they were holding some kind of outdoor meeting. It could have been a women's institute, or perhaps a church group for in front of the tables, at the edge of the water, was a cross which looked as if it were a permanent feature.

While the women conducted their business three of their menfolk relaxed under a neighboring tree, and there was this small child of perhaps two years or a little less — and she was a Negro and she had ribbons in her hair and she was completely at ease with this kindly group of older citizens and they with her.

In this scene, beside the lake, there was the true essence of peace and tranquillity, which today seems to be so manipulated and misunderstood, and the kind of Christianity which was made known to the world beside another lake in another land nearly 2,000 years ago.

Clans' Gathering

A letter on this page last week gave well-deserved praise to the recent highland gathering in Belleville. It has placed the city on the "clans" map as it were, along with such centres as Maxville, in the Cornwall area, and Cobourg, and we hope it may become an annual event.

One of the Intelligencer's pictures of the event showed the Brockville Highland Pipe Band and while his back was to the camera we are certain the tall, erect, grey-haired gentleman in the foreground was retired bank manager George Belsey.

Retirement poses no problem for Mr. Belsey for he has had a life-long interest in the Scots and their culture. This extends not only to membership of a pipe band but also to attendance at the Gaelic College in St. Anne's, Cape Breton, and an interest in the training of the younger generation in the Scots heritage of music, dance and a related subject which claims his interest is heraldry.

Mr. Belsey has been an active supporter of the pipe band for some time now. As long ago as 1963 we recall seeing him with the band at graduation ceremonies on the beautiful campus of St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y.

A highland gathering is always a big occasion for both young and old — and you don't need to be a Scot to enjoy the fun.

Strange Togetherness

It has always been a source of fascination that the Bering Strait separating Alaska and Siberia is only 36 miles across and that on a clear day high granite cliffs on the Soviet side is visible from the United States. Intriguing too is an Associated Press report from Little Diomede, outer limit of U.S. territory only two miles or so from Russia's Big Diomede, where American and Soviet sentries can eye each other through binoculars and wave. Beyond that, however, there is no visiting between the two islands and Little Diomede has seven National Guardsmen (Eskimo Scouts as they are known there) and a handful of small arms to deter anyone who tries. Reports persist, says the AP dispatch, that Eskimos still visit back and forth between Siberia and Alaska, as in the old days, adding still further to the fascinating lore and intriguing form of togetherness the U.S. and Russia have up there.

Vancouver Sun

President Nixon deserves praise for high sentiments in the address he made to the annual presidential prayer breakfast in Washington. In essence his plea was for a this move reliance on divine guidance.

Some people and some nations do not rely on divine guidance. But great nations in the past have generally done so and by S. And Mr. Nixon reminded his hearers that each U.S. president since the beginning of the republic has relied on it for himself and the people. He added:

"We have a greater destiny than to conquer the world. We can give to the world more than other nations have given — spiritual strength and idealism. This is something material strength or military power cannot provide."

The dead at Song My might wonder at this. There is in the words a thin, despite the reputation of conquest, of a note of that flaccid sweetness which entrapped many peoples, that feeling of divine mission.

The Americans are a generous and in many ways noble people. Despite Vietnam they still retain the respect and admiration of millions of foreigners. But, whether it has anything to do with the Puritan ethic or what, there is in them more than enough of that strain of moral arrogance, of the certainty of being purer of heart than other peoples, which afflicts Anglo-Saxons, even Canadians.

Canada may suffer from it even more virulently than the Americans, but we are not the world's most powerful nation and can do infinitely less harm. It was not to us but to the Americans of McKinley's and Teddy Roosevelt's days that Rudyard Kipling addressed those enthusiastic verses, welcoming them into the imperial club:

Take up the White Man's burden —
Send forth the best ye breed—
Go, bind your sons to exile
To serve your captives' need.

Many an idealistic American has smiled at Kipling's exhortation, as if that was not the way they felt about their sudden inheritance of colonial power in the Philippines and in the Caribbean. But poets are prescient and Kipling was a good one in his time. Despite his own touch of Anglo - Saxon moral arrogance.

He saw ahead to another piece familiar to Intelligencer: The tumult and the shouting dies:
The Captains and the Kings depart:
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.

The speeches and statements of Vice-President Spiro Agnew are among the most difficult there are to comment on. It is not enough to say, as do millions of Americans, that the Vice-President is saying what needs to be said. Nor is it enough to say, as do other millions, that he is divisive and hurtful. The difficulty arises from the fact that, at one and same time, there is both a good deal of truth and a good deal of harm in what he says.

Take his recent bitter attack on eight prominent American antiwar figures whom he accuses of such various acts as advocating surrender to communism in Southeast Asia, as always finding American in the wrong in the Vietnam war, and, with some of them, as developing "a psychological addiction to an American defeat."

Such statements are brutally unfair. They leave no room for honest differences of opinion, for sincerity. They are clearly divisive, increasing personal bitterness, further splitting the country. They contain no self-seeking, healing element so desperately needed today.

Yet, on the other hand, it is true that a number of those whom he attacked have left large numbers of their fellow-citizens with the impression that they do in fact go out of their way to attack the present administration in its desperately difficult effort to get out of Vietnam honorably. Indeed, such antiwar figures sometimes appear to find far more that is wrong with America and the war than with North Vietnam or the Viet Cong and the war.

This, too, is gratingly divisive with untold Americans who, while sharing the unease and desire to get out of the conflict, do not feel that the United States should lose its heart in the battle for the Left-ure to find a peaceful end to the fighting.

The crying need in the United States is to find some means of removing the bitterness and the bitterness from the expression of opposing points of view. Without this, the charges and countercharges that one can find "the unmistakable footprints of W. Averell Harriman" behind every great conference that ended in loss for the West and for freedom be it being outrageously unfair to a man who has labored long and faithfully for his country. But, when Massachusetts' Sen. Edward Kennedy says that "the greatest single obstacle to our efforts to end this war is the administration's refusal to see it in any respect the polarized terms of victory or defeat, triumph or humiliation," he is distorting the truth diagnostically.

The country as a whole begs all public figures to lower their voices and recognize what is discovery and honesty and truth in the other fellow's position.

Some More Views on Council's 'No' to Festival

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

At last Monday night's "council" meeting the citizens of Belleville were shown the main reason why the fair city of ours is just like all the other "fair cities" in Canada.

When a new and exciting idea is placed in front of us, an idea that takes some courage and some thoughtful planning, the elected officials seem to always pass it over.

They told us only of the bad things that would be the result of the Peace Festival. They tell us about the traffic jams . . . they tell us about the marijuana problem. They put all kinds of "problems" in our faces and tell us that they don't want these problems in this city on that one day of the year.

All I would like to ask the Mayor is: Is this too much to ask for one day out of the whole year? Is it too much to ask towards Peace?

Woodstock had very few problems and at the Mariposa festival there were minimal problems also. Why would Belleville be much different? How can the aldermen be so sure of trouble too big to handle? Large numbers of people do not necessarily mean trouble. Statistics are not what you can actually base true fact on. But Mr. Aldermen, personal experience is. Without personal experience you remain dormant and you withdraw into your own world and let the rest go by as you regress.

It appears to me that the "leaders" of this community have only the present residents in mind. Is Belleville not for everyone? Is it right to publicly show a desire for Peace not for everyone?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After listening to the discussion on the controversial issue of the "Black Culture" meeting, for and against their coming to Belleville, one could say: "Now we have heard everything."

It is interesting, however, to observe how certain people will reason when faced with the same problem, but under different circumstances.

For instance, one gentleman in a responsible position who denounced others for their attitudes towards their stand on this matter, when asked whether he would approve of Dr. Billy Graham, the internationally known and esteemed evangelist, or for that matter of our local Salvation Army, to hold meetings in Belleville parks in no uncertain terms he rejected it.

There is discrimination against certain people, or on certain grounds, in spite of the fact that such meetings are always conducted in orderly manner in a quiet and pleasant atmosphere. Not only are such meetings refreshing to mind and body, but often beneficial occur where former alcoholics to the wild community, at "revival times" conversions and even addicts are instantly and miraculously delivered from their enslaving habit while present and assisted members of society. (Where true relationship with God is established on a personal basis, the need for drugs etc. is eliminated.)

It is not my intention to judge or to predict the above mentioned culture group, but to point out the inconsistency and lack of democratic principles in people who demand something but refuse to grant it to others.

Those Press Releases—and the PM as A Supervisor

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Eleven government departments say they send unsolicited material such as press releases to Canadian daily and weekly newspapers.

But eight others of the 19 departments which replied to Commons questions by Rud Whiting, Liberal MP for Halton and a sales and public relations executive, declined to make any such admission.

The agriculture department said flatly it never sends unsolicited material to newspapers—the only agency to make such a claim.

Prime Minister Trudeau's office said it issues releases only to 213 papers but doesn't know whether the material is solicited or unsolicited. It just sends it.

The justice department made a similar reply.

The defence and works departments maintained that their distribution of press releases is "selective."

The consumer, fisheries and regional economic expansion departments were non-committal about the whole thing.

Of the departments which say they mail out unsolicited material, Indian Affairs led all the rest by saying it sends press releases to 1,040 dailies and weeklies.

The secretary of state's department sends such material to 965 papers, the labor department to 973, the health department to 880, the veterans affairs department to 710, the energy department to 624, the immigration department to 458, the industry department to 169 and the communications department to a "small number."

Mr. Whiting did not ask whether there is any record of how much unsolicited material gets into print.

All MPs recently acquired a new privilege: they are entitled to use special reserved rooms in Canadian airports.

Ed Broadbent, NDP MP for Oshawa-Whitby, has discovered through Commons questions that in the agriculture department there are seats in departmental lounges for the use of every three employees.

But in the works department, the rule is one lounge chair for every 254 employees.

Two recent quotes from Hansard:

Mr. Trudeau: "I personally supervise the work of all ministers."

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux on the CF-5 fighter-bomber: "The range is relatively short, but it is relatively long also."

Engine Fell Off as Landing Aborted

his starboard engines was on fire, and that the control tower had ordered him to gain altitude and jettison fuel.

But Mr. House, although confirming that there had been a fire, said it had not yet been determined whether it occurred before, during or after the landing attempt.

An Air Canada spokesman said there were no emergency messages from the plane at any time and that the aircraft made a normal approach.

A department of transport official at the airport said the pilot informed the control tower that he was executing a missed approach—meaning he was aborting the landing attempt and would try again.

The plane apparently rolled a short distance along the runway —some witnesses said it bounced on the runway—and then began what appeared to be a normal takeoff.

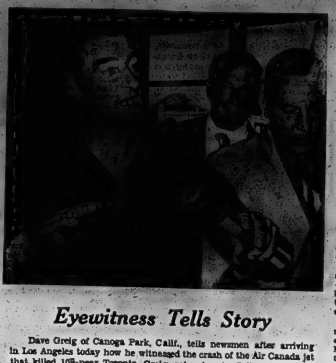
But while in the air over the runway, the outside starboard engine dropped to the ground. Minutes later and just before the crash, the inside starboard engine and a 15-foot length of wingtip fell 100 yards apart into farm fields.

All the eye-witness reports agreed that the plane was trailing flames and smoke and dropping pieces of debris as it left the area of the airport and that it then "nosedived right down," as eye-witness Michael Matyas described the final descent.

About 200 policemen under the direction of the provincial police sealed off a four-square-mile area around the crash site as investigations from the department of transport and Air Canada moved in.

Orfields from the McDonnell Douglas Corp. of Santa Monica, Calif., manufacturers of the DC-8, were to join the investigation.

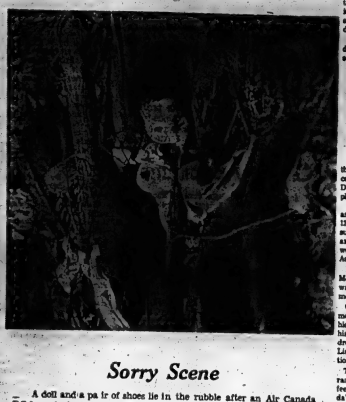
Two refrigeration trucks were called in to help a Canadian Armed Forces helicopter remove the bodies to a north arena at the nearby community of Woodbridge.



The arena was used as a temporary morgue while pathologists, dentists and document experts began identification procedures.

At the airport, other passengers due to board flight 621 stood in stunned silence with friends and relatives who had come to see them off.

An alternate flight took off at 10:25 a.m.—two hours and 10 minutes after the crash. Among the passengers were two daughters of Bill Ironstone who witnessed the crash from the airport observation deck.



He put his two girls on the alternate flight and said:

"It could have happened to any plane. It was just coincidence."

Eyewitness Tells Story

Dave Greig of Canoga Park, Calif., tells newsmen after arriving in Los Angeles today how he witnessed the crash of the Air Canada jet that killed 108 near Toronto. Greig, returning to California from a Canadian fishing trip, said he was near the Toronto airport when he saw the plane "look like a flare going up and then burst apart." He had been scheduled to board the ill-fated craft when it stopped at Toronto.

Labor Fights Shoe Imports

In Belleville, distribution of the pamphlets went without incident.

However, picketers told customers that police had been called to disperse them at the Studio 16 store, but refused to take action since it was a legal protest.

Picketers also complained a representative of Leslie's Shoes had ordered them away from the premises.

In both cases, organizers drafted picketing from other locations and staged reinforced demonstrations outside both stores.

The pamphlet, issued by the labor council, warned that 1,200 local shoe workers could become jobless if the volume of shoe imports continued at current rates.

It suggested: "Write a note to the prime minister . . . and your MP and tell them you care what happens to the citizens of Quinte."

The pamphlet advised the public to approach local shoe store managers and request more Canadian - made footwear be displayed.

Flash of Fire as Wheels Touched Down poised to a huge chunk of the fuselage.

"It knocked our clothesline down."

Other witnesses at the scene said bits of clothing from some of the passengers in the plane were hanging in trees 40 yards from where the plane struck.

Witnesses recovered pieces of a stewardess's uniform and the body of a young girl.

Mike Quetrade, a photographer with Metropolitan Toronto's emergency service's branch, said that when he arrived cows were grazing close by.

"The grass around the plane was green and the trees were untouched," he said. "The plane must have come straight down."

Several witnesses saw the plane when it was in trouble landing at the airport.

Michael Matyas, driving to the airport with his son Peter, 13, said he saw one of the engines burst into flame.

"There were small flames on the bottom rear of the plane then it just nosedived right down."

Mrs. E. Murdock of Malton said she saw the plane coming in for a landing.

She said that when the wheels touched the runway there was a flash of fire and it appeared the landing gear fell off. "I thought he was going to try again."

She said the plane then started to climb. She added that one wing fell off. Then the other and then the fuselage.

Richard Yzsloch, who lives about a mile from the scene, said his alarm clock had just gone off when he heard an awful groan that shook out windows.

"I looked out th window and there it was. One piece—I think it was a wing and engine—separated from the main body of the plane.

"Both pieces were about 2,000 feet in the air and there was a lot of real black smoke.

"I saw the plane going straight down and then it dipped behind a hill and I lost it."

Bill Farmer, assistant professional at nearby Woodbridge Golf and Country Club, and professional Bill Hosstis fled in panic when the plane swept low over the fairways, trailing smoke.

"When it banked we ran like hell," said Farmer. "I don't know where we intended to run, but we didn't go far because when the plane hit we could feel the whole ground tremor.

"Then there was a great huge plump, a kind of sound you might get from a giant bass guitar. And it was all over."

The two men were on the first tee when Hosstis noticed the smoking plane. Farmer said he saw streaks of flame about out of the plane on two occasions, followed by "a hard crack like a firecracker."

He said the flames seemed to be coming from the starboard engine. Before the crash he saw something fall from the plane.

"I would say it was an engine but I couldn't be sure."

Farmer estimated they watched the plane for about 30 seconds before it crashed.

Montreal Families Wiped Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Among the 108 victims in Sunday's crash of an Air Canada Super DC-8 in Toronto were two complete Montreal families.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Benson and their two children, Helen, 13, and Ricky, 9, described by a suburban Farnwood neighbor as "nice people, well-liked," were killed on their way to Los Angeles.

Mr. Benson, president of the Montreal Model Flying Club, was on a business trip as equipment manager for Air Canada.

Gilles Decarie, a former chief mechanic at the airfloc, left his suburban Dorval home with his wife Marie and three children, Luke, 18, Mark, 15, and Linda, 11, for a week-long vacation in California.

The family had made arrangements with neighbors to feed their dog Pompom and Linda's pet rabbit.

"We'll be back soon." Mark had told his friends.

Toronto Crash of DC-8 Like Montreal Tragedy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the second time in less than seven years, an Air Canada flight bound for Toronto from Montreal has ended in disaster.

Flight 621, a $10,000,000 Air Canada Super DC-8, left Montreal International Airport at 7:13 Sunday morning. It ended about 55 minutes later in a farmer's back yard near Toronto airport. All 108 aboard were killed.

Flight 831, also a DC-8 flown by Air Canada—then known as Trans-Canada Air Lines—left Montreal International Airport at 6:28 p.m. Nov. 29, 1953. It ended four minutes later in quagmire at Sie. Therese, 20 miles north of Montreal. All 118 on board were killed.

The two crashes were the worst air disasters in Canada's history and there were a few similarities.

Besides the same destinations, both planes were made by Douglas Aircraft Co. of Long Beach, Calif., all aboard both were killed and planes in both crashes disintegrated.

Flight 621, however, left Montreal in bright, clear conditions with a load of Air Canada personnel and paying passengers made up mostly of holidaying Americans.

The crash occurred as it neared its glide path to the airport and one engine flew off, sending the plane hurtling to the ground near a farmhouse.

Flight 831 left Montreal on a bleak, drizzling November night. There was no explosion aboard until the plane hit the ground. Investigation finally showed the crash was caused by failure of the plane's trim controls.

The anguish of that November night echoed in the law courts for more than three years and when the final summing up was made, total cost of the tragedy exceeded $16,000,000.

The plane was a $4,500,000 loss and personal claims paid by the publicly-owned airline and insurance company made up the balance.

Previous to the Ste. Therese crash, greatest loss of life left Montreal International Airport at 6:28 p.m. Nov. 29, 1953. It ended four minutes later in quagmire at Ste. Therese, 20 miles north of Montreal. All 118 on board were killed.

Nurses Reminisce at Celebration of 50th Anniversary of Graduation

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — In 1920 the length of a nurse's skirt seemed as important as was measured every week at Nicholls Hospital.

Every Sunday morning we were lined up and the length of our skirts was measured with a ruler," says Charlotte Sturgeon of Manilla, Ont.

They had to be exactly four inches from the floor.

Mrs. Sturgeon is one of seven classmates of the hospital school's class of 1920 who gathered to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their graduation.

They said their uniforms were heavy, stiffly starched and made by the nurses themselves.

"Curls were forbidden," says Irene Blezard of Toronto. "Our hair was parted in the middle and drawn back into a knob on top of our heads."

Pearl Gray of Peterborough recalled that they worked for $5 a day, when they got any at all. "Sometimes things were slack," Margaret Reid of Keene, Ont., added: "When our shifts were short, used to 12 hours, our pay was reduced to $4. From that we paid $3 a month for our room and board."

In 1926, girls were supposed to be 21 years old before they entered nursing training, recalls Helen Anderson of Peterborough.

"Hospital officials wanted our girlhood to be officially over before we started nursing. They felt that once we had worked by a hospital, our youth was gone forever."

Olive Waterman of Toronto says: "There were no sterilizers or disposable instruments. We had to boil all our instruments. We made our own bandages and dressings, too, and we had to lift patients from bed to bed ourselves."

All of the women recall that registered nurses were hired during the Depression years to walk on tables in the Nicholls Hospital residence.

Helen Kison of Millbrook, Ont., says: "They knew it was either that or starve."

Mrs. Sturgeon adds: "Now, of course, we've all made our fortunes, but if the cost of living keeps on rising, we might have to start nursing again."

Clothing for Mature Women Lacks Style

TORONTO (CP) — Clothing manufacturers, designers and retailers who spend more time on fashions for older women may discover a gold mine.

The 65-year-old woman has trouble finding a dress that fits and suits her. The 55-year-old has to look a lot harder and the 45-year-old might as well forget it.

A survey conducted by the Canadian Consumers' Association last year showed that clothing made for the mature woman shows a dismal lack of imagination. Often the clothes don't fit—too wide at the shoulder, too long in the waist and too narrow in the hips.

"There is a real need for some imaginative manufacturers and their designers to develop smart clothes for the mature woman," says Lilah Lyonburner, chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee of the Ontario department of trade and development.

"The little dressmaker and the haute couture designer should tell me what many of their clients are women who have larger sizes and they are among the best-dressed here or elsewhere and that they have ingenuity to spend on things which do something for them," Mrs. Lyonburner says.

"Why do manufacturers persist in putting out dresses made for larger sizes in those pretty prints in horrible colors? Do they think the mature woman has lost her taste as well as a size 10 figure?"

Many older women complain that they have given up shopping for clothing and just wear what they have. Mrs. William Dennison, wife of the mayor of Toronto, is one of them.

The situation is simply dreadful," Mrs. Dennison said. "It has reached the point where I almost hate my own clothes. I don't have much time to sew now and I'm wearing the same thing over and over again."

Mrs. Dennison says out and are too short for women who will not wear their skirts above the knees. Many expose too much flesh and are cut for very slim figures. These styles aren't suitable for women getting older and sorter-looking," she said.

Mrs. William Burgess complains that saleladies give her two choices in size 16—take them or leave them.

"I also find the colors very drab," Mrs. Burgess said. "Just because a woman is over 40 is no reason why she should have to wear beiges and blacks or fade away into navy."

The manufacturers are unwise to neglect the older women because she is the one who often has the money to spend on clothes after her children are grown," Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre, former mayor. w. plumptre, former national president of the Canadian Consumers' Association, says.

"We've been talking to manufacturers about the problems of older women's clothes and they claim that they make plenty of dresses that are suitable," Mrs. J. L. Robinson, chairman of consumer problems for the Ontario section of the consumers' association, says.

"They say the fault lies with the retailer who doesn't buy them in sufficient quantity to give the consumer a choice. They add that they will make more dresses on demand.

"If we've got to create the demand, I guess that's the way we've got to do it."

Couple Is Honored

Major Bert Sterling Wemp and his wife, the former Irene Barchard Flint, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently.

Major Wemp, known as a man of many firsts, was Mayor of Toronto in 1938. He was the first Canadian accepted here for flying service in Great Britain when World War I broke out and was the first from Canada to win the Distinguished Flying Cross.

He was also winner of the Croix de Guerre. Order of Leopold, and other service decorations.

Major Wemp, who was 81 years old July 3, is a former city editor of The Telegram. He was born in Tweed.

Mrs. Wemp was born in Toronto. The couple have two children, William Rose and Mary Elizabeth (Mrs. Lloyd J. Sneath).

Theatre Group Receives Funds

The Lennox Theatre building campaign received its largest pledge of support recently with the announcement by Bryon Dunn, newly elected president of the Napanee Rotary Club, of a $1000 donation.

"We need live theatre performance in this area and the project deserves support," said Mr. Drew. "It will not only provide entertainment for the public but recreation for all the members of the Theatre Guild."

Speaking for the Rotary Club as treasurer, Wilfred Steinman said "The Rotary Club, along with the other service clubs in the county have always taken the lead in promoting community recreational programs. The theatre idea is extremely popular in other parts of Ontario and will be likely just as enjoyed in Lennox and Addington."

"The $1000 gift is tremendous" said R. W. Macpherson campaign chairman. "As well, County Council granted $300 to us last week and the private donations are just beginning to come in. The theatre can only become a reality with public donations. The bare essentials of theatrical lighting, a stage and seating, even for a small 100 seat repertory theatre will cost in excess of $2000. Many of the 8 "little theatre" groups in Ontario depend on public donations. We intend to make ours self supporting but we do need help in getting it started. For example those who give $100 or more will be named on the "Founder's Plaque." Even smaller donations are expected for the "Donor's List". Each donor will have a plaque to mark the opening performance this October. It all depends on the response to the campaign but I feel certain we will make it" the chairman concluded.

THE "MAXI" IS ALWAYS IN — Fashion changes present no problems to Hutterite women. These styles are typical of the practical, ankle-length dresses all women wear on Hutterite colonies in Canada. All clothes are made on the colonies from materials purchased in large quantities. (CP Photo)

Busy Mother Given Appointment

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wife of four jobs and a family, Mrs. William T. Lane should barely have time to think, let alone be a member of the Canada Council.

Yet Mrs. Lane, better known as Betsy, appeared a natural for the appointment, which came this spring.

"I'm not particularly well organized," she said recently, "and I don't like to get up early. We've even trained two - year - old daughter Naomi to sleep late."

A lack of organization has not kept her away from board memberships and presidencies since she began as a volunteer when she married in 1956.

She became chairman of the Community Arts Council by 1961, then president of the Arts Council of Vancouver, the Junior League, the Vancouver branch of the Community Planning Association, the cultural activities committee of the Vancouver Centennial Committee and of the Vancouver Museums Association.

Now in her "early 40s," she still is with the latter organization. She also is on the senate of the University of British Columbia, a member of the Vancouver Civic Museums and Planetarium Board and director of the Community Arts Council.

Declining to sit on boards which receive grants from the Canada Council, she has resigned from the board of the city's Playhouse Theatre and plans to give up the Museums Association when her presidency runs out early next year.

Vancouver-born, Mrs. Lane graduated from UBC with honors in chemistry, then worked for the National Research Council at Chalk River, Ont., the B.C. Research Council here and did a short stint at the Royal School of Mines in London, England.

She still doesn't slow down, and spends most mornings on the telephone.

"Then I usually have a lunch-hour meeting and deal with other committee business. At some point I try to take Naomi for a walk and after dinner at home, Bill and I frequently go to a performance or an adult education class, or I may have another meeting."

She and her husband, a lawyer, share an enthusiasm for anthropology and archeology and have taken several university extension courses.

"We try to take one or two courses a year—we've been doing it for years as a part of a co - ordinating education," she said.

Political organizations lacking in the efficiency for which she is in demand, she said:

"I've become very philosophical, but it is most aggravating how long it takes to get things accomplished and to get people moving both at government and private levels.

"It takes an awful lot of talking and lobbying.

"Most of the things that do get done (in the arts world) are due to volunteers who raise money and create a coöperative climate."

And of women's rights, she said:

"A woman can achieve just as much as she wants. If a woman really wants to work, she will not be discriminated against."

"So many women used to look upon work as expendable. They can't have their cake and eat it."

Bustling Grandmother Performs At London's Oldest Folk Club

LONDON (CP) — Among the people who attend the English folk clubs, Vancouver's Vera Johnson looks sharply out of place. A short, roundish figure walks onto the stage adorned with a tattered guitar and spends what seems a long time tuning it. Few know exactly what to expect from this bustling grandmother until she starts to sing.

Her voice is high-pitched and pleasant, her playing simple but precise, her impact friendly. The climax of her recent England tour, which she financed herself, was a splendid performance at London's oldest folk club, The Troubador. The concert marked this remarkable woman's 50th birthday.

Vera Johnson was born in Birmingham, one of five children in a struggling family. Her father was sent to Canada at the time working in Regina as an engraver and the family followed when Vera was four months old. She went to school in Regina but left to grow restless and found work as a secretary in Vancouver, where she has lived ever since.

Vera was married twice and has three children to whom she is devoted although her marriages fell apart. Until recently she concentrated on her duties as mother but now that her children have grown up and married, she has been able to return to her former love—entertaining people.

She believes she has succeeded in bringing enthusiasm into folk music. Like The Troubador she enthralled the audience with an amazing variety of songs which she has written since the age of nine.

Her themes are both universal with songs about pollution and nuclear disarmament, and personal with moving reflections of her life in Canada song called O Canada contemplates on her country's misfortunes:

"O Canada your Indians have died,

Or else you've robbed them of their pride.

"O Canada the immigrants you have,

"But hide your hungry and poor.

"And some day I hope you will be

"Like the song says, glorious and free."

England's leading pop music paper, Melody Maker, says: "She is one of the most prolific song writers on the scene. She maintains a consistently high standard of astonishing variety."

Vera Johnson's talents reach farther afield than music and writing songs. She is an expert crochet worker. Because her south London flat where she stays when in England has no fire escape she has crocheted a rope ladder to use in case of an emergency. Most of her clothes are products of her own hand.

She also enjoys writing fiction and her stories have been published in a number of Canadian magazines. Her style is simple. "People tend to mistake obscurity for poetry," she says.

Vera Johnson does not regard herself as a poet or as a musician, but feels her songs are attractive and her attitude warm and friendly.

So far her tours have included only England, apart from a brief 13-country tour of Europe last year.

When she returns to Vancouver she will also resume her work as a secretary to finance another tour of England which she hopes to make next year.

A WORKING TROUBADOR—Vera Johnson, 50, is a folk-singer who works as a secretary in Vancouver to finance her singing tours. She recently concluded a successful tour of England and hopes to make another tour next year. She writes many of the songs she sings and also has had a number of stories published in Canadian magazines. (CP Photo)

WEDDING

CROSBY — PARKS

A summer wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Parks, Trenton, RR 3 on Saturday, June 27, Rev. Wellwood Adam of Wesley united in marriage Irene May Parks of RR 3, Trenton and Byran Crosby of RR 1, Trenton. Mrs. W. Adam provided traditional wedding music before and during the ceremony.

The bride wore a turquoise blue lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

She was attended by her sister Mrs. Harriett Terry of Trenton who wore a white lace piece dress, pink accessories and a corsage of yellow rose buds.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother Noble Crosby of RR 1, Trenton.

Mrs. Harrington as hostess was assisted by Mrs. Ed Peck and Mrs. Glenn Arthur at the reception which followed.

The couple left for a wedding trip to the West Coast and on return will reside at Trenton RR 1.

Director Finds Job Rewarding

TORONTO (CP) — Marjorie Dillingham says she was running a post office for her husband when her brother asked her if she would administer a nursing home for him. She agreed to try it for a year or two.

That was in 1954. Now she is director of personnel for his company's nine nursing homes and the six private homes it manages in several provinces. Her own office is in one of the homes in Vancouver.

Mrs. Dillingham says she now finds the work fascinating and has discovered that affection and interest can do much to help ailing elderly people.

"We all need a sense of belonging, we all need love and affection and financial security. But we sometimes forget that and set the elderly apart.

"The first home I took over I tore apart inside. It was dull. We put up colorful drapes—anything that looked like home. The patients got a lift from this.

"We tried to give them things to do to keep their minds just sitting—anything to get them from their rooms."

Her patients knit and paint, they make family gifts for Christmas and wrap them. In one case a woman who had been a good cook began a collection of recipes. Occasionally Mrs. Dillingham says she would make one of the recipes for patient dinner and serve it for tea.

Some of the homes have begun to have pets, and every pet patient does something for them.

"Even the senile will try if you help them. It lifts them out of a feeling that they are no use and gives them a sense of belonging."

Patients are allowed to take some things in their hospitals with them, such as a favorite chair or family pictures.

They had an assemblage at home. When they're moved from that they become depressed; some don't take away. If they have a favorite chair, or pictures of the family, it helps them adjust.

When an elderly person lives with the family, Mrs. Dillingham says a troubled situation sometimes arises because people ignored or in the way. She says temporary patients have told her staff about soon they become bored and lure all their attention on the kids without saying hello to their elderly host.

She says sometimes the young and family members forget that the older person has always been like, and ignore his likes and dislikes, knowledge and opinions. An elderly person, she says, is the same person he has been—just older.

"To Touch or Not to Touch" Question Bothers Reader

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: You wrote about how people need to be touched. That we are inclined to be distant with each other and that everybody needs affection. How far can we go with this touching business? — To Touch Or Not To Touch.

Dear To Touch: Let's get this straight: I'm talking about the touch of a hand on a shoulder; a mother's arm around a tiny waist; loving pats to comfort a restless sleeper; gentle strokes to soothe a frayed brow.

Or the kiss given between sisters or close friends on greeting or parting.

I'm not talking about the disturbing caresses which arouse passion between members of the opposite sex. But husband - wife affection? I'm all for it.

Dear Doris: My daughter is soon to be married. My only problem so far as protocol is concerned is: My two sisters insist upon giving her a shower together.

Is this proper? Please tell me who is able to give a shower. I don't want people discussing in private about this not being proper. Doubtful.

Dear Doubtful: I'd hate to count how many times this question comes up. Relatives must be giving showers again and again.

It is against all the rules of etiquette. Relatives do not ask a bride's friends for gifts — and that is what a shower amounts to. Neither sons nor cousin nor grandmother nor sister nor any relative of either bride or groom may properly put on such an affair.

If the aunts want to do something nice for your bride-to-be, they might give her a tea or a dinner or evening party. No gifts expected.

Dear Doris: I am still in a date over the fantastic response I got from your readers, when you published my letter asking for used cards of any kind. They came in from all over...Canada.

It has been quite exciting receiving friendly notes and best wishes.

The children are busy as beavers making scrap-books, little decorative baskets and new greeting cards. We use the flowers on the used cards for beautiful decorations.

I've saved all the stamps and send them to a cancer organization. I save the string. There isn't much wasted.

If any of your readers have helpful hints they would care to share we would be forever grateful. Kospid 50 pairs of hands busy keeps me and my sight willing workers out of mischief. — Mrs. Anne Thompson, 37 - Strikeyard, Ioco, B.C.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What a worthwhile Saturday-morning project: A voluntary arts and crafts class for 10 children.

And bless you, dear readers! Have you any further ideas for Mrs. Thompson?

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Gourmet Recipe

By MARY MOORE

Wyn and Wil are my beloved sister-in-law and brother. When they come home from Florida in February or March they always bring me some goodies that they find that they know will interest me.

Last year they brought me a jar of spiced lemon-lime preserves. I determined to make a reasonable facsimile of the gourmet item I did. This column has been waiting to be released for a year.

Through this column I know some church groups who search for gourmet items to sell at their fall bazaars. They make them in the summer while fruits are in season and stash them away for their worthy before-Christmas money-making efforts. This is one such item. But most of you will make these black cherry preserves for special occasion breakfasts at home.

SPICED BLACK CHERRY PRESERVES (four 8-oz. jars)

2 lemons washed and sliced wafer thin (use below)
1 cup hot water
12 whole cloves
Three 2" sticks cinnamon
8 cups granulated sugar

Cut the wafer-thin lemon slices in quarters, add hot water to them and put them on to simmer in 2½ - qt. pot while you pit the cherries. Our cherries measured six cups, packed, when pitted. Add cherries to lemon slices and water, along with the whole spices and sugar and stir until sugar dissolves, then simmer 2 hrs. Ours reduced by half, I know, because I measured it with a ruler. Fish out the cinnamon sticks if desired.

Pour into four 8-oz. jars, seal with new melted paraffin and cover with lids lined on inside edge with rubber seal. Twist - top sterilized baby food jars are ideal for this.) Wash and label.

Seattle Doctor Swamped with Requests for Abortions

Washington state law forbids an abortion unless it is to save the life of the mother, although a measure to liberalize the law will be voted on in the November elections.

The doctor is swamped with requests for abortions—234 in one five-day period—but Dr. A. Fraser Koome is known to perform only about 15 a day. Patients receive a local anesthetic, the abortion is performed and they are back on the street in an hour.

"With the requests I get I could work all day, every day, seven days a week," the doctor said in a recent interview. He does little other medical work than operate the clinic, located in a pleasant Seattle suburb.

Dr. Koome, 41, a Dutchman who emigrated to the United States after receiving his MD at the University of Amsterdam, says he feels fairly safe about not being prosecuted, that the state will allow his clinic to continue operating until the law is changed.

A former nurse who worked for him told the state medical society about his abortion clinic. Dr. Koome was called before it, but proceedings were dismissed—no surprise to the doctor.

"I had already been informed that no physicians here during the last 20 years had lost his license over a simple abortion charge unless he had fouled it up medically or overcharged."

Dr. Koome charges $150 for the operation—it can cost up to $250 in a hospital—if the patient can afford it. He said he is making "quite a bit of money" but is using it to set up another clinic.

His clinic started several years ago, when a divorced woman with two children came to him for an abortion. He performed one operation only because several other Seattle-area doctors who regularly did them were unavailable.

"I will never forget that first operation. I felt it would be an intolerable situation for this woman to have another child and finally I thought: 'I have the skills at my fingertips. I should help this woman.'

"But when I was actually doing it, putting in the scraper, then turning it around, killing the foetus—I felt horrible. Driving back from the hospital I felt like a murderer.

"Now it doesn't bother me at all. I feel it is the humane thing to do. But I realize it is this type of conscience and conditioning that I have in front of my colleagues."

He said there are a number of "normal MDs" who have been performing abortions in the Seattle area for years "and the prosecutor has taken the attitude that he doesn't prosecute unless he receives a complaint from a woman who has had an abortion."

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE W.I.

The June meeting of Melrose W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Grace McLaren with an attendance of 36 including the 4-H Club girls.

The meeting opened in the usual way with Mrs. John Macfarlane conducting the meeting. The first item of business dealt with the appointment of leaders for the fall 4-H project. With a prospective membership of 16 it will be necessary to form two clubs. Three women have already offered their services and Mrs. Charles Bates Jr. offered to be an assistant. All four will attend the two day training school to be held in Foxboro late in August under the leadership of the newly appointed home economist, Miss Bateman whose office will be in Stirling.

Belleville fair dates were announced and women's institutes are again invited to display articles depicting a hobby of their choice. A committee was appointed to see if Melrose W.I. could arrange for the placement of on entry. The club girls are planning to exhibit some of their articles as well.

Mrs. Don McLaren attended the district directors' meeting and reported that this year convention will be held at Club Canara Oct. 28 and 29, the theme of which is "Go Forward, Look Upward".

District president Mrs Wellman will hark all her experiences taken care of when she attends the national convention in Winnipeg.

No Dream

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Mrs. J. A. Kockemoer had been sleeping poorly for months. So her husband refused to believe her when she woke from a nightmare and ran screaming to his bedroom to tell him she had found a snake in her bed. "It's all in the mind," he said soothingly. Finally he went to look and found a poisonous spitting cobra rearing at him. He killed it with a broom.

Ann Landers

Girl in Dilemma On Losing Lense

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I feel like a big fool writing to you because I honestly don't know how you can help me. Here goes, anyway.

ANN LANDERS

I'm a girl 16 who finally got mom to buy me contact lenses after two whole years of begging. They are expensive and there were many things we needed worse in the family. Well, I have been wearing my lenses for two months and loving every minute of it. Last week I dropped a lens while trying to put in in. I was sitting on the bed at the time. I called my mom and my little brother to help me find it. We searched for 15 minutes and mom finally shook it out of the pillowcase. She was very annoyed and told me if I ever lost a lens for keeps she would not replace it and I'd have to go back to wearing glasses.

Well, last night I went to take my lenses out and one was missing. I have no idea when it fell out or where it is. I'm half crazy from searching and it's nowhere in sight. If I have to go back to glasses, I'll just die.

Do you have any suggestions? — CYCLOPS.

DEAR CY: Look in your eye. Carefully, I mean. The lens might have slipped way over to the corner — way up, or way down. If you can't find it, ask your doctor to check the eye before you give up.

If the lens is not in your eye, you must assume it is lost. Tell your mom and offer to help pay for the replacement out of your allowance, sitting money or by doing without something else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I married a girl I had known briefly. I am not sure if she was pregnant when we married. I am certain, however, that the child she expects is mine.

I learned recently that my wife is a heroin addict. How she managed to keep it from me is incredible, but she did, and now I must face facts. My question is this: Will the child be affected? If so how? Do you have any advice for us? — CHARLOTTSVILLE WORRIES.

DEAR C.W.: A woman who uses drugs during pregnancy will usually produce a drug-dependent child. If your wife has not told her doctor that she is a heroin addict, she should do so at once. The infant will need medication at birth to relieve withdrawal symptoms.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have some friends who are fun to be with but they are a little phony. They have a nice home, furnished in rather strange taste. Some of their furniture is very expensive. Interspersed with the fine pieces, they have some terrible junk which they call "esthetic antiques." They have done the same thing with their paintings. They have a few good oils and five or six cheap things.

Last week I nearly keeled over when I noticed that someone had removed the artists' signatures and substituted the signatures of Andrew Wyeth, Monet and Chagall. Whoever did the forging spent a lot of time practicing because the signatures look authentic. How these people had the temerity to do such a thing I don't know. Is there a law against it? — BASHED AND UNABASHED.

DEAR BASHED: So long as your friends keep the pictures in their home they are breaking no law (except the unwritten law of decency and fair play) but if they should attempt to sell the paintings, they could be arrested for fraud.

Ted: "Jimmy is hitting Joe. Are you going to spank him?"

Mother: "Jimmy, how can you act so naughty!" You go right to your room and stay there. It's a good thing I have Ted to keep an eye on you."

Ted: Jimmy is fighting again."

Mother: "We don't tattle on our brothers unless they're doing something dangerous. Joe will call me if he needs help."

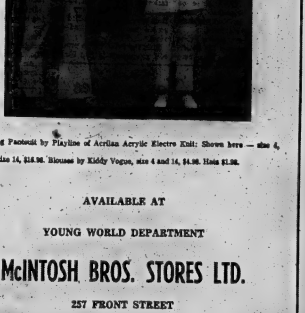
Arrived with the knowledge he wouldn't lose his licence to practise medicine if he performed abortions, Dr. Koome wrote a letter to Governor Dan Evans saying he would be setting up an abortion clinic, with copies to local papers.

The sign outside his office door reads: Reproductive Crisis Clinic. What he is doing "is known over the whole world," he said he has resigned so many referrals from colleagues that if prosecution should be threatened he could "name a lot of names of people who have been aiding and abetting."



At first women came from all over to his clinic, but with the crush of applicants he has been forced to limit abortions to Washington state women, and they must be less than three months pregnant.

A survey of more than 1,102 patients showed 73 of them under 25 years of age and 64 of them single. Nine were Roman Catholics and the rest Protestant or professed no religion.

"The youngest I ever had was 13. In my opinion any girl who is single and under 15 is not ready for a child. Either there is a forced marriage or they are too young to take on this job.

"All of them are desperate and when they come to me it can all be solved so simply . . . It prevents so many problems in such a simple way. In my opinion it is inhumane and cruel not to do it."

Allan Blakeney New Saskatchewan NDP Chief

REGINA (CP) — Allan Blakeney emerged as leader of the Saskatchewan New Democratic Party Saturday after a three-day party convention filled with strife and tension.

The 44-year-old lawyer and deputy leader of the party since 1967 won on the third ballot in the four-way race after trailing Roy Romanow, 33-year-old MLA and Saskatoon lawyer, on the first two ballots.

Mr. Blakeney succeeds Woodrow Lloyd who led the provincial party for nine years, three of them as premier.

The tension was generated by the youth section within the party—many of them supporters of the so-called waffle group that urges a return to true socialism and which advocates acceptance of the manifesto unveiled last year at the party's national convention by Toronto economist Melville Watkins.

Mr. Blakeney, while admitting the party may move "more moderately forward than it has in the past," said his leadership will see the party move on "substantially the same line as in the past."

Both Mr. Blakeney and Mr. Romanow avoided outright acceptance of the waffle group and, urged a new style of social democracy—a term associated with NDP Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba.

The strength of the left-leaning group was surprising to most of the 650 delegates, including Don Mitchell, a 30-year-old political science teacher, who apparently received most of their support in the leadership race.

He was forced out of the contest on the second ballot after receiving 219 votes—almost one-quarter of the total cast.

Mr. Mitchell would not vote on the third ballot and almost 100 delegates joined him in refusing to endorse either Mr. Blakeney or Mr. Romanow on the final vote.

But, after the final result, Mr. Blakeney said he was confident he could unite the party and overcome the bitterness.

The fourth leadership candidate was 34-year-old George Taylor, Saskatoon alderman and lawyer, who dropped out after the first ballot.

Policies adopted during the convention indicated a tendency to move further left but some of the efforts by young people to amend the party's constitution were unsuccessful.

They also were alienated when Rev Cherrie of Swift Current was defeated in his attempt to retain the presidency of the provincial party.

Mr. Currie was defeated by Gordon MacKinlay, the provincial organizer.

Canada's Big Problems in Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — The cities hold Canada's most urgent problems and ways must be found to help federal, provincial and municipal governments join forces to tackle them, says Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Science Council of Canada.

An environmental council is needed to co-ordinate efforts to preserve the natural environment and to improve the urban, he says.

He urges creation of a federal department of resources and environment, saying that such a step and its scope deserve "most careful consideration."

Dr. Solandt's 10-page report, made public today, is part of the science council's fourth annual report to the government.

An accompanying note says his views accord with the council's but represent his thinking and not necessarily those of the council members.

Dr. Solandt makes it plain that both the environmental council and the department of renewable resources proposals will be made formally to the government later in forthcoming science council documents.

Dr. Solandt says flatly that "the most urgent problems are in the cities."

Later he repeats a recent public plea that Canada must now set itself a population goal for the future. Until population pressure in the cities and the flight of people from the country is solved, "we would certainly be wise to maintain a slow rate of population growth."

The need for combined federal, provincial and municipal effort to tackle urban problems "will require federal initiative," Dr. Solandt says.

The kind of problems cited:

—Law and law enforcement. Divided jurisdiction fails to mobilize available resources of science and technology to support enforcement and prevent crises.

—Road safety. Why 5,000 persons killed annually on highways, only extremely small amounts are spent on applying science and technology to road safety and similar problems. This cited as another example of divided urisdiction preventing growth of adequate research facilities.

—Pollution, money and brains must be invested to provide clean air and water and a land free of the "garbages" that society creates. An urgent need is to know the nature of the problem, the extent of ignorance and the need for more research.

The problems make it clear more than ever that a mechanism is needed to co-ordinate the widely dispersed efforts to preserve the natural environment and to improve the urban environment, he says.

"Leadership must be provided by some widely based co-ordinating agency which might be called an Environmental Council. The Science Council . . . has made a more detailed proposal in the near future."

Dr. Solandt is sharply critical of low productivity and efficiency in three major service industries—economy—health care, education and government, "and the greatest of these is government."

Mexican Party Extends Its 42-year-old Rule

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Echeverria Alvarez won Mexico's presidency for the expected landslide Sunday, extending the 42-year hold of the PRI—the institutional Revolutionary party —on the Mexican government, by another six years.

The PRI said unofficial returns from 4,822 of the country's 36,901 voting precincts gave Echeverria 2,220,000 votes to 158,324 for Efrain Gonzales Morfin of the PAN, the National Action party.

Although there never was any doubt Echeverria would win, Gonzales Morfin refused to concede defeat. His supporters claimed there were many voting irregularities, but a government election chief rejected the claims.

No violence or disturbances were reported from any part of the country, and the turnout apparently was heavy despite a small "don't vote" campaign originated by disenchanted youths. The total of 2,800,000 persons eligible to vote included about 3,000,000 18-to-20-year-olds who could cast ballots for the first time.

The 43-year-old president-elect, who takes office Dec 1, also claimed a resounding victory for PRI candidates elections for 48 seats in the Senate and 210 in the Chamber of Deputies.

Echeverria said he would not consider the vote a triumph until he finishes his six-year term and Mexicans are satisfied he has fulfilled his mandate.

He is not expected to make any changes in Mexico's foreign policy. During his wide-ranging, 221-day campaign he frequently referred to Mexico's need for balance between the United States and the rest of Latin America, and called for a renewed spirit of Latin Americanism.

"This election is a strong and decisive step for the strengthening of democracy in Mexico," he said. "The next government will increase the ties of Latin Americanism, Latin America is a brotherhood. We have brother countries, and we must help each other."

Echeverria had the endorsement of outgoing President Gustavo Diaz Ortaz, who was barred by the constitution from seeking a second term.

Gonzales Morfin, the 40-year-old son of a prominent Catholic opposition candidate, said he had spent more than $80,000 to give voters a choice and "try to awaken the civic conscience of the electorate."

Guards Take Part In Thefts

NEW YORK (AP) — Thieves are carting off untold millions of dollars worth of goods from piers in the Port of New York, and the shipping industry doesn't seem to care, the waterfront commissioners said Sunday. They recommended that the Waterfront Commission be given greater power to move against the thieves.

During four years, the number of private pier guards arrested for stealing cargo exceeded the number of thieves they apprehended, the commission reported.

It said professional thieves with underworld connections have inflicted "huge and regular losses" on the container-cargo docks at Port Elizabeth, N.J., and Staten Island, N.Y. In two years, thieves stole a container with $32,000 worth of hams; five containers of whisky worth $250,000 and a container of cigarettes worth $138,000.

During 1968 and 1969, the report said, a total of 91 container - cargo thefts occurr...ith the value of cargoes generally ranging from $50,000 to $200,000.

The commission charged that the shipping industry "has shown little or no appreciation of the magnitude of its responsibility for cargo protection."

French-language Units Said Just Experimental

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's experiment in setting up French-language units in the federal public service will be scrapped if it throws a monkey wrench in the whole administrative apparatus, Public Service Commissioner Gerard Pelletier says.

Speaking on the CTV television program Question Period, Mr. Pelletier said a certain number of French-language units will be established in the next 18 months and "we'll see what it achieves."

The program was shown Sunday.

If the experiment does not work it planned the government will have to find "something else," the minister said.

Public servants will have to become bilingual if they want to go beyond a certain level in the government.

As soon as Prime Minister Trudeau announced the policy in the Commons June 22, ministers and deputy ministers were asked to survey their departments to see whether they could have French-speaking units.

"We had a very positive response, I must say."

New Law Called Anti-labor Act

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Through its proposed labor law amendments the Ontario government has exposed itself as anti-labor and arrogant in industrial relations, Stanley Little, president of the 140,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees, said Sunday.

Mr. Little told the opening session of a week-long school for CUPE members that the government's failure to bring under the Labor Relations Act 200,000 workers without collective bargaining marks the government as anti-labor.

Civil servants, agricultural workers, teachers and professional workers were denied bargaining under the act. Civil servants bargain through the Civil Service Association but do not have the right to strike. Teachers bargain with school boards and may resign. Professional groups are not covered by the act.

More Ulster Bloodshed Likely

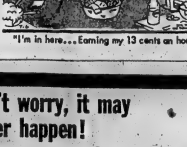
BELFAST (AP) — The British army brought its weight to Northern Ireland last week to an unprecedented 11,500 men, charged with the seemingly impossible task of keeping peace between feuding Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Politicians on both sides of the religious divide agree on only one thing—that coming weeks are critical and are likely to add to past bloodshed.

The gloom surrounding Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark's government has been deepened by the belief that the outlawed Irish Republican Army or one of its splinter groups now is working as a cohesive force.

The weekend Belfast shootings, during which five persons were killed, were accompanied by a series of major fires in factories and warehouses complex. Military authorities say the fires were started by skilled arsonists using sophisticated devices.

Thus the belief in the provincial government is that Northern Ireland's troubles have changed, in character. The Protestant-Catholic rioting goes on, but behind it, said Chichester-Clark, is organized attempt at revolution.



Something of the same kind appeared to be going on simultaneously in the neighboring Irish Republic.

Dublin, the republican capital, has suffered four major fires in the last week which police put down to arson. The apparent object in Dublin is to upset Prime Minister Jack Lynch, whom extreme republicans charge with playing along too closely with the old enemy, England.

The assortment of nationalists, idealists, anarchists, Trotskyites and other branches of socialism and communism in the background of the Belfast trouble are even talking of getting the Irish Republican Army and the Ulster Liberation Front.

Militant Protestants in the Sandhill Road and Sandy Row strongholds are bitterly angry that their traditional parades have come under attack from rock-throwing Catholics. The Protestants are talking of taking the law into their own hands, as they did last August in an orgy of shooting and burning.

Canadian Youth Dies On U. S. Hunger Strike

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — A young Canadian who died after a 20-day fast in the Whatcom County jail "presumably starved to death," says the county coroner.

Robert Lyle Guest, 22, of London, Ont., died Friday in a local hospital.

Coroner Robert L. Rood said Saturday a preliminary autopsy report indicated there could be no other cause of death but starvation.

"There's no question to be solved—he starved to death," Rood said, ruling out an inquest.

Guest was arrested June 12 for illegal entry into the United States and ordered to serve 20 days before deportation.

Undersheriff Lu Bisallion said he learned Tuesday that Guest was fasting for universal citizenship and reported his action to Assistant U.S. attorney Richard Schaef in Seattle Thursday.

Schaef said he told Whatcom County authorities to have Guest examined by a physician. He said they told him later in the day Guest had been taken to a physician's office. The next he heard, Schaef said, was that Guest had died.

The Bellingham Herald said it has received three letter from county jail prisoners since Guest's death contending jailers knew of Guest's fast for some time. The paper said one letter was signed by 10 prisoners.

Opticals Focus Efforts on Carbide

American Optical continued its late-season upsurge pounding Union Carbide 17-6 Sunday, allowing the Intelligencer to increase their Industrial Softball League lead to two points. The Intell missed a chance to increase their lead further as the Post Office came up with two runs in the last inning to win, 9-8 in 9.

A two-run first inning was as AOCO banged out 16 hits enough to help Paul Cassidy in their 17-9 win.

Ron Walks and Ron McCoy split the winner's mound duties, allowing six hits and the same number of walks, while fanning a pair of batters.

Ray Lucas and Gary Little were the pitching victims, giving up nine walks in addition to the 16 safeties. They struck out one batter.

Ron McCoy provided much of the AOCO power, belting a homer, double and single. Leslie collected 4 home runs and two singles, while Charlton had three hits and Sagriff two.

Zalkowitz homered and singled in a losing effort, with Reynolds and Jack Lucas getting two hits apiece.

A last-inning overthrow allowed the Post Office to wipe out a 3-1 Intell lead.

Ron Colliden went the distance for the Intell, issuing just six walks and two while striking out two batters.

For the Post Office, it was George Johnson, Jr. who registered for nine hits, walking two men and fanning three.

Gord St. Louis was best for the Postics with a double and single, with Harry Reid, Brian Gerlapy, John Bohns, Charlie Peters and George Sinfield getting the other hits.

Bill Hoard and Maurice Switzer swatted three hits apiece to pace the Intell attack. Single safeties went by Pat Brown, Eric Emerson and Randy Johnstone.

In a Friday night game, the Post Office picked up an easy two points by downing Deloro Stellite 17-2.

Winning Pair Liked Tough Nine

June Broad and Fred Fisher got better as the going got tougher to win Sunday's instalment of the Bay of Quinte Country Club's Belleview Cup. The pair rolled up six pars on the tough Quinte back nine to win the two-ball competition with net 70. That placed the winners one-half stroke ahead of Betty Gregory and Ralph Ketcheson, runners-up in the field of 36 twosomes. The pairs of Audrene Moorman and Myles Tillotson and Gloria Goodwin and Jack Ryan shared third-place honors with 71.

CBRT Peewees Win Their Share

The Belleville C.B.R.T. peewees went two-for-three over the weekend but unfortunately a second-round loss to the host Cobourg team eliminated the locals from the annual Kool-aid baseball tournament.

Cobourg won the tourney final 16-13 over Oshawa.

They did win their first game in the tourney, an 11-8 thriller over Port Hope.

Billy Whalen and Clyde Rodney fired the victory, fanning ten batters and walking eight.

Brian Turner paced Belleville at bat with a homer, triple and double. Tony Meagher, Chris Masterson, Mike McClellan, and Billy Whalen all had two singles to aid the 14-hit cause.

Bill Austin and Ken Awacks took the loss for Port Hope giving up three walks while striking out 14. Jim Kondrachuck with a triple and single and Dave Monteith with a double and single were the big hitters for Port Hope.

In a league game Sunday afternoon Belleville whipped Whitby 13-2. Mike McClellan pitched five-hit ball and struck out five batters while walking only two. He also had three singles to pace a 14-hit Belleville assault. Kevin Day had a triple and double and David Holland with a triple and single accounted for other B.C.T. hits.

Steve Largerson and Mike Rowley were touched for the loss but they gave up three batters and walked six for their effort. Reiland Barlow was the best Whitby hitter as he punched a double and a single.

Edney Cleans House

Kingston lawn bowler Dick Edney cleaned house Sunday, winning all three of his games in the District 15 Provincial Singles knockout competition.

The elimination, played at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, saw Edney advance to Zone competition after besting the field of three Belleville, two Trenton, and two other Kingston bowlers.

Napanee Golfers Not Homers

NAPANEE — After winning the Quinte Cup on the Bay of Quinte golf course last summer, nobody could call Napanee's nine team team "homers" for duplicating the feat on their own fairways Sunday.

Napanee won yesterday's four - club match play event with 27 points from Quinte and Picton opponents.

The Trenton Golf and Country Club contingent was two points back, with the Bay of Quinte team earning 16 points for their matches with Trenton and Napanee.

Next year's Quinte Cup will be held at Trenton, with the 1972 Institution scheduled for Picton, where the four-club team competition began in 1923.

Gary Halfway Home

LONDON, Ont. (CP-Staff) — Gary Bowerman's second straight $1,100 pay cheque has pushed him over the halfway mark in his fight to retain his professional golfers' touring card.

The Belleville native balanced to a final-round 78 Sunday but his 72-71-69-78-290 Canadian Open total was good enough for a 22nd place tie and $1,328.

Bowerman was among eight golfers who toured the tough par-72 London Hunt and Country Club layout in 290, including Toronto's George Knudsen and separated Kitchener amateur Gary Cowan.

Bowerman's $1,229 payoff pushed his official first-year tour earnings past the half-way mark to $2,503 but he needs win to retain his PGA card.

He also won $1,100 for a third-place finish at last week's Ontario Open, but the money did not count towards the official PGA totals.

Markham Finds Climate Right

The Markham Peewees found the Belleville climate and competition to their liking during the annual Quinte Homebuilders Association Peewee Softball Tournament on Saturday as they swept through the day - long tournament without a loss and captured the "A" trophy.

Threats of rain in the morning failed to stymie Markham in their first game against arch - rival North Bendale as they nipped their Toronto counterparts 4-3. The win was extra satisfying for the Bendale team had beaten Markham in the previous two meetings of the clubs both by convincing scores.

As the sun came out, Markham began to shine and unfortunately the Belleville Deseau Brothers Sparks, called up to fill in for absentees teams, fell victim to Robinson's nobitter and a 19-0 shellacking.

In the championship game Markham came back from a three - run deficit in the first inning to whip Napanee 8-4 and return the trophy to Toronto.

"It was a fantastic tournament and a great day for it. I only wish Cobourg had been here. We lost to them last year and that's the reason we came back, to play them," said Markham coach Gerry O'Callaghan.

After the first round loss to Markham the North Bendale team found the going easier as they bulled their way to the "B" championship. They whipped Unionville 13-2 and bombed Madoc 19-4 in the final game.

"They always put on a good tournament here, and I'm afraid because of the rain and Saturday and the subsequent absence of some of the better teams, a few of the new teams were pretty well outclassed," complained Bendale coach Mike Criscione.

In other action during the tournament Belleville's Belch Construction defeated Madoc 17-10, Napanee beat Point Anne 11-1, and the Deacon Brothers Sparks surprised Unionville 13-7, all in first - round games. Napanee upped Belleville 4-3 and Madoc bombed Point Anne 14-1 in second - round action.

Besides winning the grand championship Markham also took home the most valuable player award. Right - hander Bob Craig was awarded the trophy for his outstanding play in field and at bat.

Most Valuable

Markham right-fielder Bob Craig receives the most valuable player award from city recreation department representative Cliff Belch at the end of Saturday's Quinte Homebuilders' Association Peewee Tournament. Bob was a major factor in his team's march to the "A" Championship.

Billy Casper Says:

Golf's Million Dollar Winner

SQUARE YOUR ADDRESS

For maximum economy, you want to be able to swing the clubhead squarely into the back of the ball with the slickest "hooking" discreetly at the target. Such a swing is naturally encouraged by a "square" address.

By this I mean that the shoulders, hips and feet should be on lines parallel to the intended line of flight. Furthermore, the clubface must be exactly perpendicular to this line at address. Often a golfer will develop a faulty alignment and not realize it. One who tends to hook the ball will aim more and more to the right, thus making it more likely than ever that he will hook. The habitual slicer is guilty of the same fault, except of course, that he faces more and more to the left.

Have someone check your stance on occasion to see that you are square and lining up on target.

Zarley's Open Win Worth More Than All His '69 Efforts

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Kermit Zarley smiled Sunday as he came off the 18th green at the London Hunt and Country Club after finishing a five-under-par 67.

There were contenders on the course behind him, but only a miracle could have prevented him from winning the Canadian open golf championship, the $50,000 purse funds that go to the first-place finisher, and the Seagram's Gold Cup.

While better-known pros like Chi Chi Rodriguez, Lebron Harris Jr., Art Wall Jr. and George Archer were losing strokes to par on the lush, 7,188-yard par 72 course, Zarley charged from four strokes off the pace for a 279 total and his second victory since joining the tour in 1964.

"I feel like Sibby Sullivan today coming from that. far back. . . I had to do the same thing to win the Kaiser," Zarley said in the clubhouse awaiting official word that he was the Canadian Open winner. He was referring to the one-time wonder horse from the West Coast who specialized in coming from several lengths back of the field to win.

He also was four strokes behind leader Dave Marr when he charged back to win the Kaiser International Open in January, 1968.

The $25,000 he pocketed Sunday was more than he earned on the tour last year when he finished with just over $24,000, was 73rd on the money-earning list and had to qualify to get on the tour this year. His best finishes this year had been a seventh in the Texas Open and a 15th at the Los Angeles Open. His 1970 earnings of $13,229 place him 77th on the money list.

Three strokes back of the 26-year-old pro from Houston, Tex., was first-round leader Gibby Gilbert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who set a course record 65 Thursday. He earned second-place money of $14,300.

Rodriguez, from Puerto Rico, co-leader with Harris after Saturday's third round, and Bob Rosburg of Independence, Mo., shared third-place money of $7,250 each with scores of 283. Harris, under par.

Harris, from Stillwater, Okla., was alone in fifth place at 284 followed by Phil Rodgers of LaJolla, Calif., at 285. In at 286 were Bob Murphy of Johnson-ville, Fla., John Miller of San Francisco, Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Wall of Hacienda, Pa., and Archer from Gilroy, Calif.

The only Canadian threat going into Sunday's final 18 holes, amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., shot himself out of contention on Sunday's front nine.

He was three over par on the first after hitting his tee shot into a water hazard, and scored an eight on the par-four fifth, finishing the front nine in 43, seven over par, and the tournament at 296, two over par.

Another amateur, Nick Wenlock of Burlington, Ont., paced the eight Canadians at 288. Touring pros George Knudson and Gary Bowerman were in a group with Cowan at 289 while Al Balding of Toronto was with nine others at 293, four over. Amateur Wayne McDonald of Brampton, Ont., finished at 294.

Zarley birdied the first, eighth, ninth, 11th, 13th and 14th holes. He went over par on only the 15th which he said "played quite long." His playing partner, Wall, also found the hole long after his tee shot went into the gallery along the left side of the fairway and struck a course marshall, Don Jackson of London, on the head and ricocheted straight back into the fairway.

A marshall near Jackson said the ball seemed to glance off the back of his head, splitting the skin. But Jackson was back on his feet to greet Wall and tell him everything was OK. He was later treated at the clubhouse.

Zarley said later he boosted up on the final nine holes. His driving was inconsistent and got him into trouble, especially on the 16th and 18th holes.

Warmup 'Brilliant'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian track and field team warmed up for the British Commonwealth Games in Edinburg later this month by establishing three national records and defeating Czechoslovakia's Prague track team 103-78 in a dual meet Sunday. Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., leaped six feet in the women's high jump for a Canadian and Commonwealth record, and Brenda Elder of Vancouver made 20 feet, 2¼ inches for a new mark in the long jump. Bruce Simpson of Toronto scored the third record of the meet by clearing 16 feet, 6¼ inches in the pole vault.

Ridley Rowers Win

HENLEY ON THAMES (CP) — A sturdy crew from Ridley College of St. Catharines, Ont., gave Canada its first-ever win at the Henley Royal Regatta by stroking to victory in the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup. The Canadian defeated Hampton grammar school of England to win the Cup by 2½ lengths over the one-mile 550-yard Thames River course. The time was seven minutes six seconds. The victory was the first by a Canadian crew since the Henley competition was opened to foreign competitors in 1964. East and West German crews took most of the other major prizes on the final day Saturday. The East Germans won the Grand Challenge for eights, the premier event at Henley, and the Silver Goblet for paired oars. West German oarsmen took the Prince Philip Challenge Cup for coxed fours and the Diamond Challenge Sculls. In all, crews from outside Britain won nine of the 19 major cups.

Cubs Tumble Three Places

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Cubs are going down in the National League standings—but not without a fight.

The Cubs have lost 15 of their last 17 games and tumbled from first place to fourth in the National League's East Division. All the frustrations of the slump-ridden Cubs were evident in the last inning of Sunday's 5-2 loss to Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis was at bat and after ducking a close one, he started saying—to no one in particular but loud enough for plate umpire Nick Colosi to hear—that he'd got even.

"Ellis kept saying he was going to get somebody," said Colosi, "so I decided to stop it right there and then."

Colosi summoned Chicago manager Leo Durocher and Danny Murtaugh, skipper of the Pirates, to a home plate conference to head off the war. But the truce came too late. Moments after the conference broke up, Durocher exchanged angry words with Ellis and the brawl was on.

When peace was restored, the Pirates finished basking the Cubs on the scoreboard and dropped Chicago five games behind first-place New York Mets. The Cubs led the division by 4½ games when their slide started June 21.

The Pirates, who have taken over second place in the NL East with 18 victories in the last 13 games, were spurred Sunday by Rich Hebner's two-run homer in the first inning.

The Mets got a home run and RBI from Ron Swoboda for the first time since May 31, and it helped beat the Phillies. Tommie Agee's single, extending his hitting streak to 16 games, was the only hit in a two-run seventh that gave the Mets their winning margin after Swoboda's homer had broken a 2-2 tie in the sixth.

McLain Beaten by Boog's Bad Hop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit's Denny McLain is making up lost ground in a hurry, but he has a long way to go to catch Jim Palmer of Baltimore Orioles.

McLain, making his second start for the Tigers after sitting out a half-season suspension, pitched seven innings against Baltimore Sunday.

But Palmer, the Orioles' ace right-hander, thanked the Tigers on three hits over the full nine innings three years ago, gave up one run in the fifth and another in the sixth. But he escaped further damage each time, leaving five base runners stranded. He was later removed for a pinch hitter.

Boog Powell drove in both runs, with a bad-hop single in the fifth and a sacrifice fly in the sixth, before McLain fanned Frank Robinson for his sixth and last strikeout. Palmer won his 12th victory against five losses.

as the American League's East Division leaders scraped to a 2-1 victory.

The win extended Baltimore's margin to 5½ games over the sagging New York Yankees, who dropped a pair of 7-3 decisions to Washington Senators in the day's only doubleheader.

McLain blanked the Orioles through four innings despite control difficulty. The 26-year-old right-hander, suspended by commissioner Bowie Kuhn last April for alleged gambling ac-

Wimbledon Age Showing

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A year ago at Wimbledon finals day without Australia's Rod Laver would have been unthinkable. But on Saturday an even older player — Ken Rosewall, the Australian veteran who was last in a Wimbledon final back in 1956 — shared the limelight with John Newcombe, a 26-year-old bursting with energy and enthusiasm. In the final, Rosewall put up the show of his life in taking Newcombe to five sets before Newcombe won 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1. It was the first five-set singles since 1949, when Ted Schroeder beat Jaroslav Drobny. This was Rosewall's third final. He lost to Drobny in 1954 and to Lew Hoad in 1956, both in four sets. And in the women's bracket, the center court was treated to another tennis feast, by girls who had been around a long time. In that match, Margaret Court got three quarters of the way to the tennis grand slam — the Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S. titles — by defeating Billie Jean King of the United States 14-12, 11-9 in the longest final ever fought by women.

Misses Make Misses

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Donna Caponi sank a spine-chilling four-foot putt on the final hole Sunday for her second consecutive U.S. women's open golf championship, winning by one stroke over Sandra Spuzich in a wild, error-filled windup. The putt, worth $5,000 to Miss Caponi, gave her a two-over-par on the 305-yard closing hole. Only moments earlier, Miss Spuzich, who won the tournament in 1966 had missed a six-footer for a par that would have assured her of at least a tie for first place. Miss Caponi, who struggled to a closing six-over 77, finished at 287, one stroke ahead of Miss Spuzich and Sandra Haynie.

EDMONTON (CP) — Seven defending champions, four from Russia, enter the final rounds of the world amateur Greco-Roman wrestling championships today with Canadian athletes watching from the sidelines. Most of last year's winners appear certain to capture individual titles as 36 wrestlers remained in contention from a starting list of 152. Of the 24 countries participating in the 10th tournament, Russia has eight wrestlers left in the 10 divisions. Bulgaria and Hungary each has five and Yugoslavia four.

Active Als Look For Big Eastern Improvement

MONTREAL (CP) — There is more new to the 1970 edition of Montreal Alouettes than the management.

The Als, who haven't been in the Eastern Football Conference playoffs since 1966, have been the most active team in the Canadian Football League in general recruitment and off-season wheeling and dealing.

Under first owner Sam Berger, general manager Red O'Quinn, director of player personnel J. P. Gelinas and head coach Sam Etcheverry, the Als hope to shake the doldrums.

"We've cut and traded vigorously for this club," Etcheverry said. "We didn't do it strictly because of new management, but because we felt we needed to do it."

Ray Dalton, now an assistant with B.C. Lions of the western conference, had maintained before leaving here as head coach that the Als were only "a couple of players away from a contender."

Apparently the latest management and coaching staff didn't agree with Dalton's assessment.

As a result, Etcheverry's depth chart for the club's first pre-season exhibition against Winnipeg Blue Bombers here Tuesday night could contain 50 per cent new names. Some of the names will be familiar as a result of their appearances on other CFL rosters, but they will be new to the Als.

Etcheverry, a former quarterback great with the Montreal teams of a decade ago, has not coached a professional club since he left a one-year stint with the old Quebec Rifles of the Continental Football League in 1964.

"It has taken a lot of adjustment," Etcheverry said of his swing back to football from a position as a stockbroker here. "Every coach gets impatient, but I have to remember it's all relatively new to me and to a lot of the players too."

Etcheverry said he will go with three quarterback during the pre-season, four-game stint, and as a former pivot himself he perhaps takes a little extra time with these players.

"I work with them collectively and individually to try to correct their mistakes," Sam added.

He said Sonny Wade, who won the No. 1 spot as a rookie last season, has picked up quickly although sometimes I think we tried to cram too much into him in too short a period."

Etcheverry remains high on Wade and has also been impressed with Montrealer Barclay Allen, who learned his football in city junior ranks and at Southern Illinois, and Tony Passander, an import.

Skip Rochetta, another Montrealer trained in the United States, was cut Saturday.

Allen can also double as a running back, punter and in the defensive backfield, while Passander can also shift to a defensive halfback in an emergency. Rochetta was unable to adapt to a dual role.

"We've got too good running backs to go strongly on a passing game," Etcheverry said. "It might take a little longer to perfect our running game because it's more difficult to develop, but I feel we have good people to do it."

He cites Dennis Duncan, who gained more than 1,000 yards on the ground last season, Dick Smith, a deceptive runner and good receiver from Washington Redskins of the National Football League and newcomer Moses Denson from Maryland State University as the nucleus of a strong running game.

Etcheverry also displays enthusiasm when he speaks of "our good Canadian receivers."

He has Terry Evanshen from Calgary Stampeders, Gary Lefebvre, Tom Pullen and Peter Dalla Riva as wide receivers. Etcheverry said Evanshen, 36, "has retained his peak yet and barring injury could improve over the next few years."

Evanshen will miss Tuesday night's contest because of a leg injury picked up last Thursday in Ottawa in the CFL all-star game.

Etcheverry lists a strong defensive backfield headed by playing-coach Gene Gaines. Gaines will be supplemented by Larry Fairborn, Al Phaneuf, Jim Walker and Lee Sparks, along with import newcomers Merl Code and Richard Davis.

All top candidates for linebacker spots are imports. They are Wayne McDuffie, Fred Jelliffe, Charlie Collins and Mike Widger. Peter Hewlett, the McGill University grad, moves from his linebacker spot to a backup running back position this year.

Steve Smear, the all-American from Penn State and fourth-round first choice of Baltimore Colts, will be tested as a defensive end position, along with other imports Sam Singletary, Steve Scorza and Bill Gennon. Smear left camp 10 days ago declaring himself homesick, but returned of his own volition.

"He simply told me he is ready to play football," Etcheverry said. "This is no big thing because lots of times these young fellows take time to adjust.

"He's a good football player and we'll have him back in there right away."

Etcheverry has been impressed with the work of newcomer Ernie Adams, an import offensive guard and Harry Olszewski, a former all-star in the same position. John Pentecost, the former Ottawa Rough Rider, has been impressive at the offensive line along with import Leon Paiges. Former Toronto-tonian Gordon Judges and Canadian Mike Webster rate high with the coach on defence.

Pagac and veteran Pierre Guindon have taken on various chores, including the work at centre while the case of Gene Cepotelli remains in limbo between the Alouettes and San Francisco 'Gns.

Cepotelli left Hamilton Tiger-Cats two years ago to try his luck with the NFL Philadelphia Eagles and the New York Giants. He was released by the Giants to return here this season, but the San Francisco clubthrows a spoke in the deal by claiming him on waivers.

Etcheverry said he is confident the Als will get Cepotelli eventually, but he has said about it until the situation is cleared, the better."

Trenton Feature Still 'Washout'

The Super Feature at Trenton's Riverview Speedway continues to be a washout, as rain halted the Saturday night card for the second consecutive week.

The rain-delayed feature from the previous week was able to be run, with Saturday's feature slated to be held as the race card opener next weekend.

Larry Stacey continued to pick up pairs of checkered flags, winning the postponed Super Feature and taking first place in the eight-cylinder stock event.

Sam Dingman came on to edge Wayne Foster in the six-cylinder feature, after the event was halted by a three-car crash, wrecking two entries completely.

Bill Card made his presence felt, after a lay-off of several years, by winning the eight-cylinder feature, his third victory of the night.

The danger of allowing the stronger right side to "take over" is always present. Whenever this happens, the structure of the swing immediately breaks down. The left side must be in control and it's best to establish this at the start of the backswing.

Practice making the club back with the left hand providing the only force. The right hand goes along for the ride at this point and should not be forcefully used until impact. Starting back this way will set the stage for a skilful swing correctly controlled by the left side.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Continual Headaches Need Diagnosis and Treatment

An occasional headache deserves no attention and thus taking a household headache - remedy for relief. But headaches that occur often or can't be brushed aside so lightly.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Headaches are my problem. Briefly, I'm 38 years old, am a mother of two sons, 20 and 6 years of age. I had a vaginal hysterectomy in 1963 following the birth of my youngest child. I had an emergency appendectomy in 1965.

But the headaches go back as far as I can remember. When I experienced my first headache I was six months pregnant with my oldest son. And I can barely remember a day since then that I haven't had a headache.

I go to bed with it, wake up with it. I have consulted several doctors. Each says it can't be possible for me to have these daily headaches for such a long period of time. But I live with them; I'm not imagining the pain.

I know it! I could rid myself of the headaches my health would be perfect. I have no other complaints. But the headaches keep getting worse as the days go by. The more set I mention my problem to a doctor he takes off on anything but what I'm there for.

I'm desperate for help. Could you please shed some light on the subject? My only means of relief is patented pain - killers. They only relieve me for about 20 minutes at a time. — Mrs. M.

Comment: Many a doctor gets a headache trying to fathom the reason for a patient's stubborn headaches. Diagnosis is not always easy. But the suffering patient should feel that everything possible diagnostically has been done.

We know that the headaches is one of the most common symptoms that confront the doctor daily. Treatment is not effective until he finds the cause.

As I do not know what tests have been made, Mrs. M., I can't give any specific advice. Nevertheless, here are some suggestions:

1. Have a complete physical by an internist. 2. Have you had your eyes checked by a specialist? In some patients I have seen, wearing glasses has relieved the daily headaches. 3. How are your sinuses? Your ears? 4. Have you had an X-ray of your cervical (neck) spine? Arthritis is often an overlooked cause of headaches that "hang on." 5. Is yours a tension headache? (How are things at home?) 6. Is yours an unrecognized allergic complaint. I've known patients whose headaches have disappeared as if by magic by simply cutting out chocolate, eggs, etc. 7. How are your teeth? 8. Are your blood histamine headaches or perhaps due to migraine?

Mrs. M., somewhere in the above list may be a clue to your trouble. Meanwhile I suggest that you do not depend upon getting "relief from patented pain - killers."

Engage the services of a physician who will do a complete study. Having to fight off headaches every day is an unnatural way to go about getting the rest of life.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 32 years old and have been taking treatment for colitis. My physician claims my trouble is due to nerves. Can this be true? — Mr. L.

Comment: "Colitis" is a vague diagnosis, so is "nerves." Therefore I'll have to answer vaguely. Nerves can influence the large bowel (colon). For example, in such conditions as spastic colitis, ulcerative colitis, etc.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Questions: Ankle sprain — walk on it? Keep foot elevated? Hot or cold bathing? Binding? How long before return to normal? I have a sprained ankle now. — Mrs. R.

Comment: Are you sure it is a sprain and not a break? Treatment will depend upon which it is. Some sprains are worse than fractures. Are you self - treating? Better ask a doctor whether it's all right to walk on it.

Grease from Mechanic's Hands Can Make New Clutch Chatter

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"A week ago a new clutch and pressure plate were installed in my four - year - old car. Afterwards it was difficult to pull away from a standstill without the car shuddering badly. In an attempt to overcome the problem, new motor mounts were installed, but the car continues to shudder when pulling away.

"The clutch does not slip and when the car is in motion the gears change can be done quite smoothly. I would appreciate any suggestions."

Far both the car owner and the mechanic, there is nothing more aggravating than a clutch that chatters and grabs right after the unit has been replaced. Just the slightest defect in the new assembly or a minor oversight by the mechanic when installing it, can result in severe clutch chatter, or grab.

The clutch assembly comprises a pressure plate and disc which is coupled to the engine's flywheel by a number of bolts. The disc is located between the flywheel and pressure plate. Riveted to both sides of the disc are asbestos facings which are formulated from much the same material as brake linings.

When the clutch is engaged, the spring - loaded pressure plate holds the disc hard against the flywheel's face, which with the engine running causes flywheel, disc and pressure plate to rotate as one. When the clutch pedal is disengaged (down to the floor), the pressure plate moves away from the disc, which permits the flywheel and pressure plate to turn without rotating the disc.

As the clutch is engaged, by means of the rotating flywheel, the driving force of the engine is transmitted to the clutch disc, which in turn is attached to a protruding shaft in the front of the transmission. When everything is in good working order, it is this mechanical action that affords smooth getaways.

However, when installing a new clutch assembly, the mating surfaces of the flywheel, pressure plate and clutch disc must be spotless, by clean and dry. Just a few spots of grease or oil on either of the mating areas can result in a violent chatter. Grease from the mechanic's hands, and oil leak from the engine's rear main pulling away. To continue driving a vehicle with a chattering clutch is damaging to the transmission, universal joints and rear axle assembly.

If the car has been serviced or a defective front transmission oil seal is all it takes to contaminate a new clutch assembly.

The face of the flywheel can be damaged by continued use of a clutch in need of repair. To avoid pressure wear, plus the likelihood of grab or chatter as the clutch is engaged, the mating surface of the flywheel should be carefully examined and if necessary machined to a mirror - like finish.

The pressure plate contains a number of fingers which actuate the mechanism in the unit. On both sets of which exchange pressure plates, I have seen instances where installationof one or more of these fingers resulted in poor clutch action.

As well as defective motor mounts, a broken rear leaf type of spring or any excessive play in the driveline, can lead to clutch chatter when

Israel Thinks Russians Fired SAM Missiles

Soviet Pilots May Enter War

By Reuters

The Middle East conflict was at a new crisis point today following an Israeli disclosure that Russian crews may have fired missiles at Israeli jets and Soviet personnel may have been killed in fighting.

The disclosure was made at a news conference Monday night by Israeli Chief of Staff Hayim Bar-Lev, who indicated that Soviet crews may have fired SAM-3 missiles at Israeli planes. He said he believes Soviet personnel may have died during Israeli bombing raids on Egyptian SAM-2 batteries ranged behind the Suez canal.

Lt.-Gen. Bar-Lev stressed Israel's determination to maintain its stand along the Suez canal front.

He said Israeli jets have not attacked any SAM-3 batteries which are farther away from the canal front on the far side of a missile network set up midway between the canal and Cairo.

But he said Israeli pilots reported at least two rockets, which appeared to be of the more sophisticated SAM-3 type, were fired at them.

Observers in Tel Aviv noted Israel's declared determination to maintain its air superiority along the canal, coupled with the new Soviet involvement in the SAM-2 and SAM-3 batteries, could lead to a collision between Israeli and Soviet forces, especially if Israeli planes were hit by SAM-3 batteries manned entirely by Soviet personnel.

The observers said it was believed that Soviet pilots might be ordered to defend the SAM-3 sites. Israel already has charged that Soviet pilots are flying operational missiles over Egypt.

The Tel Aviv report on sophisticated SAM-3 missiles being fired at Israeli planes was seen in Washington as another dangerous spiral in the Middle East situation.

Some U.S. officials regard the introduction of Soviet pilots and missiles into Egypt as a direct challenge to the United States and part of Russia's global policy of expanding its influence wherever possible.

The Nixon administration has turned on a major propaganda show in the last week trying to swing American public attention to the threat of a great-power confrontation in the Middle East.

The administration is concerned that Moscow may halve started a program in radicalise moderate Arab governments to establish control over oil-producing nations, and be seeking to turn the Mediterranean into a Soviet sphere, thus disrupting the world balance of power.

The U.S. aim, apparently, is to include the Middle East in a general settlement of outstanding differences between the United States and the Soviet Union.

If Moscow refuses to step back and ease the threat of a confrontation, officials have not ruled out an American military presence in the Middle East, coupled with more aid to Israel.

Queen Has 20-hour Day

Midnight Sun Flight Leaves Press Stranded

TUKTOYAKTUK, N.W.T. (CP) — The Royal Family crossed the Northwest Passage Monday in a gruelling record day of their Arctic Tour.

The day ended with all but two of the 71 members of the press following the tour trapped in Tuktoyaktuk. The air force Hercules that carried the press to the Arctic seaport broke down, and they were unable to return to Inuvik, 75 miles away, with the royal party.

Efforts to find alternate transportation failed and the prospects for rejoining the tour ended for the day when fog rolled in over the small local airport.

The day began for those on the tour at Frobisher Bay and, by the time it ended, the Royal Family had been on the road for 20 hours, including the loss of three hours as they passed through three time zones.

The Queen and Princess Anne travelled about 1,800 miles by air, visiting an Eskimo village at Resolute and flying on to Inuvik before the last event of the day—a flight to Tuktoyaktuk to see the midnight sun. As it turned out the sun was hidden behind clouds over the northern sea.

Prince Phillip and Prince Charles flew about 2,400 miles, also taking the Frobisher-Resolute-Inuvik route, but making a 575-mile detour by air force Hercules to see Panarctic Oil Ltd. exploration sites on Melville Island.

The Royal Family travelled from Inuvik to Tuk, as the natives call it, in two Twin Otters —one owned by the RCMP and the other by Imperial Oil Ltd.

The press piled in to a huge Hercules with Mounties and some tour officials, who also spent a sleepless night in Tuk.

The temperature was 41, a stiff breeze was blowing off the Beaufort Sea, and it was raining as the Royal Family rode through the bumpy streets of this hamlet of 600. About 500 of

Some Post Offices May Close

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal action Monday has raised the possibility of some post offices closing down until a settlement is reached in the dispute between the post office and the postal workers.

Fourteen district directors, each responsible for up to 1,000 offices, have been instructed to recommend closing offices if they feel huge backlogs of mail have made adequate service possible or if rotating strikes elsewhere left men with nothing to do.

"We've always foreseen that a breakdown in services could mean a shutdown of some offices," a spokesman said.

The Canadian Postal Unions said the government move was only to increase pressure on union negotiators.

Negotiations between the government and the postal unions have dragged on for 11 months with no settlement in view.

Eire Minister Visits Belfast's Catholics

BELFAST (AP) — Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark of Northern Ireland sharply denounced today the clandestine visit to this tense city Monday by the Irish Republic's external affairs minister.

"I am astounded," said Chichester-Clark, "that the foreign minister of any state should show such a lack of courtesy as to visit Northern Ireland without reference to me or to the Northern Ireland government — the more so in the present very serious situation.

"I cannot regard such a visit as helpful and I deplore it."

External Affairs Minister Patrick Hillery said he made his unannounced visit to the riot-torn Falls Road area of Belfast to "relax tension" among the Roman Catholics there.

A source close to the Northern Ireland government said the Irish Republic government is "obviously trying to get United Nations intervention by making this into an international incident."

"This is a trespass by a foreigner into British territory and is against all political convention," the source added.

But the British foreign office said Hillery as an Irishman "is perfectly free to travel to any part of Ireland."

Prince Charles Flies Air Force's Hercules

RAE POINT, N.W.T. (CP) — Prince Charles took the controls of a huge air force Hercules Monday and flew it for 100 miles over Melville Island's Sabine Peninsula, getting a look at how oil exploration affects Arctic terrain.

Prince Charles and his father, Prince Philip, whose arm is in a sling as a result of a polo injury, stopped at this Panarctic Oils Ltd. staging site for a 45-minute visit with the 28 men who work here.

While Queen Elizabeth and Princess Anne visited Resolute, the two princes made a 575-mile round trip, with 25 newsmen and a squad of Mounties and tour officials, to Melville Island.

After taking off from here, Capt. Al Esther, the Hercules commander, gave the controls to the 21-year-old prince. Later, Capt. Esther took over to fly low over drilling rigs at Hecla and Gerrard Bay.

South Vietnam Keeps Hungry, Beaten Captives in Stone Cages

SAIGON (Reuters) — American writer Don Luce said today he recently accompanied two U.S. congressmen to a South Vietnamese island prison, where they saw about 500 persons, including women, detained in "stone cages."

Luce, 35, who speaks Vietnamese and has lived here 11 years, said the prisoners were hungry, thirsty and showed "obvious signs of having been beaten many times."

He said he went to the island in the South China Sea with Congressmen Augustus Hawkins (Dem. Calif.), and William Anderson (Dem. Tenn.), members of a House of Representatives fact-finding committee.

They were accompanied by Frank E Walton, the U.S. chief public safety adviser in Vietnam who advises the South Vietnamese on prison matters.

Luce, who has been prominent in humanitarian projects in Vietnam and is widely regarded by U.S. officials as a pacifist, issued his comments on Con Son Island prison in the form of a nine-page report.

Luce described how the congressmen and himself, followed seriously by Walton and the prison's chief warden, Col. Nguyen Van Ve, found a narrow door in a prison garden leading to the cells known in Vietnam since French colonial times as "tigers' cages."

The location of the door, leading into an alley, was discovered by Hawkins, who had feigned interest in vegetables growing nearby.

He said Ve told the congressmen, after they had asked to enter, that the door to the alley was always locked.

"Then miraculously someone came to the gate from the other side to see what was the matter," he said

"He opened the door and we slipped through. There before us were the tiger cages. We climbed to the top and looked down on to the prisoners huddled in the cages, three or four in each cage."

Luce said after leaving the alley they questioned Walton by whisper who allegedly told them they should "mind their own business and not interfere in Vietnamese affairs."

Luce quoted a congressman as replying: "But this is our business. The United States gives considerable aid to these prisons. . . .

"Several American boys are being held prisoner in North Vietnam. I hope they are not being treated the same way as the prisoners I have just seen being treated here."

Luce said Con Son was South Vietnam's largest prison island, and official U.S. figures placed the June, 1970, total at 9,916 prisoners

He said: "The tiger cages are small stone compartments. Inside each cage is a wooden bucket for sanitary purposes which is emptied once a day.

"The cages are not quite five feet across and about nine feet long. There were three prisoners in each one. . . . There were 60 to 70 cages in the building.

"None of the men could stand up. Until a few days ago, they said they had been shackled to a bar. . . .

Luce said above each cell was a wooden bucket of lime, which Col. Ve said was to whitewash the walls. Luce said the prisoners shouted: "No, no. It is thrown on us when we ask for food."

He reported that the floors of many of the cages were covered with lime, which the prisoners said made them cough and spit blood.

Luce said in an adjacent building there was another double row of cages identical to the ones in the men's side. Every cage was filled with five women

He said they pleaded for water and food.

"Many of the women were obviously very sick. Some had tuberculosis, some had eye diseases, blood had skin diseases."

Luce said many of the girls were young students from Saigon schools.

Luce said that Walton told the visitors they were judging the whole prison on the way 400 or 500 were being treated.

Luce said that Ve told them in reference to the prisoners in the cages: "These are very bad people. They will not salute the

Msgr. Sullivan:

Hospitals Will Suffer Under New Restriction

Government restrictions on increased health spending will impose heavy burdens on public hospitals — including Belleville General, Msgr. J. P. Sullivan warns.

Recent indications that governments may limit increases in health expenditures to about 8 per cent would mean "a very rough time" for hospitals in the next year, says the chairman of BGH's board of governors.

The guideline, — believed to have been discussed between federal and provincial governments earlier this year — would restrict new efficiencies and be "self-defeating," says Msgr. Sullivan.

To remain within such fiscal limits, Belleville General would have to either curtail services or lower the quality of such services.

"Neither of these alternatives we feel would be acceptable to the public," said Msgr. Sullivan. "We are already severely taxed to provide accommodation for those who need it. Any curtailment — such as closing down of beds — would impose severe hardships on the people."

For 1970, the hospital budgeted for an increase of 14 per cent.

New facilities accounted for 3½ per cent — leaving 10½ per-cent for normal operation cost increases.

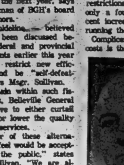
Pressure for capital costs — which include new facilities — will continue this year.

In fact, warns Msgr. Sullivan, they could increase because of restraints in last year's budget.

This, under the proposed restrictions, would permit only a four - to - five, per cent increase in the costs of running the hospital.

Complicating operating costs is the cost - of - living index which will force salary, administrative and hospital supply costs higher.

Staff expenses account for 70 per cent of the BGH budget, so savings in supplies would be very little," estimates the Msgr.



"We've been trying very hard to operate as economically as possible. Our staffing is at the bare minimum — in fact, two or three of our departments are understaffed," he adds.

The hospital administration currently is attempting to assess how the restrictions would affect improvements and new equipment purchases.

Currently, BGH is contemplating installing two urgently-needed elevators, says the board chairman.

"The new guideline could mean that we'd not have the hospital under a severe hardship. This is a self - defeating measure because it is impossible to operate efficiently without modern equipment," Sullivan.

The Ontario Hospital Association now is asking the federal government to carefully study hospital needs which could be affected by the restrictions.

Picton Pool Project Needs Resuscitation

PICTON (Staff) — Public indifference seems to be drowning plans for a swimming pool in Picton. Concerned with the apparent standstill on the pool project, Mayor McFarland asked recreation director Wayne Ring for the total of contributions received to date.

Five accounts have been opened for donations in Picton banks and a sixth in the Bloomfield bank. Mr. Ring replied that the only funds received to date consist of a $100 donation from Mayor McFarland and a $50 contribution made by Doctor Earl Taylor, former chairman of the pool committee.

Mr. McFarland said, "when we opened these accounts some time ago, it was to give the public an opportunity to contribute. If the pool idea fell through by any chance, all money was to have been refunded to the donors."

The Mayor observed that most people support the idea of a pool if someone else is willing to pay for it. "They want to use it if someone else does it," he said.

"When it comes to asking people to touch their pockets it's a hell of a lot different," he added.

Hoping to administer artificial respiration for the flying pool project, Mayor McFarland stated that he will personally contribute $2 for every dollar placed in the fund by other contributors

JUDGE J. C. ANDERSON

Honored At Tweed

Judge J. C. Anderson of Hastings County was this year's recipient of the Man of the Year peace award at the annual re-dedication of the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park near Tweed.

Roy Caldwell, chairman of the park, made the presentation Sunday during the re-dedication ceremonies.

Judge Anderson earned the award for his work among immigrants to Canada, his share in the peaceful settlement of labor disputes and because of his position as a former member of the board of directors of Loyalist College in Belleville.

The Peace Pagoda on the site was officially inaugurated as a peace shrine by Rev. Susumu Shioni of Washington, D.C.

Veterans of Madoc and Tweed branches of the Royal Canadian Legion and other branches in the area took part in the annual journey of remembrance to the hilltop where the ceremony was held.

Among the speakers were Percy Stue, international representative of Kiwanis International from Pembroke, Irene Jones, a retired missionary, and clergymen of the district.

Sidney Firemen Come and Go

Following a careful screening by Sidney Township fire chief John Azuba and deputy chief Jack Empey, two applicants for the position of volunteer fireman on a six-month probationary period were approved by Sidney Township council.

The two men are Jack Reid and Joseph Campbell, both of RR 2, Belleville.

Last week ex-captain Gilbert Waite and firemen Stan Westaway, Robert A. Brown and W. R. Nobes submitted their resignations which council last night reluctantly accepted.

More resignations are rumored as a result of personal enmity among various members of the department.

Council attempted to settle the problems, after hearing both sides of the arguments.

Representing the fire department at last night's council meeting was John Cormack, Fire Commissioner for Sidney.

Mr. Cormack requested that if any conflicts arise within the department, the matter should be forwarded to the commission.

"We've had seven years success to our credit and we don't want that record broken," he said.

Mr. Cormack said he would welcome the return of the resignees to the department.

"They've all worked hard over the years that they've been with the department."

Together with financial business, Mr. Cormack announced that Jack Rushnell was to be appointed Captain as of June 30, 1970.

Rotary to Stress Service Aspect

Belleville Rotary Club under incoming president Bill MacKay is hoping to place more emphasis this year on international service.

The Belleville Collegiate principal, who succeeds Bob Cathcart, told members this the club might possibly adopt a project whereby it could help people in other lands.

At yesterday's first meeting of his presidency Mr. MacKay also quoted the theme of Rotary International President William E. Watt Jr., of Ontario, California. It is "Step-ping thy Gap".

One gap besides the generation which Mr. MacKay hopes to see bridged is communications. He suggested the club should offer more information of club activities in its weekly bulletin.

REAL ESTATE

WHAT'S AHEAD FOR OUR TOWNS AND CITIES

ED McKEOUGH
J. E. McKEOUGH
Real Estate Ltd.

Growing pains with no signs of let-up as our population mushrooms at an ever faster pace.

A trend is what the planners call "urbanization" population shifts from the land to the towns and cities — began slowly about a hundred years ago and ran grown steadily since.

At that time, approximately 15 per cent of the population lived in urban areas. The urban percentage climbed to 70 percent at the beginning of the 1900s and is anticipated to reach 80 percent by 1981. Long range forecasts of 30 years hence predict 90 percent of the people will live in town and cities.

A recent result of this upward growth pressure on real estate values, plus the need to hedge against inflation, is that public real estate corporations have become one of the most active of stocks among investors — a distinctly new development of recent years.

The opportunities for the small real estate investor have also never been better. Consult a knowledgeable Realtor on growth trends in our area. A small "leveraged" investment now could lead to the possession of a very valuable yearly equity in the years of growth ahead.

Picton Councillor Questions Public Utilities Expenditures

PICTON (Staff) — Questioning expenditures by the Picton Public Utilities Commission in view of stipulations imposed by the Public Utilities Act, councillor Margaret Ackerman last night requested an Ontario Municipal Board inquiry into the commission's operations.

Repeating this suggestion, council favored an explanatory interview between the PUC manager, the chairman and three representatives of council including Mrs. Ackerman.

The request for an inquiry was contained in a letter to council from Mrs. Ackerman. It followed outlines of two questionable unnecessary operating expenses to the town-PUC commission and used to establish a reserve fund to reduce the commission's $305,884.84 debenture debt.

Mrs. Ackerman's letter pointed out that council had voted that the PUC, in complying with the Public Utilities Act, should turn over everything above its annual necessary operating expenses to the town-PUC commission and used to establish a reserve fund to reduce the commission's $305,884.84 debenture debt.

City Playgrounds Treat for Youngsters And A Boon to Harried Mothers

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The one city project that runs on fresh air is back in bustling operation for another year.

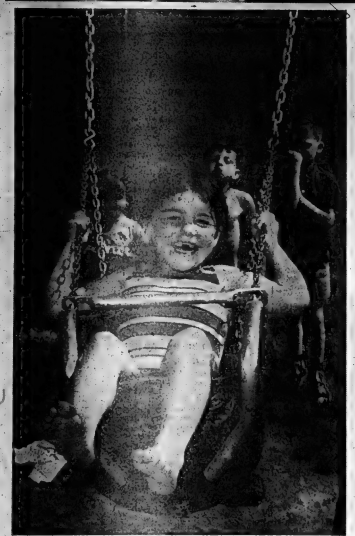
It's the recreation department's summer playground program, launched into another busy season yesterday — as these photographs show.

For the next six weeks, hundreds of holidaying moppets will make more than a score of outdoor play centres a daily mecca of merriment and relaxation.

The department also operates wading and swimming facilities.

But the core of its summer schedule is the long-established playground program for the city's small fry — some 1,300 of whom registered this year.

One of its incidental boons is enjoyed by city mothers. Five days a week, from 9.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m., the extra summertime chore of supervising busy offspring freed from school is transferred to the department's trained playground staff — 24 young supervisors posted around 21 playgrounds.



Active and passive games keep the youngsters occupied in the outdoors while a roster of special events will produce a succession of program highlights through the season.

Bowling training sessions, track meets, outdoor theatre are among the special projects scheduled for this year.

Among the notable dates: July 23, Track meets, East Hill, Quinte Secondary; July 25, City barbor visit to Hudson's Bay tricentennial ship Nonsuch; July 28-30, track events at Belleville, Picton, Trenton respectively; Aug. 4-6, Theatre Guild play alternates at West Hill, Zwick's Island, East Hill; Aug. 11, Neighborhood night; Aug. 13, Penny Carnival; Aug. 17-21, arts, crafts display at Quinte Exhibition.

Concluding major event of the season will be a gala Playground Day at Zwick's Island Aug. 28.

Official closing date for the playgrounds this year is Aug. 21.

Ghent Drive Residents Confront Council Again

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Residents of the Ghent Drive subdivision on the south side of Highway 2 near Bayside again had a delegation at last night's meeting of Sidney Township Council.

Further angered by recent storms causing water and sewage backup throughout the subdivision, residents confronted council in an attempt to get some satisfaction and an answer to their problems.

The 19 homes in the subdivision are situated right on the shores of the Bay of Quinte and in a natural dip in the land, the ground has a high level of water below the surface.

When the land was first designated, adequate drainage was not installed by the original subdivider. The problem wasn't as great then.

Now Sidney Township has taken over the area and has ben handed the problem.

With every new home, the water level rose to the point that several slimy, algaed pools have formed, and the ground in many places is soggy underfoot.

In an attempt to rectify this problem, the township brought in consulting engineers last year who proposed proper drainage at a cost of $3,000. Council was willing to pay half this if the residents would meet the rest of the costs. This would mean that every householder would be involved to pay approximately $80.

The homeowners wouldn't agree to this.

"After all, our taxes were high enough, but we've just received our tax statements and they're higher," one lady commented last night.

When a delegation approached council last month, another resident, Harold Howard commented, "not one of our neighbors has complained about taxes, but since the lowest taxes are $200 and the highest $400, which does not give us garbage disposal, sidewalks, paved streets, street lighting, or sewers, we think we pay enough for the township to clear this problem up."

Now the taxes are higher and last night these same arguments made up a large number of the complaints levied against council.

One irate resident, Charles Watson, complained, "at the first of this [problem], you blamed the department of highways. The department of highways then blamed you. I don't care how small or large, just as long as something is done."

Councillor Reg. McCurdy replied, "I wouldn't say we haven't done anything."

At this, more comments were made by the gathered homeowners.

Councillor Glenn Myers reiterated last year's proposal that residents share the expense of cleaning up the problem.

"Why should we when we pay higher taxes now than we did then?" was one comment.

Reeve Jack Bush attempted to explain, "When you people bought that land you didn't pay for proper drainage . . . there should have been at least $1,000 set aside on these lots for drainage; speaking in round figures, that is."

"Under today's standards, Ghent Drive subdivision wouldn't have met the set standards but we didn't have control of the subdivision then and we couldn't control what you invested in."

He further announced that a completely proper drainage program would run to approximately $8,000, plus an additional $500 for the survey.

As council attempted to answer questions, certain representatives of Ghent Drive hesitatly and repeatedly voiced their previous questions, "Why beat around the bush, do you enjoy us coming up here," demanded Mr. Watson.

The reeve explained that of the taxes collected in the township, 55 to 60 per cent goes to education and 30 per cent goes to the county.

"Sidney gets close to 11 per cent, of which six per cent goes for roads," the reeve continued.

Mr. Watson again commented, "there's very little point in asking questions because we don't get any answers . . . if we can't get any straight answers from you, where do you want us to go with our questions."

"We're attempting to solve your problems, but you have every right to take your questions anywhere . . . Premier Roberts if you like." Reeve Bush answered.

The reeve repeatedly voiced the suggestion that a survey could be done and a recommendation to next year's council could be given.

"What good would that do us if they don't do any more than you've done now," was a reply.

Councillor McCurdy answered, "last year we presented you people with a proposition to improve the situation at a cost of $2,000 and waited two months for your answer . . . and you rejected it."

The reeve explained that Dorothy Drive was taken over by the township only this spring.

"We've got many things to do and we're certainly not neglecting your problem," he said.

Following discussion among themselves, council agreed to approach consultants with the plan that a survey on the problem be undertaken and a recommendation to the council of 1970-1971 that improvements are needed. Next year's council will than be able to decide which steps to take.

Other residents present at the confrontation left with a parting request:

"Please phone us when you've talked with your consultants . . . we're sure a decision can be reached.

Writer Attacks Newman

Peter Newman is editor-in-chief of The Toronto Star and he has just written what is described as a personal assessment of President Nixon. It is an unflattering if not a libellous document which castigates not only the man but his policy with regard to U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

Newman speaks of a White House press conference last winter when as he says, Cambodia was still 'only a marginal entry in the American war diary', and goes on to tell how he kept watching Nixon, searching for some glimmer of human response under the television mask he wore."

At one point, says Newman, their glances locked briefly and in that moment the writer claims he caught the real Nixon — "a man so terrified (his breath and muscles seemed as taut as a polevaulter's) that he could barely keep himself under control."

Well there is more of this sort of thing and it is all heady stuff from the Toronto editor's pen, but it is not necessary to repeat it here for as we have noted it borders on libel and at the very least character assassination.

Nixon is indeed a taut sort of man, but any president of the United States has cause to be in these difficult days in the nation's life. Even now, with the Cambodian affair over and with more experience behind him than has led to greater assurance in the presidency, Nixon still brings out a handkerchief to mop his face. It is a gesture occasioned we suspect by a combination of tension and the television lights, but it should not be taken, as with his general appearance, as an indication of weakness or unreliability.

Nixon today is not the beaten, haunted man who lost the campaign for governorship of California some years ago. As vice-president for eight years under Eisenhower he is a man of long political experience and knowledge of world affairs. And for all his jittery mien he speaks quietly and with a pleasingly modulated voice that is unusual compared with most occupants of the presidency and with other leading political figures of the day.

Moreover, for the entry of U.S. troops into Cambodia Nixon took full personal responsibility, explaining it was to hunt down Communist sanctuaries there and gain more time for withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. His decisiveness and determination were scarcely qualities of a man who was acting from fear or weakness.

Nixon, as far as may be deduced at present, is making earnest efforts to reduce U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia — and hopefully withdraw all U.S. forces from that region in the next year or two. As for Newman's assessment — he gives away much of the motivation for his attack on the president by concluding with a quote by I. F. Stone whom he describes as "the distinguished left-wing Washington writer." What's left unsaid, repeating his words either, we need only say that they too are unflattering to Richard Nixon.

A Warning

In the context of the above editorial the Canadian public may as well take warning that anti-Nixon or anti-American outbursts such as the Newman article are common enough in both the Canadian and United press these days.

A New York Times Service article reprinted by the Globe and Mail Monday is a typical example. The article — by Tom Wicker — refers to the Honor America Day at the weekend, an occasion headlined by evangelist Dr. Billy Graham and comedian Bob Hope and it reads in part that such a day "could not attract men and women who believe little honor is due a nation, whatever its history and power, that persists in a brutal and destructive war long after its purpose can be discerned — a war that has uprooted the society of South Vietnam. . ."

And so on. No mention whatsoever of the "brutal and destructive" ways of the North Vietnamese or the Viet Cong. It is as The Christian Science Monitor noted recently; ". . . indeed, some figures sometimes appear to find far more that is wrong with America and the war (in Vietnam) than with the North Vietnamese or the Viet Cong and the war."

As for The Globe and Mail, the leftist, anti-American tone of its editorials has been apparent long since. This is seen also in the selection of letters it chooses to print in the Editor column. Together, "Canada's national newspaper" and the New York Times are consistently presenting a viewpoint that is, damaging, to say the very least, to the cause of peace and freedom as we understand it. Damaging, that is, to U.S. and allied efforts to end the war, or at least reduce Western involvement in it, and damaging to the efforts being made to contain the spread of Communism in Southeast Asia.

'No' to Drug Permissiveness

'Squares' Led Assault Against LeDain Report

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So the Cabinet has got gorh for Gerald LeDain's permissive pot - dope - and - pills (for cocaine) package.

Vast bulk of the LeDain's "ist - the - people - live - in - a - wild - world - of - drugs" goes out with the rest of that 18 tons of waste paper the garbage men haul from the Parliament Hill each year.

And the Government will "consider" what to do or not to do for the pot-smokers.

That is generally often too - open - minded Government decision to fill LeDain's prescription for easy narcotics may be chalked up to the credit of three "squares" in the Cabinet: Solicitor General George McIlraith, Justice Minister John Turner and Revenue Minister Jean Cote.

They were the three who said "No" — and made it stick — when Welfare Minister John Munro was giving his all for "grass."

McIlraith, along with John Diefenbaker a 30-year veteran and co-dean of the Commons, led the winning team, well and quite openly.

Cote backed him up in public — however, going on the record against the new drug cult.

And Turner made it plain — when it counted most of all — the drugs problem "isn't" marijuana to "hard" cocaine, the Cabinet "was looking only at pot," and doing no more than "considering" what to do about it.

These three key "squares" could not have pulled it off alone against Munro and the Cabinet "swingers."

They had to have help. Likely linked up with them were Works Minister Laing, Services and Supply Minister James Richardson, Industry Trade and Commerce Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, Transport Minister Don Jamieson, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and maybe one or two others.

But it is a big Cabinet of 29 members.

What the McIlraith team may have lacked in numbers it made up, and more, with the quality of its men.

And perhaps most important of all, the McIlraith man had Prime Minister Trudeau on their side. Not firm and hard, but at least leaning more their way than the other.

With the Prime Minister, it was more a personal preference than a matter of principle. He is a "progressive" on consider his stand on homosexuality and abortion — and could, he has really had the deep-seated objection to permissiveness with pot.

It was simply a matter that the Prime Minister, for the life of him, just could not dig narcotics. Life for him, he has said often, has been fun enough without the dubious stimulation of drugs.

Of all the key figures on the show-down on LeDain, George McIlraith may be the most interesting.

He is a mild, soft - spoken, balding, very ordinary looking individual, young for his near 60 age, unobtrusive, ineffective, with a quality of long and lasting friendships.

But under this bland exterior there lives a man of iron will, inflexible in his adherence to principle, sternly faithful to old and proved values of life and living.

For 26 years he has represented Ottawa in the Commons, getting his political schooling at the knee of the old master, C. D. "Trader" Howe. He was Howe's Parliamentary Assistant in the years the "Trader" was transforming Canada from an agricultural to an industrial economy.

A Parliamentary Assistant in both the Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent regimes, he did not make Cabinet when Lester Pearson came down the prime ministerial mountain.

But over those years he accumulated political know-how on it par with Duff's, never having lost an election, and power.

He is known by his many, many friends and mighty few enemies as "Captain George," and he long has been the recognized "boss" of Ottawa.

He packs more than than Mayor, Board of Control and Council, and more than any member of the Cabinet. Perhaps, the Prime Minister who is not all that interested in National Capital Affairs anyway.

Last Prime Minister who really cared about the Capital was Mackenzie King and he put it as a one - man enterprise, which in his day, he made it.

So much so is George McIlraith Mr. Big' around Ottawa that "clear it with the Captain" long has been the accepted way of getting things done here.

Difficult, if not impossible to believe — but true — things still had to be "cleared with the Captain" even in the five years former Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his Conservatives were running the parliamentary show.

It was a standing gripe of the Tories at that time that they could not get a job for anyone — not even in Public Works or the Post Office, those former tougher - beds of political patronage — unless "Captain George" okayed it.

Power clung to the "Captain" even in Opposition.

So what in the world binds "Mod Mayor" Munro that he could put down George McIlraith who was winning votes and showering down the swinging young Welfare Minister was still to stove - pipe pants and raw silk blouses.

"Extinction? That means the inability to adjust to man's blunders!"

All Aboard for the 6 a.m. Bus

Ottawa Journal

Not many ride the 6 a.m. bus; it is always easy to find a seat. It's a fast bus and goes along the route without having to fight a mass of cars. Perhaps there is something to that idea about beating cars from the downtown area.

Postmen on their way to see the day's mail and construction men with their heavy lunch pails are a few who ride the 6 a.m. bus. Pretty, regular lot and you can expect the same person or group each day at the same stop. Something you wouldn't notice on a rush hour bus perhaps.

If someone is missing at a stop, the driver usually glances down a side street to see if he's sprinting the last few yards — and he stops the bus if that's so. Occasionally he'll stop to let someone on or off where there isn't a regular stop. Regular passengers usually take the same seat each day. It's like a pecking order as the psychologists say. The driver knows each one; he doesn't have to be asked for a transfer.

A nurse rides only every second or third week; probably she changes shift frequently. Other women get on, some part, some looking over-burdened. When it rains, their umbrellas snap shut in unison with the opening of the bus doors.

Every working morning but Friday it's the same driver and occasionally the same bus as can be told by the number at the front. Most of us sit quiet: the postman and driver talk about the weather, politics, taxes . . . anything really until it's his stop and just time for both to say "see you tomorrow."

Living Costs Around the World

Letter to The Globe and Mail

I have recently received a cutting from your paper of an article by William Johnson dealing with two teachers in Toronto and two teachers in England (Alan and Darlene and Iain and Pat). I thought a comparison with the teaching situation in New Zealand might be of interest.

I am 28 and my wife Katrina is 24. We met at Training College but could not afford to get married until we had been teaching for 3 years. We are now both into our sixth year of teaching. Like both Alan and Iain, we feel teachers are underpaid compared to other workers, many of whom are less highly trained and carry less responsibility. Our combined salaries total $5,778 NZ. (The New Zealand dollar is equivalent in value to $1.20 Canadian.) The result is a fortnightly income of $202.44 from which we pay $31 in taxes. Unlike Iain and Pat, we are both taxed as single people as we have no children.

Superannuation and other deductions total $12.56, resulting in a net income of $158 a fortnight, or say $330 a month. Rent for an old, unfurnished house is $30 month. Other fixed expenses are electricity $18, telephone $5, food $40, TV rental $7.50. Life insurances costs $24 a month, and car expenses are similar. I have a 1961 Humber .80 car which is probably a little better than average for a teacher of my experience.

Katrina drives the car in school each day. She teaches at a small three - teacher school in the country about 12 miles from town. I travel to my school daily (about 2 miles) on a small motor - scooter which my wife used before our marriage.

We find we are living well on our joint income. We eat well, and can afford an occasional bottle of wine for special meals. Katrina makes many of her own clothes, but occasionally buys garments. Latest purchase — three - piece pant suit at $48.

We can afford to travel fairly extensively within New Zealand and have seen most of the country. At Christmas '68-'69 (our summer) we toured the South Island of New Zealand for a month, living in a tent, at a cost of about $300.

For three years we have been planning a trip to Canada to gain teaching experience, and to see your part of the world. We have been saving hard for this trip, at the rate of about $100 a month. To help with this saving I work about 12 hours a week as a bar man in a local hotel.

New Zealand is an isolated country and travel to other parts of the world is relatively expensive. One - way fares to Canada will cost $878 (to Vancouver), which represents about 9 months' saving. We had hoped to live in Toronto, but have received reports that jobs there are now hard to get for teachers, so are concentrating on British Columbia. We hope to arrive in August this year if we can get a job.

We feel we are probably better off than Iain and Pat in England, but wish we could afford a new car like Alan and Darlene in Toronto. In New Zealand we can look forward to steady employment conditions and a fairly good retirement plan.

Alexander Dubcek's Fate

Windsor Star

Alexander Dubcek appears to have joined a very select group of tragic figures in Czechoslovakian life. He is a living example of the kind of obsidiancy, fortitude and optimism which has long been a thorn in the side of Soviet imperialist policy in Europe.

Dubec is no longer kmbassador to Turkey. His short assignment in that country looked like an attempt by his new rulers to eliminate him from Europe. After his defection, if it had happened, the new Czech leaders could easily have called the traitor, a revisionist, and a foe of socialism.

Instead, Dubcek to his exile, knowing full well he eventually would be called home to account for his liberalization of Czechoslovakia, may have been his realization of the political and propaganda lay the new bosses would make of his defection. He probably realized he is a personification of the liberal socialism Czechoslovakia lived for a few short months. To allow his name to be smeared by propagandists would have meant a blow to the hopes of those Czechs who have endured so much at the hands of the Soviets and Czechoslovak quislings.

Dubcek is back in Czechoslovakia, his fate uncertain. He has been stripped of his membership in the Communist party and removed from his diplomatic post. His boss, Ludwig Svoboda (whose name means freedom) has assigned him to unclassified duties in Prague. Those tasks could take him to a Soviet salt mine, an insane asylum or a prisoner's dock, or a concentration camp. At best he can expect to fritter his life away in gloomy seclusion.

Chained sled dogs snarled, barked, wagged their tails and put on a great show for the visitors. Children streamed through the streets behind the two station wagons which carried the royal visitors, and six trucks in the cavalcade.

The visitors wore the parkas given them Sunday at Frobisher Bay, where they began their tour.

They visited a piago—a huge igloo hall in which the Eskimos have are carving a curling rink.

The Eskimos placed a tundra-colored cap on the ice floor. But the royalty was mostly impressed by the magnificent crystalized ice of the ceiling.

They also visited a fur shop and a sod hut of the type Eskimos lived in before modern houses were built here.

Tuk is a trans-shipment point at the delta of the Mackenzie River. A Distant Early Warning radar base is located on a hill just outside of town. The town is connected to the outside world by a single telephone.

Most of the village residents filled the school gymnasium to see the first royal visitors to the Arctic.

"That's Prince Charles, right there," a mother told her child.

"Prince Charles, that's Princess Anne's brother. And that's his mother, the Queen.

"And that other man with hardly any hair, Prince Philip, that's her dad."

An enderly Eskimo woman in a long fur coat was led away by Territorial Commissioner Stu Hodgson after she went up to the royal visitors and leaned over and touched Prince Charles with a toothless grin.

The Prince broke up.

"Gee, that's nice," another elderly woman said. "I never thought I'd live to see the Queen in Tuk."

After a drum dance by the expert hamlet troupe, which recently performed at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa the royal visitors returned to Inuvik and got to sleep at the Anglican mission there at 3 a.m. MST. Their day had started in Frobisher at 7:30 a.m. EDT.

The Hercules that was to take the reporters back was grounded because of a faulty starter for one engine.

Report Says Women Not Given Equal Opportunity

OTTAWA (CP) — Occupational segregation in the federal public service frustrates other, policies aimed at putting women on an equal footing with men, a new report says.

Equal pay for equal work has been a public service policy since the federal service started a century ago, archivist Kathleen Archibald says in Sex and the Public Service, a special report prepared under a contract issued by the Public Service Commission.

But "the equal opportunity that would make equal pay meaningful" has been largely non-existent, Miss Archibald says.

A note at the beginning of the report says that the views are those of the author, a Canadian who studied at the University of British Columbia and who works for the Rand Corp. in California.

On opportunities for women in the federal public service, largest single employer of women in the country with 49,980 females out of 150,345 full-time employees in 1967, Miss Archibald asks:

"Are opportunities for occupational satisfaction and advancement in the Canadian public service more limited for women than for men?. Must a woman be better qualified than a man to achieve the same degree of success?"

She says "the weight of evidence presented in this report points to an unequivocal yes."

In 1966, "slightly over half the women in the public service made less than $4,000 compared with 14 per cent of the men."

There has been some slight improvement in the advancement chances for females seeking higher salary levels, Miss Archibald says, "but the number of women involved is very small: in 1968 only 64 women out of a total of 43,706 made over $18,000."

Pay in the "predominantly female" fields such as administrative support "tends to be repressed and opportunities restricted," Miss Archibald writes.

"So long as the current degree of occupational segregation continues, women will have only limited opportunities to demonstrate they can be as productive as men on many jobs, and salaries in 'female' fields are likely to remain depressed."

Secretaries or stenographers may gain promotion through several minor levels but then run into the phenomenon known as "rug-rushing," Miss Archibald says.

This is the point where a secretary's status and salary is determined by the status of her boss, not by the demands of her job. The more important the boss, the higher rank the secretary reaches on the classification scale.

Volunteer Program Successful

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — It started almost by accident in 1962, but the volunteer work program for teen-age girls has been a booming success ever since at Moncton Hospital.

Assistant administrator W. A. Kilpatrick agreed to let two studiously keen 14-agers work for the summer that year after members of the then-new adult volunteer programs left in June, almost en masse, to head for "The Shore" and their summer cottages until fall.

The girls did such a competent job he was reluctant to let them leave in September, so the teen-age volunteers' program was officially launched.

By 1964, the combined volunteer effort of both teens and adults had grown to the point where Mr. Kilpatrick began looking for a director of volunteer services. He chose Mrs. C. O. Crawford, who now has worked more than 1,000 volunteer hours at the hospital.

Forty girls are currently involved in the youth program.

They come to the hospital after school and on weekends to do odd jobs, work with children, help wheelchair patients and talk and play games with those convalescing.

"In 1969 our teens worked 3,358 hours," Mrs. Crawford said, "only 28 less than the adults."

"They're all Grade 11 and 12 students . . . very reliable, even in summer, and always make certain to get a replacement if they have to be absent."

The program has proved so appealing to Moncton girls that some of last fall's applicants are still waiting to be put to the duty list.

Mrs. Crawford describes the volunteers as "just typical teens."

"Some are top students; others are just average, but they all enjoy hospital work and feel they've taken a genuine stake within the organization."

Their work, however, is not allowed to interfere with services that can be provided by paid hospital workers. "If we see a need, we always make certain it is something only a volunteer can do."

The program provides "some real fringe benefits" for the hospital.

From their work, the girls get a first-hand look at a wide variety of hospital jobs which, Mrs. Crawford says, has resulted in "a steady stream of first-rate future hospital employees in many fields."

Housewife Returns to School and Again Tops Class

VANCOUVER (CP)—Elizabeth Diana Martens didn't let marriage make a housewife out of her, not with her life - long love of school, books and reading.

British Columbia's top high school graduate in 1966, Mrs. Martens this spring became top of the class again.

She collected the University of British Columbia's Dr. Maxwell A. Cameron medal and prize as UBC's top graduate in the elementary teaching field.

Mrs. Martens, whose husband Vic is a zoological sciences at the Burnaby Inst tute of Technology in suburban Burnaby, has already been offered a job as librarian in the elementary division of Vancouver - area school district.

"It looks like a great opportunity to help foreign and Indian children to books," she said — and perhaps instil someone else with a life - long love of school, books and reading.

Necklines Go Down Along With Hemlines

NEW YORK (AP) — Designers Shannon Rogers says: "When hemlines go down, necklines go with them. Leg watchers certainly won't be out of work, but neck and body watching is the new thing."

Rogers designs for Jerry Silverman. In his collection of varying skirt lengths, there are clingy black crepe dresses with deep-V necks. His long dresses have slits at the sides for frank.

Morton Myles for Malcolm Charles slit his long skirts, too, as shown at Wednesday's American designer showings.

Ann Fogarty brought back the cropsets, with tops attached petticoats under a full black paper taffeta dress.

Parachutes Used for Tots' Clothing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Children's clothing made from parachute silk is the latest machine was Lea Bryant's first venture into the field of fashion design.

Today she is director of the British Columbia Academy of Fashion Design and a sought-after designer in her own right.

Mrs. Bryant, an elegant, petite and vital grandmother, outlined her career in an interview.

"There was a shortage of clothes in Australia during the war, especially kids' clothes," she said.

"I had three young boys to support, so I rented a machine, got hold of some of the orange and yellow parachutes they used for dropping freight, and went to work."

Mrs. Bryant took her finished products to several Sydney clothing stores, got orders for more, and her career was under way.

When she left Australia to come to Canada in 1948, she had been owner and operator of her own clothing factory for four years.

Mrs. Bryant was born in Shanghai, China, where she began to take an early interest in dressmaking.

"My mother got her clothes from a Russian court dressmaker who had fled to China during the revolution.

"I would go to her shop after school, and watch. Rows of Chinese girls—just kids—would sit on long benches sewing from seven in the morning to seven at night."

Mrs. Bryant learned her trade from the Russian, but it was not until several years later, in Sydney, that she began to practise it.

Her dream, however, had always been to teach design. Four years ago, after a long struggle, she finally saw her dream realized with the opening of her school in Vancouver, the British Columbia Academy of Fashion Design. She plans expansion in the fall.

In order to succeed, she says, one must have a "burning ambition, a great desire to create, and above all patience and tenacity."

She scoffs at the popular conception of fashion design as glamorous. "Forget the glamor; design is business, big business."

Bridge Club Hosts Tournament

This coming weekend the Belleville Duplicate Bridge Club hosts the Trent Valley Association sectional tournament at the armories and expect many noted bridge players among the 200 to 250 who will attend from Eastern Canada and the Northern United States. Well known directors Duke Cartright from Toronto and Stan Tenner from Ottawa will direct the games, which start Friday evening at 8 p.m. and wind up Sunday evening. A varied program of events from mixed pairs to team-of-four has been organized, including social conviviality sessions, by the local club headed by Bob Reesbodeng.

An interest weekend is in store for local bridge players who have not attended sessions of this size and calibre. This is the first to be held in Belleville and with the ever increasing popularity of the duplicate game, will probably be an annual event. There are games for the expert as well as the novice. Friday evening's main event is the mixed pairs, which is the predominant and a lady team up to compete with either mixed pairs. In addition to this, eight open pairs will be played to accommodate other combinations of players.

Saturday brings on the main event of the weekend with the open pair competition. Starting with the qualifying session at 1.30 p.m., it is expected some 130 pairs will strive to qualify for the finals at 7.30 p.m. Those who are in the qualifying finish off with a consolation game starting at the same time. In addition at both the afternoon and evening sessions, there are games for those who feel they are not strong enough to tackle the open pairs, but are keen fans of duplicate bridge. There are master point awards for all sessions played during the weekend.

The social hour following the evening competition on Saturday, and while results are being tabulated will take the form of a wine and cheese party in the Officers' Mess. The complete schedule of events will be held on the main floor of the Armories, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 10, 11 and 12.

The schedule follows:

Nurse Receives Cornea Transplant

TORONTO (CP) — As Beverly Black left hospital going blind, she had to decide whether to abandon a nursing career or chance a cornea transplant.

She had already had one unsuccessful transplant when she was 16. That fact made her decision seem like a choice between two forms of darkness.

Her 1967 operation, performed by Dr. George Thompson, medical director of the Ontario division of the Eye Bank, was a success.

Beverly was like about 40 people in Ontario who, according to Anne Wolfe, secretary of the Eye Bank, until donated corneas, "almost sitting on the phone, listening for the call as they are gradually losing their sight."

More than 1,500 operations transplanting the corneas—the transparent front window of the eye—have been performed in Ontario since 1956, the year the Canadian Eye Bank started.

"We are very short of eyes," said Mrs. Wolfe in an interview. "On a good month we get 45 to 50 donated but more and more people are going to specialists and finding that their sight can be assisted or cured by a corneal transplant."

The Eye Bank and the Corneal Club, of which Beverly is a member, is carrying out a campaign to inform the public about the need for eyes.

"All that prospective donors need to do is to complete a small card," said Mrs. Wolfe, "giving their permission to use their eyes at death."

Beverly, now a registered nurse at Toronto General Hospital, is also doing her utmost to encourage donors.

"It may sound insignificant," she said, "but one of the most marvellous things I can do after the transplant has been to read the telephone book, the tiny print or pick up a newspaper and read it properly."

Tempting All-in-one Casserole for Five

By MARY MOORE

Today's casserole got its approval from me originally because it makes two dinners for two. But obviously if you have a family of four or a family of five, some of whom are children, it will serve five.

Then when I saw and tasted it I realized its colorful layered effect gives it really eye appeal and flavor. It is for you casserole-crazy cooks too. So it has many appealing virtues.

ALL-IN-ONE BEEF CASSEROLE
(could be 2 meals for 5 people)

1 med. onion chopped
1 tbsp. margarine
½ lb. lean minced beef
1 tsp. salt
Shake of pepper
One 15 - oz. can tomatoes, drained
½ cup liquid from canned tomatoes
1 tbsp. catsup
¾ cup raw long grain rice
One 10-oz. can green beans, drained (or cut fresh in season)
½ to 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese

In frying pan gently sauté onions in margarine until soft but not brown. Turn into bottom of medium-large Pyrex casserole (to reveal colorful layers). Sauté beef in same pan, breaking it up with a fork until seared but not brown. Carefully turn into casserole over onions to make the next layer. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Sprinkle raw rice over beef evenly. Cover with canned tomatoes. To the ½ cup reserved canned tomato liquid, add the catsup and pour over tomatoes. Next layer is the cut green beans, drained. Cover all with cheese. Put on lid or cover snugly with foil and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1¼ hrs. If desired uncover during last 15 min.

NOTE: If you are cooking for two serve half of this casserole for one dinner then cover the leftover portion and refrigerate. When needed in one or two days' time add a little water or tomato juice and reheat, covered, in oven at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 min. Or reheat in large pan containing bolting water, covered.

Too Much Affection Not So Good

By DORIS CLARK

A husband — and - wife team of American sociologists, the Gluecks, have done extensive studies on the causes of criminality. What they found out may be a shock to some of us.

They drew up five points, in order of importance, which they deem contribute to a child's development, either as a normal person or as a potential criminal. When any one of these five points is out of balance, a serious situation could develop for the child:

1. Discipline by the father. Too harsh is bad; so is lax, likewise.

2. Love given by the father. There may be too much or none at all.

3. Supervision by the mother: too much or too little produces a child out of balance.

4. Love given by the mother. Here again, the child may be smothered with affection or receive none. And suffer either way.

5. Family cohesion, or solidarity. Important: provides security. But must not be of the God - bless - us - four - and - no - more variety.

Sociologists say criminals are made, not born.

Dear Doris: Since this is the 100th anniversary of our province (Manitoba), I decided to make a project of collecting recipes from certain periods.

I would like as many recipes from the depression era as I can get hold of. I would also like some from the 1800's and the turn of the century.

Also, do you know where I could get a cookbook for 100 years ago from England and one from Scotland? — Centennial Cook.

Dear Cook: Have you heard of the Old Authors Farm? There is a man in Ontario who makes a specialty of collecting old and rare books of various kinds. He delights in making exchanges and in supplying such books to people like you.

My own sheet of depression recipes is on its way to you, as well as copies of two letters from readers supplying further recipes and stories from the past. There are second - hand book stores which specialize in such things, and the world-renowned store in London, England, called Foyle's, which, it seems to me, can unearth practically anything that has ever been printed. Addresses are on their way.

Dear Doris: I wrote you about conduct in senior citizens' apartments, where some of the tenants, who haven't anything much to think about, seem to spend all their time prying into your affairs.

I am glad to say that I followed your advice, and although I am not greatly changed, I suspected. They know that any confidence given me is not repeated. One has to use a lot of restraint at times but it is worth it.

I have recently undergone a serious operation and everyone has been most kind, but — my home is my castle — as the old saying goes.

It is nice to know that one can write to you and receive a worthwhile answer. — Senior Citizen.

Dear Senior: I'm glad. For any long-time relationship a person just must retain some privacy, or the whole thing blows up.

* * *

Being greatly loved hasn't too much to do with it. If your neighbors find that you are kind, and are Johnny - on - the - spot when they are in trouble, the love will come. People don't have to possess you lock, stock and barrel, to care about you.

Ann Landers
Observations Made By Zoo Director

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a North Carolina reader who feared her cat was a homosexual because she showed no interest in sex. Frankly, girl cats...

Perhaps you'd be interested in Dr. Warren Thomas' view on that subject. Until recently, Dr. Thomas was director of the Henry Doorly Zoo in Omaha. Soon he will take over the directorship of a new zoo in Riversville, Texas. Dr. Thomas was reluctant to attempt analysis of the cat in question, but he made these general observations:

"Animals are subject to various forms of abnormal sexual expression, but not to the extent found in humans. Higher species of animals such as the apes, are most likely to indulge in apparent homosexual behavior together without female companions.

Another fact trawling apes in captivity: "They know nothing about sex unless it is demonstrated by older members of the species. Apes have an instinctive sex drive, but they are not born with the knowledge of what to do about it. Some strange behavior can result. For example, we once had an orangutan who fell madly in love with a hose."

Thought you'd like to know. Ann. — Robert McMorris — Omaha World Herald.

DEAR BOB: Thanks for the fill-in. Recently I received a letter from that orangutan. She has since broken off with the boot because he began to feel like a heel.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work in an office with seven women. Four of us smoke. I never while away the hours to enjoy a cigarette during coffee break.

One of the non-smoking women makes life miserable for everyone. Whenever she lights up a cigarette, she gags, chokes, and clutches at her throat as if she is being strangled. Every day the performance is the same — she staggers toward the water cooler, clutches at the drain — wheezing and gasping. Garbo as Camille was nothing compared to this broad.

We are sick of her performances and want to know what to do. — ALABAMA GRIPE.

DEAR A.: Sorry. I'm with Camille. The air in the office is just as much hers as it is yours. You do not have the right to pollute it.

If you must smoke, go to the ladies' room or out in the corridor — or to the lunch room.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My best girl friend (I'll call her Geri) confided in me seven months ago. She and Todd (my first cousin) got married secretly. Todd was drafted two months later. He is now in Vietnam.

It's none of my business but Geri has been dating a bum. I know the guy and he's not the type who would actile for a goodnight kiss.

I'm sick about the rotten deal Geri is giving Todd. I write to him twice a week. In his letters to me he never mentions who she's too busy to write. I think he has an idea something is wrong. Shall I give him the word? — ON THE VERGE.

* * *

DEAR ON: Get off it and keep the word to yourself. Your cousin can wait until he gets home to learn the glad tidings. When I was in Vietnam visiting our boys in the hospitals, the sadest kids I saw were the ones who had received Dear Johns. It's the cruelest blow a man in the service can get. Don't deliver it.

Boy or Girl

READING, England (AP)— Police were surprised to find that a gang of "skinheads"— identified by brazen and close-cropped hair — were in fact girls. Terrorizing youth clubs and dance halls, the female gang, aged between 13 and 16 years, took a trophy from each victim — a ring or bracelet or something similar. "It makes you wonder what the world is coming to," a detective said.

Canadian Forces in Germany Still Confused About Future

SOEST, West Germany (CP) — Nearly a year after Canada announced the halving of its NATO military contribution, the role of that reduced force remains far from settled.

Senior officers stationed at this north German old market town say they are confused about the future. They believe some important decisions still have to be taken in Ottawa on the use of major weapons.

But one thing is definite—the ending of Canada's nuclear role in NATO.

Another statement on general defence policy, which will also touch on the NATO role in Germany, is planned by the cabinet government for the fall and this is a factor in the uncertainty.

There is widespread speculation among the troops that the Canadian commitment to NATO may not last more than a few years longer, even though NATO itself may not be fussy about maintaining any relationship that critics say is involved in perpetual uncertainty.

Meanwhile, the 5,000 troops of the mechanized brigade group that has been stationed here are dispersing, half back to Canada and the rest 400 miles southward toward the Black Forest area and the centres of Lahr and Baden-Soellingen.

They will provide in Germany the land portion of a combined land and air unit of about 8,400 men.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux announced last September the force organization would be a temporary arrangement. For the post—1972 period, he said, the government intended to create a portable mobile force and convert the air squadrons of CF —104 Starfighters to reconnaissance planes or weapons able to support the ground troops with conventional bombs and rockets.

The Canadians gave up their Honest John rockets, which could fire a nuclear warhead, last month. Some Starfighters have been armed with nuclear bombs as part of the NATO deterrent but that is ending too.

No firm public estimate has been made of what it will cost to re-equip the NATO force for a mobile role.

However, one authoritative military source said it would cost far more than the apparently $30,000,000 needed to buy 60 Chieftain tanks.

In addition to various types of aircraft, the mobile role would require the purchase of a light artillery piece to take the place of the big howitzers.

The CF—104 is to relinquish its nuclear strike role at the end of next year.

Mr. Cadieux, in Lahr last week for discussions marking the end of the air division and its replacement by No. 1 Canadian Air Group, said both the Centurion tank and the CF—104 will be kept in service "at least in 1972."

After January, 1972, there would be a "reconfiguration" of Canadian forces assigned to NATO.

Mr. Cadieux refused to discuss the exact future role of the Canadian forces, saying this still has to be worked out in consultation with NATO.

"We will have to fit into the general plan," said the defence minister.

Relatives of Crash Victims Begin Arriving

TORONTO (CP) — Relatives of the 108 persons killed Sunday in the crash of an Air Canada Super DC-8 jet began arriving by air Monday as provincial police and Canadian Forces doctors ended their second day of sifting through the wreckage.

Dr. H. B. Colnam, Ontario's chief coroner, said an inquest jury of five local men will be called today to view the crash site 3½ miles north of Toronto International Airport, although the inquest will not start for at least three months.

By late Monday, 46 persons, next-of-kin of 14 of the victims, had arrived from Montreal, Halifax and Los Angeles to help in identifying the dead.

Most of the 80 passengers and nine crewmen were from Quebec and Los Angeles. More passengers had been scheduled to board the plane there in a brief stopover here on the flight to Los Angeles from Montreal.

Relatives of the victims were asked to fill out detailed reports on the physical appearance, clothing and jewelry of the victims. Many of the relatives broke out in tears as they returned home; the remainder were installed at a hotel by Air Canada.

"I think they came here out of sheer frustration," said Air Canada spokesman Bob Rankwell. He said the airline is not encouraging relatives to fly here, but brings them at the company's expense if they ask.

Air Canada officials estimated that the cost of setting insurance and damage claims resulting from the disaster, the second worst in Canada's aviation history, will be at least $30,000,000.

Six Canadian Forces doctors headed a team from the Ontario forensic sciences laboratory and 90 provincial police officers who gathered the human remains and transported them to a nearby open arena, being used as a temporary morgue.

Police said the identification process would continue all this week, after which unidentified remains would be buried in a mass grave.

Richard L. Bolduc, who heads the 30-man dot team at the crash site a few miles north of Toronto International Airport, told reporters earlier that many assumptions could be made on the basis of initial data as to what happened to the plane.

But as for theorizing about why the plane crashed, Mr. Bolduc said: "We do not speculate in this business."

The chief investigator said a tape recording of conversation between the pilot and the control tower probably would not be released to the public, although the gist of it might be made available.

The non-release of such tapes is departmental policy, he said.

"It would create a hell of a lot of anguish for the next-of-kin and it doesn't contribute to the public interest."

He said the in-flight recorder package—a digital computer might not yield any "definite" answers for four or five weeks.

From eyewitness accounts, study of the plane's tire marks on the runway, and early studies of the wreckage, it seemed the plane touched down "slightly heavier on the right side than on the left, but there's nothing unusual in that."

He said it bounced perhaps 50 feet high, and came down with the outside right engine not dragging.

"What caused the hard landing I don't know," he said. "There is always the possibility the poor pilot goofed. We don't necessarily suspect that was the case."

Mr. Bolduc said Capt. Peter Hamilton was a senior pilot with Air Canada.

"I doubt if he had any record of hard landings or he wouldn't have been an Air Canada pilot."

The control tower offered Capt. Hamilton the use of runway 05 which would have involved a slight turn to the right, the direction in which the plane was swerving, but he declined and lifted off.

Mr. Bolduc said the control tower last contact with Capt. Hamilton after noticing him in trouble and offering him a different runway.

Capt. Hamilton's last words to the tower were: "Negative on that, clear of 05." He was switched to a departure frequency because he was taking the plane into the air again. The captain probably was too busy to talk to the tower again.

From eyewitness reports and preliminary evidence, Mr. Bolduc said, the plane was probably in the air for "a couple of minutes" before it crashed in a farm field.

He said the plane came in almost flat, rather than in a nose-dive, and hit with its nose and the left wing tip. Two engines and the right wing tip had fallen off and the plane was out of control

In a telephone interview with The Globe and Mail from Long Beach, Calif., a spokesman for McDonnell Douglas Corp., manufacturer of the DC-8, said preliminary evidence indicated the pilot was correct in lifting off after experiencing landing difficulties.

The spokesman said standard safety procedure for almost any trouble with an incoming plane would be for the pilot to get alot and make corrections for another landing attempt.

He said the DC-8 was designed to fly even with both engines on one side gone, but that called it "an extremely difficult manoeuvre; requiring the most skills a pilot has."

Eyewitness Says Wheels Not Down

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Barbour of Hamilton, who witnessed the crash of an Air Canada DC-8 near here, said Monday the aircraft did not have its landing gear down when it approached the runway.

Mr. Barbour, a former member of the Royal Air Force, said the aircraft "scraped along the runway" into took off again.

He said he had stopped his car on adjoining Highway 401 because his wife is interested in watching aircraft.

Mr. Barbour said the runway was about 300 yards from where he was parked.

But Denis Barclay, public relations officer for Air Canada, said it "seems quite impossible" that the la nding gear was not down because the aircraft would have lost too much momentum to take off again.

Police Don Surgical Masks

TORONTO (CP) — Teams of provincial police, their faces hidden by surgical masks, began digging through a scene Monday that looked more like the littered aftermath of a country fair than the scene of 108 deaths.

The surgical masks were for protection against disease and odors as the men gently pried bits of human flesh and clothing, wing and cockpit from the seven-foot-deep crater, where the main part of an Air Canada DC-8 hit the ground Sunday, killing everyone aboard.

The beaten-down barley testified to the constant traffic as bodies were picked up from the spots where they lay/ strewn, some in chunks too small to be readily identifiable.

About 100 feet from the main wreck, just over a slight rise, another 50 police officers scythed a swath 40 feet by 200 feet through a stand of barley where many of the bodies had been thrown.

"We had to cut it to take pictures and establish locations," Insp. Fred Blucher told reporters.

Two OPP photographers walked through the incredibly mangled remains of the huge jet—nothing recognizable—taking photos that will be introduced as evidence at an inquest in about three months.

The area was cordoned off by police who set up a tent to blocked for up to two weeks.

Also blocked off was the arena about two miles away in Woodbridge where the winter ice machinery has been switched on to make an impromptu morgue.

The only people, besides investigators, who are allowed in are relatives flown in by Air Canada. Their task, according to Dr. Beatty Colnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, is to identify "anything we think they can visually identify."

The job of piecing together visual identifications, dental records, personal papers, x-rays of deformities, will last up to a week.

Meanwhile, police will help Air Canada and the department of transport map the wre-tkage so it can be set up and restudied elsewhere.

Stakes flying red and white tags—red for parts of the plane, white for personal belongings—stand stark above the flich, higher than any of the wreckage.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Tumor Can Cause High Pressure

Within the past year I have received a special letter of thanks from parents concerned about their teenager's unexplainable attacks of high blood pressure. They appreciated a certain column that set us off in the right direction and produced a cure. I am offering the following case history, as it is so similar to their own son's problem.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm in terrible need of your advice. I am 20 years old. I joined the armed services a year and went into boot camp in January 1970. Two weeks later they checked my blood pressure and it was quite high. They decided to discharge me for hypertension. But I had to wait three weeks before it came through.

During that time I started getting sick with dizziness, rapid - heart - beats, feeling weak, and have blacked out. They took me to sick bay. My blood pressure was 165 over 115. I was honorably discharged Feb. 8, 1970.

While I was at the airport waiting for my plane I started getting sick again with dizziness, a ringing in my ears, palpitation, sweating, blurred vision and chest pains. But I got on the plane anyway because I wanted to get home.

When I got off in Georgia they took me to a hospital. My pressure was even higher. When I got home a few weeks later I went to a doctor who found my pressure was normal or over 80. All my symptoms had vanished.

But a few weeks later I blacked out again with the same symptoms I used to get. This time my pressure was 190 over 115. I was in the hospital over three weeks. I had electrocardiograms, x-rays of my kidneys and chest, and even "x-rays of my skull."

Their diagnosis was hypertensitilion. They said it was all psychosomatic. A psychiatrist told me I was "holding my anger in." They keep saying there is nothing physically wrong with me.

But right now I still feel sick. My medical doctor tells me to see a psychiatrist, and the psychiatrist advises me to see a medical doctor. Dr. Steincrohn, I'm going crazy. I don't know what to do. Can you help? Can you make some phone calls to what ails me? — Mr. Mc.

Comment: I'm glad you said guess — because that is all I'm prepared to do. I hope your problem is similar to the other boy's mysterious blood_pressure (especially in a younger person) seems to jump up and down causing symptoms like yours I always think of the possibility of pheochromocytoma—which is a tumor of an adrenal gland.

Have your doctors checked on it? Occasionally it is overlooked. Removal of the tumor by operation usually cures the patient. It helped the first boy I mentioned. If this is your problem, you can look forward to an end to your misery. Best wishes.

Dear Mr. Mc: Dermopathia is a condition of the skin, thought to be allergic, in which the skin becomes dry and raised wherever it is irritated or scratched slightly.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 62 years old, in very good health and never have been in a hospital. However, when I come home and think I have to go to the bathroom, it's difficult for me to control my bladder. Is it nerves or bladder trouble? — Mr. A.

Comment: It's time for a change — a visit to your doctor. Of course, it's possible that you may have infection or other irritation in your bladder. He will be especially interested in the condition of your prostate gland.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Small Questions Vital

Speaking of Marxism, and political positions as I was yesterday, reminded me that every so often I receive a letter from a puzzled reader who wants to know why I do not write about "important" matters, such as the UN, the Middle East crisis, or the problem of inflation.

I usually make a polite, and perfunctory, reply to the effect that such topics aren't my dish of tea. But the real reason I generally avoid them is that I don't believe they happen to be of primary importance. Consequential, yes; but not basic.

About a dozen years ago, in a book of memoirs, Dwight Macdonald (a left-wing activist who eventually withdrew from the direct political arena) confessed that he had begun to realize the "impossibility" of solving political and economic problems within their own framework.

The essential questions for mankind, he saw, are philosophical and ethical — and these must be clarified and understood before the "critical" matters can make any sense or be coped with adequately.

"The questions that interest me now," he wrote, "are not the 'big' ones: What To Do About Russia? Will There be a Depression? Does America Need a New Party:

...These seem to me either unimportant or unanswerable.

"So long as the dominant areas of the world are organized in vast super states, whose economic base is largescale industry and whose political base is tens of millions of helpless citizens, I see no hope of significant improvement. Nor do I see any signs that any considerable number of my fellow men are now in a mood to break up such monstrosities into communities that are human in scale . . .

"It is the 'small' questions that now seem to me significant. What is a good life? How do we know what's good and what's bad? How do people really live and feel and think in their everyday lives? What are the most important human needs . . . How can they be satisfied best, here and now? Who am I? How can I live lovingly, truthfully, peaceably?"

We may not be able to answer all, or even most, of these questions, but unless we at least try to the fullest of our ability — unless we know the kind of world we really want to bring into existence — it is futile and trivial to discuss the World Situation.

For the situation goes always be bad, and getting a little worse, until most of us decide to become philosophers in our own way, with our own minds and hearts, and not simply so many millions of walking Xerox copies ground out by the machinery of our environment.

HASTINGS COUNTY SPECIAL EDITION

Hastings County

More Than A Tract Of Land

Hastings County has a proud and rich heritage. We at The Intelligencer are happy to be able to salute the county's thousands of residents from the Bay of Quinte shoreline to the northernmost boundaries of McLure, Wicklow and Bangor townships.

Inside the next 44 pages are stories about what is happening in Hastings. We think that even the lifelong residents of Hastings could be surprised at what is developing in his county.

It is a great challenge for the years ahead. And for this reason we think it fair to list those members of county council who will be called upon to make decisions which will shape the area's destiny.

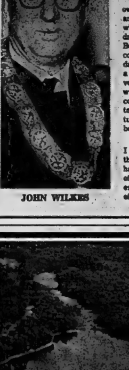
Warden's Comments

Agricultural Role Diminishing But Tourism Is Filling Gap

By JOHN WILKES
Warden
County of Hastings

It is my pleasure through this special edition of The Intelligencer to make a few remarks on the economy of the County of Hastings. I will limit these thoughts to three areas of concern — agriculture, roads and tourism.



Concern must be expressed with the state of agricultural production and the number of people that are going out of farming. Production costs per unit are so high compared to the returns that one gets, that small farms are no longer economical units.

Many farmers, especially those in the middle age bracket are selling their holdings to their city cousins, who in turn, are simply using the houses for a retreat and the land, although productive, is growing into bush and weeds. In my opinion this is unfortunate for our municipalities and the area as well, in that we have been famous as an agricultural district for many years.

The county road system, until a few years ago, was not keeping pace with other segments of the county's functions. The provincial government saw our plight and assisted with a needs study for our entire roads system. Since then there has been a vast improvement in the quality of our road building program and I am sure that the next five years will produce still greater results.

The provincial development road program as well has a direct benefit to the local municipalities and supplies a vigorous stimulant to areas of municipalities. As an example there are six miles of development road being built in Wollaston and my own Township of Marmora and Lake, in order to improve our boundary road.

Undoubtedly tourism has been our fastest growing industry in the last few years and it has still not reached its potential. There are still many miles of river shore line together with a number of lakes that are relatively undeveloped and will produce many cottage sites for future expansion.

JOHN WILKES

Once again, using my own township as an example, on Hickey Lake, which is within an hour's drive from the City of Belleville, there was not a cottage one year ago. Today a real estate firm has a multi-million dollar investment going on, which will provide hundreds of cottages and the services to go with them which, in turn, will provide a real boon to the area.

With these few thoughts, I will close. Undoubtedly this special edition will have many more comments of others like myself interested in the development of the county.

Records, Records, Records

Tweed clerk-treasurer Gerrett Morton, here searching village records, also has set something of a record himself. Mr. Morton's links with municipal government go back to the 1920s.

Tourist Potential

Many A Hastings Lake Remains Undeveloped

TWEED — In 1929 the village council here voted to install storm sewers and water services.

Next election the entire council was turfed out of office by a smouldering electorate, recalls Garrett Morton, Tweed's clerk-treasurer.

"And in two or three years time everybody admitted that the installations were the best move a council ever made, and it hadn't raised taxes as much as they feared," he adds.

Mr. Morton has been the impartial observer of many such local political ups and downs for more years than most.

In fact he's been associated with the administration of this village since 1925 — the year he first became municipal treasurer. In 1931 he assumed the additional duties of village clerk.

His office has spanned the four decades of change that have drastically altered the municipality he first served as a young man.

Among the toughest of times in the veteran administrator's recollections were the 1930s — the years of the depression.

"There was no money to spend on local government. It was rough and there was a great reluctance by people to run for office."

Surprisingly, few Tweed properties fell from ownership because of unpaid taxes.

"I don't think we sold 10 pieces of property for taxes in that time," recalls Mr. Morton.

In politics the unexpected reigns supreme — and Tweed's local government recorded a superb example of surprise.

It came in 1967 when — through a combination of coincidences Tweed likely became the first all-woman local government in history.

At council meetings, the clerk-treasurer often was the only man present, as the women decided the affairs of the village.

"They got on all right," says the impartial Mr. Morton. "There was nothing contentious. The village didn't go to pieces."

But other changes have been more lasting — none more drastic than in municipal government itself.

"Then," recalls Mr. Morton, "there wasn't as much work or detail." Now municipal administration is a complex system of sophisticated grant structures and split tax levies.

There's more assessment in the village — and a bigger population is out of ratio.

The reason?

These days more people may own houses — but they have fewer children, explains Mr. Morton.

There's another way people have changed: Older residents are prompt taxpayers, young people are not.

It's a difference in attitudes, modern living being a "credit - for - necessities - cash - for - luxuries," style, is Mr. Morton's opinion.

"It's just a different way of living," he adds — impartially.

Industry Moving This Way — Hees

TRENTON (Staff) — Hastings-Prince Edward MP George Hees predicts a bright future for the Quinte area.

"All Ontario is experiencing greater industrialization and the Quinte area is going to fit in very well," Mr. Hees prophesied.

"More and more industries are finding smaller places better than large urban centres such as Toronto or Windsor," he explained.

"We have the advantages of a good living, a more stable work force and a good income so the movement is definitely in this direction."

The former Conservative cabinet minister said that "We must make sure that we lay down the ground rules before these industries move in with particular emphasis on anti-pollution measures."

Mr. Hees concluded that he was enjoying representing this area very much and looked forward to meeting the people this summer.

Heated Pool Doubles Season

Do you swim in spite of the weather or because of it?

A well designed pool heating system can stretch or even double the swimming season. There are two types: continuous and intermittent. The first holds water at the desired temperature for the full season.

But intermittent pool heaters can save 30 per cent of fuel costs or more.

Experts advise heating the water only when the pool is in use. And buy a heater carefully sized to your pool, they say, explaining that the extra cost of a heater that's large enough for your pool will soon be made up by lower fuel costs.

An accurate temperature control is a must, as fuel bills can increase up to 10 per cent when water temperature rises one degree.

More Than A Tract of Land

County Slogan Captures Area Potential

Checking Industrial Brochure

Hastings Warden John Wilkes, Marmora Reeve William Shannon and county administrator Carl E. Bateman check county's new industrial brochure. Brochure sets out county as "More Than a Tract of Land!"

"More than a tract of land".

That's the way a new "hot off the press" brochure describes the many advantages of Hastings county as a logical site for new industry.

The advantages listed range from ready access to the nation's big Toronto and Montreal area markets, fast rail and highway transport, labor availability, to the ease of living in a recreation-oriented rural society.

An added inducement for industry seeking a site for new plants is the Ontario Development Corporation financial assistance to plants locating in the area.

All townships and incorporated villages in the county are eligible under the provincial development policy.

County Warden John Wilkes has high hopes for the county's industrial future.

He says the potential of the county as a recreational area has still to be tapped and feels the same applies for industry.

This feeling is shared by Marmora village Reeve William Shannon who heads the county's industrial committee which this year published the new brochure.

Containing maps and citing the county's advantages for industry, it is being mailed to industrial firms across Canada and the United States. Carl E. Bateman, county clerk-treasurer and administrator, reports there has already been considerable response with requests for more information.

The brochure lists industrial land as being available in most of the county villages, some with services and others with sewers in the planning stage.

The villages of Delora, Frankford, Marmora, Madoc, and Tweed and the town of Deseronto list buildings available for sale or lease.

Large acreages in Centre and North Hastings townships are available for industrial use.

The introductory letter mailed out with the brochure notes that the strategic location of the county between the "Big Toronto and Montreal market areas, combined with the existance of the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway and east - west No. 2 highway running between Western Ontario and the Quebec border has made the Belleville-Trenton area an ideal location for industry.

Surrounded by Sidney and Thurlow townships, it is only natural that industry is pushing into the suburban and rural areas.

Modernization of Highways 14, 33, 37, 62 running north-south to link the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway and Highway 7 has opened the way to profitable location of new industry throughout the county.

"It is a land of great natural beauty, with its many unpolluted lakes, rivers and streams, our county is one of Ontario's outstanding tourist areas," the brochure states as an added inducement.

Although primarily an agricultural area in the south, 100-mile long Hastings county has several thriving industries of long standing.

These include the century-old Corby's Distillery at Corbyville and the Canada Cement Company plant at Point Anne.

Later industrial acquisitions for the county include the big Bata Shoe Company plant with its engineering division which located south of Frankford just prior to World War II, and the still later Marmora Mines at Marmora employing about 300 persons.

Marmoraton Mines is the biggest thing ever to hit the Marmora district," says Warden Wilkes.

Other county industries are Elaine Footwear at Stirling, the Madoc Tile Mines outside Madoc and the still-thriving lumber mills in many areas of Hastings.

Currently Sidney township is negotiating with Procter and Gamble for the expected location of a sprawling new industrial complex just outside Belleville's western limits.

Another industry reflecting the growth of the county area is housing construction. New housing developments are springing up in township areas outside Belleville and Trenton and in and around the many rural villages.

History of Hastings County Dates Back Over 3 Centuries

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Hastings County, with its more than 1,000 square miles of varied topography and 100,000 residents, has come a long way in the 150 years since it was the hunting grounds of the Mississauga Indians.

Artifacts recovered from burial grounds and encampments suggest that parts of the county were populated by the Indians since before the time of Christ.

But its recorded history dates back only slightly more than 300 years when in 1615 the Bay of Quinte area is supposed to have been visited by the famed French explorer Samuel de Champlain.

Whether Champlain did actually visit the Quinte area is not agreed upon by all historians.

But it is known that the Sulpician Monks established a mission in the Quinte area about 1800 and in 1672 LaSalle, another French explorer, passed through the district.

Twenty years later the Quinte Mission was abandoned by the Sulpician fathers and for the next century the area was left to the Mississaugas.

In 1784, following the American War of Independence, the Mohawks from New York State came to Upper Canada and in recognition of their allegiance to the British Crown were ceded land in what is now Tyendinaga township.

The Mohawks were followed by non-Indian United Empire Loyalists who also came to the Quinte area through their desire to remain under the British flag.

Today, nearly 200 years later, descendants of these hardy pioneers who formed the backbone of what was to become Hastings county, remain justly proud of their Loyalist heritage.

With the arrival of the Loyalists parts of Sidney and Thurlow townships were soon settled and later arrivals pushed settlement back into the next tier of townships.

But after the fertile "front" townships were homesteaded, settlement of what was to become the northern areas of the county was to await mineral discoveries, big scale lumbering operations carried out by the Rathburns and Gilmour companies, and colonization roads.

Iron ore deposits were discovered in Marmora township as early as 1820, but lack of transportation hampered development. The operations were, however, the forerunner of the present Marmoraton Mines at Marmora.

Shortly after the middle of the century — in 1866 — the discovery of gold at Delora and also at Eldorado touched off a gold rush that was to see the population of Madoc township soon to more than 3,000 — more than half the present figure. Delora was known as the "Valley of Gold".

But the gold mines at Eldorado didn't live up to expectation and in many cases turned out to be but a flash in the pan. Only the Delora operation was to continue and then only for a few years.

Nearer the truth was the writing of C. F. Aylesworth, Madoc surveyor, who in 1825 wrote that the Hastings Road . . . "is one long, long trail of abandoned farms, adversity, blasted hopes, broken hearts and exhausted ambitions".

The reason was that the thin sandy soil, with the exception of isolated areas, proved unsuited for agriculture.

The result was that many of the families who moved into North Hastings with high hopes during the latter part of the 19th century were forced to move.

Localized areas of fair farm land were able to sustain agriculture but it fell to timbering and mining operations to be the mainstay of the economy.

But as the original stands of hardwood and pines were gradually cut off, even this form of livelihood diminished and it remained for mining and the still to be developed tourist industry to keep life in the area.

In the early 1850s Bethlehem Steel developed its open pit iron or mining operation at Marmora.

And a few years later the uranium mines of the Bancroft district were to give that section of the county a brief, although somewhat shortlived,

Hastings Provides Recreation Wonderland

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Hastings County has a wide range of recreational resources for the resident and tourist alike. Some of these are of a formal and some of an informal nature.

The very topography of the county, diverse as it is, must count as a resource in itself.

The Hastings Valley of clear lakes, large river systems, the big, broad Bay of Quinte, the huge woodlots and a sizable swath of the Canadian Shield provide excellent fishing and hunting opportunities.

In Ontario, there are more than 600,000 resident angling licences issued yearly and Hastings is one of southern Ontario's leading fishing grounds.

Many thousands of these are sold in Hastings: one county brokerage agent sells more than 1,500 licences a season and there are six or seven such agents in the immediate Belleville area alone.

Fishing areas are widespread in the county but, of course, certain choice spots are better than others.

The trout fisherman, for example, has a ready haven in much of north Hastings, rich as it is with well-stocked lakes and brooks.

Lake trout fishing rates highly on Kamaniskeng and Weslemkoon Lakes as well as Lake St. Peter.

Brook trout enthusiasts have the best of luck on Mosch, Nale's and Pat's Lakes and on the swift Egan Creek.

Pickerel are abundant in the deep waters of Lake Baptiste and on the Madawaska, Mink, Ike and Bass are also in abundance throughout the north country.

South Hastings is particularly fortunate to enclose the southern reaches of the magnificent Trent watershed. The dividend is reaped by fishermen who find the waters south of No. 1 dam teeming with pickerel and in the fall an increasing supply of Kamloops salmon as they move in from Lake Ontario.

If Hastings is a favored county for the fisherman, it is no less so for the hunter of game and fowl.

Game and fowl are not as abundant as they are in northern Ontario by any means but as far as southern Ontario hunting areas are concerned, Hastings has a high rating.

In much of southern Ontario, bush country is sparse but Hastings is well provided with this; especially in view of the fact that there is a great deal of crown land in the county.

Deer hunting is particularly good north of Stirling and north as well as south of No. 7 highway.

Partridge hunting is best north of No. 7 and duck hunting seasons considerable activity in the swampy areas around Foxboro, a cluster of northern lakes and the Bay of Quinte itself.

In a province like Ontario, where there are more than 100,000 deer hunting licences and more than 250,000 small game licences issued annually, this county's hunting grounds must count as a considerable provincial resource.

Lakes and rivers of the county as well as the bay provide for boating of all description. From canoeing and small powerboating in the north to the large power squadron and sail craft on the Bay of Quinte, one finds that Hastings is a boating county too.

From east to west along the Hastings bayshore, there is a line of marina facilities — Deseronto, Belleville, Trenton.

Hastings borders what is — to cater to the boater; moreover, the county has five yacht clubs, the Bay of Quinte Club at Belleville and the growing club at CFB Trenton, reputed to be one of the finest sailing waterways in North America; it is over 85 miles from the Murray Canal down to Kingston and over the years such notables as Richard Nixon have piled those waters.

Catamarans, trimarans, sailboats, yawls, sloops and schooners — the Bay of Quinte has favored them all. On literally any day of the week throughout the summer, the bay is dotted with small and large craft alike.

The Trent system in Hastings from Trenton to above Glen Ross, affords still more boating pleasure and the designation of the Trent for national park can announced recently can only enhance the worth of an already renowned boating area.

The Quinte skyways are becoming popular too. There is a flying club at Oak Hills and another two miles east of Belleville.

Belleville Airport is an international customs port of entry and has an illuminated 4,400 ft. runway.

The affluescent Belleville Flying Club operates four planes and two gliders and has 228 members, who are taking training on gliders, one-engined and multiple-engined craft. Rescort in the north also has its own flying club.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club is the senior facility for golf enthusiasts in the county. Organized in 1922, it operated well past the Second World war as a nine-hole course but has since expanded into a respectable 18-hole, par 71 facility.

The club is composed of nearly 600 members who regularly play on the well-kept fairways and greens that reach back into Sidney township from the bayside clubhouse.

Rancroft has golfing facilities too and a recently-built club now nestles in the Oak Hills. There is also a golf course being built in the Marysville vicinity.

The second largest golf facility in the county, however, is that of the Trenton Golf and Curling Club. Founded in 1927, this well-established nine-hole course caters to 382 members.

One of the increasingly popular aspects of the Hastings recreational scene is the harness racing which takes place at the Belleville fairgrounds. At the track on race round Saturday 1,670 people packed the grandstand and bet over $32,000 during the evening.

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club, under whose auspices the racing takes place, has sponsored the harness meets for over 12 years and has provided parm-mutuel betting facilities for eight years.

Automatic betting machines are in use and during this season there are 22 nights of racing. Competitors come from many points in the county and from as far east as Gananoque and as far west as Brighton.

Tennis has had a long history in Hastings: the courts of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club have seen considerable and constant use over the years and now the courts at Zwick's Island on the Bay of Quinte have given impetus to the sport.

Hastings also has an active Trap Shooting Club with facilities on the Wallbridge Road near Belleville and a Lawn Bowling Club on Yeomans Street in the city that has been well - bowored in provincial competition.

Organized recreation programs are consolidated in Belleville, where hockey, baseball and soccer leagues fulfil the needs of the urban and ru-

Hastings Facing Challenge of Change

By CARL S. BATEMAN
Clerk-Treasurer and Administrator
County of Hastings

Today the County of Hastings is moving rapidly from a rural agriculturally oriented society in one with a balance of industry, tourism, agriculture and commerce. There will be those who will resist this change, yes, and even fight it and will remember with nostalgia the peace and tanquility of the area before the expension of the '70s took place.

But change is inevitable, and move with it we must.

This is why our municipal governments of today are more concerned with planning, industrial promotion and services to people generally than were the councils of yesteryear, when the building of roads was their major concern. Roads, of course, will continue to play a dominant role in the development of the county, but the emphasis will be on improving them rather than opening up new areas.

Hastings County Council is now facing the challenge of change.

An application is now before the minister of municipal affairs to have most of the county defined as one planning area.

Industrial brochures are being distributed around the world, outlining attributes of the area.

New schools, homes for the elderly, and hospitals, together with more professional services in the fields of public health and welfare are being provided.

CARL BATEMAN

Tomorrow they will be faced with other problems; water supply, pollution, and traffic control to name a few. It is a challenging time and one that will demand the ingenuity and resourcefulness of all to meet it.

Some say that now is the time to move into regional government; that our small local municipalities should disappear together with special purpose bodies and that the cities and the rural area should unite to provide a level of government which would administer these broader functions.

Perhaps time will prove these people right and the time to reorganize the local government structure should have been before the anticipated expansion took place.

However, the fact remains that the people of this area are a proud, resourceful lot, completely confident that they are masters of their achievements in the past and suspicious of large remote and unaccessible governments. This change, more than any other, will be resisted with vigor by city and rural dweller alike and only time will decide who is right.

Roy Caldwell at Pagoda

Pearson Peace Park International Centre

MADOC—The ideal of world peace has visible roots in the soil of Hastings County.

Their seeding was the inspiration of one busy and versatile individual — Roy Caldwell.

Their emblem is the Lester Pearson Peace Park, a 95-acre site strikingly dominated by Canada's only peace pagoda.

The park overlooks the streamlined, rolling landscape of the Madoc-Tweed Art Centre, a summer school project launched by Mr. Caldwell and his wife, Priscilla, in the early 1950s, on land just east of here on Highway 7.

Now at the peak of its newest season, the school annually attracts student artists and writers from Ontario and the U.S.

It's a school where originality is encouraged, states the school's Art and Literary Digest, another undertaking of the industrious Mr. Caldwell.

"We believe the real study of technique is not the acquiring of a rule, but the propagation of ideas that will enable each student to further his own self-development," it explains.

It's on a sloping site on the school property that Mr. Caldwell chose for realizing his dramatic idea of a world peace symbol, in full view of one of Canada's busiest highways.

Its foundation has links in earlier phases of Mr. Caldwell's career, which has included law, university teaching, writing and war service.

In the early 1950s he was appointed by the external affairs department as legal adviser to the Canadian delegation on the Indo-China peace commission. While there, he became acquainted with members of the Indo - Japanese Friendship Association, a Buddhist organization, involved in promotion of international peace with the pagoda as its symbol.

In 1956, Mr. Caldwell casting around for a project to contribute to Canada's Centennial, hit on the peace park. Recollecting his associations with the Buddhist organization, he wrote the group offering the site for construction of a peace pagoda — the first in the western world. He personally renewed the offer when invited to Japan by a Buddhist leader who approved the project.

In 1967, two Buddhist priests flew from Japan for dedication of the park site. Work went on since that time on construction of the pagoda — now a visible token of friendship between Canada and Japan.

In 1968 the park site was named in honor of former prime minister Lester Pearson, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1957.

Stirling Faces Few Growth Problems

Across Ontario many cities and towns are bursting at the seams and grasping for growing space in the adjoining rural areas.

But that is not the case with the village of Stirling, (population 1,450) enjoying a brisk residential building from with upwards of 20 new houses being built each year.

And neither does the village have any water and sewer servicing problems that cannot be taken care of by normal extension.

Thanks to the foresight of former councils, the village boundaries extend well beyond the present built-up area.

Total village area is 836 acres of which only approximately 230 acres is currently developed. That means the village has something over 700 acres in which to grow.

Proper planning has for years received big priority by village councillors.

In the middle 1930s — during the middle of the depression years — councillors voted to install a municipal water service.

Then about 10 years ago it installed sewers and a lagoon-type sewage treatment pond area — at the time one of the first in Ontario.

"We're in good shape in Stirling," commented Reeve Donald Rodgers, "both from the standpoint of services and also in its percentage of paved roadways."

Indicative of the importance placed on planning is the fact that the village also has its official plan approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Stirling's history goes back to 1797 when it saw its beginning with the erection of a water powered flour and grist mill.

Over the years it has been known unofficially as the "hub of Hastings" and also by a number of "official" names.

First it was known as Fidler's Mills, then Selden's Mill, Rawdon Mills, Rawdon Village and finally Stirling since about 1850. The story goes that Scottish settlers named the village after Stirlingshire in Scotland.

The village was incorporated in 1858 and 12 years ago observed its centennial with appropriate celebrations.

The village newspaper, the Stirling News Argus, has been in existence for almost a century and several of the churches are 100 years or more old. Schools date back to 1847 when a private school was in operation.

Serious fires threatened to wipe out the village in 1883 and in 1908 following which the village fire brigade was organized.

Stirling Fair is one of the oldest in the district and for many years has had a horticultural society, a village band, school band and covered skating rink since 1924.

Six Stirling reeves have served as Hastings county wardens since the county was organized in 1849. Donald Rodgers, the reeve since 1963, was warden in 1969.

Council members are Robertson Anderson, Maurice Faulkner, Claude Trumble and Fred Branch. W. Lindsay Pollock is the village clerk and Harold Bird and Robert Hatton the public utilities commission members.

Under the new centralized school program, Stirling has lost its high school but the building is now in use as an elementary school with approximately 300 pupils from the village and surrounding township areas attending classes.

The village has an active senior citizens group which draws on its members from one of the highest concentrations of "over 65" people in the province.

Population figures given in the Stirling official plan show that more than 14 per cent of its residents are in the over-65 age group as compared with an average of about eight percent in the county and across the province.

"Many of our residents are retired people," commented the reeve.

A new 12-apartment senior citizens housing unit is to be built in Stirling this year by the Ontario Housing Corporation.

The village has one main industry — Elaine Footwear Ltd. which currently employs about 200 people. Plant workers are drawn from a 30 - mile radius.

The plant which makes women's shoes exclusively, had its beginnings in the Belleville area but moved to Stirling about 20 years ago. The present plant was built in 1954 with an addition erected in 1962.

Other commercial enterprises in addition to stores are the Stirling Lumber Company, the Armstrong Lumber Company, Stirling Creamery, Ted's Tackle Shop, two area automobile agencies, Stirling Motors Ltd. and Wells Ford-Mercury Sales and a hotel.

Has Official Plan

Stirling clerk Lindsay Pollock and Reeve Donald Rodgers, look over the village's official plan which has been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board. Village has more than 700 acres of undeveloped land, has had waterworks since the 1930's and sewers for more than 10 years.

Oak Hills Flying Club

Allan Morton, one of two instructors at the Oak Hills Flying Club south of Stirling, poses with four - place Cessna aircraft recently purchased by the club. Printing on hangar seen beneath wing shows elevation of landing field is 825 feet.

Oak Hills

Flying Club Rates High on List

It's possibly the "highest" flying club in Quinte District.

It is the comparatively young Oak Hills Flying Club where pilots get instant elevation when they take off from the club's landing field high in the Oak Hills south of Stirling and overlooking the Trent River.

The elevation of the landing field is 825 feet above sea level and from the club house there is a magnificent view of the Trent River Valley 225 feet below.

Since March of last year, the club has been fully licensed for instructional purposes and many a county fledgling pilot has won his wings from the Oak Hills landing field.

Organized back in 1964, club members had their initial landing strip along Highway 33 south of Stirling. Stewart Morton was the club's first president while Allan Lewes is the current club head. Actually it's the second time around for Mr. Lewes who earlier in the club's history was president for three years.

Veteran pilot Jack Bond of Belleville is the club's chief flying instructor, with Allan Morton of Stirling as the second instructor.

The club has 20 members, drawn mostly from the Stirling, Madoc, Marmora and Tweed areas.

One of the club's first members to win his wings was village reeve Donald Rodgers.

Prior to last year the club was a satellite operation for instructional purposes under the Picton Flying Club.

The club owns two planes, one a two-place Cessna 150 and the other a recently purchased four place Cessna Skyhawk.

Four club members, President Allan Lewes, Charles Carver, Ray Irwin and Bob Sweet own their own planes and base them at the club landing field.

The club has a 1,800 foot licensed runway which has been extended to 2,250 and a north-south unlicensed strip of 1,100 feet.

In addition to being licensed for instruction the club is licensed for recreational flying and for sight seeing tours.

Currently a 21-year-old girl is taking flying lessons at the club, but pilots of 16 and up to 30 years have won their wings with the club.

"Actually," the club president maintains, "flying is easier than driving a car."

Recreation A County Byword

val populaces alike.

Soccer teams color the urban playing fields on summer evenings with many hours of intense competition. Some of the team members have played in European leagues and bring to the county more than a gleaning of the world's most popular team sport.

Baseball is also popular in Hastings : in Belleville alone there are a number of leaded competition baseball diamonds. There are diamonds at the fairground, the Alemite, CNR Park, the Cheese Producers and at Parkdale to name but five.

On one recent Friday evening there were seven organized baseball games in Belleville, four minor soccer matches and three minor lacrosse matches.

Hockey has always been particularly significant in Hastings; it put Belleville on the map and the city in the red back in 1958.

The old Hume Arena in the city has had its moments, like the night when the MacFarlands beat out Levis, Quebec for the eastern division of the Allan Cup and went on to defeat the Kelowna Packers, carrying the Canadian banner successfully into world competition at Prague.

It was from the same arena too that Bobby Hull moved up through the ranks to NHL greatness. The county has produced more than its share of NHL material.

Not only Bobby and Dennis Hull of Point Anne but also Brian Watson of Bancroft and Bob Dillabough of McArthur Mills are testimony to the fact that Hastings is hockey country.

Additionally, Eddy Westfall and Dean Prentice both have family ties in the county.

But hockey does not occupy the entire winter recreation picture in Hastings; skating on the rivers and lakes as well as prepared natural and artificial ice surfaces throughout Hastings is significant in itself and figure skating is taught by the Quinte Skating Club that annually rounds off the winter with a mini-extravaganza on ice.

Hastings has its ski hills too both at Oak Hills and at Batawa. And if skis are popular snow cruisers are as well.

Furthermore, the landscape that provides for summer recreation is getting increased winter use, as the motorized vehicles zip across the trails to traditional recreation spots in the highlands of the county or just cut across the drifts of snow in aimless bliss.

Game hunting, of course, is still active after the snow flies and fishermen may turn to their shanties and fish through the ice.

Similarly, the same Bay of Quinte that is dotted with spinnakers on a summer Sunday provides ice - boaters with chilly-thrills on a winter afternoon.

From north to south, from east to west, Hastings has become a vigorous year-round recreation area.

Outdoor Bonanza

South Hastings Has Year-round Playground

A year-round outdoor playground right at the door without the necessity of travelling miles outside the area.

That's what South Hastings residents have in the Oak Hills district south of Stirling.

For well over half a century Oak Hills Lake has been a popular summer cottage area for many Belleville and Stirling district residents.

And the lake's sandy beaches also made it a popular swimming place for district young people, as well as for family picnics.

Also bordering Highway 33 south on Stirling and overlooking the Trent River is the Stirling Golf Course which offers nine holes for the golfing enthusiasts of the area.

At one time there was a church summer camp at the lake and dancing pavilions were a drawing crowd for evening fun.

That took care of the summer fun, but with the increasing popularity of skiing the hills make it a natural for winter sports as well.

Ski runs, both for the beginning skiers as well as the expert, have been developed on Oak Hills northwest elevation facing the Trent River.

Here, snow conditions permitting, skiing enthusiasts of the district go on winter weekends for their outdoor fun. Ski tows make the trip back up the hill just as easy as the downhill run.

And with the modern day commuter age, the Oak Hills district is also becoming a year-round residential area.

Wooded areas in the hills along Highway 14 south of Stirling are seeing better than average homes spring up in recent years. By locating in the advantage of rural living along with a million dollar view south to Belleville, across the Trent River into the Murray Hills or north toward Marmora.

Aside from being a popular summer cottage area for many decades, Oak Lake is something of a natural phenomenon.

The lake nestles atop the hills several hundred feet above surrounding tableland and is without a visible inlet.

A popular one time belief was that in some way it was fed through an underground channel from Lake Huron which is of the same elevation.

But more serious thinkers realize of course that the lake is spring-fed from the surrounding hills.

But regardless of its origin or water supply, district residents have for decades appreciated the hill top lake for its recreational potential.

And with today's recreation oriented society the future popularity of the Oak Hills area as a year round playground is assured.

History Dates Back 3 Centuries

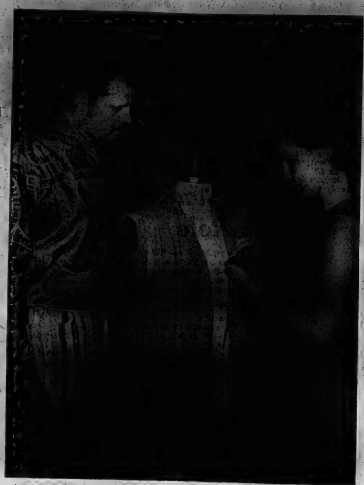
economic boost.

Today the hopes of the North Hastings district are firmly geared to the new booming tourist industry. Over the years its myriad of crystal clear lakes have become spotted with summer cottages and holiday resorts. Businesses in the area depend to a large extent on tourist dollars.

In the south, however, agriculture continues to be the mainstay of the rural economy although here it is lessening in importance with industrialization and the growth of the non-farm population.

These "non-farm" residents living in the rural areas commute daily to jobs in the urban centres, but small industrial plants are springing up in the villages with these plants providing employment for area residents.

In the larger urban centres there has been a definite swing to industrialization with centres like Belleville and Trenton in the past decade being particularly successful in locating new plants.



County council organization has remained relatively unchanged over the years with 24 municipal reeves and deputy reeves currently making up the county council body.

Fifteen of the 24 townships making up the county send their own reeves to council and of these four also have deputy reeves. The three most northern townships — McClure, Wicklow, Rauger — combine to send one reeve, while six others among them send three reeves.

Five villages and the town of Deseronto each send a reeve. This year's warden is John A. Wilkes of Marmora and Lake.

County councillors want to see Hastings remain as a separate entity but with the advent of regional government and larger areas of administration the future of county council as such is unclear.

Throughout the province several such regional government areas have been set up but for the time being it appears Hastings will remain as a single county body.

Horseman's Array

Ted Cairns, owner of Ted's Tack Shop in Stirling examines a suede vest of his design, made by Elma McLeod, who executes all the original Tack Shop designs for the owner.

Horse Popularity Grows

Who said the popularity of the horse is on the decline?

If there is any truth in the rumor then the owners of Ted's Tack Shop in Stirling haven't heard of it yet.

Ted's Tack Shop, catering to horse lovers and the outdoor crowd, saw its beginning 11 years ago as the normal outgrowth of a shoe store and harness making business.

Its main feature was hand-made saddles which found instant response from Quinte area horse owners.

But saddle and harness makers are hard to come by and the shop now buys its saddles ready-made.

Harness making is now the shop's big forte and Mr. Cairns is on the lookout for a couple more harness makers.

"There are more horses now than ever before," Mr. Cairns said, "only they are a different kind."

From the small beginning little more than a decade ago, Ted's Tack Shop has now expanded into other lines and is currently selling up a production line for mass production of horse blankets.

Still another line is the manufacture of buckskin clothing to meet the latest trend in outdoor wear.

Buckskin jackets, purses, and other wearing apparel are made for both the retail and wholesale trade.

Locally made horse blankets are shipped all across Canada.

The shop employs its own designers and has about eight persons on the payroll.

They Always Arrive

Weekly Newspapers Keep Rural Hastings Well Informed

Newspapers busy themselves with the immediate present.

The weeklies of Hastings County are no different.

Only, they've been busy so long they've also become a vital link with the past — an institution unto themselves.

Like Sundays, they've been predictably arriving once a week for as long as anyone can remember.

It's a persistent industry that sought out —and still keeps — its readers in the remotest areas of one of Ontario's biggest counties.

It's a collective community service with a readership reaching from the Bay of Quinte to Algonquin Park.

For hundreds of expatriate county natives it provides a continuing communications link across North America, ensuring that the hometowns of Hastings may have been forsaken but not forgotten.

While other local industries may have contracted, or disappeared altogether with changing times, the weeklies of Hastings are as numerous as ever.

Today there are seven weekly newspapers strategically located around the county: Deseronto and Skyway Scanner; Frankford Advertiser; Marmora Herald, Tweed News; Madoc North Hastings Review, Stirling News - Argus and the Bancroft Times.

Their publishers are among the hardest working business men in the county.

For their weekly publications are only the banner productions of their enterprise.

By tradition — and economics — publication of a rural weekly still is based on a job-printing business.

The papers emanate one day a week from print shops which for the rest of the time, are busily involved with the commercial flow of the printing trade.

They are the highlight products of a steady stream of printed matter — handbills, election notices, brochures and booklets.

It's this combination that makes their publishers among the remaining guardians of a trade tradition — the complete newspaperman.

They are still the editors with ink on their fingers.

In Hastings, a weekly editor can be his own reporter, writer, editor, proofreader, makeup man, salesman and printer.

Their years of experience may be as varied as the front pages of their publications. But their common denominator is versatility in their craft.

Today most of them have another thing in common — a conviction that weekly newspapers, even in a sophisticated electronic age still have a sturdy communications role to play.

The rural weekly has survived daily newspapers — both black - and - white and in color, radio and television.

"There's still a place for the small weekly, even in these times," affirms Jim Watson, dean of Hastings publishers.

As owner of the North Hastings Review of Madoc, he has been printing a weekly since 1934, although, like most publishers, his business has even older community ties.

The Review in fact, is the county's oldest weekly paper.

Mr. Watson says it began publication in 1874. Today it has a circulation of 1,120.

At the other end of the time scale is Bob McArton, publisher of the Deseronto and Skyway Scanner — the newest county weekly which he launched two years ago.

Bob also has confidence in the future of weeklies — and looks to a bigger future for them, filling a need for localized news that other media can't match.

Deseronto is starting to grow, he says, and so will the Scanner.

"One of the reasons weeklies are starting to gain is that we're the only people who carry all the news of our locality," agrees Clyde Bell of the Tweed News.

Founded in 1867, the News has among the biggest circulations in the county — 3,700 readers that reach into the northeast corners of the Quinte area. The news — and its print shop — is a bustling operation.

Not that there aren't problems. Inflation has sent costs soaring in recent years, notes Mr. Bell. But, he adds, "unless something drastic happens, local papers will always be there."

Challenge is part of the weekly tradition in Hastings.

Neither mail strikes nor mechanical breakdowns prevent the papers from reaching their readers — if the publishers can help it.

It's an attitude that goes back a long way.

John Thompson was only in business four years in Stirling when a disastrous fire swept the village's business district in 1863.

Thompson found a tiny press still standing in the ruins of his enterprise. Until equipment was replaced he kept the publication of his Stirling News Argus in a form no bigger than a writing pad.

Today the News Argus is operated by Robert Hollis, who purchased the paper in 1964.

Mr. Hollis agrees the weekly paper's distinctive community role. Much of its success, he adds, relies on its correspondents — the News Argus has about 20 feeding in the news of people and events in the surrounding township areas.

Staffs are small, in some cases involving other family members — when the need arises.

Jack Golden, who bought the Marmora Herald six years ago, sometimes gets a hand from his wife, Sheila, when the weekly deadline nears.

Mrs. Golden was totally unfamiliar with a paper operation when they bought the Herald, but learned by helping her husband when the going got hectic.

Now she can make up pages while her husband sets the news for a growing weekly with a circulation pushing 1,600.

Most of the family is directly involved in publication of the county's northernmost journal—The Bancroft Times.

The Times, enterprisingly - launched in 1964, now is the property of Mrs. Eva Walker.

Mrs. Walker took it over in 1965 when her husband Stanley died. Her sons, Roger 19, Dean, 21, David, 22, and Frank, 27, currently are assisting her with its operation. The Times has a readership of 2,000 — many of them in the remoter areas of the county district.

There's no doubt in the minds of all county publishers that—despite cost problems, the workload complications imposed by regular deadlines — that the effort is necessary.

Where a local newspaper disappears everybody feels it," says Clyde Bell. "It's a community's uniting force."

Canal Benefits Tourism

TRENTON — Hastings-Prince Edward MP George Hees reacted favorably to the federal government announcement that the federal government is negotiating the transfer of the Trent Canal to the department of Indian affairs and northern development for use as a national park.

"I hope, and think, this will be of great benefit to tourism," the former Conservative cabinet minister told The Intelligencer.

"Other national parks are pretty well done and I feel that this would greatly beautify the Trent waterway and attract more tourists," he added.

Mr. Hees noted that when the move becomes official, the Trent would become Canada's first waterways national park.

But, he stressed that "it may take quite a while" to work out details of the transfer of the Trent Canal and other facilities now under control of the federal transport department.

Emphasizing that no plan has been drawn up yet, Mr. Hees suggested that "the people send their suggestions to me."

"Now is the time for individuals, conservation groups, tourist groups and Chambers of Commerce to voice their thoughts on what could and should be done," he asserted.

The MP explained that he would forward his constituents' views to the federal minister, Jean Chretien.

A Helping, Family Hand

Eva Walker, publisher of The Bancroft Times gets plenty of help from family in putting the weekly paper to bed. Sons David, 22, Dean 21, Roger, 19, Frank, 27, lend collective hand as deadline nears for weekly — one of seven serving Hastings County communities.

Rivers Change Role

TRENTON — Transportation has played a large part in the development and advancement of the southern portion of Hastings County.

Back in the 1800s the Trent River was the major transportation route connecting Trenton with the northern portions of Hastings and Northumberland counties.

The river played an important part in the economy of southern Hastings by providing a means for transporting logs from North Hastings to the markets region for processing.

For a time in the 19th century Gilmour Lumber mills at the river mouth dominated the local economy and turned Trenton into the shipping centre of this section of Ontario.

Construction of the 243-mile Trent Canal connecting the Bay of Quinte with Georgian Bay as begun in 1833, primarily for military purposes, but not completed for many years.

Over the years, the Trent's importance to the local economy declined for three reasons: the depletion of forest resources; the advent of improved transportation methods and its decreasing importance for military purposes.

Today the Trent River is a top recreation attraction and provides fishing grounds and facilities for tourists and area residents. But it is no longer the most important contributor to the local economy.

Mines and Marmora 150-year-old Story

MARMORA — Not every hole in the ground is a pitfall.

There are holes that are landfalls.

And this west-central Hastings village, sitting on the side of one of the biggest, has made holes in the country — has known both.

Currently, it's enjoying a landfall. In fact, the huge excavation which has become Marmora's outstanding geographical feature is less than two decades, is also the source of its economic well-being.

Marmorative Mining exists for the purpose of supplying its U.S. parent, Bethlehem Steel, with iron ore. Begun in the early 1950s, the mine has been exploiting a rich ore lode, shipping the resource by rail to lake carriers at Picton for the final trip to blast furnaces in New York state.

It's an open - pit operation and consequently, the massive hole marking the mine site, grows inexorably deeper. Yet each shovelful is a vindication of Marmora's existence.

The village of 1,402 came into existence because of a similar operation 150 years ago. Had it not precautionarily perished, the history of Marmora — and Hastings County — might well have taken different trends.

What now is the village of Marmora once was the site of one of Canada's earliest mining ventures.

It's a story still alive with human fascination even though it began five years after the battle of Waterloo.

In 1820, a Dubliner, Charles Hayes arrived in Canada searching out iron ore deposits. The government granted him permission for an iron works at Crowe Lake — west of present - day Marmora.

A year later, the industrious Irishman had a road open between the site and the mouth of the Trent River. The iron works — west of what is now Marmora's main street—materialized a spirited growth in its range of products growing with production capacity.

A new community slowly became manifest. Merchants, farmers, tradesmen moved into the area. By the mid-1830s there was a fair-sized settlement — the roots of a future community.

There also were problems. The main ore body turned out to be elsewhere — some miles outside the jurisdiction of Hayes' original land grant. His proposed mining operations be moved to what is now Blairland — five miles distant from the iron works. The ore was to be sent back down the Crowe River.

But transportation was a serious problem for a mining venture then virtually locked into the Bay of Quinte hinterland. Poor roads and the weight of iron products for the vehicles of the time, ruled against road haulage. Shallows and rapids were obstacles to reduce the fishing pressure in the early weeks. The advent of snowmobiles for winter angling has greatly increased the pressure on the existing supplies of fish available.

Officials of the department of lands and forests are combatting this angling pressure in a number of ways including helicopter stocking and the issuing of catch reports for further research.

About 60,000 fish have been stocked by helicopter this year and officials are evaluating the success of the operation. The main advantage is that it allows the fish to be dispersed in the exact spot required.

The fishing public is asked to aid the department by turning in catch reports, which are available from outfitters, conservation groups and the department of lands and forests.

on canal reservoirs.

Hayes planned a canal from Blairton to the Trent River. But his apparently relentless climb in overcoming challenging obstacles finally foundered on a basic hindrance—finances. His energies passed to a consortium of business men.

Together they did no better than Hayes had accomplished single handedly. At one point the company was put up for auction — without success.

In the 1850s it again changed hands and shares were offered the public. There was no response. In 1857 there was talk of moving the Kingston penitentiary to Marmora and using the mine and workshops as a convict-labor project. The scheme finally was rejected.

Various attempts to revive the dream of Charles Hayes continued for almost another half-century. Finally, a lumber magnate bought the land.

By that time, however, the village of Marmora had grown from foundry to settlement to established community, serving a surrounding population of farmers and lumbermen.

It took almost three-quarters of a century but finally the faith of the pioneering Hayes in the area's mineral deposits were realized.

In the early 1950s Marmoration was launched — the biggest mine ever to operate in Hastings County.

Today it employs 320 people. Its miners on par with the company's employees in the U.S. — making it the among the highest - paid in Canada.

The ore is concentrated as pellet form for shipment to the United States. The Marmoration operation has an annual output of 800,000 tons of pellets.

But in its prosperity the village has not forgotten the man who started digging that first hole — which if it did not produce personal riches for Charles Hayes, produced a new community for Canada.

A year ago special ceremonies in the village unveiled a plaque to his memory. Symbolically, for a pioneer, the unveiling took place on July 20, 1969 — the day the first man walked on the moon.

A Landscape Transformed

Since Marmoration Mines began taking iron ore from the bush near Marmora in the mid-1950s, an entire landscape has been transformed. Open-pit mine site now is marked by huge crater, big enough to house a community.

There Is Always A Fish In Hastings' 2,600 Lakes

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Reporter

For local anglers, and visitors from as far away as the central United States, Hastings County's more than 2,600 bodies of water provide a focal point in the search for "the one that got away."

Haunting the waters of the Belleville-Tweed area is an assortment of game fish that offer almost any angler the choice of his fresh water favorite, including the various species of trout, large and small-mouth bass, pike, pickerel, muskellunge and panfish.

The muskellunge, heavyweight champion of the local fish fraternity, has reared its ugly head, with reports of several medium - sized muskies landed in Beaver Creek.

Pickerel have been supplying the bulk of the action in the Bay, of Quinte are with reports of excellent catches in the Moira River and at the mouth of the Trent.

Those taken in the Moira have been hooked almost exclusively on minnows, while ignoring the artificial bait offerings. West and East Lakes have had fair catches of both pickerel and pike.

With bass season opening this weekend, fishermen will get a chance to test their skills on the scrappy, high-jumpers.

Areas around West Lake and Hay Bay are already booked solidly for the summer months, with about 10 per cent of the visitors hailing from the U.S.

Despite the lack of precipitation, waters in the area are still at high levels in many areas, thanks to the construction of beaver dams, which have helped maintain the water level.

While an excessively dry summer would not hinder the immediate fishing prospects, it could have an adverse affect on future angling. If water levels drop too far, the spawn of species like lake trout could be left high and dry.

Lake trout fishing which has been generally good throughout the spring months is beginning to slow down, as the fish move to deeper water to maintain the 50 - 55 degree temperatures which they require.

Top fishing spots in the Tweed area this year include Egan Creek, near Sandrail, for brook trout, Weslemkoon, Big Clear and L'Amable lakes for lakers and St. George lake, which has been a top pickerel spot.

Inclement weather at the opening of the lake trout season may prove to be a boon to summer anglers, as it helps

Hydro and Trent River Always Go Hand in Hand

TRENTON — Hydro and the Trent River have grown "hand-in-hand" since the early 1880s when Trenton was the first municipality in Ontario to be granted the right to develop its own water power.

A timber dam was constructed where number one dam now stands and the first power house of the Trenton Electric and Water Company became one of the pioneers in the development of power in Ontario.

By 1892 the first electric are lamps illuminated downtown streets.

The construction of hydro generating stations by far sighted businessmen accompanied the building of the Trent Canal which was begun in 1833 but not completed until 1912.

Initially the coming of electricity brought a degree of prosperity to many of the small communities along the Trent, but before long a period of slow growth set in.

Ontario Hydro came onto the scene in 1913 when it purchased five generating stations from the Seymour Power Company.

In those days the Trent was an important part of Ontario Hydro, turning out 43,000 kilowatts.

Today however with the slow flow and decreased volume of the river, the 19 generating stations left on the Trent turn out considerably less than this amount.

The Trent's role then has decreased with its production and Ontario Hydro's substantial increase to a 1978 installed capacity of over 11 million kilowatts.

A manpower reduction and station conversion has accompanied the change in the Trent's significance so that at present 30 men permanents done by over 60 men just 30 years ago.

Ontario Hydro's modernization program which will be completed many times in 1971, will establish three master transformer stations — Dobbin near Peterborough, Ranney Falls near Campbellford and Sidney just north of Trenton.

A Message From The Reeve of Marmora Village

In these rapid changing times, especially pertaining to Municipal affairs, the Reeve and Council of the Village of Marmora, — one of the oldest settled Communities in the county — believe that they express the opinion of the majority of their citizens in their appreciation of what the presently constituted county government has contributed and trust that new forms of regional government shall not be introduced here until proven in trial areas. Therefore, at this time we salute this fine old Hastings County and invite its citizens to visit the friendly Village of Marmora.

William A. Shannon

Community Thinks Ahead

Marmora More Than Company Town

MARMORA — This village of 1,400 nestles beside the gargantuan pit that is Marmora-ton iron ore mine, a staple of Hastings County economy.

Yet, somehow, Marmora for all its dependency on the big mining project, hasn't the total air of a company town.

Two current work projects provide a clue to its identity.

Nearing completion is a thorough overhaul of the village's Main Street. When it is done Marmora will have a business area second-to-none in the county — modern sidewalks and boulevards, the traditional tangle of utility cables buried below ground.

Meantime machinery has started restyling the east bank of the Crowe River. Some day the river flank of the village will boast a beach, parkway, roads, connected islands and historic sites.

The projects emphasize Marmora's function as a service - supply community to travellers, tourists and rural residents — and a community history that has seen flourishing enterprises come and go.

Reeve William Shannon, who has headed its municipal affairs since 1957, reflects Marmora's realism about an economy tied to exploitation of a natural resource.

Such an environment may endure many, many years. But it can't last forever.

Some day Marmora may need, a new source of economic stability — and one ace in reserve may be the tourist business.

The park project along the Crowe River is typical of that approach. Some day it may be a top tourist facility — as well as a boon to local residents.

"If — and when — the natural resources peter out, we hope the tourist industry will thrive," he says.

The vagaries of industrial prosperity are not easily discerned these days in this prosperous community. The land has reclaimed the symbols of an earlier era of expansion. On one plot of land the brush has obscured the impressive ruins of a soap factory, a grist mill, a sawmill and what may have been Ontario's second earliest iron furnace.

The noblest of the dead commercial colony can be vaguely traced from the steep west bank of the Crowe River, nearby the walls of the Sacred Heart Church, built by Catholic settlers in 1825.

Nearby, is one of the earliest known graves in the district. Now carefully tended since the old church site was restored in 1964 and the scene of annual pilgrimage, the grave's stone reads: "Sacred to the memory of Margaret Hughes, who departed this life Aug. 15, 1824, aged 14 years. Erected by her brother . . ."

In those years Marmora's history was in its founding phase — hinged to the enterprise of Charles Hayes, an intrepid Irishman who first attempted to exploit Marmora's rich iron ore deposits.

Hayes launched the Marmora Iron Works in 1821, a venture that opened up the surrounding countryside, foundling what is now Marmora. But the mine workings were ill-starred and the village's fortunes rose and fell as the operation moved through various phases until its extinction in the latter half of the century.

By that time, however, settlement had blossomed, spreading across adjacent Lake and Marmora townships, over the Hastings County line itself. Marmora was the centre for a growing lumber and farm region. Potash became a thriving business with land clearances.

In the 1860s with the nearby Eldorado gold discovery stimulating Canada's first gold rush, Marmora went through another sudden growth phase.

At the turn of the century the village still could boast one of the county's leading lumber operations in the Pearce saw mill.

In 1901 the village became a municipal entity.

Much of that early background may become more evident as the village's current riverside park project progresses. The remains of those early enterprises are on the route of land clearances and beautification plans.

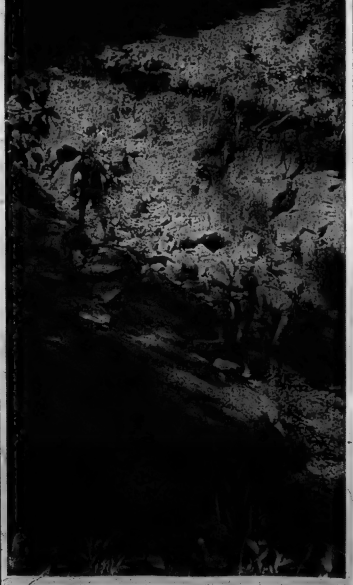
Reeve Shannon hopes they can be incorporated into the overall scheme as an historic set - piece.

The conservation aspects of the project are not to be discounted, he indicates.

"I think that's one of the hopes for an area like this — to retain what we have in a clean, attractive condition."

The village itself is becoming increasingly well-serviced. A filtration plant has been supplying residents with water from the Crowe River since 1964. Now on the books is a sewage disposal scheme — estimated at close to $1,000,000 — which, if approved, could be completed by 1973.

Reeve Shannon, who was warden of the county in the 1967 Centennial Year, is confident of Marmora's continued growth, even for non-industrial reasons.



The village, in a mobile society, is conveniently located on Highway 7 for suburban living.

"There's every indication of people seeking out places like Marmora that have a reasonable local tax rate and fairly good community services," he says.

Design for the Future

On the wall behind Marmora's reeve William Shannon is a blueprint for imaginative project that will give a new look to town's Crows River area. Already a start has been made on park scheme that combines conservation with recreation.

Vulcanizing Parlor

1,000 Employees

Bata One of County's Major Industries

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

BATAWA — With 1,000 employees, Bata Industries' plant five miles north of Trenton is one of the major industries in Hastings County.

But the plant and the community of Batawa are just one aspect of the Bata organization's worldwide operation.

In all, 97 companies in 90 countries make Bata the world's largest shoe manufacturing and marketing organization.

Annual production and sales surpass 220 million pairs of shoes — a lot of shoes in any language.

The Bata International Centre in Toronto serves as world headquarters for the organization which has regional offices in Singapore, Calcutta, Casablanca and Africa as well as the Bata Development Limited in London, England.

Its industrial diversification is borne out by the fact Bata shoe factories are supported by Bata hide and rubber collecting centres, tanneries, a textile mill, product development studies and product control laboratories.

Within its organization Bata conducts training programs and develops specialized machinery, but it also manufactures a variety of products for sale and export.

The organization is a pioneer in developing countries, encouraging industrial production, boosting these nations' economies and increasing the population's standard of living.

It began in 1894 in Zlin, Czechoslovakia, when the late Thomas Bata founded a shoe making business.

With the idea of providing "shoes all over the world at prices people can afford," he had established 30 companies in 30 countries by 1932.

Thomas J. Bata, a Canadian who is the present head of the organization, has rebuilt almost from scratch the business founded by his father.

He averages 150,000 air miles a year and spends much time in Toronto and cities around the world, but Batawa is more than just another plant to him.

In 1939 at age of 25, Thomas J. Bata established the plant here on the west shore of the Trent River and today he maintains a modern home on the rolling hills overlooking the Batawa plant and the river.

The Batawa plant engaged in war production and after World War II the Communist-led expropriated without any compensation all of the Bata companies east of the "Iron Curtain."

Reaction to the Communist takeover is reflected by the company's current policy.

"Bata, in principle does not trade with any country upon which the Communists imposed their tyranny," notes one of the organization's publications.

The organization's faith in Canada and Batawa is borne out by excerpts from one of the firm's publications.

"Canada, a young, vigorous fast-growing country, provides the best opportunities to any community whose people are willing and able to work for its wide - spread sales organization," the publication says.

"Batawa, with its space, its diversified industry, and its ties, has all the basic conditions, plus one," it continues.

"Bata Shoe Company of Canada Limited has the advantage of association with the world wide Bata Organization, and thus best access to technical knowledge and business connections with many countries of the Free World," the publication emphasizes.

Today "Bata" is synonymous with "shoes", but what of the future?

"Standing firmly on its present ground, Batawa is working for a better future — its own as well as those who are associated with it in business and work," the publication concludes.

Batawa Started as Planned Community

BATAWA — Bata Industries has developed an involved operation and an industrial community unique in Hastings County just five miles north of Trenton.

The operation, which has a total of 1,000 employees, is considered a "company town."

Bata Footwear Division and Bata Engineering — and previous "feeder" plants in Campbellford and Picton.

As might be expected, the Footwear Division manufactures shoes. This includes men's varieties and leather, canvas and rubber composition.

Bata Engineering is engaged in the manufacture of shoe machinery and the sub-contracting of precision machinery.

Among the shoe machinery are injection moulding equipment for shoe soles, "clickers" which cut out the various parts of a shoe and conveying equipment.

Sub-contracting is in the form of precision machining of castings and components for the United States and such Canadian companies as General Motors Diesel Division, Pratt Equipment and Douglas Aircraft.

Based on Thomas J. Bata's objective "to make Batawa an ideal place in which a man may live and raise a family," Batawa has been a planned community since its construction in 1939.

In this village of 800 there are 200 low rental housing units (which are now being replaced with modern houses), a "staff house" for single employees and the Batawa Community Corporation Limited, which builds houses here for private home owners.

Being a "company town", Batawa offers many advantages which other communities its size cannot match.

The 1,200 acre site which houses Bata Industries and the village boasts a bank, a food market, a shoe store, a post office and the Sidney Township Fire Hall.

Churches, social activities and sports organizations all thrive.

Winter sport is centred around the Batawa Ski Club, a snowmobile club, bowling leagues, a hockey team and the Sokal Gymnastic Association.

Summer sports activity features a tennis club, a soccer club and both minor soccer and minor softball teams.

Other recreational activities are offered by the Trent River which lies just across Highway 33 a short distance from the village and the surrounding Quinte region.

Gemboree in Bancroft International Affair

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — It's a gem of a show — and you're likely to hear about it in the most unexpected places in North America.

As an international crowd-magnet, the Bancroft Gemboree is up there with the best of Canadian attractions.

Last year an estimated 11,000 people converged on this area for the event, the only one of its kind in Canada.

The Gemboree is a glittering Canadian showcase of natural gems and minerals — deposits of which make this region a unique geological rendezvous.

Participants and visitors travel from across Canada, from deep in the U.S. for the big event — this year scheduled for Aug. 5-8.

Core group strong the visiting crowds are the rockhounds — amateur collectors of minerals and rocks.

Rockhounding is one of the fastest-growing hobbies in the country — a pursuit that draws entire families into the outdoors in search of unique mineral finds.

It was from such enthusiasts that the Gemboree received its sponsorship.

Start of it all was a small show sponsored at the local Legion Hall here in 1963 by the Bancroft Mineral Society.

Members displayed samples from their collections plus the polishing and cutting techniques used to give natural minerals their cultivated shape and glitter, recalls Bert Elterbeck, society public relations man.

It proved such a hit and excited such curiosity, the show was repeated at an event staged by the Bancroft Flying Club.

"It drew a whale of a crowd," says Bert, who has been a rockhound since he moved here 26 years ago to open a barbershop.

The next step was obvious. In 1964, the first annual Gemboree was organized and presented — with inevitable results.

The crowds were big and enthusiastic.

"And the show has been getting bigger and better ever since — and it have the crowds," says Bert.

MORE THAN A TRACT OF LAND

Riverside Park: Serenity In A City

Trent River: Has Its Own Charms

One of Camp Quin-Mo-Lac's Many Sports

Canoeing is just one of the many sports offered at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac on Moira Lake, approximately 20 miles north of Belleville. Administrator of the United Church camp is Rev. V. E. Zufelt, who runs the establishment on a weekly basis with the help of counsellors who work on a volunteer basis.

Foresters Have Big Job to Do

TWEED — This town is the administrative centre for a territorial heritage which, in ways, dates back to Samuel de Champlain.

Champlain, travelling up the Ottawa River in 1613, was the first white man to visit what now is the Tweed Forest District.

It took Champlain two years more to appear on the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario — lucky also part of the same forest district.

In 1970, to cover all the area administered from the lands and forests department district offices here would still be a challenging choice.

It reaches from the Ottawa Valley into Lake Ontario, from Trenton east to Kingston.

Exclusive of Lake Ontario water, its territory covers 4,364,000 acres — slightly more than 7,000 square miles.

The territory is vast — and as varied as the task assigned its lands and forests administrators.

They're in the natural resource business in the biggest way — a role which suddenly has acquired new and urgent emphasis.

A concerned public suddenly has become militant over environment. Simultaneously the outdoors has taken on a new significance for the most-urbanized generation in history.

Neither trend will take the lands and forests people here by surprise.

They're professional environmentalists and the range of activities governed from here indicates the depth of the involvement.

Wildlife management, reforestation, fishery research, land uses, provincial park recreation, are among their concerns.

Their dual role of resources management and control encompasses a multitude of activities and uses a multitude of appliances — from aircraft to laboratory equipment.

Assignments may range from patient, hours-long observations on fire-tower duty to the slogging, often hazardous, policing of favorite poaching areas.

Whether the work is at the Glenora fish research station near Picton, or in the deep snows of a northern deer yard, it's all part of the total task.

Much of it is a matter of finding how man and nature can be compatible.

"We have to learn to harvest in such a way as to preserve the environment," says Tweed district forester A. H. Peacock. "And we have to be broadminded enough to know we need a certain amount of raw materials for a standard of living."

The department has been in the business of shepherding and restoring natural resources — wildlife, timber — for years.

But with the explosion of outdoors activity in recent years the task has become a cumulative one.

It's the latest — possibly the biggest development — to compound the task of resource agencies like lands and forests.

"If it wasn't obvious before, it has become so in the last year or two," says Mr. Peacock. "We will have to be continually vigilant to protect our environment because of the influx of the people.

"It's a case of increasing numbers of people creating pressure on our natural surroundings — and I can see it intensifying.

"Perhaps," he adds, "the situation will be modified to a degree by an improving attitude on the part of people.

"The only thing that will make our job tolerable 15-20 years from now will be an enlightened attitude."

"I've a certain amount of faith in human nature," says Mr. Peacock. "We generally respond to what's needed."

Roman Schneider's Project

Fine Arts School Flourishing Just South of Highway 7

ACTINOLITE — One of Ontario's leading summer art schools now is in full cultural swing in this pastoral heartland of Hastings County.

This is the eighth flourishing season the Schneider School of Fine Arts has offered students a facility that blends educational experience into a superb outdoors vacation setting.

Founded in 1963 by Roman and Mary Schneider, it operates from late June until mid-October, offering painting and ceramic instructions to classes consisting of students from across Ontario.

Its continued cultural contribution to the Canadian scene from this year on is guaranteed by the presence of Mary Schneider. Last year, her husband, Roman, a leading ceramic artist and designer, died in Toronto.

But Mrs. Schneider — a painter of distinction — intends to continue the work of the school, and the ideas she and her husband vested in its foundation.

"Too many people have given their confidence to the school. I will not desert it," she affirms.

Justifying her intentions is the fact that the school is busy as ever this year while its roster of instructors once again lists some of the most distinguished names in Canadian art circles.

Taking successive classes at the school this season are such artists as Jack Pollock, Schaefer, Hugh MacIennis, Rosemary Kilbourn, Carl Alex Millar, Oscar Schlienger and Sigfrid Jursevskis.

They will be teaching in an environment designed by the Schneiders to complement one of the most graceful settings in Hastings County — an area abounding in natural beauty.

Located on the banks of the Skootamatta River, it includes rapids, cliffs, spectacular rock-ravines and bridges. The surrounding countryside offers a lakes, rolling farmlands and old villages.

The Schneiders went to complicated ends to marry their facilities blended with the surroundings.

The school's main building and studio are century - old pioneer, buildings of hand-hewn logs.

The Schneiders scoured Hastings County to find the structures, dismantling them for reconstruction at the site.

These now are the centre-piece for a colony of living quarters — individual cedar cabins with modern facilities, which house the student throughout the summer months.

It also is a permanent tribute to Roman Schneider, the professor of architecture and design, whose career was terminated by Russian imprisonment during World War II. He and his wife arrived in Canada in 1950, after several years in the Middle East. A staff member of the Ontario College of Art he had innumerous one-man shows of his ceramics, taking most of the top honors at the CNE throughout the 1950s.

He taught at the school until his death. By then, the school he and his wife struggled to realize had won its distinctive niche in Canadian art circles.

"We did it — not for any material reason," says Mrs. Schneider. It was an idea, "a challenge we wanted to carry out."

Speaking to You from Outdoors

Madoc High School student Bruce Snider prepares for a news and feature broadcast being taped at the Hastings Cable Vision Ltd. Co. studio at 18 Durham St. South in Madoc. HCV has not begun official broadcasting but is stockpiling programs to be aired in the town, complying with recent Canadian Radio and Television Commission rules requiring local interest broadcasting.

Mounted Police at Madoc

Rowdyism at Marmora and Madoc during the 1866 gold rush in centre and north Hastings brought mounted police, reinforced with local vigilantes, to the centre Hastings villages. Mounted for mobility on the gold rush frontier, they galloped from place to place as outbreaks of violence, usually centring around mining claims, broke out.

Stoco Lake Was Centre Of Tribal War

TWEED — This community is the main centre of the largest township in Hastings County.

The 92,000 acres of Hungerford township also have fostered the roots of some of the county's oldest historical associations.

These long predate the arrival of white settlement in the county.

In fact, Stoco Lake, the main scenic feature of Tweed, is a centrepiece in an ancient — and violent — drama involving its original Indian inhabitants.

In the mid-1600s, a dispute is said to have broken out between the Mohawks and the Mississaugas over hunting grounds in the area. The ensuing combat resulted in heavy fatalities, until the Mohawk chieftain challenged the Mississauga leader Stoogeong, to single combat.

The Mississauga chief triumphed after a long - drawn contest and the tribe named the nearby lake after him.

This is said to be the origin of the name Stoco.

The Mississaugas remained in the area after the appearance of United Empire Loyalist settlers in the Quinte area.

Part of the township was surveyed at the close of the 18th century. It was named after the man who also gave his name to the county — Sir Francis Rawdon - Hastings, a descendant of the British baron of Hungerford.

The first permanent white settlers arrived on Stoco Lake shortly before 1826.

In a township largely agricultural, mining also has been a feature of local history. A goldmine was started in 1869 at what now is Solphide, northeast of Tweed. This was later taken over by the Nich ols Chemical Company for the production of sulphuric acid. In the early 1960s the operation closed, affected by the shutdown of uranium mining at Bancroft.

Moira Conservation Authority Guiding Body for 17 Municipalities

Conservation of present day environment for the enjoyment of future generations and at the same time keeping in touch with the past, is the dual role of Conservation Authorities across Ontario.

Such is the program of the Moira River Conservation Authority which is responsible for carrying out a wide range of projects in the Moira watershed.

These projects range all the way from education of the public to the necessity of conservation, to reforestation and the construction of dams to better control river flow.

Established in July 1947, the Moira Authority is made up of 17 member municipalities lying all or partly within the watershed. Most of these municipalities are in South or Central Hastings but the authority also extends over into Lennox and Addington county to the east where the headwaters of the Shootamatic River (the main tributary of the Moira) are situated.

The late Roscoe Vanderwater was the authority's first chairman and one of the main movers in getting the conservation authority movement under way in the Belleville area.

Possibly the most important project of the authority has been its reforestation program which has seen approximately 17,500 acres of submarginal land acquired and close to three million trees planted.

The main reforestation area is in Hungerford and Elzevir townships, although smaller tracts are situated in various other sections of the watershed. The reforested areas are under the management agreement with the Ontario Lands and Forests Tweed district.

During the 1950s and early 1960s that authority was able to purchase large tracts of submarginal land at rock bottom prices. Now, however, metropolitan buyers have forced up land prices and acquisition of reforestation property by the authority has been slowed almost to a halt.

The work of the authority is handled by an executive body made up of representatives from member municipalities, with the assistance of advisory boards which make recommendations on needed programs.

The advisory committees include forestry, conservation areas, water control, information and education and fish and wildlife.

Possibly the most widely recognized phase of authority work is in its conservation areas with the 600-acre Vanderwater area at Thomasburg and the O'Hara Mill area northwest of Madoc being good examples.

The Vanderwater area is noted for its nature trails and conservation projects as well as its colorful picnic sites and camping areas.

To a lesser extent the same things are offered at O'Hara Mill site, with this area having the added attraction through its link with the past.

The O'Hara Mill site is a 37-acre tract of land in which is situated a muley type sawmill, one of two left in the province, and dating back to 1846.

The old mill was purchased by the authority and restored and was officially opened in 1957.

Since then the old O'Hara homestead has been purchased by the authority and along with a century old log school, and farm implements from the pre-mechanization age, forms a museum recalling the area's past.

Another conservation area owned by the authority is the Price area on both sides of the Skootamatta and south of Highway 7 at Actinolite. This has been developed into a popular picnic area.

The other areas of varying size at dam sites on the river are currently awaiting development.

The major dam project of the authority is the Denrock Lake dam on Partridge Creek a tributary of the Skootamatta, 20 miles northeast of Tweed.

The dam, completed only last fall forms a man-made lake of 3,000 acres.

The authority also operates the former Ontario government owned dam on Lingham Lake on the upper reaches of Black River, also a tributary of the Moira. The dam, about 20 miles north of Madoc, is used as a reservoir to control summer flow in the river.

In 1954 the authority built a dam on the Moira one mile north of Deloro. The dam created a 25-acre reservoir which at the time was used as a water supply by the then operating Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. It is now also used for maintaining downstream summer flow.

Belleville Waterfront Has Always Been Both Playground and Business Resource

Boating Always Popular

The Bay of Quinte has played an important role in the history of the Quinte area, dating back to the days of the early French explorers. Today, its popularity as a pleasure port is supported by the numerous sailing vessels and power craft lining the harbor basin at Victoria Park.

Belleville, capital of Hastings, is the county's gateway not only to the Bay of Quinte but also to the Great Lakes system.

The Quinte port has witnessed over a century and a half of bustling activity. One man John Fanning of Belleville operated a steam service to Montreal as early as the 1830s.

In the summer of 1833 two steamboats collided in the bay and one sank, and in November of 1834 the steamer Kingston sank just off Belleville harbor, having been gouged by heavy ice coming up the wintry bay.

Commercial use of the port of Belleville has declined in relative importance; however, shallow-draught vessels still bring periodic shipments of coal and oil to the harbor.

The Belleville Harbor Commission still has a sizeable revenue from docking and cargo dues but such bottlenecks as Telegraph Narrows near Deseronto have prevented Belleville from being a seaway city, even of modest proportions.

Yachting, however, has increased in importance over the years but pleasure craft are far from new to Belleville harbor. In fact, by one report, yachting was Belleville's most popular pastime in the late 1800s.

Gerald Boyce reports in his book, Historic Hastings, that one sleek local craft, the Atalanta, built by Alexander Cuthbert, even competed in the American Cup race off New York City in 1881 and in 1883, the Belleville yacht captured the Fisher Cup as the fastest freshwater craft.

Long-time Belleville residents may also recall the summers of 30 to 40 years ago when the Eastmans of Kodak fame and other leading Rochester families used to anchor off the Bay of Quinte Country Club and go in by tender to play a round of golf before berthing for the night at Belleville harbor.

Moving ahead, the post-war period has seen people of all walks of life take to the water in unprecedented numbers. As one indicator, the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club at the southern extremity of Victoria Park now has 320 members and over 400 visiting boats use the club's facilities every year.

The club sponsors a reputable junior sailing program that contributes to nautical life of the bay. Certain of the junior sailors have gone on to win sailing awards and there is a possibility that BQYC may be represented at trials for the 1976 Olympics.

The Club has its 'old salts' too. Jack Bradwood of BQYC circumnavigated the globe with Erwin Johnson out of Mystic, Connecticut and Dr. Kenneth Douglas of Belleville is no stranger to the Southern Ocean Racing circuit.

Ian March has won distinction for the club in his 41 foot North Star and Freeman Burrows, one - time Canadian O'Day sailing champion, was reported to have so many award pennants that, if flowed all at once, his boat would look somewhat like a navy signal vessel in a fleet review.

Donald Barrett, Belleville harbor master, reports that the city's inner harbor has berthing facilities for 70 to 80 boats exclusive of the private boathouses along the harbor's east side. It is the intention of the harbor commission to expand facilities as funds become available.

The harbor commission itself has several important duties. It is responsible for maintaining the waterways in and out of Belleville harbor, an area ranging from Newberry St. in the east to Sidney St. in the west. The commission is also authorized to provide for commercial dockage and is custodian for development of Belleville's shoreline.

The harbor commission has worked with the Ontario Water Resources Commission in a land-fill scheme adjacent to the Commission's sewage treatment centre; this has facilitated OWRC expansion and has assured that the now-being-realized bayshore drive would not be broken by OWRC expansion.

This area at the bottom of George St. from the OWRC plant through to the Government dock may become a supplementary harbor area in the future. At present many small-boaters use the shore at this point as a launching spot.

As Belleville has become more water-conscious, so has the Parks Board. Much of the city's shoreline is proposed for community recreational use. The land reclamation area east of the Picton highway, known as East Zwicky's will be for community use and details for eventual development of this property are currently being discussed.

The adjacent Four Seasons hotel will have a water accent into. The international group currently building a 26-storey hotel on Toronto's Nathan Phillips Square as well as its Quinte-front facility proposes to go into the marina business on the Bay.

On the waterside, Four Seasons will complement the new hotel and city with a large marina in the second phase of its development.

With the Four Seasons projection and the existing March marina yards and docks, the westerly portion of the Moira estuary will become an increasingly important port area.

The March shipbuilding works have given both national and international renown to the port of Belleville. On recent day yachts were being finished in painstaking fashion for delivery to customers in Quebec and tidal New Brunswick. The Keeble sail-making shop also has an international clientele and the name Keeble is as long a byword with the accomplished sailor.

As development of East Zwicky's is achieved it will join the established Zwicky's Island Park as a community recreation area. The Centennial Park at Zwicky's Island by dint of location has a water access.

The park has a wading pool for children and a supervised beach area along a section of the bayshore.

The sheltered cove along the east side of the 20-acre park has become a popular boat-launching area and a number of craft regularly use the cove as a convenient spot to moor.

Belleville, from its beginnings, has been boat-conscious: the bay and the craft that ply fresh waters from the city's port are part of Hastings maritime heritage.

If the present has promises for the future, Belleville will capitalize on its natural bay-front location as never before and in the last analysis, the coming asset of Hastings will become a 'Bay City'.

Hastings Doctors Have Record of Involvement

Hastings county has always had doctors who have served it well, socially and publically as well as medically.

Most famous is probably Oronhyatekha, a Mohawk Indian befriended by King Edward VII when he was Prince of Wales. Through the Prince's intervention, Oronhyatekha obtained a medical degree and later formed the Independent Order of Foresters) which he headed for 26 years.

He was born in 1841 and died in 1907 after making his home for many years on Tyendinaga Reserve.

As, Dr. Peter Martin, his anglicized name, he began his medical practice in the village of Prankford, before becoming medical advisor to the Bay of Quinte Mohawks. He helped organize the Hastings County Medical Association and was elected its first secretary.

During Oronhyatekha's lifetime, medical practitioners often operated retail businesses in connection with their offices.

One such business still survives on Belleville's Front St. as Geen's Drug Store, first began in 1825 by Dr. Holden.

Dr. G. H. Boutier of Stirling, was a typical county doctor of the type common in the Victorian era. As well as carrying on his practice, he was active in political life on the local level, serving as Hastings county warden in 1907. He advertised himself as a chemist and druggist and offered "pure drugs, chemicals, dye stuffs, school books and stationery" for sale in the village store.

An earlier doctor, Anson Hayden is believed to have combined medicine with an even more unusual choice of occupations for a physician — he ran an inn at Hayden's Corners, now renamed Cortyville.

He was an ardent Reformer, a follower of William Lyon Mackenzie in his fight against the Family Compact and Executive Council in Toronto.

Meetings at which he sought municipal political office were stormy ones, usually resulting in Hayden being out-manoeuvred by local Conservatives. However he became Thurlow township clerk.

During the rebellion of 1837, Dr. Hayden held a reformers' rally at his inn which resulted in the doctor's subsequent imprisonment in Kingston for high treason.

Following his release he fled Canada for the United States, taking the Thurlow township records with him and — some reports have it — some of the township's cash as well.

Dr. Seth Meacham, who came to Belleville in 1801 is generally credited with being the county's first doctor. He took a prominent part in the social life of the village, and was active in the Masonic Lodge. His house still stands on the Trent Road as the kitchen wing of the Foxton residence. Dr. Meacham died in the same manner as many of the early doctors — of pneumonia contracted when making distant house calls during severe winter storms.

Dr. Truman F. Beeman, Bancroft's first doctor, suffered the same fate in 1922, when he answered a call to Paudash district during a winter blizzard. He settled in the community in 1886 and was the north's only doctor for many years.

Another early doctor who made a notable contribution to the county was Dr. William Canniff, who wrote History of the Settlement of Upper Canada, with special reference to the Bay of Quinte district in 1869. The volume is essential to any study of the history of the area and is now a rare and valuable book.

Dr. Canniff travelled throughout his native county for several years after his retirement, collecting snippets of local history before it was lost forever in one of his family's homes. He lived near Carrollton while he wrote the book.

Doctors have continued to take an active role in political life in the community. Dr. R. T. Potter a former mayor of Belleville, is now MPP for Quinte and Dr. Russell Scott is mayor of the city.

Every corner of the county is now covered with modern medical services and hospitals.

Bancroft has a 36-bed Red Cross hospital, associated with the North Hastings summer resort area.

Unlike metropolitan hospitals, the county's three institutions have their largest volume of service during the summer, when the population swells in the resorts and provincial parks.

Trenton Memorial Hospital, a 194-bed institution opened in 1951, serves the people in Frankville and Prince Edward County provincial parks, and the resorts on the lower Trent waterway.

The hospital was extended in 1961 and 1965, with a new $1,250,000 wing opened last fall. It is a fully equipped modern hospital with all facilities, including a busy emergency department. There are 62 doctors on the active medical staff.

Belleville General Hospital has 655 active treatment beds in a new wing opened a year ago and is the largest hospital between Oshawa and Kingston. Because of its location off Highway 401 its emergency department cares for accident victims funneled into the hospital's emergency department.

The hospital has about 34 members on its active medical staff in an courtesy staff and a dental membership of 17.

Tyendinaga Reserve Is Pride of District

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Tucked away in this southeastern corner of Hastings county is one of the district's pride's — the reservation of the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte band.

One of the most progressive of Canada's reserves, ranking seventh in economic prosperity in a recent government survey, it was one of the first to become self-governing.

The Tyendinaga Mohawks claimed their reserve land in 1771, in return for their services to the British during the American Revolution.

All wrkled to the bevellisry title U.E. after their names, granted by George III, the Hills, Brants, Clauses, Macacies and Greens have retained the British traditions their forefathers brought with them from the American colonies.

But in recent years an awakening in their great Iroquois heritage has taken place among the people of Tyendinaga. This reserve has become the headquarters for the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians, a group devoted to expressing the needs and attitudes of the Six Nations Indians and their brothers in government and other official bodies.

The Mohawk language is now taught in adult education classes and will be on the elementary school's curriculum in the fall.

Indian women are reviving the buckskin and beadwork crafts of their grandmothers while their Iroquois flower corn soup draws crowds from throughout the district to the annual fall fair.

With their leaders assuming directors' roles on the national Indian scene, the Mohawks have captured the secret of combining the best of the past and the present in their lives.

Tweed Wood Products Enjoy Broad Demand

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TWEED — With its spruce, well-groomed appearance this Hastings County village on the shores of Lake Stoco appears an ideal recreation community.

That's part of its potential, agrees Reeve Barbara Allen.

Tweed's location makes it the natural commercial centre for an area north and south of Highway 7 — particularly the northeastern townships of Hastings.

It's a trade area of anywhere up to 15,000 people, estimates the reeve — a figure that skips upwards with the arrival of the summer vacation season.

Buzzing with holiday activity, Stoco Lake has been a considerable reminder of Tweed's recreation potential.

These days, recreation goes all year round for the community of 1,800.

Curling, hockey and carnival events alternate with swimming, ball and fishing as the seasons change.

A roster of community associations helps ensure the flow of undertakings that keep the village programmed to year-round recreation. There's an active parks board, a Chamber of Commerce and service clubs.

That, and its trimness, give Tweed the appearance of an ideal living community.

"Esthetically, Tweed is a pretty place," says the reeve. "People take a great deal of pride in their properties."

Not that Tweed is any sleepy Hastings hollow.

Its industries supply markets across Canada and the United States.

In fact, the products of Tweed industry are right at the centre of world affairs.

Veneer from here was used in the decoration of the United Nations general assembly hall in New York.

It was among the most prestigious contracts ever awarded a Hastings County industry and the order was filled by Hunter Veneer.

But it's not the only sophisticated demand that's been filled by the Hunter family business here.

Today, operating as Tweed Veneers, its products include guitars — shipped for assembly and finishing to a U.S. industry.

Wood products still play a major role in the industry of this village — which began as a lumber centre in the first half of the 1800s.

In 1963 Hunter Veneer sold out to the U.S. - owned Wood Mosaic Canada, and moved elsewhere in the village.

Wood Mosaic today employs 75 people in the manufacture of hardwood veneers. Some 98 per cent of its sales is to the U.S.

Sawyer Stahl Lumber Co. for 30 years has operated a lumber undertaking near Lake Marmaw northeast of here and moved into town in 1958. Today it employs about 40 people in the manufacture of wood pallets for industry.

Wood is put to more finished uses at the Rashotte Building Supplies. Run by four brothers, the company manufactures Rusticana, a highly-finished furniture of rustic design.

Demand usually outstrips production, they say, and shipments cross Canada. U.S. tourists also have sent orders for delivery as far away as Florida.

One main Tweed industry breaks the wood-based pattern.

It's Tweed Steel Works Eastern, started in 1914 as a hardware supply company now busied with the manufacture of heat - circulating fireplaces as its star product.

In a way, increased recreation has been responsible for demand. With the advent of the snowmobile and winterizing of summer cottages more and more people are seeking the company's fireplaces.

Meantime, expansion has marked municipal services in the village.

Tweed from this year has one of the best - equipped fire departments in the area.

Storm and sanitary sewers are now being separated, and a new disposal system is in the offing.

Always on Guard

Trenton's modern firehall on Front Street houses the town's firefighters who keep a 24-hour vigil to answer fire calls. The two - year - old structure stands adjacent to the D. J. MacDonald bridge and is centrally located in respect to the town's major arteries.

Irish Settlers Have Left Mark

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

MELROSE — The minute brick putting down declaims of Tyendinaga township repose in the township vault here, a record reaching back to the 1830s.

But of all the municipalities in Hastings County, Tyendinaga seems the least likely to need written records to prove its past for the township seems to exude history.

Its front line view of the Bay of Quinte makes it easy to visualize a shoreline as it was the day the Mohawks landed as the district's first settlers after the American War of Independence.

Its limestone cottages and mills seem fitting repositories for the hints of Celtic twilight that are the heritage of later, Irish settlers.

Yet today, such a heritage is in contrast with newer developments — recreation projects for Tyendinaga along its flatlands at Marysville on Highway 2 that will make it a rendezvous for golfing, trotting and go-carting.

It's a fitting sequel to a story of settlement that incorporates much toil in its heritage.

Tyendinaga was created from lands surrendered by the Mohawks in 1820, taking its name from the Indian warrior Joseph Brant — Thayendanegea in Mohawk.

By that time, however, Warner Noble and Frederick Keelor had signed a 999 - year lease with the Mohawks and had built a mill. It still stands — the distinctive community landmark of Shannonville.

In the 1840s more land was parted from the Indians — who thus lost their hunting grounds — by the government of the day. Many of the new settlers hailed from Ireland, settling around Read and Marysville in the eastern end of the concessions.

New communities sprung up — Melrose, Lonsdale and Roslin — as the township flourished. The township's growth spurted ahead, despite the fact much of its farmland was marginal. Lumbering was important, good markets guaranteed farm profits.

Saw mills, grist mills, small manufactories blossomed through the township. Shannonville became a despatch point for the lumber industry, with crafts loading for the U.S. By 1860, the township had 7,000 — a bigger population than Belleville's.

The township even acquired its own ghost.

Just west of Lonsdale a young man drowned in the pond of what was once Meagher's mill. Because of the violence of his death, his soul was believed not to have gained rest. No one would work the mill, until a priest was sent for.

A decline set in during the second half of the century — as lumbering declined; competition struck at farmers working sub-marginal lands.

Today, Tyendinaga is an established rural community — while the acreages deserted years ago have taken on a new importance.

More and more city dwellers are making purchases along superb examples of pastoral communities like Lonsdale have been rediscovered and Tyendinaga is benefiting from its immediate past.

Stevenson Ford's 6th Anniversary

Yes, back in 1964, The Ford Company and I agreed to establish a dealership in Belleville that the local area residents would be proud of. I purchased the property and had a modern garage constructed on it, which incorporates Belleville's 2nd largest showroom.

The limited company was then formed through investments by myself and the Dealer Development Division of The Ford Motor Company. This "partnership" has really blossomed into a thriving business that just continues to grow bigger each year. Also, through the participation by The Ford Motor Company, it guarantees the people in the Quinte area a solidly established dealership that will remain in continuous service.

The solidity of our firm, along with the excellent quality of the "Better Idea" automobiles, and the honest dealings of our dealership, have made us the largest single-line Ford outlet between Oshawa and Ottawa.

Pictured with me is my staff, of whom I am justly proud.

HASTINGS COUNTY

More Than a Tract of Land . . . Its Happiness, Health and Hospitality

HASTINGS... OUR COUNTY... OUR PEOPLE

ABOUT HASTINGS

Hastings County, with an area of 2,333 square miles is almost 100 miles in length from south to north. Its population exceeds 100,000. Within its borders, exclusive of the town of Trenton and the city of Belleville, are one town, seven incorporated villages and nineteen townships.

The northern two-thirds, covered by the rocky Canadian Shield, has been the location of many lumbering and mining activities throughout the years. Among the important minerals are silver, gold, iron ore, fluorspar, marole, talc and uranium. Iron ore mines at Marmora are currently active and the uranium mines in Faraday Township near Bancroft rank among the major Canadian deposits.

The southern third of the county fronts on the picturesque Bay of Quinte for over 35 miles. Agriculture has been a major activity in this area. The strategic location of the county, between the great Montreal and Toronto market areas, combined with the existence of the MacDonald-Cartier Freeway and the east-west Highway No. 2 running from Western Ontario to the Quebec border, has made the Belleville-Trenton area a natural location for numerous manufacturing companies. Surrounded by the townships of Sidney and Thurlow, it is only natural that industry is pushing out into the suburban and rural areas. The modernization of the well maintained highways nos. 14, 33 and 37 and No. 62 which runs north-south to link up with the east-west Highway No. 7 and the Freeway, has opened the way to profitable location of new industry throughout the County.

Companies seeking to locate within our boundaries are assured of a warm welcome and full co-operation from municipal authorities, industrial representatives, Chambers of Commerce and the business and labor communities.

RECREATION

BEAUTIFUL HASTINGS COUNTY WITH ITS MYRIAD OF LAKES, BAYS AND RIVERS IS A TOURIST'S DELIGHT. EXCELLENT FISHING IS ENJOYED IN ITS CRYSTAL CLEAR WATERS. DEER HUNTING IS A POPULAR AUTUMN SPORT. THE HILLY COUNTRY WHICH BEGINS NORTH OF THE BAY OF QUINTE OFFERS EXCITING TRAILS FOR SNOWMOBILES AND SKIING SPORTS. TRULY A DELIGHTFUL AREA FOR THE OUTDOOR ENTHUSIASTIC.

Women's All-Stars Looking To 'Wing' Kingston Wednesday

By ERIC EMERSON
(Staff Sportswriter)

Belleville Women's Softball League players get a chance to try their wings in all-star competition, Wednesday, when they take on the Kingston All-stars in a home-and-home exhibition game.

All-star coach Doug Lucas was noncommittal about his team's chances. "We'll see how we do in this game before we schedule any more".

Ritzel coaches have picked the top three players from each of the four league teams, from which Lucas will make up his squad.

Their Kingston opponents are entered in the Provincial Women's Softball Union and should provide stiff competition.

Most of the Belleville players have been competing in the local league since it began operation four years ago. Proceeds of the games will be used to further women's softball in Belleville.

The probable starting lineup for Wednesday's game will include Irma Barberstock at first base, Beth Palmer on second, Sharon Francis at third and Nancy McCallum playing shortstop. In the outfield spots, it will be Judy Sager, Linda Prudden and Sharon Lumsden, while Evelina Hill will catch and Sue Morton will pitch.

Other players on the team include Sandra Claus, Judy Jones and Barb Bewsher.

All-star performers made their presence felt last night as Cosy Grill took an 11-7 win from Artistic Ladies' Wear.

Sandra Claus hurled the win, walking two batters and striking out ten, while Sue Morton fanned three and walked none in a losing effort.

Sharon Francis, Verna Hill and Marianne Sills homered for the winners with other hits going to Nancy McCallum and Pat Robson.

Sue Morton homered and Linda Prudden had a triple for Artistic.

Game time for Wednesday's All-star tilt is 8.15 p.m. at the Alemite Field.

Batting Briefs

Coach Doug Lucas gives some tips on bunting to Women's Softball all-stars Sharon Francis, Irma Barberstock and Sue Morton. The Belleville all-stars will play a home-and-home exhibition series with their Kingston counterparts. The two teams meet Wednesday night at the Alemite.

Playing Golf Last Thing Many Club Pros Get to Do

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The day has long passed when a good scorecard served as the only qualification necessary to become a golf professional.

At least that's the view of Don Sinclair, who this spring began his 24th season as club pro at the nearby Riverside Country Club.

"I hardly ever play now," says Sinclair. "The business has changed a lot since the days I started . . . There used to be more pleasure than there is today."

Being good on the links was the only requirement then. Today pros have to be a good businessman as well.

"And the hours are long. In the summer open at 8 a.m. —7 a.m. on Sundays—and sometimes we're out there until nobody is left on the course.

"True, it's only for six months of the year, but we still have to put in a lot of hours."

Over-all, says Sinclair, who first started swinging a club when he was 16, it adds up to "a lot harder job" than before.

Now 44, Sinclair started his career in golf as an assistant pro at Toronto's Thornhill club. He was also a competent hockey player, holding a defence position with Oshawa Generals of the OHA junior A series during the 1938-40 seasons.

He says he was talked into coming east by Gord Bryden, pro at the Miramichee club near Toronto, who played the picturesque Riverside course in the 1938 Canadian Open.

Riverside's membership, which Sinclair has watched grow from 300 to 800, has increased the demands of his trade. Besides his duties still are "giving golf instructions and looking after needs of the membership," but that can account for a lot of time.

Last year it was June 21 before he played his first full round.

Since coming to New Brunswick, Sinclair says, he has seen improvement in the quality of golf in the province. Scores that are winning tournaments today are lower than they were 10 years ago.

Still, New Brunswick golfers do poorly in national competition. Sinclair attributes this to a shorter season and a smaller population.

"In Ontario they open a full month before we do. They have a much bigger population and, as a result, more courses. In Toronto alone there are 20 courses—more than in the entire Maritimes."

He feels the calibre of Maritime golf will continue to improve and hopes it won't be too many years before "some of our young fellows will be making enough money so they can play golf in the States year-round and improve their game."

But it may be a while before there are as many courses as there are in Toronto where, Sinclair recalls, he could, from his home, "knock a golf ball onto three different courses."

Billy Casper Says:
Golf's Million Dollar Winner

LET THE HEAD ROTATE

The head should remain stable during the swing. To do this, doesn't mean that it must remain absolutely still at all costs. Many golfers strive for the "rock-still" head and freeze their neck muscles by doing so. As a result their shoulder turn is introduced into the swing.

As a matter of fact, your head should rotate with the movement of the club . . . to the right on the backswing, to the left on the downswing. Naturally, you must look at the ball, but don't keep your nose down too long after impact. Allow your eyes to follow the ball until you're on the way to swinging more smoothly.

Stinson's Take Third

Reid Deals Point Anne Two-hit Blank

The Ellis Juniors grasped sole possession of the Commercial Softball League's top spot Monday night behind a sparkling two-hit performance by Scotty Reid while Stinson's Construction jumped into third place courtesy of four Corby miscues.

The Juniors blanked their arch-rivals Point Anne 3-0 and Stinson whipped Corby 8-1.

Reid fired third strikes past 15 Point Anne batters in fashioning his two-hit shutout. Fourth and fifth inning singles and two walks provided the only baserunners in seven innings for the Cementmen.

Paul Goodfellow, back after a four week lay-off with a broken hand, had his singles as did shortstop Dale Duval to lead the Juniors in hits. But the big blast was a two-second-inning two-run homer by catcher Wayne Rattagan. Rod Ridley and Reid both had singles to round out the Ellis hitting.

Jamie Hunter was touched for seven hits while fanning five Ellis batters in taking the loss for Point Anne. Jim Horwood and Eric Maher with singles were the only hitting support for Hunter and the only Pointers to reach Reid.

Meed Johnson used a 7-5 win over the Fire Department Monday to climb into second spot in the Industrial Softball League standings, while the Intelligencer came up with a last-inning rally to nip AOCO and increase their league lead to three points.

Meed Johnson got four runs in the first two innings and never looked back in their win over the Firemen.

Steve White pitched the win, with relief help from Larry Marshall. They gave up 13 hits, walked five and struck out six men. Perry Soule shorted the loss, allowing a dozen hits and two walks, while getting five men on strikes.

Redeer cracked a single, double and triple for Meed Johnson with Generaux adding two singles and a double. Ray Finkle tripled and singled, while Reg Bennett added two singles.

Larry Fritz and Bob Andrus each had a pair of hits for the firemen, while Ralph Boonhower and Stan Papke each tripled.

Three runs in the final innings were good enough to allow the Intel to squeeze past AOCO for a 6-5 victory.

Dave Feasey threw shutout ball for six innings after being greeted with a five-run outburst in his opening frame. He gave up nine hits, walked two and fanned a pair.

Ken McCoy was the loser, allowing 14 hits and one walk, while striking out six men.

Bill Howes notched three safeties to lead the Intell hitters with Bob Brooks adding a double and single and Pat Scollard gave up nine hits in defeat while striking out five men and not walking a batter.

Shortstop Ken Brooks paced the Corby battery with three singles including a seventh-inning one which drove in their only run. Larry Mavety had a triple and scored the only run in the top of the last two singles to round out the Corby hitting.

Two Unluckiest Number For Minor Baseball Teams

Two was the unlucky number last night in Belleville Minor Baseball games as the losing teams in all three contests could only manage to push across two runners.

The loss peeves game saw Legion 89 bomb Barriques 15-2. In tadpole action Mulroney's gassed Crawford Metals 14-2 and Plaxe's Concrete whipped Gordon Ray Concrete 11-2.

Bill Whalen, Bill Balyz and Brian Turner combined for Legion victory, causing nine and walking four batters. They also proved their batting worth as they led their team at the plate. Whalen had a triple and two singles, Turner a single and two doubles, and Balyz two singles for the winners.

Gordon Male, Chris Masterson and Paul Weeks took the loss for the Barriques totalling 11 strikeouts and walking three. Masterson with two singles was the only Barrique batter to reach Legion pitching.

Wayne Sleighton and Shawn Mulroney picked up the win for Mulroney's by fanning 16 Crawford batters and walking seven. Again the pitchers turned into hitters as Mulroney punched two home runs and Deighton one. Shane Butcher also had a solo homer for the Gnomes.

Mark Pearson and Tim Turner were touched for the loss giving up 14 walks and fanning 18 batters. Shawn McDonnell had the only hit for Crawford's, a single.

Three - bit pitching by Tony Parks, Dale McTaggart, and Steve Meeks paved the way for the Plaxe's victory along with a 16 strikeout performance. McTaggart was the best at bat for Plaxe's with a triple and single.

Control problems in the form of 13 walks cost Ray Concrete pitchers Mike Leger, Lorne Andrews and Tim Ure-ova team with a pair of homers and Meeker added three singles. Butcher doubled twice for the Mariners.

Gotta Builds Rider Defence to Compensate for Losses

OTTAWA (CP) — When your highly-touted offence has been shaken by defections, there's only one thing to do—shore up the defence.

That's head coach Jack Gotta's formula to lead his Ottawa Rough Riders to a defence of the Grey Cup they won last season.

The lanky Gotta is in his initial year as head coach with the Riders after two years as an assistant to Frank Clair now general manager.

He laughs at reports he has entered a melancholy state over the loss of established starters Russ Jackson, running back Vic Washington and wide receiver Margene Adkins.

"Everybody put a little melancholy at times," Gotta said. "But with me it doesn't last long—I've learned to made do."

Quarterback Jackson retired after 12 seasons with the club, while Adkins played out his option last season and moved to Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. Washington declared his intention to play out his option this season, but was banished from the Riders' camp for disrupting morale.

On the road to the Grey Cup last year, the Riders scored 399 points in regular-season play and gave up 298. Only two nto Argonauts, 466-380 rsels were better in the four-team Eastern Football Conference.

Washington was the third-highest scorer in the EFC with 81 points and Jackson, Adkins and Gotta contributed nine for 54 points. Jackson led all passers with 33 touchdowns.

"We're striving to improve our defence while we're waiting for our new quarterback Gary Wood to mature to the Canadian game," Gotta said.

Wood, touted as Jackson's replacement, is a six-year veteran of the NFL as backup man with New York Giants.

"He (Wood) is improving all the time. He's quick, but he's having a little trouble adapting to the extra man in the three-man defences and no fourth down."

Gotta said he is not sure who will back up Wood, named No. 1 quarterback for the Riders first pre-season test against the Argos in Toronto Wednesday night.

"We've got Billy Van (Burnieo), but Billy's the kind of guy that would rather be No. 1 man in the defensive backfield than second-string quarterback."

Two other heir-apparents appear in Tom Domzie from University of Delaware and Jim Ouelette from University of Cincinnati.

Gotta said he wants to take a "real good look" at Domzie who has "a good strong arm and runs well."

"Comments from all over seem to indicate we're going to get blown right out of the league this year because we lost all our super-stars.

"But they forget we still have a corps of football players that want to come to play the game and they'll make this a competitive football team."

The Riders have several outstanding players in camp to replace Adkins and Washington.

To replace Adkins, Gotta hopes to use Hugh Oldham from Sacramento Warhaks of the Continental League as a running back and split end.

Billy Cooper, a Canadian with experience in the defensive backfield, will replace Adkins.

Gotta said speedy Canadian flanker Whit Tucker has been hampered by an injured arm in his foot, but reported in better condition than previous years and appears as fast as ever.

Despite the fact he is entering his 13th season, diminutive running back Ron Stewart shows no signs of his 34 years. Gotta said he is enjoying his best training camp in several years.

Ken Lehmann and Jerry Campbell appear set to remain as their linebacker spots.

Gotta predicts that Evans could be up to 12 new faces with the Riders this year, unless some of the veterans, off to a slow start, get back to the form that made them first-stringers in other years.

Santo Slams Three As Cubs Sweep Expos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Santo exploded for three home runs including a grand slam, and drove in 10 runs as the Chicago Cubs swept a National Baseball League doubleheader from Montreal Expos 3-2 and 14-2 Monday.

Felix Millan ripped six straight hits including a double and a triple and drove in four runs as Atlanta Braves thrashed San Francisco Giants 12-2.

Elsewhere in the National League Monday, New York Mets rapped St. Louis Cardinals 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates knocked off Philadelphia Phillies 7-5, Cincinnati Reds shut out San Diego Padres 5-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers topped Houston Astros 10-8 in 10 innings.

Santo lagged a two-run homer in the first game but the Cubs needed a super relief job by Roberto Rodriguez in the ninth inning to nail down the opener.

The Expos loaded the bases with none out in the ninth but Rodriguez came on to strike out John Bateman and Coco Laboy and retired Bob Bailey on a bouncer to end it.

Santo's first inning slam got the Cubs off and going in the nightcap. Then he hit his third homer of the day and 20th of the year with two on in the sixth after forcing another run in by drawing a bases-loaded walk in the fourth.

Millan ran the Giants ragged. One of his four singles drove in two runs in the first as Ken Henderson was out at the plate. Millan was in the fifth inning.

Hal King doubled two home in the big inning.

Rico Carty of the Braves walloped a two-run homer, his fourth in four days and the 190th of his career, Willie Mays and Dick Dietz had a pair of two-run shots to account for the Giant scoring.

The Mets crashed a season-high 17 hits including the cycle —a single, double, triple and home run—by Tommie Agee, and homers by Ken Singleton and Ken Swoboda to crush the Cardinals.

Singleton and Donn Clendenon each had three hits in the game which kept New York one-half game in front in the East Division. Richie Allen and Tim Cullen each had two hits in the Cardinals.

Pittsburgh won its 11th game in the last 15 by knocking off Philadelphia with airtight relief by Bruce Dal Canton and Dave Giusti. The two relievers split the final four innings, allowing only one hit after Jonny Briggs' second homer and one by Dennon Johnson had given the Pirates' lead to a single run.

Richie Hebner tagged a two-run homer for the Pirates.

Allen Most Valuable to Fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Richie Allen of St. Louis Cardinals beat out Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants, in the National League's most valuable player of 1969, in the final voting for the 1970 all-star team. Hank Aaron of Atlanta topped the fan poll with 1,394,847 votes.

The National League team, announced Monday by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, also included Rico Carty of Atlanta, a write-in candidate left off the original computer ballot when it was compiled last winter.

The only close competition was for first base, where Allen edged out McCovey by 13,139 votes. Of the 2,534,728 votes received in balloting by fans, Allen had 479,137 and McCovey 465,998.

Aaron, Willie Mays of San Francisco and Carty form the outfield which will face the American League July 14 at Cincinnati's new Riverfront Stadium.

Jenny Bench of Cincinnati was second in total voting with 1,081,134 votes as he outdistanced all competitors for the starting catcher's job. The next best was Joe Torre of St. Louis with 126,413.

Chicago's second-short combination of Glenn Beckert and Don Kessinger also won with room to spare.

Tony Perez, the Cincinnati third baseman who leads the league in homers and runs batted in, breezed home with 839,139 votes. Ron Santo of Chicago was second with 296,794.

Aparicio by a Nose

NEW YORK (AP) — Luis Aparicio of Chicago White Sox nosed out Rico Petrocelli of Boston Red Sox for the starting shortstop job on the American League all-star team and Dwight Johnson of Baltimore Orioles was named to replace the injured Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins at second base.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced the results of the fan vote of 2,534,734 ballots and the starting lineup that will face the National League all-stars at Cincinnati's new Riverfront Stadium July 14.

Boog Powell, Baltimore first baseman, led the league with 1,007,520 votes, but fell short of the 1,394,847 polled by Hank Aaron, Atlanta Braves outfielder, in the balloting.

Carew, who recently underwent knee surgery, was the second base starting job by about 678,000 votes. Johnson was the choice of manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, who will boss the American League team.

Johnson was fifth in the voting.

Aparicio shaed Petrocelli by 11,801 votes in the only close contest.

Bill Freehan of Detroit Tigers was the landslide choice at catcher with 941,691 votes. Powell won all the way at first as did Carew at second. Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota had a margin of over 114,000 over Brooks Robinson of Baltimore for third base.

Frank Robinson of Baltimore, Frank Howard of Washington Senators and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston were picked as the outfielding starters. Tony Oliva of Minnesota was about 210,000 short of third-place Yastrzemski.

LA BAULE, France (CP-Reuters) — Canada's chances of reaching the finals of the world's Davis Cup championship were dealt a severe blow Monday in Chicago. Coming in on play is catcher Ken Rudolph (8). Picked off second on throw by Rudolph Wine headed for third and was nailed when shortstop Don Kessinger tossed to Santo.

Caught in the Act

Montreal Expos runner Bobby Wine, rear, is tagged out by Chicago Cubs third baseman Ron Santo (10) in third inning of first game Monday in Chicago. Coming in on play is catcher Ken Rudolph (8). Picked off second on throw by Rudolph Wine headed for third and was nailed when shortstop Don Kessinger tossed to Santo.

McDowell Helps Off Hill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Alvin Dark of Cleveland Indians and Earl Weaver of Baltimore Orioles were pleased with the pitching received from second base in the midst of an eighth inning Washington Senators rally Monday night and salted down a 6-4 victory with the switch.

McDowell made the inning-ending protest at second, then returned to the hill in the ninth and fanned the side for a total of 15 strikeouts and his 12th victory of the year.

At Cleveland, two homers by Duke Sims and another by Craig Nettles gave the Indians a two-run margin, but the Senators had the tying runs on second and third with two out in the eighth.

Then Dark made his moves. Third baseman Nettles left the game, second baseman Eddie Leon moved to third, McDowell became an instant infielder and right-hander Dean Chance was called in to face the pinch-hitting Frank Howard.

Chance walked Howard intentionally, filling the bases but fulfilling his obligation to pitch to at least one batter.

Rick Reichardt, a right-hand hitter, was up next, and with McDowell still a relief pitcher, there was no percentage in sending up a left-hand swinger.

So Ted Williams' Senators manager, stuck with Reichardt. Dark stayed with Chance and the result was a grounder to Leon who flipped to McDowell at second for the rally-killing force on Howard.

Eskies Make Lions Eat Their Own Artificial Turf

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions appeared to have their minds more on the new artificial turf at Empire Stadium than on quarterback Don Trull and fall JT-19 Monday night to Edmonton Eskimos in a Western Football Conference exhibition football.

About 34,000 watched as the Lions and Eskimos kicked off the pre-season schedule. Trull, Netolicky and Cosby end, was the favorite target for Trull, picked up from Houston Oilers in the National Football League, and former Grey Cup quarterback.

Netolicky grabbed three passes for two from Colebourn and Cosby down in the first half as Edmonton built up quarter leads of 8-0, 25-8 and 28-8. Dave Cutler, a graduate of nearby Simon Fraser University, added 13 points on three field goals, three converts and a single.

Lucy Hall also rushed for the other Edmonton touchdown.

A. D. Whitfield, an off-season acquisition from Philadelphia Redskins of the NFL, scored Lions' touchdown. Quarter Joe Helms picked up another on a pass from quarterback Carroll Williams. Gerry Bradley completed the Lions scoring when he ran the ball across the goal-line after bobbling it on a recovery attempt.

The Eskimos held a wide edge in total offence—431 yards to B.C.'s 353.

Cowboys Wanted Boot

DALLAS (AP) — Zenon Andrusyshyn of Oakville a placekicking specialist with the Uni. versity of California at Los Angeles, was signed Monday by Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

He was a ninth-round draft choice of the Cowboys.

He played only one full year of football at an Oakville high school before going to UCLA on a football scholarship.

His head coach, Tommy Prothro at UCLA, once called Andrusyshyn's leg in a soccer style kicker, "the greatest kicker on earth."

Clay's Conviction Sticks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Monday for the second time Cassius Clay's conviction for refusing induction into the armed forces.

Clay's original conviction June 20, 1967, had been upheld once by the 5th Circuit Court and then reviewed by the Supreme Court in Houston, Tex., for further proceedings after it was revealed that the FBI had recorded by wiretap five telephone conversations involving Clay.

Judge Joe Ingraham, now a member of the appeals court, originally handed down the ruling and concluded that the wiretaps played no part in Clay's draft conviction.

It was Ingraham's decision involving the wiretaps that the appeals court upheld Monday.

Clay has been sentenced to five years in prison and assessed a $10,000 fine on his conviction but has remained free on bail.

Add Five Golds

Soviet Matmen Have Stranglehold

EDMONTON (CP) — Russia added to its gold medal total at the world amateur Greco-Roman wrestling championships Monday, winning five individual titles and taking the over-all team trophy for the second consecutive year. They won last year in Argentina.

Leading the talented Russians was Anatoly Roschyn, who won his ninth world title and his second in a row, with a 10-1 decision over Ismail Castari of Hungary for a final match of the heavyweight category.

Roman Rurua, 20 pounds, Viktor Igumenov, 163 pounds, Anatoly Nazrenko, 180½, and Valery Rezantsev, 198½, were the other Russian champions.

They took the team award with five gold, one silver and two bronze medals.

Bulgaria was second in the 11th world tournament at the University of Alberta with one gold, one silver and two bronze medals. Yugoslavia was third, Hungary fourth, Romania fifth and Japan sixth.

Although the Russians put on a smooth and powerful display throughout the three days of Greco Roman events, more than 1,500 fans saved most of their applause for wrestlers from Romania, Hungary and Sweden.

Defending champion Gheorghe Berceanu of Romania outpointed Vladimir Zubkov of Russia 3-1 in the sudden-death finals of the 125½-pound class.

Per Svensson of Sweden battled to a 2-2 draw with Ferneo Kas of Hungary in the 220-pound bracket and took the title because of a better aggregate total than Hungary Zolvenske of Russia, the defending champion.

Earlier Monday, Janos Varga of Hungary fought to a 2-2 draw with Rustem Kazakov of Russia to capture the 132½-pound crown. Dave Haszewinkel, 23, of Coon Rapids, Minn., took the silver medal—the best placing ever by an American in Greco-Roman wrestling.

Kamen Goranov of Bulgaria defeating Simeon Trailkov of Bulgaria.

Other titles went to Peter Kilev of Bulgaria, in the 114½-pound division, and Hideo Fujimoto of Japan, in the 136½-pound class.

Canada's 19 Greco-Roman wrestlers were eliminated Sunday. Thursday night in 16 countries, including Canada, participate in freestyle events.

In the 163-pound division Monday, Igumenov, winner of five successive world titles in the championships, appeared to be having trouble against Petros Galactopoulos of Greece early in the final three minutes of a nine-minute match.

The champion suffered an injury to his left leg at the 25-second mark. After his trainer applied bandages, Igumenov recovered sufficiently to earn a 3-1 tie and take the title.

Greco-Roman wrestling started Saturday with 151 competitors. More than 300 are expected to participate in freestyle events.

In amateur freestyle, a wrestler can execute holds on almost any part of the body and points are awarded for every correct hold initiated. In Greco-Roman, no holds can be executed below the waist. The ultimate goal in both categories is to pin the opponent's shoulders to the mat.

"Canada will do better in freestyle if our boys get a good draw and we don't have to meet the Russians or the Americans in early rounds," said Bert Taylor of Edmonton, coach of the Canadian team.

"The draw is the most important factor in amateur wrestling. Even if you're the third best wrestler in your division you could be drawn against the best two, and wouldn't have much of a chance."

Wrestlers take a break today and Wednesday as the World Amateur Wrestling Federation (FILA) holds annual meetings.

Bushnell Buys Radio, TV, Belleville Cable

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announced approval today of several applications for the purchase of several broadcasting operations by Bushnell Communications Ltd., Ottawa.

Among the approvals were applications by Bushnell for a group of radio and television stations in Montreal controlled by Canadian Marconi Ltd. as well as stations in Kingston, North Bay, Peterborough, Kirkland Lake and Timmins.

"Generally speaking the CRTC has approved our broadcasting applications but denied our cable applications," said Stuart W. Griffiths, Bushnell president, in an interview following the CRTC announcement.

The Montreal operations that Bushnell now may purchase from Marconi are radio stations CFCF, CFCX, CFQR-FM and television stations CFCF-TV.

The CRTC announcement says that Canadian Marconi Ltd. was ineligible for licence renewal because slightly more than 30 per cent of its shares were owned by Cairnay Investment Co. Ltd., which was controlled by a company in the United Kingdom." The remaining shares were owned by approximately 21,000 shareholders, some of whom were non-Canadian.

"Approval of these applications will change the ownership of the stations from a U.K.-controlled company to a Canadian-controlled company," the CRTC says.

Conditions are set in the commission's approval of Bushnell applications for ownership of CFCH-TV and CFCH in North Bay and Caribevue (Belleville) Ltd. The commission will expect Bushnell Communications Ltd. to transfer as rapidly as possible its interests" in the stations.

It says "the date for completion of these divestitures will be discussed with Bushnell Communications Ltd."

Approved outright are applications to purchase CKWS AM and FM radio and TV in Kingston, Ont., CKGB AM and FM in Timmins, Ont., and CJKL-AM in Kirkland Lake, Ont.

The commission refused Bushnell's application to buy several cable television stations in Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta.

They are:

—Metro Cable TV Ltd., licences of four cable television undertakings serving Toronto, Burlington and Mississauga, Ont.;

—Cornwall Cable Vision 1961 Ltd. serving Cornwall, Ont.;

Canada's Other Airlines

Apart from the better-known Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines, Canada has five regional air carriers — Pacific Western, Transair, Quebecair and Eastern Provincial Airways. The map shows the jet routes of the five airlines. All use Boeing 707 jets except Quebecair, which uses BAC 111 jets.

Waupoos Man Skeet Champ

PICTON (Staff) — A member of the Prince Edward Red and Gun Club, James Hughes, Waupoos, has won the Dominion of Canada Trap Shooting Singles Championship. Competing at Richmount, near Hamilton, last week the 39 - year - old marksman shot 248 targets opponents scoring 186 points or a possible 200.

Mr. Hughes was joined during the four - day shoot by five other Prince Edward sharpshooters including Earl Martin, Wellington; Harry Leavitt, West Lake; Duff Pollard, Northport; Dan Greenfield, Picton and Tim Cole, Picton.

Three times a contestant in national trap shoot meets, Mr. Hughes competed last year in Calgary, Alberta, where he placed among the top marksmen.

An enthusiastic trap shooter for the past ten years Jim Hughes has proved that he is more than "fast on the draw" in Waupoos." Canada's new champion received a trophy and was presented with a set of silverware during the recent meet in Hammond.

Travelling in fast company, Jim was cheered on in his excellent performance by Earl Marvin, former winner of the Canadian Veteran's Trophy for sportsmen over 60 years of age. Two Belleville trapshooters Graham Johnson and Lloyd Blue also competed in the trap shooting trials.

Bell Rate Increase Opposed

PICTON (Staff) — A letter from Bell Canada seeking approval of increases in certain of its rates proved no bell-ringer in town council last night.

Councillors carried a motion opposing the suggested increase following a brief discussion of taxes paid locally by this telephone company.

Explained town clerk Andrew Jarvis, "It means a five to six per cent increase in Picton for residential and business telephones. In 1969 Bell Canada's taxes in Picton totalled $12,336. This year the figure has dropped to $4,700 due to the re-assessment in Picton based on 100 per cent evaluation. The former tax represented 50 per cent of the gross revenue which was $148,200 in 1969. This year it is $145,200."

Describing the tax change as a "drastic reduction" the clerk noted "this is one of the penalties attending the town through the 100 per cent assessment plan."

Commercial Picton Reeve Bernard Hepburn, "they don't merit more money until they improve the service. There's nothing wrong with it, but it's better in other communities."

It was Mayor McFarland's suggestion that Picton has missed the boat on developing cable television. He said Bell Canada is thinking of buying out the existing cable television company and added that perhaps the town should have the revenue from this.

"The extra money would mean a great deal in the interests of our educational system," he commented.

Before it's taken over by Bell Canada, there should be some discussion to see if the town ought to take it over".

Mystery Industry

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor H. J. McFarland has indicated a new industry could locate in Prince - Edward County soon but refuses to reveal it's name.

"I won't reveal names even if I'm criticized over it." said the Mayor.

He confided to town councillors that he has escorted representatives of the industry on a three-day tour of the county. Should the industry locate here, 90 per cent of the funds invested would be American with the majority of sales being in the United States.

In its first phase, Mr. McFarland observed, the unnamed industry would construct a 30,000 to 40,000 square foot building for its operations.

Employment would be provided for between 250 and 400 men and women and within the next three to five years the industry could mean 14-million spent in Picton but would factor in one of the four townships.

"It's a very clean industry with no smoke," he added.

The mayor, who expects the industry's plans to be revealed few days, says he will release full details to the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce as soon as he receives permission.

Dairy Queen 'No Treat'

The Dairy Queen miner lacrosse peewees proved to be no treat to Atlas Van Lines as they captured a 7-1 decision last night.

Jim Ward fired three goals for the winners with singles going to Brent Walmsley, Steve Wilson, Paul Roberts and Harry Semanik. The lone scorer for Atlas was Jeff Belanger.

Bears Bopped by Wings In Extra-Inning Game

It took nine innings before the Wings could come up with a pair of runs to pull ahead of the Bears in their Belleville Minor Softball tyke battle, winning 10-8.

Tim Soda pitched eight-and-a-half for the Wings, walking 13 and fanning double that number. Andy Rasmi took the loss giving up 10 hits, walking 13 and striking out 23.

Steve Gilby powered two home runs for the Wings with Soda getting a home run and Bob Hodge two doubles and a single.

Steve McCoy homered in a losing effort, while Allan Brooks collected three singles.

In another tyke game the Bobcats downed the Leafs 16-14. Don Green, Darryl Miller and Steve Mofina hurled the win, while Paul Soule homered and tripled.

WE'RE REALLY SORRY

to disappoint those of you who called about the 13-unit apartment houses you saw under construction to find they were all sold. With such value as we are offering in these buildings they just don't last. We have all the figures to show you how to really put your money to work.

WANT TO BUILD ON THE BAY?

We have a lovely lot on Redmersville Road not far from Belleville. There's 150' frontage on the bay. Let us build the house of your choice the way you want it built. Such lots as these are truly at a premium.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those cases healed was a veteran of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that the improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

The was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and enhances growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is now available in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.®

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Get Bio-Dyne Preparation H today at your druggist for Preparation H. Ointment or Preparation H. Ointment (with a special applicator).

Solandt Urges Canada Use Space Know-how

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government was cautioned by the chairman of the Science Council of Canada Monday against wasting hard-won capability in space satellites.

"It would be complete madness to throw that away now," Dr. O. M. Solandt told a news conference where he was questioned about the council's fourth annual report.

Dr. Solandt, the council's first chairman, recalled that it helped give birth to Canada's satellite capability as defence research board chairman after the Second World War. A result was Alouette I, the oldest, still-functioning piece of space hardware after more than seven years in orbit.

With the federal cabinet wrestling over a choice between two bids to put aloft a communications satellite in 1973, Dr. Solandt came down hard in favor of the greatest Canadian in-out. RCA Victor Co. Ltd., Montreal, opposed to fill that, bill best. Its rival is Hughes Aircraft Co. of California which has no Canadian operation.

As matters stand, the Hughes bid is reported to have been the choice of Telesat Canada Corp., the government-industry-public consortium formed to own and operate the satellite system. The federal cabinet has the final say.

Hughes proposed a 12-channel space vehicle with a seven-year life at a cost of just under $30,000,000. RCA's bid met the government requirement of six channels with a five-year life for about $40,000,000.

The Electronic Industries Association of Canada has charged the Hughes bid fails to meet Communication Minister Eric Kierans' promise of 67 per cent Canadian content.

Dr. Solandt said Canada should keep up her domestic satellite activity now that she is at least among the leaders in the field.

Later, he said that in the past Canadians have been all too ready to rely on the ease and relative cheapness of United States technology and productive capacity, allowing Canadian capability to wither or starve.

Pump-outs Required

TORONTO (CP) — All commercial marinas in Ontario will be required to provide a sewage pump-out service for pleasure boats after Aug. 23.

The service may be either a pump-out facility at the marina or arrangements for use of a facility at another site that is easily available and convenient for use by owners of pleasure boats equipped with toilets.

The regulations under the Ontario Water Resources Act, approved by cabinet June 27, were published Monday in the Ontario Gazette.

Ontario now requires pleasure boats with sleeping accommodation to be equipped with holding-tank toilets.

Halt in Park Logging Is Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — The Algonquin Wildlands League, an organization dedicated to the preservation of wilderness areas in Ontario, called today for a government-ordered moratorium on commercial logging operations in Lake Superior Provincial Park.

In a preliminary report submitted to Rene Brunelle, Ontario's lands and forest minister, the league says such action should be taken "pending an intensive review ... on the future of the park as an integral part of the natural environment of Ontario."

The league has previously criticized the provincial government for the effects of government management policy in Algonquin, Killarney, and Quetico provincial parks. The government policy permits use of park lands for logging, mining, hunting and trapping which the league believes contribute to "the deterioration of this unique natural environment."

The present report is the result of a four-day investigation last month by league members Dr. Douglas H. Pimlott, associate professor of zoology at the University of Toronto; Dr. C. B. Craig, associate professor of chemistry and natural sciences at Toronto's York University; Donald R. Voigt, a graduate forester; and Bruce M. Littlejohn, a former parks branch historian.

In calling for the moratorium on commercial logging operations, the report says that 500 of the Lake Superior Park's 836 acres—more than 85 per cent of the park—is under Crown timber licences held by two United States-based companies.

The end result of logging operations in the park, the report says, "is either a degraded forest from which the superior trees have been removed and, in which the diversity of species has been reduced or ... a forest which may eventually produce timber of commercial quality but which has lost much esthetic appeal because of the intensive manipulation it has been subjected to."

The league further recommends that "no forest industry should hold a long-term licence to conduct forest operations in ... any ... provincial park in Ontario."

Lions Kill Youth, Then Are Slain

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Two lions killed a youth who climbed into their pit at the Portland zoo Saturday night.

Monday both lions were dead, victims of a nightstick rifleman.

Roger Dean Adams, 19, of Portland, was the dead youth. The zoo was closed when he and two companions climbed a fence and got into the pit Saturday night.

One of Adam's companions said Adams lowered himself over the edge and as he hung by his fingers he kicked at the lions.

One slapped at him, hit his foot and Adams fell to the floor of the grotto, 16 feet below the rim of the wall. The lions then mauled him.

Rioting Renewed

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Fires and disorders broke out anew Monday night in a predominantly Negro area despite a curfew in this seashore community where the police chief is a Negro.

Nearly 200 policemen were called to duty to contain the trouble in a seven-block area on the city's west end. Some carried shotguns.

Police Chief Thomas Smith reported six policemen had been hurt and more than 50 persons had been arrested in disturbances late Sunday night and Monday. He said charges ranged from disorderly conduct to looting and those arrested were under age 35.

Quebec Doctors Seeking Changes

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's two main doctors, associations have criticized the government's medical care insurance legislation although both say they agree with the principles of the bill.

The 2,000-member Quebec Federation of General Practitioners Monday proposed seven amendments to the bill calling for "active participation" of the medical profession in the establishment of controls over doctors.

The federation's amendments concern the relations between doctors and the government as well as the functions of the plan itself.

Last Thursday, representatives of the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists said the group will not sign an agreement with the government unless the bill is changed.

Federation president Dr. Raymond Robillard said "while we agree with the principles, we are against specific details contained within those principles ... and the federation will not sign an agreement if the law stays as it now is."

Dr. Gerard Hamel, president of the federation, said no decision had yet been made on action if the amendments are not adopted. However, he ruled out the possibility of a strike by the doctors.

HASTINGS COUNTY SPECIAL EDITION

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JULY 1, 1970

HASTINGS COUNTY SPECIAL EDITION

Hastings County....

Editor's note: Hastings County!

When The Intelligencer's news staff was assigned to write articles to appear in this special edition devoted to Hastings County they began to uncover a feeling of buoyancy abounding throughout the county.

The development was so strong that reporter-photographer Harry Mulhall was given a special assignment to try to recapture this joie de vivre.

The following article deals primarily with the trend to tourism and the development of Hastings as a vacation home centre. Although developers are naturally a step ahead of the times, the scope of the movement is such that even the residents of Hastings County are not fully aware of its ramifications.

What does it all mean?

One conclusion that is fairly safe to make is that if you are a resident of urban Hastings it is not too soon to stake out that little plot of ground.

With that word of advice, happy fishing and great snow mobiling. Remember, we warned you.

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

This summer of '70 is as good a time as any for the people of Quinte to take a look around their native landscape.

And the sooner the better.

For the look of the land itself — taken for granted by generations — is up for alteration. The sequel will be an eventual, but significant impact on economic and traditional living patterns.

Promising alternatives to big - city claustrophobia, a new wave of settlement is slowly washing across the district as the most urbanized generation in history rediscovers the land, ignored or forsaken by the pioneers.

It's a development tied to the inexorable spread of cottage life.

Only in 1970, they don't call them cottages. They're vacation homes — living units for use all year round, now that snowmobiles have shattered traditional attitudes to winter.

Therein, lies the potential of the new move back to the land.

On individual lakeshore lots, on vacant farmlands, in multi-million-dollar projects, new residences are being planned or started in a region where the open spaces still are a matter-of-fact heritage.

These are no mere escape hatches, to be sparsely enjoyed in summer months. Equipped for winter living, the trend now is to use them on every available weekend and holiday.

Within a generation the trend can become a transformation.

Today's weekenders are the retired citizens of tomorrow. Developments are being keyed to this inevitability. The latter leisure years to today's workers likely will complete the change from vacation home to permanent residence.

The realization of such possibilities will dot future maps of Quinte with brand new urban communities.

The eventual reality of such perspectives already is documented by blueprints of major projects — some already in their founding phases.

These include:

A $3,000,000 plan to nestle a sophisticated vacation suburb on Massassaga Point, a brief southeast jaunt from Belleville across the Bay of Quinte.

A 90-lot subdivision on scenic Hay Bay, east of Picton.

A $6,000,000 development on Dickey Lake in Lake Township, north of Marmora.

A resort subdivision between Frankford and Glen Ross, based on the Trent waterway system.

These free-enterprise subdivisions are the sophisticated new look in recreation - residential development. Supplementing them is a hive of individual activity which will involve private and Crown lands.

The lands and forests department at Tweed now is in the midst of a series of land auctions. Demand, say officials, is at least equal to 1968 — a year when cottage-lot sales reached a record 304.

The potential dimensions of the trend were revealed by a quick count at the provincial regional assessment office in Trenton.

The tally showed 3,100 lots were involved in plans of survey registered for development of summer homes in Hastings County between January and May.

Not all, of course, will be immediately capitalized, officials point out. Presumably, many of the lots are on plans developers wish to register before subdivision controls are introduced in townships tied to the recreation industry.

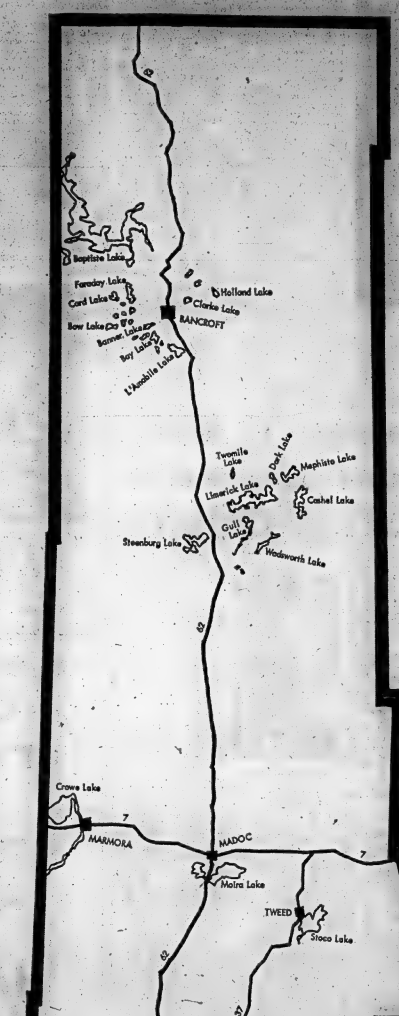
Water frontage — and the Quinte district is rich in such a resource — is the key to much of the development. But it is not a total requirement for the fresh-air hunters.

In recent years, affluent metro dwellers have been purchasing an increasing number of vacated farmsteads and deserted farmlands, with plans to recreate them for family recreation.

Tyendinaga township, east of Belleville — an area where marginal land hasn't been farmed in years — is an example.

Township clerk William Walsh estimates up to 3,000 acres of land has changed hands in the "past couple of years" to anywhere between 50 and 100 new owners.

But for glamorous trend-setting is a multi-million-dollar nutshell nothing compares to the sweep of the big-business undertakings.



The enterprise with the most diverse developments on the Quinte countryside appears to be Lakeland Properties Ltd. — the undertaking headed by George W. True, a Markham realty broker now resident in the Belleville area.

It's Lakeland which has drafted the Massassaga, Hay Bay and Trent River complexes. A projected vacation centre on Amherst Island rounds off the series of undertakings that will virtually girdle the entire Bay of Quinte environs.

Such a string of enterprises has led to what Lakeland executive F. C. Oakes calls the "largest, most ambitious development in Eastern Ontario."

For Bellevillians, the Massassaga settlement is closest to home and the most accessible example of the new trend.

Lakeland holds some 300 acres on the point which once was a flourishing tennis grounds for steamboating Bellevillians.

More Than A Tract Of Land

Like other major developments its completion is not planned overnight. Estimated to cost $3,000,000 its transformation is a 10-year-plan and includes up to 300 homes, a golf course and marina.

Homes in the subdivision are priced from $13,000 up to $30,000.

(In the Hay Bay and Hillview Estates (Trent River) sites the lot range is about $6,000 - $13,000, says Mr. Oakes.)

The Massassaga project has drawn much attention from Bellevillians, Lakeland sources say.

Recently, it was promoted in a series of advertisements in The Intelligencer.

"Surprisingly enough, a majority of the response was local," says Mr. Oakes.

The flow out of the big city suburbs is towards the Quinte area, asserts the Lakeland official.

Two years ago, he says, George True "after years in Toronto re-area realty, made the decision that Eastern Ontario had to be the place — with Belleville at the centre of it."

The most ambitious project announced to date in the Hastings hinterland is Shawano, a 1,000-acre estate organized by the Peterborough-based Bowes and Cocks realty firm.

Bowes and Cocks estimate a development spread over five years, valued at $6,000,000 in the Dickey Lake area of Lake township.

Its advertised description sets the tenor of the development trend. On completion, Shawano will be "a carefully planned, year-round vacation area complete with the services important to comfort, but set in a beautiful pine forest."

Like the Massassaga development, Shawano already sees cottages being built which "can be used for year-round vacation purposes," says John Cocks, manager of Bowes and Cocks Marmora office.

Already the retirement potential of such areas are present in some minds, he confirms.

"There are a number of people who have asked about that already," says Mr. Cocks.

Hastings County Warden John Wilkes also is aware of Lake township, where the Shawano scheme has made the sunsets even more golden.

The development he sees as a "big boon" to Hastings County, besides the township.

The results are cumulative.

"One improved area has to follow another," says the warden.

The cottage trend has been gathering momentum in Hastings in recent years and there is potential that "hasn't even been tapped."

Many of the new - style cottagers are winterizing their properties.

"People are going to come and retire and it will become a year-round residency," foresees the warden.

For municipalities still undeveloped, such exploitation may be among the most financially beneficial to lean treasuries.

However, it may be necessary to provide more access to such areas, indicates Marmora reeve William Shannon, chairman of the county's planning and industrial committees.

Reeve Shannon, whose village's economy hinges to the massive Marmora iron mine, cites a case for the region.

"There are hundreds of miles of shoreline without access roads," he says. "Yet, in a way it's more inaccessible than Algonquin Park."

He believes there may be need to open up a sprawling hinterland area between Cordova, north of Marmora, and Coe Hill — a land bloc spanning three townships still not readily accessible 100 years after Confederation.

"The cottage industry may be the "only natural industry we have left in the event the mine is depleted," says the reeve. "I think it's important to the continued life of the community that such developments are hurried."

The spread of year-round cottaging could also bring problems — if local governments don't assume powers to deal with some situations.

Hodge - podge road building, sewing from one municipality to another, potholes and demands on local health and hydro services are among the possible problems foreseen by Reeve Shannon.

"If you suddenly get great demands [illegible] suddenly puts great demands on the [illegible] capability," he adds.

Electrical to future orderly growth is a county planning committee, believes Reeve Shannon.

"Controlled development" is the key to a satisfactory relationship between all elements involved — from the buyer, to authorities to the conservationist, believes Mr. Oakes of Lakeland.

The promising possibilities of the trend have not gone completely unnoticed in the community at the centre of it all — Belleville.

"We're the hub of the whole wheel and we're going to benefit," confidently predicts Mayor Russell Snow.

How far removed is the day when such settlement is a part of a familiar future landscape?

For years, the lands and forests department as a discharge agent for crown lands, was a major factor in the spread of cottage living. It was a service set against seemingly limitless acreage.

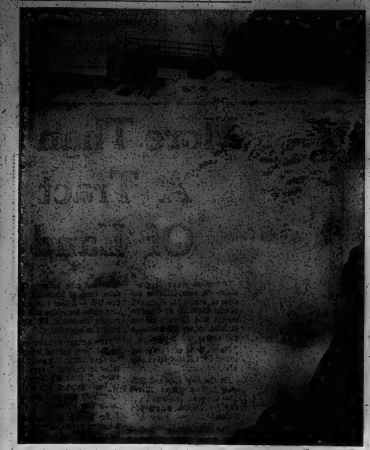
"I think a lot of people are becoming aware of the fact that in 10 to 15 years there is not going to be any crown land available for cottage sites in this district," says L. G. Rowson, the department's land supervisor at Tweed.

And, 30 years from now, cottage land could be at a "real premium" in the area, Mr. Rowson surmises.

Indicative of the demand is the fact the Tweed office last year finally tried auctioning off lots — after years of selling them on a first-come-first-served basis.

"We're pretty well out of that. The demand is such we can't do it that way," says the supervisor.

Inevitably, the switch in open bidding has pushed up prices. Lots — depending on location — may have tripled in price from the old first-come first-served system. The average lot went for about $2,000.



But, it's still a bargain.

For instance: The highest bid at 1969 auction was $4,650, noted Mr. Rowson. "But it was a choice lot. You'd pay $7,000 for it if you were buying privately," he added.

The provincial government sets reserve bids on all lots. The department also retains sections of shoreline on the lakes — in some cases more than 50 per cent. Some day, there may be need of such areas for public recreation.

Between then and now, the pace of new settlement will quicken. Each year of the seasonties change will become more perceptible.

"There's been so much change in the last 10 years," says Warden Wilkes. "It's just hard to visualize what will happen in the next 10 . . ."

A Spectacular Rush

When in full flood, the York River Falls north of Bancroft is one of the most spectacular sights in Hastings Country. Today a dam controls the flow of water on the spot where loggers once manoeuvred lumber out of wilderness.

Bancroft Holds Title As Hub of Quinte North

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — This is the place where the character of an entire county is revitalized.

Without it, Hastings County would be barren of those contrasts, in geography, potential, history and community life, that make it unique in Ontario.

For Bancroft is the hub of the Quinte north, the centre of a landscape panorama that sweeps north from Highway 7 into the heart of the Ottawa Valley.

The grandeur of the prospect — its mountains, virgin forests, lakes and streams — can be deceptive. Its sheer size as a treasure trove of nature makes it difficult to appreciate the human resources that make it inseparable to the character of Hastings.

This community of 2,300 typifies the region.

Its airport, the ultra-modern lines of its new county buildings, the crowds that swarm its main street in summer, the sportsmen thronging its environs in winter, signify its contemporary significance.

The abandoned log cabins spotted along the nearby historic Monck Road communicate a pioneer past more vividly than any museum display.

Street names like Cheesmaughan recall the Mississauga and Chippewa Indians who once settled in the area.

And, dominating the town are the rugged highlands of Hastings, rich in minerals and recreation resources awaiting the future.

It has been looking to development since the time in 1853 when its first settlers arrived to begin carving it out of the wilderness. It has known lumber booms, mining developments.

Today, as a commercial centre it's more significant than ever.

"Within 25 miles of us there is a population of 10,000 —and we're the hub," notes deputy reeve Earl Hawley.

Today, there's a new dimension to development — tourism, recreation.

Bancroft has always been the centre of the Hastings vacation industry.

But, with spreading urbanization and disenchantment with big - city living, it's an industry that still hasn't fully come into its own in Hastings County.

Haliburton and the Land o' Lakes districts now are saturated with holiday settlement.

A growing population of retired citizens is taking up year-round residence in the vacation lands. The same trend is apparent in the southern areas of the Quinte district.

This area is in line for such developments — and it's started already.

"Many people are coming up here to retire," reports Chamber of Commerce manager Roy Barton.

"You're going to see this whole area blossom," confirms Deputy Reeve Hawley. "They're going to have to come up here if they want recreation."

Bancroft's strategic location on highways 500, 61 and 28 gives it an enviable strategic position.

Realization of its potential is a community affair — in a town of 2,300 the Chamber has 130 members. Last year Mr. Barton mailed 2,250 packages of information across North America — and his mailing list included Australia and North America.

The town's promotion of its four-day Gemboree — an event centring on displays of the natural gems in which the area abounds — drew 12,000 people in 1969 from across the continent. Indicative of its showmanship, was booking of a British regimental brass band as feature entertainment, based on empty optimism. Bancroft, like other communities.

Priorities of Need Control Our Spending

By CLARKE T. ROLLINS
M.P.P. Hastings

I am indebted to The Intelligencer for the opportunity to deal with a topic of concern to every resident of Hastings County. That topic is taxes and government spending.

In as economically expanding province we have to ensure that each of our citizens has a high standard of protective services that only a government can provide. But, no matter how valid the need you cannot have more government services and at the same time a reduction in taxation.

The problem is not to determine where and how government revenues should be spent but, to determine the priorities of need. Then in turn government must establish what amount of the value of our production can safely and equitably be used for high priority public interest projects. And this must be done without damaging the inventiveness and incentive of our citizens.

CLARKE ROLLINS

Some government on some occasions seem to forget that whatever the level of that government, municipal, provincial or federal, all the available taxes come from just one eventual source . . . the productivity of each person. The ordinary taxpayer.

This is why the current arguments, often complex and confusing, over tax jurisdictions by three levels of government are so important to us and our children. We must have cooperative agreement on priorities among our three levels of government.

As the Member for Hastings I am certainly not against spending more money where it is needed and where we can afford it. I would not for a moment claim that we have achieved the ideal where all conditions, social, economic, health care, welfare or education are almost perfect. Far from it. Much remains to be improved. But every citizen must be aware of the simple fact that every additional government service that is asked for must be paid for . . . by the individual taxpayer.

My view is that every suggested new expenditure must be thoroughly investigated in line with its priority and our ability to pay the bill. And every present and continuing expenditure must be constantly reviewed to see that it is doing the job originally intended.

As residents of Ontario, the people of Hastings County have a keen self-interest in the problems of taxation and government spending. You have a key role to play in keeping your M.P., your M.P.P. and your municipal leaders informed as to your views.

Our Provincial Treasurer, Charles MacNaughton, has said, "Tough choices confront us, hard decisions must be made. Priorities must be selected by the Provincial Government and Members of the Ontario Legislature."

To this I would add, we cannot be expected to do this alone. We need your opinions, your help. Without it we will surely fail.

Violet Mallory Can Deliver All Votes in Grimsthorpe

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

GILMOUR — There isn't a political party organizer in Hastings County can dispute the claim of Violet Mallory.

Come election time, she can promise to deliver the entire vote of Grimsthorpe to write township.

The explanation is simple.

Rev. Mallory — she's pastor of Mount Zion Church here — is the only permanent resident of the township.

The situation is tied to the unpromising topography of Grimsthorpe which has persistently resisted attempts at settlement. In fact, so formidable were its ridges and swamps in early days, that the township was never completely surveyed until the late 1800s — long after the rest of the county. Between times there have been sporadic mining and lumber operations.

The Mallory residence is just barely in the township — on Wadsworth Lake. It's on the road that angles from here across Limerick and Cashel townships to the landings at Weslemkoon Lake — popular resort area for several generations of Bellevillians.

At Wadsworth the road dips into the extreme northwest corner of Grimsthorpe.

It was here that Rev. W. W. Mallory and his wife came in 1965 from Trenton. For a number of years, Mr. Mallory had been actively preaching in North Hastings before the move to establish an "interdenominational" church here, his wife recalls.

He died in 1968 and his wife, also a minister, has been pastor of the congregation of 100-125 since that time.

The first time she realized the unique voting position created by their home was in the 1965 federal election when one of the candidates called on the Mallory residence.

He mentioned the fact they were the only voters in Grimsthorpe, recalls Mrs. Mallory.

For municipal administration purposes Grimsthorpe is zoned to Elzivir. In their first local election the Mallorys had to travel to Queensboro to vote.

In an ensuing election says Mrs. Mallory, the township clerk made arrangements for them to vote at the poll here.

Recently a relative has purchased property and will build a summer cottage nearby. This would entitle him to vote in a township election.

However, in campaigns for senior government, Mrs. Mallory may remain the only registered voter in Grimsthorpe for some time.

She confesses she's not as informed as her husband was on political affairs.

But will she cast a ballot next election time?

"Oh yes. I sure would," says Grimsthorpe's only voter.

Bins, has known its ups and downs in the past — at least one that might have discouraged any other centre into the perpetual doldrums. Bancroft 1970 shows few scars of the catastrophic late 1950s, when the market for Canadian uranium suddenly contracted. Four mines were spotted in the hills around Bancroft at the time. They closed down.

Today, it's past history in Bancroft — and anyway, the uranium is still there. One of the mines, Faraday, still keeps up its maintenance — ready for the day when market prospects improve.

Even the winter, harsh by southern Ontario standards, has been put to work by Bancroft.

1,400 Varieties

Rockhounds Have Fun in Bancroft Area

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — All the blue in Hastings County isn't in its skies.

There's a precious stone of it underground — so precious, in fact, it's been exciting world curiosity for generations.

There's not quite another mineral hue anywhere like the rich azure blue of Bancroft's sodalite — unless it's in Africa and Brazil.

Those are the only two other world areas where the mineral is found in any worthwhile quantity, says Paul Rasmussen.

Paul is qualified to know. In the past year he's become owner of the Princess Sodalite Mine, site of the rare mineral rock deposit bordering Highway 500, just east of here.

Owner of a Toronto store and workshop dealing in mineral rocks and natural gems, Paul has moved here to become the quarry's eighth owner in its long history of sporadic activity.

That history has taken a new turn in recent years. The mine with its attendant rock shop displaying a wide range of minerals and gemstones, is a mecca for the droves of amateur mineralogists and rockhounds who flock to the Bancroft area each year from across North America.

Natural magnet of the influx is the fantastic selection of mineral and rock deposits in the area — maybe 1,400 different varieties known so far, estimates Paul Rasmussen.

Sodalite remains unique in the glittering rock cache.

The deposit first came to prominent attention in the early days of the century. The Prince and Princess of Wales during a visit to Canada were presented with marble specimens — among them sodalite. Its deep blue has caught the royal eye and arrangements were made to ship a quantity to England.

The royal interest resulted in the name Princess Sodalite.

In 1933, about 130 tons of the rock was mined and used in the decoration of an English aristocrat's Park Lane residence.

With the upsurge in rockhounding, — the collection of mineral rocks and gems now is a hobby shared by whole families — there also is an increased interest in sodalite, says Paul Rasmussen.

But the curiosity is not confined to the hobbyists.

"Inquiries come in from all over the world — nearly every country," he says.

Indications are that the old quarry may be taking on a new lease on life.

Among other Rasmussen plans is the construction of a gemstone workshop near other store.

More and many varieties of mineral rock may be awaiting discovery in the massive formations that give this area its characteristic features.

"There's a heck of a lot to find here," says Paul. "It has not been more than scratched on the surface."

Dora Dodd Is Oldest Resident in Hastings

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — Dora Dodd was born in Germany and it's not known how long she's lived in Hastings County.

But, she's survived enough years to guarantee her reputation today as the county's oldest resident.

At a spry 105 — her birthday was April 22 — she's the star boarder of Centennial Manor, the county's home for senior citizens here.

Her health and eyesight are still good and she's forever proving her spirited energy.

"She strolls around the manor when she feels like it," says administrator Gerald Caldwell. "She's seldom down in spirits and she goes pretty strong."

For Mrs. Dodd and scores of others — if less elderly — citizens, Centennial Manor provides ideal resources for latter years of Hastings County residents.

Mrs. Helen Pitts makes quick scrutiny of leathercraft souvenirs received back from cottage-industry workers of Hinterland Handicraft. The Bancroft company is a unique Canadian industry and sells goods coast-to-coast.

Women Run Cottage Industry

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — Craftsmen are also women.

As a result, this town, the holiday hub of North Hastings, also is artistically linked to the tourist industry on a national level.

The link is fed by Hinterland Handicrafts with its supplies of finely - tooled leather goods to gift shops across Canada.

Hinterland, the flourishing enterprise of Carl and Helen Pitts, is a unique Hastings industry.

It's one of the few Canadian undertakings manufacturing artistically - designed leather goods.

Its output, in an electronic age, is based on an age-old production method: cottage industry.

Despite the volume of skilfully - wrought souvenirs flowing from the Pitts' plant, each item is a piece of individual craftsmanship — the production of local women working in their own homes.

The result is a distinct personal touch to every bracelet, pin, brooch — and a myriad of other gift items — which puts a bit of Bancroft in scores of tourist centres across the country.

Centre of the operation is the Hinterland plant at the north end of Bancroft's main street on Highway 62.

Here about 12 men and women are employed in various operations, cutting the basic outlines of the souvenirs from bulk leather. Here the work is distributed among the cottage crafters, returned as finished items, and distributed coast-to-coast.

About 25 local women working on a piecework basis in their homes are at the core of the enterprise, explains Mrs. Pitts, herself a key figure in the industry.

It is Mrs. Pitts who drafts the original intricate designs realized individually by the cottage work force.

Hinterland's output is versatile. Besides the leather jewelry its brand now extends to purses, tams, vests, coasters, bookmarks — utilizing deerskin and suede along with traditional leathers.

In a way its national trade lines are an inevitable outcome of the Pitts' business origins.

"It's a business that originally started as a hobby," recalls Mrs. Pitts. "When we operated a tourist resort at Barry's Bay."

In those days, Canadian-made souvenirs were in short supply. In fact, it was a trade in which the enterprising Industrialists of Japan loomed large.

The Pitts' started making leather maple leafs to fill the souvenir gap.

Later they moved to Peterborough — and took the business with them.

The next stop was down Highway 28 to this town, where they've been in business for the past seven years.

Much of Hinterland's production goes south with returning American tourists.

But its crafted goods these days also carry Bancroft's name across wider horizons.

"We find a lot of the items are purchased for overseas gifts," says Mrs. Pitts. "It's light. It's unbreakable — and it's Canadian."

ment the first county home — Hastings Manor, in Belleville — Centennial is a strikingly modern feature of this town's skyline.

Perched on high ground on the town's western acreages — it commands panoramic prospect of Bancroft's north country setting.

It's a 110-bed facility and its features include an auditorium, chapel, lounges and workshop for the residents. Its services are staffed by 34 full-time employees reinforced when needed by part-time help.

Its recreational opportunities include craftwork and of which is undertaken by the manor's women's auxiliary.

Today, Dora Dodd is only one of 80 residents in the home.

For regular residents; the home now is operating close to capacity, says Mr. Caldwell. Most of the remaining bed space is designed for special care.

A Girl's Job

As public health nurse in Bancroft Jane Hunt has a big territory to cover. Her assignments take her into remotest areas of North Hastings.

Public Nurse Carries Shovel and Camera

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — A shovel is a necessary part of Jane Hunt's equipment as public health nurse.

Along with sand and studded tires, it safeguards the mobility of her service when winter comes to the hinterlands of Hastings.

In public nursing its a big often remote, region that Miss Hunt has to herself.

At present, she is the only public health nurse representing the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit in an area which compensates for population by territorial size.

It's a jurisdiction which reaches into the townships south of here and north to the farthest limits of the county.

Her superiors in Belleville estimate its population at about 6,000. (A second public health nurse is to join Miss Hunt in the fall, they say.)

Her visits cover infant, pre-school and school-age children. She does prenatal visiting, arranging for clinics.

The young nurse—a native of Thunder Bay — estimates she can clock more than 30,000 miles a year — the distance coming with the arrival of the North Hastings winter.

However, the elements are rarely a deterrent.

"Mostly we try to gauge the weather," she says. "Sometimes, you can only do it by trial and error and you do get caught."

That's when sand and shovel come in handy.

But winter is only one season in a landscape almost still close to nature.

Miss Hunt is well aware of its beauty. Among the favorite spots on her duty hikes is the Montague Valley.

It's particularly beautiful in the fall — when the northern forests and lakes take on breathtaking hues.

At that time of year, reveals Miss Hunt, there's another piece of equipment she keeps handy — a camera.

Deseronto Optimism High As to Prospects for Future

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

DESERONTO — There's a new spirit stirring in this Bay of Quinte community, once the wonder town of Hastings County.

"I feel the opportunity is just waiting for something to happen here," says Reeve George Lyons.

More new homes are built here than in years, he says, and new sites are getting scarce.

"Property is moving and there's hardly a lot left in the town," claims the reeve.

Industry is busy as ever.

In fact, Metcalfe Foods Ltd., a wholly-owned A and P subsidiary, is in the first phase of a five-year expansion program. Canada Optical Company is revamping its production processes to meet new styles of competition. Ideal Venders Division of Eddy Match hums with activity.

The municipality itself is leading the way toward expansion.

A $1,250,000 program to give the town sewers and sewage disposal plant is expected to get under way here this fall.

Completion of the services should be the spur sending Deseronto into a new era of expansion, believes Reeve Lyons.

Deseronto also has deep water facilities, with two docks able to service freighters, says Reeve Lyons.

It also has the area's major road link south into Prince Edward County. On the western outskirts of the town is the soaring Quinte Skyway, opened only three years ago and already showing an impact on Deseronto's commercial traffic, says the reeve.

The traffic of commerce is nothing new to Deseronto. In fact, it gives its local history almost legendary proportions.

Today its a town of about 2,000. Once, it was the seat of a commercial empire, which for sheer magnitude of diversity, had few Canadian challengers.

The empire is dead but its name lingers on in Deseronto — The Rathbun Company.

Founded on the lumber potential of the northern Quinte forests, its original mill in the mid-nineteenth century was fed by logs down the Moira, Salmon, Trent and Napanee Rivers. Rathbun enterprises multiplied to factories, tugs, freighters, local railways, rolling stock shops, even a farm to breed horses for its logging enterprises.

It ran gas, charcoal and chemical plants, a telephone company, a cement works — even a weekly newspaper. Its own money was accepted as legal tender by local businesses. At its peak, it employed as many as 5,000 people, with a registered capital of $3,000,000 in those days.

In the 1880s Deseronto's population was more than 2,300 and it incorporated. About the same time the Rathbun empire was having its first hints of danger. The lumber stocks of Hastings County were being progressively exhausted.

In 1885 a fierce fire swept Deseronto, gutting much company property. Slowly, with the decline of lumber supplies the company — and Deseronto's economy — began to decline.

But, it boom times went, the town remained, gradually attracting new undertakings.

Canada Optical arrived in 1946, today employing 67 people and using highly-specialized equipment in the manufacture of optical frames.

Ideal Venders came in 1948. It now employs 125 in the manufacture of vending machines for sale across Canada.

Metcalfe Foods, one of the town's longest-established industries, was purchased a year ago by A and P. Currently it employs 60 people full time, up to 180 on a seasonal basis in the production of frozen vegetables, fruit drinks and reconstituted fruit juices.

Dawson's Boating Centre is one of the largest marine service centres in Canada.

The town also has been attracting new businessmen — like Bob McArton, printer and publisher for the past two years of the weekly Deseronto and Skyway Scanner.

"That's why I came here," he says. "I figure the town has potential."

Reeve Lyons himself arrived from Frankford four years

Boating No Hobby For Don Dawson

DESERONTO — Years ago it was only a hobby.

Today it's probably the biggest enterprise of its kind in Canada. Right now the Dawson Boating Centre is cruising through another season, its facilities rejuvenating this town as a port o' call for craft on both sides of the Great Lakes.

Not that summer is its busiest time. It probably only seems that way.

For proprietor Don Dawson the most demanding time of the year actually is winter when his marine centre fairly groans with craft laid up for the season.

That's the time when Mr. Dawson and his craftsmen work the busiest, overhauling, maintaining and refurbishing a flotilla of expensive craft. Summer signals recreation time once more for their owners.

A one-time Deseronto cardealer, Mr. Dawson also was a boatsman in his spare time. Somehow, the hobby accumulated to enterprise during the past decade or more.

Now, he has a waterfront undertaking that passes some 1,000 feet of docks into the Bay of Quinte. This year plans are to add another 500 feet. There are facilities for 70 wintering craft, plus a marine railway that can take the heaviest tonnage of pleasure craft.

"My own hobby was boating," says Mr. Dawson. "Now we have as large a centre for general repair and maintenance as any anywhere. I don't know if it has its equal in Canada."

The closest rival, he believes is on Lake Simcoe, where there's a marina with a 250-boat capacity. But then, it doesn't handle any repair jobs, notes Mr. Dawson.

Hard work it may be, but running such an operation also is enjoyable — permitting him to meet a cheetah of leading Canadians and Americans. Among his acquaintances: former finance minister Walter Gordon, author Farley Mowat.

But, boating involves enjoyment — and it's an enjoyable business milieu he's in, confesses Mr. Dawson.

"You meet the loveliest people here from all over. You do business with happy people," he says.

Multi-million Payroll

CFB Trenton Main Spring to Economy

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Canadian Forces Base Trenton has a strong economic impact on the surrounding community — in fact it is a major stabilizing influence on the Quinte area's economy.

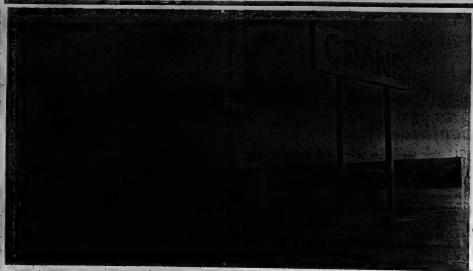
The base military population is about 3,300 with a monthly payroll of $1 million.

In addition the base employs approximately 775 civilians who earn $308,000 per month.

Other economic factors include the $30,000 spent each month in the local area to cover expenses of moving and the $36,000 in goods purchased locally each year by the base supply organization.

Annual non-resident school fees, paid by the base, are $336,000 while teachers' salaries total $460,000 per year.

Taking into account military personnel and civilian employees plus their dependents, the aggregate population is 13,000 persons.



Of these, 700 families live in married quarters, just under 600 in the Trenton area, 800 in Belleville and the remaining 629 in other local communities.

Base officials look upon the situation as a team effort as that any enumeration of ways in which the base helps the community must be read with the understanding that the area also helps the base in many ways.

Some of the ways in which the base helps the area are: civilians may belong to messes or clubs on the base and enjoy base facilities as guests; the presence of the aerodrome which has been of value to companies whose business associates have landed here; the provision of special support such as an auxiliary power unit for Trenton Memorial Hospital and the presence of bands and buildings for special occasions.

Base officials also express the hope that a commercial air service will become a reality here in the near future.

Though the strength of the Canadian Armed Forces will be decreased from the present 90,000-plus to 82,000 by the end of 1972, base officials assume that the population of CFB Trenton — one of Canada's major military operations — will remain approximately the same for the next few years at least.

Air Transport Command Known Around World

TRENTON — Montreal and Toronto have their international airports, known around the world.

But Trenton has CFB Air Transport Command, in effect a large air line system with daily international flights — the lifeline that feeds Canadian Forces Bases around the world.

Air Transport Command is broken down into five units.

The 437 Squadron handles long range transport, and its aircraft are the four Boeing 707's recently purchased for the squadron by the Canadian government.

The 424 Squadron handles light transport, search and rescue and United Nations standby duty. This squadron supplies emergency support services, such as the recent relief flights to Peru. Among the planes its personnel flies are two Dakotas, five Buffalo and eight Caribou.

Rotary-third arm, the Operational Training Unit trains all transport command aircrew and the fourth arm, the Field Technical Training Unit trains groundcrew on aircraft systems and procedures.

The Air Movements Unit handles all freight and passengers processed through Trenton.

Eight units belonging to organizations other than Transport Command are based in Trenton.

These include the Aircraft Maintenance and Development Unit, Training Standards Establishment, School of Meteorology, 708 Communications Squadron, 129 Test and Ferry Flight, Regional Dental Unit, Canadian Forces Postal Depot and the No. 2 Management Study Unit.

The Training Standards Establishment produces Canadian Armed Forces Examinations, and manuals, but with the setting up of new policies

New Look in Industry

Crane (Canada) Limited's modern plant on Sidney Street in Trenton symbolizes the industrial expansion which southern Hastings County has experienced in recent years. Crane established its 135,000 square foot plant here in 1969 for the manufacture of ceramic fixtures such as lavatories, bowls and tanks.

Frankford Bedroom For Area Workers

FRANKFORD — This village is a small residential community located seven miles north of Trenton.

With no major industry except Beta Industries two miles south on Highway 33, Frankford is a home for people who work in other Quinte-area villages and towns.

The village also fills the role of a service centre for the surrounding agricultural area.

Frankford looks to regional government to inject industrial expansion and residential development within its boundaries.

Situated on the scenic Trent waterway, the village becomes a tourist haven in the summer months and serves as a supply base for the surrounding cottage areas.

To attract the tourist trade this community of 1,500 has established a picturesque park and camping ground on the land between the Trent canal and the river itself. This park features a sand beach.

A sign of downtown redevelopment this year was the destruction of several old buildings and the construction of a new Canadian Legion Hall.

Gilmour Mills Gave Town Big Start

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Today this town of 14,100 residents is the second largest municipality in Hastings County.

But what of the past?

More than 360 years have passed since the land at the mouth of the Trent River on which Trenton is now situated — was first viewed by natives of another continent.

Much has happened in the time since Samuel De Champlain and other Frenchmen traversed the Trent in 1615 accompanying Huron Indians on their way to wage war with the Iroquois located in the area where Syracuse, New York, now stands.

The American War of Independence forced loyal British subjects — United Empire Loyalists as they have come to be called — northward.

Two of these loyalists — Judge James Smith from Schoharie County and John Bleecker, a surveyor from Albany — left New York state and settled on the shores of the Trent River in 1790 to become the first property owners within the area which is now Trenton.

Young Bleecker soon found a bride (Catherine) in the family of Captain John Meyers who had settled a few years earlier three miles east of the Trent on the site now occupied by Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

Captain Meyers moved on to establish a mill on Meyers Creek, now known as Moira River, and it was here in 1794 that he constructed the first brick house in Upper Canada.

In 1799 Samuel Sherwood cleared timber where the airport now stands and took the first timber raft down the Bay of Quinte and the St. Lawrence River.

This was the beginning of the timber and lumber marketing industry which was to be the financial backbone of the settlement of Trent River until the 20th century.

Early descriptions of the Trent River mouth depict "solid masses" of trees bordering the river.

so, as in many pioneer communities, the sawing of lumber began in Trent River to provide space for homes rather than as an industrial venture.

With the growth of the lumber trade, local merchants flourished as the numbers of lumbermen and sailors increased.

A roadway — "the Kingston Road" — between Kingston and York (Toronto) was completed in 1817 and passed through River Trent.

It was not long before a stage service was established but the community still remained relatively isolated.

The "old covered bridge" was constructed across the river in 1833, the same year in which the British government commenced construction of the Trent Canal to connect Lake Ontario and Georgian Bay.

Also in 1833 a Roman Catholic Church, believed to be the first building at River Trent, dedicated solely for the purpose of divine worship, was erected on lands granted by the government.

The first school building, which was maintained by private subscription was erected in 1838.

In a proclamation dated February 11, 1837, Sir Francis Bond Head appointed "the mouth of the River Trent as a Port of Entry and Clearance, henceforth to be known by the name of Trent Port".

It was not long before the village of Trenton was incorporated with a population of 1,500 — that a Quebec lumber firm established a branch sawmill on the east bank of the Trent's mouth.

Gilmour and Company Lumbering Industries gave Trent Port the most definite impetus for growth and development in the community's history.

The Gilmour mills and docks once occupied a vast area along the water front, handling as many as 600,000 logs and cutting up to 20 million feet of lumber in a single year.

Just below number one dam on the east side of the river the company established a planing mill, box plant and sash, door and veneer factory run by water power.

The door factory treated its products chemically to resist atmospherical changes and produced doors which protected some of Canada's best-known public buildings. The yearly output of doors averaged 300,000.

In addition, the company used as offices the stone building on Bridge Street East which now serves as Trenton's municipal offices.

The communications phase of the community's isolation was broken in 1850 when Trent Port became one of 11 intermediate stations on a telegraph line joining Montreal and Toronto.

Communications improved greatly in 1859 when the Grand Trunk Railway's mainline between Toronto and Montreal connected Trenton to the country's two major centres.

With the establishment of Trenton as the centre of the lumber industry in this section of Ontario, the village grew and prospered.

In 1880 Trenton increased its area to 960 acres by annexing 300 acres to allow for growth of its population which now numbered 3,800.

By a special act of the Ontario Legislature, Trenton was incorporated as a town on July 1, 1920 — Canada's thirteenth birthday.

Dr. H. W. Day was selected

Within These Walls . . .

This gray limestone building on Dundas Street West in Trenton has played an interesting and varied role in the development of the town. Today the structure houses Trenton's municipal offices, but in past years it has served as the offices of the Gilmour enterprises, a hospital, a button factory and a library.

Original Gilmour House Still Plays Role in Town

TRENTON — Many of the economic decisions which directed the course of this town have been made in a building erected on Dundas Street in the 19th century.

Constructed of limestone brought from Kingston by barge, the building just east of the bridge initially housed the offices of Gilmour enterprises.

Beginning in 1852, Gilmour enterprises made Trenton the lumbering centre of this section of Ontario and, for half a century, the Gilmour mills were the most dominant economic force in the community.

As the Gilmour enterprises faltered before folding in 1910, the building changed hands and became a factory operated by the Canadian Pearl Button Company.

This company turned out 18,000 gross of finished buttons per week using up 20 tons of clam shells imported from Kentucky.

During the First Great War the building was turned into an emergency hospital.

Then in 1921 James Cox established Trenton's first library within the structure's confines.

When the town's municipal offices were shifted to this structure they occupied a somewhat cramped corner with library reading rooms taking up much of the lower floor.

Today, as they have for some years now, the municipal offices employ the use of the entire structure.

So the building is once more in a position of having important financial decisions made within its limestone walls.

Links with the past — and evidences of the building's colorful history — remain to this day.

Town officials still use the vault in which Gilmour enterprises kept the payroll for their hundreds of employees.

And a few years ago the digging of post holes in the back yard unearthed a pile of old buttons.

One wonders how the building will next be utilized, but hesitates to guess.

Bridges Have Knit Town

TRENTON — The first bridge across the Trent River actually "bridged the gap" between the settlements on the eastern and western sides of the river and blended them into one closely knit community called River Trent.

Constructed in 1833 with a $20,000 government grant, the old covered bridge became local landmark and was called one of the finest structures among the early bridges of the country.

Together, the covered portion and an uncovered swing section, which allowed boats to pass up and down the river, served 117 years before being replaced by the steel structure still in use today.

"No Smoking" signs were posted along the covered portion of the old bridge which had a corduroy roadbed and was lighted first by tallow candles and later coal oil lamps.

Ice jams eroded and damaged the wooden structure in the late 1870s making extensive repairs necessary.

Some years later when a circus came to town the elephants refused to cross the covered bridge so the circus manager let them swim across the river.

The old bridge finally came down in 1918 and a steel structure, which also has a swing section, was opened in 1917.

It too, is an interesting landmark for engineers, as, that it is as structurally sound today as the day it was constructed.

However, traffic increased as the community prospered and grew to 14,000 in size.

One bridge could no longer handle the volume of traffic so a modern concrete and steel arched structure was constructed a few hundred yards north of the steel bridge.

Named in honor of D. J. MacDonald — Trenton's Mayor during the 1920s — the new bridge came into service early in 1968.

Times Change Is True

TRENTON — Times have certainly changed.

Back on July 1, 1880, Trenton's 1,000 residents staged a gala celebration to commemorate two occasions — their village's inauguration as a town and Canada's thirteenth birthday.

The council of the day set aside $400 to ensure appropriate celebrations.

When supplemented by private donations the civic fund totalled $1,000.

According to the July 2 Intelligencer the amount was "judiciously expended in decorations, prizes, for steam fire engine competitions, athletic games, fireworks, and other activities."

A comparable occasion occurred in 1967 with the opening of Trenton's Centennial Park — the most ambitious in town's history.

In 1967 the change in times was clearly evident.

All $1,000 valid buy was the installation of 30 flags and poles around Centennial Park's perimeter, a purely elementary consideration.

Quinte Exhibition Five One-day Fairs

By ELMER BONTER

Quinte Exhibition is a conglomerate of many family interests.

To single out one particular feature responsible for its magnetic appeal can be likened to finding the proverbial needle in the haystack, however.

The largest this year is 72-, 700 total admissions in five days.

Exhibition management however, realized it would be taking on a giant's job to equal and pass, the record set for attendance in 1969.

The Exhibition runs this year Aug. 18 to Aug. 22.

Management decided there would have to be bigger and better attractions and more of them. But the country flavor which is very much in evidence during the period each year the big show is in operation will not be lost.

Which means Quinte Exhibition, growing as one of the most complete Class A commercial and agricultural showcases, will continue to function on the basis of five one-day fairs. For instance the grandstand productions and animals competing for prizes in various event's change completely from day to day.

Manager E. C. Gowsell reports 1970 has to be the year for the greatest number of attries in event's long history. A month ago he had listed 500 horses and 400 cattle while additional registrations arrived at his office by mail and personal delivery . . . daily.

The amount of prize money being made available for agricultural exhibitors exceeds $40,000. Horse, cattle, poultry, grains and fruits along with fill items fashioned by hobbyists are all eligible.

Most exhibitors live within a 50-mile radius of the city of Belleville. However some have come from as far away as the east coast and usually one and more out-of-the-area producers join the repeat exhibitors each year.

The news is good for youngsters and young-minded oldsters who enjoy the colorful atmosphere of the midway and patronize the rides.

For the first time in operation anywhere in the province Conklin Shows are bringing eight new rides to Quinte Exhibition's popular Gayway. The undertaking is considered a real boost in favor Belleville Fairgoers ahead of other exhibitions on the Ontario circuit including the great CNE at Toronto. It will also result in an extension of the Gayway to make it the longest in exhibition history.

Always a favorite with visitors, are the exhibition buildings with their countless commercial, and agricultural displays. The Trenton Chamber of Commerce has shown leadership in the promotion of Trenton industry and business by taking over the entire curling club building (320 feet of display frontage) for a showcase this year.

Trenton three years ago occupied three booths in the same place and last year covered about half of the total space available inside the rink.

In recent years the exhibition parade on opening day drew large crowds to line the route across the city. Close to 100 horses with costumed riders will be in this year's procession. They'll be spread out among the bands, floats and teams of other features.

Management's challenge this year includes an education role as recommended by a countrywide survey. Exhibitions from now on will serve better as a communications link between the consumer and the producer because the consumer outnumbers the producer also he was and is still increasing in numbers.

Of course much effort must go into producing a diversified program for the grandstand this year. The choice ranges from country music stars to breathe-taking thrill shows.

Then there are the old reliables — the baby show, the horse drawing contests, harness racing and for the first time jumping horses vying for prizes.

Sure to be a highlight of the beef cattle competitions will be the entry of the imported French breed named Charolais. They are of particular interest in the Quinte area because tests so far show they are adaptable for cross breeding, develop faster and produce a better quality meat than most domestic cattle.

Regional Concept OK

TRENTON — Mayor Duncan McDonald believes that both Trenton and the Quinte area will benefit from industrial expansion under regional government.

"We're in sort of a recession now with industry reluctant to expand, but when that changes this area will benefit greatly," he said.

"There are too many things in our favor," Trenton's chief magistrate stressed. "We're bound to attract new industries."

"We'll have to co-operate with neighboring municipalities, then we'll all benefit.

"In the next short time as we get involved in regional government, area planning, and area services, we'll be in a very good position as an area to attract industries," Mayor McDonald emphasized.

Predicting industrial expansion south of Highway 401 between Belleville and Trenton, the mayor explained that future development would be based on the availability of services.

"We're well advanced with area planning and if we get another jump on servicing we will be away.

"Trenton and Belleville are the only municipalities along the suggested industrial belt which have services at present so new industries would initially have to locate close to one of these centres," the mayor claimed.

"Industry will come first, then the population will increase and residential development will follow," the mayor concluded.

Deseronto

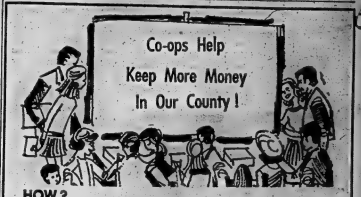
ago to set up a supermarket business.



Already, he's expanding his facilities.

"If I didn't see a future in it I wouldn't be spending the money," explained the mayor.

The newcomers aren't the only ones with belief in the town's future.

Reeve Lyons says he recalls an oldtimer, now over 90 years of age who once ran a store here and can recall the great days of the Rathbun era.

"He told me he's always believed that Deseronto one day would be back to where it was then," the reeve says.

HOW?

Because CO-OPS are always locally owned and controlled.

The savings returned to members, in proportion to patronage, stay in the community and increase the buying power. This is keeping true to the principles of ownership and control for the benefit of all. Whatever the great advances of the coming years may be, Co-operatives can be used to distribute the benefits of progress to the greatest number of people . . .

Trent Now Park Nucleus

TRENTON — The Trent Canal and waterway may soon regain its former position as an important contributor to the local economy.

In fact, the future of the Trent waterway looms bright with the recent federal announcement that it will become a national park.

"These waterways in the past have been used mainly for transportation, but now they will be used in the future more and more for recreation and we want to keep them for the national parks system where we will develop them for conservation purposes and for recreation purposes," Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said April 16.

Speaking at a news conference in Peterborough, the minister said his department was negotiating transfer of the canal adjoining land and facilities, with the federal department of transport.

Peter Lesaux, assistant director of national parks, said that the Trent Canal could become part of the government's plan to increase the number of national parks from the present 21 to between 60 and 80 by the turn of the century.

He told The Intelligencer that the cabinet was considering the alternatives but that no definite decision had been reached yet.

"I'm hopeful of a decision very shortly," Mr. Lesaux added, referring to the early summer months.

"The Canada-Ontario committee on the Rideau-Trent-Severn waterways was formed 18 months ago to develop an overall plan for the three waterways bearing both federal and provincial government responsibilities in mind," he noted.

Target date for the Rideau report is the end of August, while the Trent-Severn brief should be prepared by the end of December, said the assistant director of national parks.

"Initially, these waterways were of military importance, then commercial; but now they are essentially recreational facilities," he explained.

"Central co - ordination of these three waterway facilities is lacking most now," he emphasized.

The Trent Canal could be developed in concert with the Ontario government and the communities along the waterway to get better use of both the water and onshore facilities," Mr. Lesaux asserted.

Such facilities as overnight shelters, camp grounds, historic sites and the locks could be promoted as tourist attractions according to Mr. Lesaux who noted that today people have increased leisure time, more money and more boats.

"We also need real good promotion, enticing Americans to travel say from Trenton to Georgian Bay," the national parks official stressed, noting it could be "a real exciting tour".

Mr. Lesaux cited the Hudson and Tennessee Valleys as comparable resources in the United States which have been developed as tourist attractions.

He concluded that there could be "substantial economic benefit" to Trenton at the hub of the Bay of Quinte and the Trent waterway, and Peterborough further upriver.

Belleville's Parks Becoming Integral Part of City Life

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Most public opinion and the assessment media point out as the last year against the assembled ills of a polluted environment.

Cities all over North America have at last become remarkably aware of the need not only to fight pollution but to enhance the urban environment with amenities, once thought frivolous but now deemed essential.

High density urban areas now, because the fact that there is no land left for park use and that the rivers are already with industry.

Only Rewaight has saved Toronto's Don and Humber Valleys and along the same line Rewaight has brought proportionately large rewards to Belleville.

One may not be able to judge a book by its cover but, nonetheless, the cover is an eye-catching aspect of the book.

To apply the maxim to a city, one might say that a park is among other things, an eye-catcher that bespeaks a city's developmental intellect.

A city with, a poor parks system is a city with an apathetic, if not thoughtless, corporate mentality and increasingly such cities where no efforts have been expended to conserve park environments have been subjected to intense criticism.

Belleville, however, moved to develop parklands before it became the so-called "in" thing to do.

The city has more than a head start over many cities of comparable size in realizing a well-integrated parks system and the parks leave the tourist with a favorable impression of Hastings and its verdant country seat.

The largest park in the city is at Zwick's Island on the Bay of Quinte adjacent to Highway 14. The Bay of Quinte draws thousands of people annually.

Two of the park's prime points of interest are a CNR steam locomotive and a "Golden Hawk" sabre jet. These vehicles symbolize the formative influence of the railway and the air force in developing the area's economy.

Zwick's Island also has a canteen facility, a large cruciform barbecue pavilion, and picnic tables galore.

Concerts at the bandshell throughout the summer are a considerable attraction as are soccer games, archery competitions and other events that take place on the well-kept playing fields.

Floral displays and tennis courts too go together to make Zwick's Island Belleville's Centennial showcase.

An area east of the highway across Zwick's will also be set aside for use as a park, although its future has not yet been explicitly defined.

When the area comes into use, Belleville will have about 300 acres of parkland, some developed and some undeveloped.

Corby Park, the most highly developed park in the city, lies north of Bridge Street between Ann and William Streets.

The park was given to the city in 1906 by the philanthropic Corby family, whose goodwill in this community has seldom been excelled.

In June 1967, the park was rededicated to the city after rededicated to the city after a complete refurbishing.

There are over 1,700 rose bushes of 60 varieties in the one acre park that yearly burst forth with a riot of color.

The park takes on a new dimension in the evening when its cascading fountain is illuminated by amber-tone flood lights.

At the eastern limits of the city considerable effort has been expended by the parks board to develop an eight-acre picnic park on land between the old Kingston Road and the four-lane portion of Highway 2.

The land leased by the city north of Edgehill Road in the has been cleared of aged and diseased trees as well as considerable brush. With the small creek at its eastern end and picnic tables placed about the property it provides an attractive access to the city as well as a recreational haven.

In the future a 17 - acre parkland area, known as Sanley Park, will come into use city's eastern suburbs. With its stream and heavily wooded areas, it will be a unique asset to the city.

For many years, Belleville has had a riverfront park, the Parks Park across the road from Corbin, Lock 'em (Coleman Street.

The park has become a favored lunch-hour spot for workers in nearby buildings and if the money can be found it will be developed into a picturesque promenade.

Last year, Frank S. Panter donated a sum of money toward development of the park named after W. H. Panter, a former mayor of the city.

Riverside promenades are a common feature of such European centres as London, Paris, Stockholm and Vienna but they are not without precedent in Belleville.

The Bleeker Parkette by the arches of the Upper Bridge on West Moira Street was developed by the parks board and opened in October 1969 with half the cost underwritten through the generosity of the Bishop family.

The promenade is an example of what can be done to take advantage of the Moira river, one of the city's prime assets.

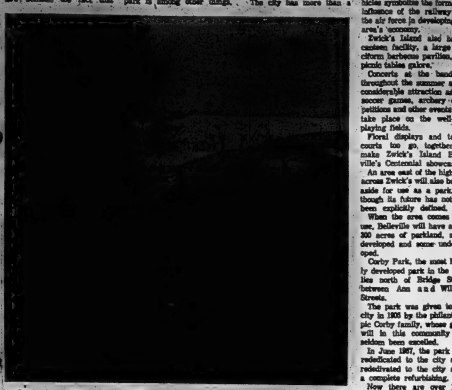
To the north, along the east bank of the Moira, a remarkable park has been constructed on the Causition Road.

This eight-acre park has already achieved considerable popularity with the people of Hastings and the Gateway Traveller alike.

Part of the park land was willed to the Rotary and Kinsmen Clubs by the late Mrs. Earl Fry with the hope that it might be developed as a park.

In 1963, the property was given to the city and in a program of land assembly, other properties were acquired to give the Riverside Park its present dimensions.

The most striking feature of Riverside Park is its island, dotted with picnic tables and connected to the body of the park by a small footbridge.



With its shade trees, picnic tables, barbecues and picnic shelter, Riverside Park not only provides a handsome northern entrance to Belleville but capitalizes on the potential worth of river frontage.

However, the parks board not only wants to focus attention on conserving the riverside for parks use but the bay shore as well.

Victoria Park, which encloses the harbor, is a popular spot for painters and picnickers alike, who find a perpetual source of interest in the constant boating activity that takes place from the park's busy quays.

Zwick's Island has given great impetus to further bayshore development within the city and the parks board has accumulated as much of the bayshore east of the Moira as its budget would allow.

The future promises that the parks of the City of Belleville will be even more a source of pride and recreation for Hastings and her people.

Bancroft Airport Of Great Value To North Hastings

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — In an age of swift communications a 240-acre plot of land northwest of here is a significant facility to progress in North Hastings.

Bancroft Flying Club is a licensed, private airfield.

But in its seven-year operation it has become much more than just the site for a sophisticated recreational pursuit.

In that time it has served as a communications link for government and private enterprise teams exploring the mineral - rich possibilities of the surrounding bushland.

The airforces uses the field for training missions.

It even gives a new dimension to tourism and cottage life.

Aircraft owning city dwellers use it as a depot for speedy weekending trips to family cottages and resorts in the surrounding lake areas.

Core of the enterprise is its membership of local fliers — representing a cross-section of the working community from schoolteachers to contractors.

In a way, their operation combines the amenities of a private club with the facilities of a public service, agrees Jack Hatin, one of its founding members.

As with the rest of North Hastings, winter transforms only the scenery.

The snow is packed down on the runways and flying goes on, points out Mr. Hatin.

The east-west runway extends 2,600 feet, the north-south runway 1,800 feet — enabling landing of twin-engine aircraft, he says.

The airfield's ample acreage also provides sufficient room for further expansion.

Lumber - - Still A Hastings Product

Lumber still is an active — and important — business in North Hastings. It's an industry that helped open the country's northern townships, and came to stay in some areas — as this scene at Bancroft Lumber Company shows.

Furs Still Traded In Tweed District

TWEED — Canada's oldest business still can be seen in operation here.

The fur trade — the adventure that rolled back a wilderness and made way for a nation — lingers in Hastings County.

Twice a month during the winter, trappers from around the area trek to the lands and forests department chief ranger station here, bearing their hauls of pelts.

Forestry officers stamp the skins with the government seal and the trappers then meet with waiting buyers and decide on satisfactory prices.

Prices vary according to quality — and, most of all, market conditions.

In this area beaver and muskrat still are fur-bearing animals most often trapped.

The season's annual span is brief — lasting only about three months. The results of the past year's harvest still are not known.

Department officers still are tallying the catches reported by trappers throughout the county for the season.

Urban Dwellers Move North

BANCROFT — Two Bellevillians, who voluntarily surrendered city life for the spacious "environment" of north Hastings, now are part of the county's fastest - developing industry — travel and tourism.

Ken Willcocks now is operator of the Sword Motel, on Highway 62, the town's main north-south route. A well-known Belleviller, he was commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward, and on the staff of Northern Electric before he and his wife Leone moved their family north.

Bud French now makes his home 18 miles south of here—operating the Red Eagle resort on Wollaston Lake near Coe Hill.

Until he moved with his wife and family two years ago Mr. French owned and operated what was probably Belleville's busiest beauty salon.

Both men have large-scale operations.

The Sword Motel includes modern, housekeeping units along with regular air-conditioned motel units, a trailer park on the York River and a restaurant.

Mr. French is busy with 90 acres of tent and trailer park and cottages.

For both, the change from city life to north-country living was taken in stride.

"I wouldn't change it unless I had to," says Mr. French. But men may be too busy to notice it, but they're part of an industry for which Hastings County is ideally situated.

"We're well-located and excellently equipped by nature for tourism in this county," summarizes Gordeon Bennett, Marmora businessman who is president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council.

Tourism is an economic stable that holds other sections of the local economy together. A host of other undertakings—from law offices to suppliers — can benefit from its well-being, he says.

The lakes, streams and forests of Hastings are ideal for recreation.

The advent of the snowmobile also gives the county a year-round advantage.

While the Hastings highlands may not possess the most ideal skiing conditions, says Mr. Bennett, its wide-open winter spaces are just the thing for snow vehicles.

"This is what people in the cities are demanding now," he points out.

The county's natural recreation resources still are open for development.

"We have lots of lakes not developed. We need more resorts and lodges — dose property of course, so it won't add to pollution," says Mr. Bennett.

Trenton Had Ups, Downs

as the town's initial mayor in elections held Jan. 1, 1881.

People had been the determining factor which made Trenton a successful community, depending on the Trent River to transport logs down from the northern hinterlands for processing and also on the nearby area for agricultural produce.

But with the advent of other transportation methods, the depletion of forest resources from other areas, the people faced a new challenge.

The Gilmour institution vanished in 1918 when the door and woodworking factory closed. It was destroyed by fire a year later.

When Trenton doubled its land area to 1,800 acres in 1919 the outlook was somewhat bleak despite the presence of manufacturers, a baby carriage factory, a canneries mill and a cold storage firm to take up the slack left by the demise of the Gilmour enterprises.

It was new transportation methods which first brought hopes of metropolitan status and then acceptance of a more humble urban-rural position.

For the "rail town" had arrived and with it came the establishment of Trenton as the divisional headquarters for both the Canadian Northern and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Trenton became the site of railway lines, offices, a machine shop and a large roundhouse, while at the same time attracting a few new industries.

Many Trenton residents fought in World War I and a substantial explosives manufacturing industry was located on the east shore of the Trent.

However, during the last year of the war, a great explosion occurred in the plant, destroying the structure and causing damage and havoc to other buildings and businesses.

Just as Trenton had gained much of its means through transportation methods, it suffered great losses due to public acceptance of another form of transportation — the automobile.

Automobile traffic substantially replaced railway and steamship travel while trucking seriously curtailed the express and freight traffic of the railways.

The railway - employed population decreased greatly around 1919 with the closing of the local machine shop and roundhouse.

Nationalization of the railways leaving only the Canadian Pacific and the new Canadian National also had an adverse effect locally.

Ironically this former railway centre now in 1970 is visited by only one eastbound and one westbound passenger train each day.

As a community Trenton was "down" during the early twenties, but in 1928 one of the most dominant and controversial figures in the town's history became mayor.

He was W. A. Fraser and during his five-year tenure as mayor he was instrumental in attracting a variety of important industries to the town.

But "Nickel Billy" Fraser's most important contribution to Trenton was his efforts in having Trenton selected as the site of a major RCAF training centre in 1939.

William Alexander Fraser went on to serve 18 years (1930 to 1945) as MP for Northumberland riding and was appointed to the senate in 1949.

Senator Fraser died in 1962 at the age of 76 but will be remembered here as a man who, in his own words, was "proud to be a citizen of Trenton".

Canadian Forces Base Trenton was a training site for World War II airmen from all allied countries and today it serves as Air Transport Command headquarters.

With an annual payroll of $15 million CFB Trenton is now the major stabilizing influence on the local economy.

Trenton suffered greatly during the depression — as its peak one-quarter of the town's population received unemployment relief assistance — but made a financial recovery during World War II.

During the five year term (1947 to 1952) of Mayor Kenneth Couch the town experienced an industrial boom and the population soared 10,000.

The town's fortunes improved markedly again during the decade (1960 to 1970) James MacDonald served as chief magistrate.

Four new industries came to town in 1967 and 68, Centennial Park was created and a new bridge (named the James MacDonald bridge in honor of the mayor) constructed over the Trent River.

Now Trenton, under the leadership of Mayor Duncan McDonald is preparing to meet the challenge of regional government and whatever else the future may offer.

Madoc, at Highways 62 and 7, Is Crossroads of Hastings

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

North on Highway 62, through the rugged rolling hills of the county by the summer resort area of Moira Lake, lies the village of Madoc at the junction of Highway 7.

Madoc: once a booming centre of the mining and lumber industry in the late 19th century, still retains some of it's former industries on a smaller scale, but the focus of importance has changed.

At the cross roads of Hastings county, and a direct link with the towns of the north, surrounded by burroughs and villages such as Marmora, Tweed, Ivanhoe, Eldorado, Deloro, Bannockburn, Stirlingbridge and Actinolite, the village has become an important community.

Calling itself the "hub of the county", Madoc serves as an agricultural shopping point for the farms of the area and a tourist centre during the summer.

The agricultural area begins to rapidly diminish eight to 10 miles north of Madoc and another important attraction emerges.

Large sections of forest, hundreds of tiny lakes and rolling hills are the ideal haunt for deer, partridge, ducks, and all manner of small game as well as more than seven different varieties of game fish.

"The deer hunting season is so important around here," quipped Reeve Tom Burnside. "that you could even fire off a cannon in the centre of town and no more than a couple of heads would look up. Even they would go back to their hunting without any real concern, except maybe the sound might have scared off the deer."

Every summer, flocks of tourists and cottagers enter the area, either passing through to Algonquin Park or the Haliburton region or to the cottages by the lakes. More than two to three hundred cottages are situated on the shores of Moira Lake, not counting those on Salmon Lake, Weslenkon or Stenburg, which all circle the town.

Although there are still some tourists who have been coming to the area from the U.S. since the 1930s, only about 20 per cent constitute the total in the area.

There are a number of special events and attractions open throughout the year which draw tourists for hundreds of miles.

O'Hara's Mill, which opens every summer, features the only verticle saw in its original operating condition (Upper Canada Village has a restored saw of this type), a trout stream, a restored log school house, the old O'Hara homestead which was opened in 1968 as a museum. This popular attraction is situated just a few short miles to the northwest of Madoc.

On the last Wednesday in July, the Kiwanis Club of Madoc holds its annual street dance.

The entire street is given over to booths and displays and a big-name Nashville sound band is brought in for the Mardi-Gras type dance in the street.

Each year, this event raises more than $1,000 for the Kiwanis Club's underprivileged children fund.

Never held in the town before, plans are under way to hold their first winter carnival in February of 1971.

It is the town's hope that this winter event will, in some way, be the winter edition of the street dance, drawing people in from miles around and providing fun and frolic for one and all.

One of the biggest events of the year is the Madoc Agricultural Fair, this year to be held on one day only — Saturday, Sept. 26. It was decided to change the fair from a two-day event to give the exhibitors a better chance to display before a majority of people.

Last year, more than 6,000 people visited the fair and the gate receipts were $4,322 which go toward the agricultural society fund. The grounds, which have been owned by the society since 1922 have a horse-barn, four cattle sheds, offices and buildings for hogs, sheep, the 4-H Club, and the womens institute as well as a race-track.

The fair, which has been operating since 1905, has grown to an important event which draws exhibitors from as far away as Ottawa, Peterborough, Oshawa, Centreville, and as near as Belleville, Stirling, Campbellford, Foxboro, Indian River and McArthur Mills.

One of the biggest attractions is the station that the fair shares.

The Madoc Agricultural Fair became, in 1966, a B class fair. This class of fair must pay more than $3,000 in prizes for three years in the agricultural and livestock category.

Under the Hayes plan of exhibiting, the fairs that meet these qualifications are awarded 50 per cent of their cattle prize money by the Dominion government. Both the B class and C class fairs receive a 20 per cent grant for the provincial government on the total prize money. The rest of the prizes are raised through contributions.

This has proven such a drawing point that last year saw an increase in display cattle of more than three herds — a substantial increase.

Just to give an indication of the increase towards improving the fair, the figures for prize money and gate receipts are given for the years 1919 and 1969.

	1919	1969
Cattle	$60.00	$2,994 (Dairy) $2,200 (Beef)
Horses	$241.00	$1,115 (Heavy Horse) $ 623 (Roadster and Carriage) $ 613 (Saddle and Pony)
Sheep	$38.00	$ 496
Swine	$42.00	$ 354
Gate Receipts	$262.00	$4,322

Naturally included are the displays for handiwork, baking, and special displays too numerous to mention.

And so Madoc holds herself open year round to visitors and offers the warm greeting so often found in villages and towns throughout Ontario.

A typical, friendly town, the hub of Hastings County.

Area Campsites Popular

That great North American institution is upon us again, swelling the Quinte district population over twice its normal level, congesting the major highways of the area, bringing wealth, prosperity, and frivolous courage to the region and returning citizens to the cities with colds, poison ivy and poverty. Yes, the summer camper hath returned.

Each year the six major parks of the Quinte area are faced with thousands of campers vieing for a site in the woods so as to escape the sweltering heat and confusion of city life.

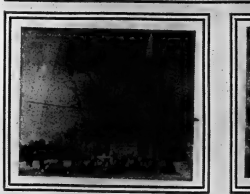
Says Ken Moore, superintendent of Presqu'ile Provincial Park, Brighton: "This year we are already 24,000 people over what we were at the same time last year and just last Saturday we had 250 families visiting our park."

This keeps the 500 campsites at Presqu'ile filled virtually all the time and also provides the interpretive program with an eager audience. "We have two hiking trails about a mile long, a museum and an outdoor theatre where films, slides, and lectures are presented to the campers to inform and entertain them," says Mr. Moore.

Maintenance of a mile and a half beach, the trailer dumping station, the outdoor lavatories plus the water patrols and park patrols keep the 22-member summer staff busy the entire camping season.

The Toronto-Oshawa area seems to supply the major portion of the campers at Presqu'ile but the solitude, the rugged outdoors and excellent facilities attract a large number of American visitors. They made up 22 per cent of last year's total.

The main factor influencing summer camping is the weather and E. Grant of Bon Echo Park, Cloyne, aptly diagnoses the situation: "Last year, the early portion of the camping season was quite wet but we still had 134,000 campers. This year the weather has been excellent, so I expect at least a five per cent increase in attendance."



Five per cent more people will keep park superintendent W. J. Miller and his 26 staff members busy maintaining the 420 campsites, 20 outdoor relies aids, plus the four comfort stations, which provide

SNOWMOBILING — A GREAT SPORT!
AT MOIRA LAKE, MADOC
Many trails open to Snowmobilers.

A Message from the Reeve of Madoc . . .
Have you recently visited the Madoc Area? May I extend to you my personal invitation to the pleasant shopping area, and other many points of interest in Madoc. Why not set aside some vacation time for a pleasant drive to our village and surrounding district to further pursue your favorite hobby; whether it be rock-hounding; fishing or just a leisurely drive among friendly people.

Fast Falls the Eventide

As dusk approaches, so does a fisherman who will explore the bountiful fishing available in Moira Lake. The lake is situated a few miles south of the village of Madoc on Highway 62, 25 miles north of Belleville. More than 300 cottages on the lake attract tourists from all over the county and the U.S.

For A Village of Only 1,500 Madoc Is Moving Right Along

MADOC — The village of Madoc has a population in the neighborhood of 1,500 people.

In a village of this size, expansion is not one of the major factors in the life of the community.

However, in 1969, the village spent $1,370,000 on additions to the public and the high schools. The total amount in building permits issued by the municipality for the year was an additional $25,215 for new dwellings and additions and repairs to existing homes and $21,-295 for business additions and alterations. The total of $1,416,-038 represented 31 building permits.

To date this year, there have been 10 permits issued for a total of $204,250 in building investments.

Reeve Thomas Burnside, four councillors and village Clerk-Treasurer Miss Olive G. Ashe look after the government of this community.

Bruce White, a local lawyer and councillor is head of the fire and police committee which is responsible for bylaw enforcement, although as yet there is no bylaw enforcement officer. The council is at this time attempting to fill this position.

In 1968, there was a new fire engine purchased and plans are under way to link a radio alarm system with Belleville. The new system would alert the volunteer fire department, under chief Lynne Kempey, and would keep them posted at all times.

Harry Roscoe, a professional engineer is chairman of the water and sewer committee, which is supervising a great deal of change in the village.

The village's new sewage disposal plant is being built by the OWRC to replace what Reeve Burnside terms "the primitive methods".

Construction as yet has not begun on the plant, but land has been purchased and the engineering and surveying has been completed.

For six years the village has been negotiating for a new waste disposal plant and on May 14, 1969, the OWRC announced it would be assuming the responsibility for the operation, maintenance, and installation of the new plant.

The plant, slated for completion in December, will be charged back on the householder's water bill. The cost of this is estimated to be $26.80 per home. This is an additional cost on the present bill.

The reeve reported that reaction to this additional cost and the installation in general was "extremely favorable."

Throughout Madoc, the sewers and water systems are owned by the village and this situation will be retained even after the installation of the new plant.

What is considered by local residents to be the best tasting water in the county, is a well which provides 102,000 to 200,000 gallons of water per day.

Last year a consulting firm working in conjunction with the Moira River Conservation Authority and the Ontario government conducted a channel improvement survey to clean up Deers Creek in the village. This cleanup will commence some time this year.

This year presents a problem to the water and sewer committee in that the Moira Lake is extremely low and the algae is growing thickly.

"Although I've never seen the lake lower than it is now, the problem hasn't reached the bacteria contamination point," explained Reeve Burnside.

He said the only dangerous pollution in the area is the arsenic residue being released by the slag pile at Deloro Smelte in Deloro into the Moira River, down to Moira Lake.

Both the OWRC and the Deloro Smelte plant are taking arsenic counts in the water in an attempt to reduce the problem.

Melville (Mel) Caverly, a businessman, insurance agent and retired real estate agent is chairman of public property committee.

Cecil Hagerman, also a Madoc businessman, is chairman of streets and sidewalks committee.

Over the past five years, two bridges, one on Highway 62 in the north and the other on the main street, have been constructed at a cost of more than $100,000.

A west-end street improvement costing $220,000 and similar work in the east-end at a cost of $200,000, has resulted in resurfacing and curbing. Before this installation of water sewers at a cost of $146,000 was undertaken.

Further such water sewers will be installed before the next street extension. The Kingston firm of J. D. Lee Engineering Ltd. provided the preliminary surveying report for work scheduled for commencement some time this year.

Miss Ashe has been treasurer for the past three years, clerk for five years, and previous to that was a councillor for five years. She maintains the council offices at 66 St. Lawrence St. W., which also house the fire department.

Reeve Burnside is in his 11th year as reeve and was on council five years before becoming the town head. He is a past warden of Hastings county.

Besides many clubs and organizations, the village offers a racetrack, a public library, a completely lighted ball diamond, social events throughout the year and what the reeve terms "one of the best summer playgrounds in Hastings county" . . . the hub of the county.

Parents Needed To Assist Program

"Anything to get the kids off the street" is a common hope and wish of the parents of Belleville but usually little action accompanies this statement. Fortunately for Belleville a few conscientious and dedicated men have volunteered their time and effort to develop minor sports throughout the summer months.

Director Lorne Williams and assistants Cliff Belch and Wilma Summers of the recreation department have instigated a program involving varying aspects of the sporting world and successfully gaining the participation of 1600 Belleville youths.

Girl's softball to lacrosse and soccer to baseball are offered as the wheels of minor sports in Belleville continually turn to provide fun, exercise, and experience to both the children playing and the parents watching.

One of the more successful endeavors has been girls' softball, a relatively new entry in minor sports. Says league president Don Lucas: "I'm really pleased with the amount of help and co-operation we have received from both the parents and the rec. centre. I used to be one of those beefing coaches but now that I am directly involved I can really appreciate the work these people are doing."

Girls' softball has expanded to include 150 girls ranging from six to 16 years of age and nine teams divided into a senior and junior league. Utilizing the help of spectators and teenagers, um-

Madoc Manor Nursing Home Is Happy Haven for Mentally Ill

MADOC — The residents of the Madoc Manor Nursing Home were happy recently . . . happier than usual, that is.

The 39 residents of the home who range in age from 36 to 97 were visited by 17 women from the Canadian Mental Health Association, Belleville branch.

Every month anywhere up to 30 members visit the home to play cards with the men, dance, play bingo, or just talk with them.

As Robert Kelly, the administrator put it, "the boys look forward to the visits".

In August of 1965, Mr. Kelly presented plans to Kingston's Psychiatric Hospital for the opening of a residence in Madoc. He and Mrs. Kelly had been associated with such residences since 1953.

Kingston supported the plan and the proposition was put before town council, receiving wholehearted support from Reeve Tom Burnside.

A large vacant home at 167 St. Lawrence St. E. was purchased and extensive renovations were undertaken. Financed by Mr. Kelly, the home underwent complete renovation. Electric wiring, furnace, walls, and every other part of the house was reconditioned to specifications.

An extension was constructed consisting of a dining room, living room and a sun deck, which the men take every opportunity to use.

The residents for these homes are all taken from the Ontario Psychiatric Hospital and are certified as terminal cases.

For these men there is no cure, but instead of living out their lives in the wards of a hospital, they can live in homes were people like the Kellys have taken an interest.

"They are human beings, after all, and they feel and should be helped," said Mr. Kelly.

With the help of a staff of 35, which includes two registered nurses, one registered nursing assistant, nine nursing aids kitchen staff and assistants as well as numerous volunteers, the men are involved in physical therapy, handiwork and speech therapy.

All this is toward one end goal, to bring these men back to at least a part of life.

Mr. Kelly stated some successful examples.

"One old gentleman who came to us was very withdrawn. We got him interested in billiards and cards and after a while he responded to the extent that some of the visiting local champions have gone down to defeat before his adept playing.

"Another, we discovered, was a barber who had suffered a nervous breakdown. When he observed my sons attempt to cut my young son's hair with the barbering equipment I had purchased, he began to offer suggestions. From there, in a short time he was doing all the barbering, and he still does. He enjoys his work and this is very important.

"We even have a resident tailor here. Andrew Fong, who will be 93 in November, likes to keep busy. Oddjod to work before he came here, Andrew came to me one day and asked for something to do because he was not happy with the chores and odd jobs offered here. We got him a sewing machine and now he's busy all the time, and loves it. He's also our gardener and does a magnificent job with the help of some of the other men."

Mr. Kelly explained further. "It's all a matter of letting the men find something to take an interest in . . . something that they can be proud of, something important to them."

A tour through the home found the men resting before dinner, playing cards, or watching television. Facilities are the most modern available and to improve them further, plans are being made to provide air conditioning.

Mr. Kelly is "really thrilled" about the response by the public throughout the county.

Together with the women from Belleville, and what Mr. Kelly described as "very encouraging," is the participation by area students. Last year, the students of Moira Secondary School in Belleville brought the residents to the school for a special show they had prepared for them. Students from Quinte Secondary came to the home to present a show.

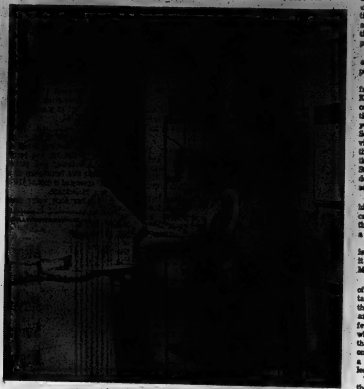
Closer to home, the Madoc high school entertains, on occasion, with their band, and the public school has brought a Christmas show to the home.

"Getting the public involved is a very important thing . . . It shows that they care," said Mr. Kelly.

"You know, I wish that some of the men's relatives would take as much interest. Some of them do, but you know, there are others who live within a few short miles of the home who don't bother to come other than Christmas, and then they only stay long enough to shove a gift through the door and leave . . . It's shameful."

To support the residents in the home, the department of health provides $10.50 per day per resident.

The support of these homes is definitely considered a benefit by both the hospitals and the home. More than 7,000 patients have been released throughout Ontario to take up residence in these homes.



The residents come from the impersonal atmosphere of the hospital to the family-like atmosphere of the nursing home. Here they can be controlled, not cured unfortunately, but have a better chance for happiness.

The Madoc Manor Nursing Home is the first such home in Hastings County to receive the regular nursing homes licence. Following a probationary period, the home received the licence on Aug. 18, 1969.

We're very grateful to the department of health and to everyone who comes in to help . . . the retired school teachers, the housewives, the students, the retired nurses, everyone," said Mr. Kelly.

"You know, my wife and I haven't taken a real vacation in years and whenever we go away for a little while, the boys gather around to greet us upon our return . . . that's what makes it worthwhile," Mr. Kelly explained.

"They feel wanted and they make you realize that it's a need you just by seeing the happiness in their faces."

Handiwork Done at the Home

Mrs. Robert Kelly and her husband are the administrators of the Madoc Manor Nursing Home. As part of their therapy, the 35 residents make a variety of handicrafts, some of which she is examining here.

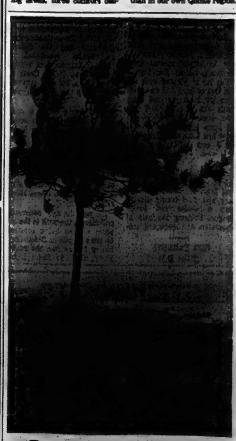
The early wet weather did not dampen the Prince Edward County park attractions as a total of 487,646 people used the services provided at four parks. North Beach drew 69,332 people, Lake-on-the-Mountain 21,380, the Sand Banks 58,751 and the big attraction, the Outlet, drew 322,505 people.

"We have 463 campsites at the Outlet with overflow sites at the Sand Banks. We provide hot water in the camping areas. Three comfort centres, and of course outside privies plus supplying fuel wood and tested drinking water," ratties off R. Thompson of the lands and forest department. An interpretation program on Wednesdays and Saturdays at dusk along with police patrols, night man pounding the beach beat and shore patrols insure the campers information, entertainment, and protection while also keeping the 84-man staff hopping.



Park superintendent Bob Davidson and district forester Allan Peacock can the park as smoothly as possible as do all the various park staff around the Quinte region, offering aid in any way possible to the endering camper.

More and more the enjoying of the wonders of nature; no television, campfire burst meals, long ailments from too much fresh air; has become a continent's pastime and no where else is it more evident than in our own Quinte region.

Madoc Boasts County's First Television Station

MADOC — Hastings County's first television station is situated in the village of Madoc, 25 miles north of Belleville.

Actually, the TV station, operated by the Hastings Cable Vision Ltd. Co., is the only such broadcasting media of this type in the area to begin answering the Canadian Radio Television Commissions demands for Canadian television content in local broadcasting.

The CRTC was worried that through cable companies throughout the country, Canadians would be subjected to an increasing amount of American-content programs. It passed a law making it compulsory for cable companies to establish small broadcasting units to supply local news, general interest and local talent programs over their cable facilities, keeping one channel open for this purpose.

As yet the tow of Madoc is the first in the Quinte area to comply with the new law.

The company is owned by its principals, Gordon Pigden and Glen Hickle with their wives each holding one share.

Already serving more than 300 families in the town, Mr. Pigden expressed hopes that "through the local interest broadcasting, we can bring our service up to reach more than 1,000."

Mr. Pigden, who owns Pigden's Radio and TV Sales, began his cable operation in November of 1967 and has episode a small studio above his shop for the use of the broadcasting facilities.

Installed in the one-room study is a control room containing one Ampex 8300 video tape recorder, a record turntable, a recorder monitor and an output monitor as well as the necessary headphones and operations panels. On the floor is a small monitor-equipped television camera on a set of tripod casters, lighting battens, microphones, scenery tapestry, an air conditioner and appropriate furniture. The entire room is covered with a sound-absorbing material.

"We haven't really begun to broadcast yet," explained Mr. Pigden.

While we're waiting for final approval to begin regular broadcasting, we are stockpiling programs, and we have presented one or two on the air to see what the public reaction is."

We've already prepared eight hours of tapes for programing on subjects such as curling, and interviews with local people," said Mr. Pigden.

The equipment in the high school at Madoc is not compatible with the HCTV recording equipment, but the studio at Loyalist College is and Mr. Pigden expressed hopes that some arrangement might be made for the occasional use of their equipment.

A special feature of the HCTV station is the staff.

"We're not planning to hire any staff, but rather, we'll provide this service as a community project, Mr. Pigden explained.

"If they want programs, they'll have to provide the topic, the talent, and in most cases, the crew, all on a volunteer basis."

At the present time, the crews are being provided from the high school's technical electronics specialists class and the results are being well-received.

Downstairs in the cable control room is a video suppressunit. This unit is equipped with a section into which can be placed a transparent card with messages lested on the face.

The result, appearing on televisions in the home is called a "logo". Such logos are used as pictorial station identification symbols, lest patterns, hand-written messages of importance, and in regular station, an advertising messages.

Unlike the regular station, cable units are not allowed to provide advertisements, only public service messages and station identification.

Recently, there was a poor-weather warning broadcast over the cable channel, using a hand-written message on the video output unit. Within minutes, the entire town had been alerted to the danger.

It is service such as this which the CRTC hopes will be provided. Already towns and cities such as Ottawa, Brantford, London and Kitchener, to mention a few, have begun their service programming.

Best Use of Equipment

While Dave Robinson prepares to write the title of a program being taped for town broadcast by the Hastings Cable Vision Ltd. Co., fellow students Joe Goulah, Ross Finch, and Gary Woods prepare lights and camera under the directorship of student Steve Bonter. The students from Madoc High School are in the technical electronics specialists class and provide the volunteer staff needed for the programs.

Parents Needed

pires are never a problem or is the finding of diamonds which the parks board handles tremendously. The only problem seems to be keeping the fans and coaches calm and avoiding emotional breakdowns.

The $1,300 budget creates little financial worry or does any aspect of girls' ball. "The main concern of this league is to give the girls a chance to get off time from doing the dishes," concludes Mr. Lucas.

Minor softball and baseball, the oldest of the minor activities, appear to be having the most trouble in operating. The main concern is the lack of parental help towards the organizations which offer recreation to over 800 boys. "People besides being lethargic think that it is a seven day job but if enough volunteer a few hours a week is sufficient to insure the best possible program" states softball president Howard Shugg.

"We have 23 house league teams plus four all star teams for which to supply umpires and equipment, yet only three executive members and the coaches are available to help. This places pressure on the coaches who have to worry about their own team as well as aid in running the rest of the league." adds Mr. Shugg.

Garth Bradshaw, president of minor baseball, exclaims: "There just isn't enough support from the parents to run the league as well as we wish we could. Coaches are severely lacking for our 17 house league teams and four all-star teams."

Agreeing with Mr. Bradshaw is soccer president Bill Hockley. "Parents are all too happy to sit back and use minor sports as voluntary babysitters instead of coming out and watching their children play."

If enough support is found the future holds many changes for soccer in Belleville. Mr. Hockley hopes to develop a club system like those used in Europe and also instigate inter-city competition. "But before we can fully develop minor soccer we must have the co-operation of parents to assist in coaching, refereeing or at least coming out to watch."

The newest member of minor sports is lacrosse which has caught the fancy of 200 boys this year, an increase of 100 from last year.

"We are very fortunate in the number of coaches and transportation offers we have received from the parents and the development of a good minor system will provide the nucleus of junior and senior teams in the near future." states lacrosse president Ray Payne.

In all phases of minor sports the future holds much for the children of Belleville who rely on these organizations for summer fun. Now if only more parents will help the kids will be off the streets."

Talc Has Been Mined Since 1896

MADOC — Industry in the village of Madoc is quiet compared to the bustle and bustle experienced in the area before the turn of the century.

Mining and lumbering were major factors in the growth of Madoc and the surrounding area. Many of the small villages and mining towns that boomed for a few short years are almost deserted.

Other industry in Madoc at that time included a tannery operated by F. G. Lynde in the community hall for from the old swimming hole, a melting furnace (Gant furnace) and iron production works built by Urish Seymour employing more than 100 men by 1864, cheese factories, woollen mills, a carriage shop operated by Malcolm Bristol, and brick yards.

Today, Madoc is primarily an agricultural centre and a tourist stopping point, the town being situated at the crossroads of Highways 62 and 7.

However, industry still exists.

Together with service stations, grocery stores, pharmacies, there are are small industries such as the Inter-Collegiate Press of Canada Ltd., the North Hastings Review newspaper, lumbering concerns to the north of the town, Lough and Lyons Transport Ltd., and then the larger industries.

Most important in the area are the mining concerns. Both the Stoklosar Marble Quarries and the Glenville Aggregate quarry provide terrazzo chips for modern flooring and building facings.

Madoc is best known for her talc mines on the south-east side of town which are now owned by Canada Talc Industries Ltd.

The original deposit of white talc was discovered in 1896 by former Christopher Henderson. From that time, the mine was steadily mined until 1915. From 1915 to the present, the mines have been worked continuously.

Since its beginning, there have been many different owners, the last private individuals were Ray Taylor and Edward S. James, who sold the mines in 1951.

Originally an open pit mine, shafts now go to almost 600 feet below the ground. A total of 22 men are employed to remove more than 25,000 tons of ore annually.

There are two working shafts, the Conley and Henderson. The Henderson mine was the original open pit mine, the Conley being worked since 1913.

The ore, which yields almost pure ore with very little extractions being needed, is 96 per cent pure white. The only other mine in Canada yielding ore near this mark is Belmore Talc Ltd., near Montreal. Following installation in 1969 of a magnetic separator to remove the black iron, the ore yields 98 per cent pure.

The rock is formed over millions of years by heat and pressure. Talc is a combination of 63.5 per cent hydrous magnesium silicate, 31.7 per cent magnesium oxide and 4.8 per cent water. Impurities which are removed are quartz, calcite, dolomite, magnesite, tremolite, and iron oxide.

More than 100 tons of ore are mined daily. The process of mining is a slashing method which causes the ore to drop into a cavern previously mined. The carved-in ore can then be mucked, or picked up, from draw holes which are placed along the shafts at 30 foot intervals and taken to an ore pass, where it is driven through a grid by sledge hammers to reduce the size of the rock.

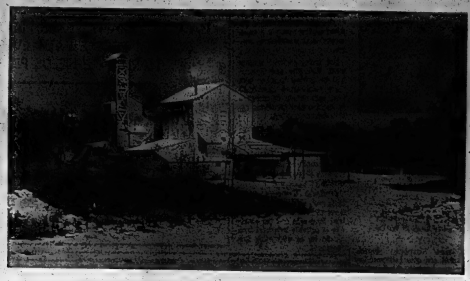
From there it is transferred to the surface and fed into a grinding mill. The powdered talc then goes into paper bags for shipping. This talc is used in paints, tile, linoleum, rubber products and many others as a filler. The product ground down at the mine is further reduced in size by cosmetic firms.

Canada Talc Industries refers to these chips by stating that "in the building trade, the Canada Talc white chips are regarded as the best on the market for whiteness and hardness."

The fines from the chips (are) used as a filler for roofing, backing of carpets, rubber filler, insecticide filler and markings of playing fields."

Underground, the temperature drops to 50 degrees with a cool breeze constantly circulating throughout the shafts from a ventilation system.

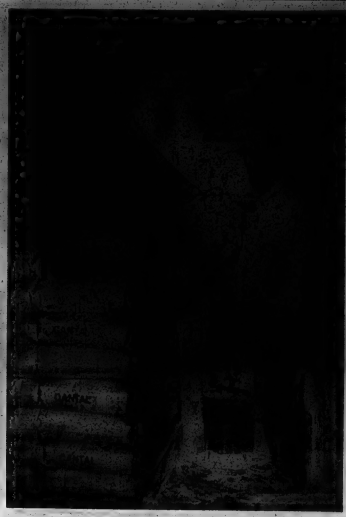
Water exists, but is kept stored in a cistern by constant pumping. The walls of talc are slick to the touch and leave a damp, powder-like substance on the fingers. This is powdered talc on the surface of the rock which will be reduced to the same fineness above ground.



Conditions in the mine are excellent.

Last year, Canada Talc Industries Limited was awarded a safety award for an accident-free year.

Pollution is no problem with this mine.



"As a matter of fact," explained mine manager Robert Kirkwood, "there are two heavy hay crops removed from the field where the talc dust settles."

He explained further that talc is a light fertilizer, very beneficial to crops. There was one old gentleman in Napanee who requested a few bags for his vegetable garden . . . he swore by the growing powers of the talc as a fertilizer.'

Plant Produces Canada's Finest Talc

Canada Talc Industries in Madoc produces 25,000 tons per year of 96 per cent white talc for use in the cosmetic industry. While some talc is exported for cosmetic use, the bulk is used as filler in paints, rubber products and harder talc for the terrazo chip market.

It's in the Bag

Raymond Mill bags the finished talc powder of which the Canada Talc Industries Ltd. in Madoc produces approximately 100 tons daily.

Location Attracts Industry To Trenton Area Facilities

TRENTON — Industry is the glue that makes Trenton stick.

The principal reason why the glue has stuck here is Trenton's physical location, particularly in respect to transportation routes.

Industry first sprouted in the early 1800s — at a time when water was the major traffic artery — and Trenton's location at the junction of the Trent River and the Bay of Quinte was ideal.

Today this town of 14,100 can cite as industrial advantages its connection to the major highways, rail lines and waterways of industrialized southern Ontario.

Air travel has also played a prominent part in this town's history since the establishment of RCAF station Trenton in 1930.

CFB Trenton now houses Air Transport Command headquarters and serves as a terminal for overseas flights of service personnel being transferred to and from all parts of the world.

The accommodation for modern aircraft is adequate to serve chartered or private planes which may wish to land at Trenton.

More important is the stabilizing influence that CFB Trenton's $15 million annual payroll has on the entire Quinte area.

The base also offers such intangible benefits as publicizing the Trenton and Quinte area through comments of service personnel who pass through here.

Expansion of Trenton has been steady but not spectacular since 1945, although 15 new industries have located here since the war.

This development has been accompanied by the creation of an official plan and adoption of modern zoning regulations.

Trenton is blessed with a diversified industrial family.

Twenty-nine small to medium-sized industries employ 3,000 persons, produce a wide variety of goods in this town. Natural fabrication), silverware, aided economy.

Some of the major products paper, steel (tanks and structurals sized manufacturing industries, food products, kraft brake components, electric al industries, and a well-ball which numbers many nationball for on week.

Supplicant Mission Was First Settlement in Belleville District

Little more than two centuries ago what is now the city of Belleville was known by the native Mississauga Indians as "Asashkonkah" — meaning "the place where the rushes end".

Whether the reference was to the river or to the bullrushes in the bay is not known and the Mississaugas are no longer here to set the matter straight.

But in place of what was then in all likelihood little more than a cedar swamp and an occasional Indian encampment, is the present city of Belleville with its many churches, industrial plants, schools and paved roadways and commercial enterprises.

The history of Belleville is part and parcel with that of Hastings county both of which until the early 1800s formed part of the Midland district of Upper Canada.

Belleville became a separate entity in 1816 when it was made a police village, while the county was to officially remain part of Midland District until 1850.

In the meantime there were years of struggle by hardy pioneers who carved homesteads from the forests and laid the foundations for the future city of Belleville.

The first white residents of the area were two Sulpician monks, Father Trouve and Father Fecelon who established what was known as the Recollet Mission. The mission was ultimately abandoned in 1682 and the Quinte area faded out of recorded history until the arrival of the United Empire Loyalist — almost a century later.

The first recorded settlers of the URL era were Captain George Singleton and his brother-in-law Lieut. Isaac Ferguson who arrived in 1784.

Other early names are John Taylor and Captain John Walden Meyers who in 1789 established the first industry — a dam and lumber mill opposite what is now the A. Safe and Son Ltd. premises on Station street.

Part of a later grist mill built by Mr. Meyers still stands on the site.

It was about this time that the settlement received the name Meyers Creek, after the man who established its first industry.

But Belleville has also been known by many other names. Included ad Singleton's Creek, Thurlow Village, the Town of Meira, Meyers Creek and finally Belleville, the name by which it has been known since 1816 when it became a police village.

(The name Belleville is said to have been derived from that of Arabella Gore, wife of Francis Gore, then Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada.)

The Hastings Militia was formed in Belleville in 1799 and in 1816—the year in which Meyer's Creek became Belleville — the first post office was opened. The office was known as the Quinte Post Office with Simon McNab as the first postmaster.

Earlier, in 1784, John Simpson opened the first tavern in the area at what is now Dundas and Front Streets and the same year Captain Meyers built his grist mill — the first between Port Hope and Napanee.

In 1804 the first bridge over the Moira was built — a floating structure which was promptly carried away by the next spring freshet.

But by the early 1830s Belleville had become what was termed a "thriving village".

For many years it has boasted a brick house, built by Captain Meyer atop the hill on Mount Pleasant Road and overlooking the riverside mills. The village also had a brick church. A frame schoolhouse built on Pinnacle Street in 1810 had John Watkins as its first teacher.

The surrounding area had already been proven good agricultural land and compared with today's inflated costs, prices were really down to earth.

For instance, potatoes were 12-20 cents per bag; eggs were 7½ centsperdozenandcreased chickens 20 cents per pair.

By 1834, the village had spread to both sides of the river and The Intelligencer — now one of the oldest newspapers in the province — had already been established.

Two years later — in 1836— Belleville was incorporated as a police village, a move occasioned mainly to obtain police protection against the many acts of rowdyism which plagued the settlement. At the time whiskey sold for 12 cents a quart.

In 1838 five wharves had been built on the local waterfront and the port was recorded as being one of the busiest in Upper Canada. Later Belleville was to gain prominence as a grain shipping port with schooners loading regularly for American ports.

In 1850 Belleville saw incorporation as a town with four of the city's wards — Samson, Baldwin, Ketcheson and Coleman wards being established. R. F. Davy was the first town mayor.

Four years late the Belleville gas works was organized and in 1856 the Grand Trunk Railway made its first scheduled trip through Belleville on its way from Montreal to Toronto.

In 1858 the first horse-operated ferry to operate between Belleville and Prince Edward county came into being. The ferry continued to operate until the bay bridge was completed in 1961.

Belleville Seminary (now Albert College) was established in 1857 and in 1860 the then town of Belleville was separated from the county for municipal purposes.

In 1870 the Ontario School for the Deaf was opened in the town's western limits and in 1878 Belleville officially became a city with Alex Robertson as the first mayor. By this time two other wards — Bleecker and Murney had been established.

Belleville's town hall (the present city hall) was completed in the fall of 1872.

The city's waterworks date back to 1886 and some of the castings installed in that period are still in use in the downtown district.

The present Quinte Exhibition had its beginnings in 1870 and over the years has been held at different sites and has been known by as many different names.

Home ties have always been important for ex-Bellevilians with no less than five old boys' reunions having been held since 1905, the last in 1930.

In 1934 the city observed its centennial and the same year observed the 150th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalist. The log cabin monument in Fireman's Park honoring the Loyalists was unveiled during the celebrations.

In the war memorials, the cenotaph at Station Street and Cannifton Road raised the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment memorial on the armory lawn honor servicemen who paid the supreme sacrifice in two world wars.

Municipal government fi the city has kept pace with the times and in 1927 the public utilities commission took over management of the hydro plant in Belleville along with the city water works and gas plant.

Sincethen —in 1940—the office of comptroller was created by city council. In the middle 1950s the city changed the form of municipal government was adopted.

Over the years Belleville as the largest urban centre of the Quinte district has seen area headquarters for many governmental departments and business establishments located here.

For well over a century the city has been a railway divisional point and is now headquarters for the entire Ridean area. It is area headquarters for the federal income tax and Canada Manpower departments and only last year became Ontario headquarters for the federal unemployment insurance commission.

Many insurance companies and other commercial enterprises have their headquarters in the city while it is also the dormitory for hundreds of the military and civilian workers at the nearby Canadian Forces Base outside Trenton.

Also this year it became the area headquarters for the new provincial assessment department which came into being the first of January this year.

With its four public secondary schools, Nicholson Catholic College, Albert College and the Ontario Business College, the city is somewhat of an educational centre and is headquarters for the new county public and separate school boards.

Three years ago post secondary education came to Belleville with the establishment of Loyalist College just outside the city limits.

Quinte Awaits Regional Benefits

TRENTON — Many benefits may accrue to Trenton with the advent of regional government.

An obvious benefit will be the elimination of the flavor of big brother in the form of the City of Belleville.

Belleville has long overshadowed this town which is the second largest municipality in Hastings County.

Primary reasons for Belleville's dominance are its more central location, a larger population and its established position as the county's governmental and distribution centre.

But under regional government Belleville and Trenton will be pulling together with their neighboring municipalities, particularly in attempts to acquire new industries, rather than competing.

In this system all municipalities will benefit from any new industries which come to the area as the attractiveness and strength of the bid from the area should be greatly increased.

Similarly Trenton's problems such as provincial government restrictions on industrial land sale and the shortage of suitable industrial land should be of decreasing importance.

Hastings Schools Now on County Basis with New Schools Replacing Old

Mohawks Were First

Hastings School System Dates Back to Year 1792

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

An annual auction sale in Stirling almost two years ago drew a large crowd of people from the Toronto area to watch the end of an era.

Twenty-nine one and two-room school houses in the centre Hastings area were sold at auction and 89 per cent of them went to city people for summer homes.

The sale was dictated by consolidation of school districts and busing of pupils to centralized schools. After serving as the educational centres for the rural community for 120 years, the little red school houses had given way to the sophisticated modern school building with facilities for special services and courses.

Two school systems now provide elementary and secondary education in the county. Hastings county board of education, formed in 1969 with the amalgamation of 13 individual school boards in the county, operates seven composite secondary schools and 16 elementary schools.

The Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board operates elementary schools in several county centres and Nicholson Catholic College, a private institution, offers Roman Catholic secondary education in Belleville. In September, the board will extend separate school education in the village of Tweed to include Grades 9 and 10.

For three years the county has been served with a post secondary institution — Loyalist College of applied arts and technology.

Since 1966 starts Real-O mess College has offered commercial and business training at the private institution. For over 100 years it has enjoyed a wide reputation for excellence, drawing students from all over the world, and in recent years from the Caribbean countries especially.

Albert College also attracts students on an international basis. Founded in 1857 by the Methodist Church to prepare students for the ministry, it originally accommodated 400 students, 300 of them boarders.

From 1886 to 1894 it was empowered to grant degrees. It now can accommodate about 125 students for secondary schooling.

This year, Governor-General Roland Michener unveiled a plaque at the Ontario School for the Deaf to mark its 100th anniversary. The first school of its kind in Ontario, it was built in 1870 as a residential school for the deaf and offers complete education from kindergarten to the end of high school.

It was the coming of the Mohawk Indians that first brought formal education to the county. The first school in Hastings was operated for them starting in 1793. The school closed 10 years later, when the Indians could not provide the minimum enrolment—six pupils.

Belleville and Sidney townships were the next to get schools — Belleville, with a small private school in 1816.

In 1836, the government entered education, with limited grants to schools with 20 or more pupils.

A board of education was set up for Midland District — Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Hastings and Prince Edward counties — and Belleville and a local superintendative.

"Common schools" which forwad the equivalent to the elementary education of today, were the only form in existance in the early days. The original Loyalist settlers of the district distrusted too much education, fearing it would not fit their children for farming life.

They were even more distrustful of teachers to the point of ensuring that legislation was passed forbidding American teachers from seeking jobs in Canadian schools, because of the danger that they might instil "republican sentiments" in the minds of their pupils.

Despite the prevailing attitudes, the sparse population and the lack of any teacher training facilities, schools continued to expand.

When in 1846, the government introduced the present public school system into Ontario, there were 76 common schools — most of the one-room variety — in the county. The number grew to 113 by 1850.

Grammar schools, roughly equivalent to the present secondary schools, were built in Belleville, Trenton and Madoc in the 1850s.

Madoc also boasted a "model school", an institution where teachers were trained and at the same time "common" education was offered to the children of the community.

The move to amalgamate school boards into larger units began with Kegaston Ryerson, the father of Ontario education, in the 1870s. The movement failed to gather impetus until recently. Before provincial legislation made creation of larger boards necessary in 1965, smaller boards had banded together in larger administrative units notably in north Hastings and centre Hastings.

One hundred years ago, municipal councils, chiefly the county councils in this area, were responsible for control of school inspection, teachers and grants.

Control gradually passed from their hands into those of the boards of school trustees and the provincial department of education.

Now, the county boards are autonomous bodies with municipal councils acting only as collection agencies for the educational tax levy.

The Hastings county board has 16 trustees, elected every two years in the county's six wards. The separate school board has 14 trustees, and the Roman Catholic ratepayers throughout the county elect two trustees to represent them on the public board which operates the secondary institutions most Roman Catholic children attend.

The federal government is also involved with education in the county. It operates two schools in Trenton for the children of air force personnel, and the schools on Tyendinaga Reserve for Indian children.

Law Enforcement in Hastings County Began in 1792

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The rise in crime across the country is not reflected in Hastings county, where it is an increase for 1969 was well below the national average of 13 per cent.

Adequate law enforcement agencies, consisting of the detachments of the Ontario Provincial Police, two municipal police forces in Belleville and Trenton, and constables in two other small municipalities are part of the reason.

Another reason, according to OPP Number 9 district superintendent Earl Wellesley, is the rural, comparatively sparsely populated nature of the area and the lack of a heavy seasonal concentration of transients.

Nevertheless, Hastings, in its early, sparsely populated rural beginnings had a reputation as a brawling, lawless community. Not until 1940 did peace and stability settle over the southern townships with the institution of complete law enforcement machinery.

Only four years after the first Loyalist settlers arrived in 1784, the government recognized the need for the peace, by of British Justice and made a token beer in that direction with the appointment of a court of common pleas in Kingston, to be served by a judge and sheriff, to cover the territory between the Gananoque and Trent Rivers.

With the first survey of Belleville in 1816, land was allocated for all the civilized amenities, including a church burial grounds, parsonage, hospital, school, jail, court house and market square.

The court house and gaol still occupy the designated spot, but the gaol will soon be abandoned when the new regional detention centre in Napanee is opened.

But between the time the land was allocated in 1816 and the court house - gaol was built in 1839 lawlessness was common and frequently deplored in the press.

Celebrated incidents included the shooting of Belleville constable James Macdonald while he was searching the home of a man suspected of possessing stolen goods, and a brawl arising from a labor dispute between a group of tailors and their employer.

The local magistrate was involved in the affray, and enforcement of order was left to a few neighbors of the tailor, including a doctor and a militia officer.

Unchecked rubber bands operated through the district in the 1830s. The generally disorganized picture prompted The Intelligencer to call editorially for police regulations, and rose to enforce them, "who would know when to cast suspicion with some probability of detecting the thief."

Sending money through the mails was a serious problem because of province-wide robberies and the Postmaster General asked those sending bills through the mails to tear bank notes in half, sending one half and retaining the other until receipt of the first was acknowledged.

In those free-wheeling days citizens often took the law into their own hands, as the incident of Alexander Oliphent Petrie of Belleville proves.

He was probably the only Mayor of Belleville to be sentenced to hang for armed robbery — committed in daylight one day in 1833 on the lower bridge.

He operated a ferry from Belleville to Rosemore and was under contract to take a circus troop from Prince Edward county shores to Belleville. The circus troop's agent hired a rival ferry operator instead and Petrie accosted the man later, pointed a loaded pistol at him and demanded $3 in compensation for breach of contract.

Since justice was administered from Kingston, Petrie was lodged in Kingston gaol, tried there, and sentenced to death. The judge, the press, and concerned citizens mounted a campaign to have him pardoned and the government granted the concession. Petrie resigned his ferry business and was eventually elected mayor in 1841.

Because of the difficulty of administering justice from Kingston, crime increased.

"A Toronto paper noted that "felons are often allowed to escape rather than bear the trouble and expense of prosecuting at Kingston".

The situation changed with the formation in 1837 of a separate district of Victoria, whose boundaries coincided with existing Hastings county boundaries.

The county now had a court house, a judge, sheriff, clerk of the peace and county crown attorney, and by 1841 a system of local courts. Lawlessness decreased and in the decade of the 1840s no executions were held in Belleville.

But the long arm of justice found its reach often did not extend into the county. During the 1830s a band of highwaymen operated on Highway 14 between Belleville and Stirling, waylaying travellers as they passed through the Oak Hills.

Lawlessness erupted again, with the railway strike riots of late December 1876.

Because of a world - wide depression, the CNR had curtailed its operations here and laid off several engineers, just two days before Christmas. The fledgling Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers gathered strength and the trains stopped running. Strike breakers, hired by the company, were prevented from taking out trains by the mobs at Belleville station.

City police at the time were in a state of disarray with two men each claiming to be chief and the force short a sergeant who had been disarmed for drunkenness on duty. The militia was called in to control the situation and both the local unit and a regiment from Toronto policed the station until the strike was settled.

From the low of 1876, policing of the county has risen steadily to its present state of high efficiency.

The first modern style officer arrived shortly after the railway riots in the person of Belleville chief of police Hugh McKinnon, a native of Scotland with a reputation as a keen investigator as efficient administrator, and a penchant for organizing annual Highland games at Belleville Fairgrounds.

Today, both Belleville and Trenton boast municipal police forces — Trenton with 20 men and Belleville with 48.

Thurlow has a constable and Tweed a chief. The remainder of the county is policed by the Ontario Provincial Police, whose Number 9 district headquarters, serving Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Hastings counties, is located in the OPP building on North Front St. in Belleville near Highway 401.

The OPP came to the county in the early 1920s and now has three detachments — at Madoc, Bancroft and Belleville.

The force is responsible for traffic law enforcement and prevention of traffic violations and for criminal investigations (97 last year). From 14 men at the end of the second world war the force in Hastings county has grown to 103 civilian and uniformed personnel.

Last year they investigated 1,331 motor vehicle collisions in the county 27 of them involving fatalities.

In the early days of highway traffic patrols, constables stopped at designated points on the roads to telephone home or office for messages.

"Before we got radio communication, wives were often as much involved at their husbands in police work," commented Superintendent Wellesley.

Cars became radio-equipped in 1947 and teletype connections between detachments came in 1962. In 1955 a Teletook-up linked all divisions with police forces around the world through the Central Records Communication Branch in Toronto.

Now, the force operates a modern patrol on county inlet and the Bay of Quinte, aircraft patrol of highways, radio communications section, an identification section with three specialists and a search corps consisting of Kens, tracking and attack dogs.

The future of the force is uncertain at the moment, with regional government pending in Ontario.

In areas where regional government is already in existence, the trend has been for the provincial regional body to organize its own police force, taking over everything except patrolling of Kind highways.

A step in the direction of regional law enforcement is the regional detention centre now being built in Napanee for four counties.

Canine Corps

The local detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police boasts a canine corps with a strength of one, or two if you count Const Ted Arthurs, handler of Kemo, the attach and tracking German Shepherd stationed in Belleville.

The Red Cross in North Hastings

Probably the most vital community service in all North Hastings, housing Bancroft Red Cross Hospital has been meeting emergencies since 1927. In 1940 this spruce building on the banks of the York River became the centre for an operation that services some of the remotest areas of the county.

Hastings' Variety Adds to Interest Of MP's Position

Diversity is a hallmark of Hastings County.

It's also one of the rewards for representing it as a constituency says Lee Grills, MP Hastings.

"I don't think, as a Member of Parliament, I could find a more interesting riding in the whole of Canada," says Mr. Grills who has been involved with politics on various levels in the area for a quarter-century. "Hastings has so much variety in ways of life, in industry and potential."

As a constituency Hastings reaches down from Bancroft to the Bay of Quinte, involving 16 townships, various towns, hamlets and villages — and the city of Belleville.

Mr. Grills estimates his constituency involves close to 70,000 people in a land area of roughly 3,000 square miles.

It's a region that represents almost every aspect of Canadian life — from industrialized urban belt around Belleville, through the farmlands of central Hastings to the mining lumbering and recreation communities of the north.

"There's almost a little bit of everything that you have in Canada. Nature has endowed us with many blessings — and many resources," says Mr. Grills.

The MP has been in contact with its problems and potentials on various political levels longer than most local politicians.

Born in Sidney township, he entered township council in 1946, transferring into county council in 1950.

In 1953 he became public representative for all Hastings when he was chosen county warden.

He's now in his fifth term as a parliamentarian — a career that began in 1957 with his election as MP for Hastings South.

It was a riding that represented Belleville, Trenton and surrounding county communities almost north to Highway 7.

Redistribution came in the late 1960s and Hastings South was abolished. Hastings constituency, minus Trenton and Sidney and Rawdon townships, but stretching north to the Bancroft region, came into being.

LEE GRILLS, M.P.

Communications were a problem to solve in the expanded riding and Mr. Grills estimates he can travel 25,000-30,000 miles a year keeping current.

"It's a full-time job keeping in touch with the people and their problems," he says.

Nonetheless, the results are satisfying, he adds. The intimate contact also gives him assurance for the county's future.

"Having had access to most of it and an idea of what's going on, I think we've every reason to have confidence in the future of this historic county," says Mr. Grills. "I think our future looks very bright."

Yellowknife 'HeatWave' Welcomes Royal Family

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Queen and her family are south of the Arctic Circle once again, but still deep in the story-book country of Canada's northern frontier.

The Ice-Floe-and-Eskimos part of their trip came to an end Tuesday with the royal party's arrival here on the shores of Great Slave Lake, south of the Arctic Circle by 275 miles and a mere 993 air miles north of Edmonton.

The departure point for the Queen, Prince Philip, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, had been the Northwest Territories community of Inuvik, on the Mackenzie delta 120 miles inside the circle.

The plane carrying Charles and Anne arrived first, followed by a matter of minutes by the jetliner with the Queen and Philip aboard.

At the airport the wind was blowing to beat the band—in fact, it began to refurl the welcoming carpet before it could even be put to use.

But the temperature was a balmy 70 under a panoramic mix of blue sky and thunderheads. In contrast to the misty, windy, minus-50s weather that had been encountered the previous two days of the tour in Probisher Bay, Resolute, Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk.

Another sign of encroaching civilization, aside from high-rise buildings lording over a monotony of scrub forest, was the monumental traffic tieup that occurred in the wake of the royal arrival.

First stop after a motorcade through town was the Con Mine on Yellowknife's outskirts where a repeat-performance luncheon was scheduled uptill to the goldmine's concentrator entrance.

A half-dozen or so miners were there to be introduced to the royal visitors, and all of them wore their hardhats and their miners' work outfits.

It was clockwork scheduling all the way.

The only diversion was caused by a couple of sparrows who have a nest inside the concentrator. They actually dived at bystanders, officials and reporters standing near the entrance, until a path was cleared for them to get back to their young.

Moving down the hill after that, the royal party went inside the refinery, with its blast-furnace heat, where they watched the processing of a gold brick which weighed in at 45 pounds of fine gold.

Seeing a gold brick poured was old hat to Philip—he had watched the same process at the very same mine when he made a solo tour of the North in 1964. But it was new to the rest of the family, and everyone including Philip belted the bar briefly.

The return to town, to the royal apartments at the Fraser Tower, Yellowknife's mini-skyscraper, ended the day's program.

Today, there is another crowded schedule for the party, which includes Philip and Charles flying to the territorial settlements of Fort Smith and Fine Point.

The royal party will be in Yellowknife until Friday morning departure for the port of Churchill on Hudson Bay. There they begin the Manitoba leg of a tour marking the centennials of both of the territories and the province.

Royal activities at Inuvik Tuesday included making the rounds of the local hospital and a visit to an Eskimo gift shop where the family made purchases worth $98.15.

Charles bought $17.65 moose hide slippers, Anne $25 white cowhide gloves, and Philip a $36 pair of moosehide mitts.

Aides settled the accounts with the Eskimo clerks.

Engine Jarred Loose

'Here comes the Royal Plane—oops sorry. Great White Mother in iron bird'

TORONTO (CP) — A five-man coroner's jury sworn in Tuesday to investigate the cause of Sunday's crash of an Air Canada Super DC-8 jet was told the plane broke the supports of one engine and loosened those of another when it bumped down on a runway at Toronto International Airport.

Robert J. Smallman, an Air Canada pilot who took the jury on a tour of Runway 32, said the impact also drove the plane's outboard 1½ inches into the pavement of the runway and its right front made an exaggerated pattern on the runway.

Capt. Smallman showed the jurors, all Toronto-area residents, marks which indicated the engine started to be dragged along the pavement a few feet after impact. Then, it broke loose and rolled over and over and came to rest 1,200 feet from the touchdown point.

He said the lower part of the fuselage dragged on the pavement, leaving scratches. Rivets from the lower fuselage were found at the site by investigators, Capt. Smallman said.

Farm Tax Relief Offered

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is prepared to take over the major burden of education taxes imposed on farm land but its offer has been badly received by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, a government source said Tuesday.

Cost of the government proposal, said to have received Cabinet support by telephone, would be about $25,000,000 in 1971.

It would be in addition to the government's announced program of increasing its share of municipal education costs to 60 per cent from 41 per cent. The first step in that program, taken this year, was to increase grants to municipalities so that the province now pays about 50 per cent of education costs.

The federation and the National Farmers' Union have been urging farmers to withhold the education share of their municipal taxes next year to protest what farmers believe is the unfair burden they bear in relation to urban dwellers.

The government source said that although the federation is insisting it wants the province to bear 100 per cent of education costs, surveys by rural members of the legislature in their ridings indicate most farmers would be satisfied with the province's proposal to remove taxes from land but not from farm dwellings.

Rotating Strikes Blackmail--Kierans

By The Canadian Press

The federal government has closed several Ontario and Quebec post offices for today as postal workers continue rotating strikes in their contract dispute with the federal treasury board. The dispute appears to have developed into a series of moves and counter moves by both sides.

A post office department spokesman said that only nine post offices involving 186 workers remain open in Quebec province. They are at Hull, Aylmer, Buckingham, Masham, Gatineau, Gatineau Point, Rouyn and Noranda.

Following strikes today at Bowmanville, Oshawa and Whitby, Ont., the post office at Port Hope has been closed, the spokesman said.

But in Toronto this morning 2,600 postal workers showed up for work after warning last week they would start a series of rotating strikes within the city.

The spokesman said that all postal stations in the city of Montreal and 44 offices in the Montreal postal district remain closed.

Most have been struck but post offices at L'Assomption, Actonvale Lac Megantic, Louiseville and Nicolet were closed by the department as were the 19 offices of the Quebec postal district because of a lack of work.

There are more than 1,300 postal employees off work in the Montreal postal district and 4,200 in the city itself. There are 1,250 workers off in the Quebec postal district and 73 at Hawkesbury and Cornwall, Ont., also closed because there is no work.

In Vancouver, workers voted Tuesday not to work overtime to help clear up the backlog of mail piled up by a series of 24-hour walkouts.

Gordon Walker, district director of postal operations for northern Alberta, said Tuesday a recurrence of rotating postal walkouts in Edmonton could result in employees finding themselves out of work.

Postmaster - General Eric Kierans said on a CBC radio program Tuesday that to date there have been no "meaningful" contract negotiations between the postal unions and the federal treasury board.

He said the rotating-strike system used by the postal unions "is nothing but a blackmail move" to put pressure on the federal government.

While the Council of Postal Unions, negotiating for letter carriers and postal workers, has been calling rotating strikes across Canada to back wage demands for more than a month, the post office's counter move was to instruct postal district directors Monday to close post offices if adequate service became impossible due to the rotating strikes.

The first such closures were Tuesday when the 12 Ontario and Quebec post offices were closed.

Raymond Payette, postmaster at Cornwall, Ont., one of the centres closed, said he didn't think he would receive orders to open until the Montreal workers return to work.

Canadians Feel Common Market Briefings Poor

LONDON (CP) — Canadians who are involved are reported to be disappointed with the quality of confidential briefings Britain is providing for the Commonwealth before negotiations to enter the European Common Market.

Two so-called "consultations" have taken place so far and both have left Commonwealth representatives little more information than they have been able to read in newspapers, an informant said.

Canada, in particular, has been trying to get a close working relationship with British negotiators to the point where Britain would hold bilateral talks with Canada each time a sensitive issue arises in the bargaining which may affect Canadian interests.

The conclusion some Canadians have reached is that British negotiators — those actually doing the bargaining — want as free a hand as possible. Only understanding of British ways loses the benefits of remaining Commonwealth tariff preferences once entry stages are completed.

Nixon Acts To Prevent Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, acting after the U.S. railway industry threatened to stop all trains if a key union kept striking against three major lines, has ordered rail workers back to their jobs for 60 days while an emergency board seeks to settle a long-running dispute.

Just after the president moved to avert a national rail crisis Tuesday night by resorting to his final remedy under the Railway Labor Act, the labor department reported it was told the thousands of striking United Transportation Union members would go to work again as soon as possible.

Shotgun Fire Wounds 46 Negro Rioters

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Shotgun pellets wounded 46 persons—four critically—late Tuesday after state police turned to gunfire to break up a Negro attack and to enforce a curfew.

Fourteen wounded were taken to hospital and hospital authorities listed 32 gunshot wounds treated during three days of racial trouble in this seashore resort community.

State police said their detectives were investigating whether trooper shots caused the wounds. State police said they fired only warning shots.

Most of the wounds Tuesday came during one battle in which an estimate 1,000 Negroes launched volleys of rocks, bottles and firebombs at troopers.

City officials, meanwhile, scheduled a meeting with Negro leaders to discuss demands for improvements in housing, law enforcement and employment. The city's Negro police chief, Thomas Smith, said if calm prevailed he might recommend withdrawal of some outside policemen, one of the demands made by Negro leaders Tuesday.

Mayor Joseph Mazzica said: "The beach front, thank goodness, hasn't been affected."

But the boardwalk was empty of its usual throng of summer visitors and Springwood Avenue, main street of the Negro district, was a shambles. There were no big fires Tuesday. Most stores were burned and looted Monday.

Police estimated damages at well over $1,000,000.

Violence reached the main business district about 3 p.m. EDT when the crowd moved across an expanse of railway tracks from the Negro sector and began breaking windows. Police, some using clubs, herded the crowd back, but at the tracks the blacks turned and attacked.

Troopers fired shotguns, ostensibly as warning shots. Hospital records showed that most of Tuesday's wounded came in after dark, although some gunshot victims were admitted up to six hours later. Later shots were attributed to warnings to curfew violators.

Two other communities also had trouble Tuesday. Red Bank, five miles north, imposed a curfew after some firebombings. Freehold, 12 miles west, had five firebomb blazes.

New Cement Plant at Bath No Threat to Point Anne

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

POINT ANNE — The "foreseeable" future holds no shutdown for Canada Cement Lafarge, a company spokesman said today.

The plant, which has employed three generations of local labor since early in the century, today is still "extremely busy".

"And, for the foreseeable future, we expect to remain so.", added plant superintendent Lin Johnston.

Conjectures the plant — with a present workforce of 180 — might be phased out, were raised with last week's announcement of a new $40-million Canada Cement Lafarge complex in the Bath area.

The Bath operation is being launched as part of an expansion program to meet demand in Ontario and Quebec markets outlined by feasibility studies.

The studies broke down several expansion options — among them the Point Anne plant, before landing on the Bath project, said Mr. Johnston.

One of the sites optioned for the Lafarge operation is in South Fredericksburg township in Prince Edward County.

Such studies are ongoing process of the industry and will continue after the Lafarge plant at Bath is in operation.

It's not now possible to tell what future surveys will propose, since they are hinged to long - range market conditions.

"But there are no plans at the present time to shut this plant down," said the superintendent.

To emphasize his statement, he quoted a company new announcement on the Lafarge scheme for Bath:

"Unless unknown external influences should arise, present production schedules at our Ontario and Quebec plants should remain buoyant.

"In the event that the new plant affects the operation of the Point Anne plant, first consideration be given to employees in man positions 'n the new plant based on their cement - manufacturing experience.

Canada Cement is currently spending or planning to spend large sums on Point Anne installations.

A new $200,000 mill now in nearing completion, says Mr. Johnston, the company now is seeking quotations on pollution control equipment, the first of which if slated for early 1971 at a cost of $1,700,000.

Earlier, another company official confirmed that, in the event of a Point Anne shutdown, employees would be offered jobs at Bath — schedule of their transfer by 1975.

But, instead of being closed, the Point Anne plant could also be modified for specialized products, said R. M. Johnson, public relations vice - president.

Point Anne was an older facility, he noted.

"You can't put good money into a plant like that to expand it and get economical operation. You have to start with a whole, brand - new operation."

Technological advances, which have revolutionized the industry, can't be built into older operations, said Mr. Johnson.

The Bath operation is expected to employ about 150.

Big Canoe Race Entry Expected

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — A record number of entries is expected this year for the fourth annual Trent - On - Waterways canoe race, July 25 and 26.

More than 30 entries are anticipated for the two-day 80 - mile dash down the Trent waterway, says Robert Ball, chairman of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce committee which is organizing the event.

The event begins early Saturday morning at Serpent Rapids Provincial Park where the competitors take to the water for the 30 - mile run downstream to Campbellford for an overnight stopover at the Riviera Inn.

Sunday's 30 - mile leg to Trenton and the finish line will feature a staggered start with Saturday's slower entries leaving first to ensure a competitive situation at the finish line.

Overnight camping facilities are available at both Serpent Mounds and Campbellford and many competitors annually sleep in huge tents provided by local Boy Scout groups.

The winners will be determined on the total time over the two days and the 1969 champs, Bob Vincent and Ken Worsfold of the London Canoe Club, are expected back to launch an assault on their record-setting 11-hour ace one minute pace of last year.

Wayne Bird of Trenton is presently building a racing canoe that he and partner Barry Patrick will use in the race.

Last year the pair emerged as the best of the 13 Trenton entries with a time of 12 hours and 45 minutes — good for fourth place overall.

Bob Bell told The Intelligencer that there was only one Belleville entry last year and he hoped for more this year. He also noted that there are no female entries yet this year as opposed to one last year.

David Camp, president of the fledgling Trent-On-Waterways Canoe Club, said that the club was donating the President's Trophy for annual presentation to the first place finishers.

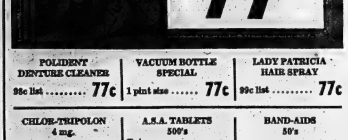
The trophy will be displayed all year round at the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and the winners will receive "keeper" trophies.

Second and third place finishers will also be awarded "keeper" trophies while there will be decaled prizes for at least the first 10 canoes.

However, all participants will receive framed certificates for their efforts.

Entry forms can be obtained at the Trenton Chamber of Commerce offices and returned to the same building. The entry fee this year will be $7 per canoeist, down from the 1969 charge of $10.

Contest rules stipulate that each canoe must have its same two men board throughout the entire race and that all competitors must wear government approved life jackets or belts.



Portages will number 13 in 20 — in all — for each lock and dam must be circumvented. The longest portage is the 1,500 foot dash at Healey Falls near Campbellford.

The competitors will come from as far away as Sandra and North Bay and draw an estimated 3,000 spectators Sunday afternoon to the finish line at the federal dock south of Trenton Cold Storage, on the west side of the river-mouth.

Education Board Staff Smaller Next Year

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings county board of education will try to operate for the next year with one less academic administrator on its staff.

Dr. R. Kells, retiring superintendent of administrative services will not be replaced.

The resulting saving in his salary and that of secretarial is, expected to amount to about $20,000 a year.

"We will be trying to serve 24,000 children with fewer academic people than ever before," director of education Eric Runacres told the board at its last meeting. "This is challenging to my staff I hope they can pull it off."

After 1½ years of operation, the board's administration has evaluated its function and decided to redesign its operation. Objective is to give senior administrators more time in the schools.

During its first months of operation, the board's director and three senior superintendents spent five to 10 per cent of their time in the schools. Next year they hope to be able to give 40 per cent of their time to supervision, inspection and consultation with teachers in the schools.

Mr. Runacres noted that the board will have fewer administrators on the academic side next year than worked in the county under individual boards before 1969.

All administrators, at the superintendent and assistant superintendent level, worked in the county before 1969. Most were employees of the department of education, but with the setting up of county boards they became employees of the Hastings county board of education. Two other department of education superintendents were employed before 1969. They were transferred, and in a sense, Mr. Runacres could be considered to have replaced them.

Only new senior personnel added to the academic staff next year will be co-ordinators of instructional media and of psychological services.

Both will be department of education withdrew from direct involvement in local education and made county boards autonomous, department officials inspected and evaluated teachers and offered them advice, based on the inspectors' knowledge of programs in the many schools they visited.

This service was withdrawn in 1969 — now principals evaluate the teachers in their schools and senior administrators are expected to evaluate the principals.

Rumblings of discontent among the teachers are beginning to be heard. Young teachers miss the guidance the former inspectors gave, and older teachers miss the stimulus of new ideas they brought into the classroom.

Seminars and in-service training are designed to replace this aspect of the inspectors' function, but teachers are finding them no substitute for the inspectors' observation of teachers at work in the classroom setting.

"We have spent almost two years expanding academic system," noted trustee Everett Fairman, a retired elementary school principal. "Surely the senior personnel can spend less time in administration in the system and get into the classroom, where their talents are needed."

Police Busy Yesterday

Six juveniles were apprehended yesterday by city police following the reported theft of a purse containing $16 at Finkle's Egg Grading Station on Pinnacle Street.

The theft, which occurred at 11.35 a.m., resulted in the six being picked up, with $15 still remaining.

On the shoplifting scene, two girls, aged 16 and 17, were arrested and charged with shoplifting at 1.30 p.m. yesterday at Walker's Department Store, 270 Front Street.

Rounding off a summer day, St. Thomas' Parish Hall was entered last night. Police are still investigating the incident and details are not available.

Highland Weekend 'May Break Even'

The Highland Weekend sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen Club at the end of June may have been a very successful project from the popularity angle but it was not a great source of revenue.

As of today, Kinsmen are a few dollars in the red on their Highland Weekend program that packed the Belleville Armories for a Tartan Ball on June 27 and drew more than 2,000 spectators to the Quinte Exhibition Park for a Highland Tattoo on the following afternoon.

The Tartan Ball turned a small profit but the Tattoo itself, despite the large crowd that viewed it, was a financial loss.

Don Kinsman reported this morning that when all the accounts are settled the club can only break even on the project.

Clear Sailing Insurance

An old maritime superstition says that by removing her clothes, a woman could calm the stormiest seas. Hence the figureheads, and in an earlier era, the stern decorations of nude females on sailing vessels. Belleville area people will see the richly decorated Hudson's Bay ketch Nonsuch July 24 to 27 when she ties up at Government Dock. Capt. Adrian Small, ship's master, looks out over the stern of his vessel, built according to plans for the original Nonsuch that sailed from England to Hudson Bay in 1668, a voyage that resulted in opening the Canadian west.

Distinguished Weekend Visitor To Arrive at End of Month

Belleville will have a distinguished visitor the last weekend in July as the Hudson's Bay ketch Nonsuch ties up at the Government Dock in the harbor.

The replica of the original ship whose first voyage to Hudson Bay in 1668 resulted in the opening of Western Canada to commerce, will arrive in Belleville from Picton the afternoon of July 24 and remain until the morning of July 27.

Nonsuch's Belleville visit is one of 16 stops the 54 - foot ketch is making during her 14 - week tour up the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario from Montreal to Toronto.

Nonsuch was built in England to commemorate the Hudson's Bay Company's 300th anniversary this year, and will eventually be transported to Winnipeg, where it will form the nucleus of the transportation section in the Manitoba Museum of Man and Nature.

While she lies in harbor here, Nonsuch can be viewed by the public, but people are not allowed aboard the ship because the wear and tear is considered too much for the little vessel.

The Hudson's Bay Company will set up a small souvenir and gift shop on Government Dock where the public can buy mementos of the occasion.

Assisting the Belleville committee, headed by Joe Ost, to ensure smooth sailing for Nonsuch's visit to the city, is the local Sea Cadet Corps Quinte. Its members will form docking crew and a guard of honor on the vessel's arrival and the bend will give the traditional naval salute.

The ketch's eight man crew, civic officials and Nonsuch committee members will be guests at a reception at Bay of Quinte Yacht Club the evening of July 25.

Life guards will be posted around the ship and government dock during the visit as a safety precaution in case any spectators tumble into the bay.

July 25 will be playground day at the dock, with all the children enrolled in the city recreation department's summer playground program being transported to the South George St. park and taken to view Nonsuch.

Leg Broken In Dual Mishap

TRENTON (Staff) — A Trenton man remains in Trenton Memorial Hospital today with a broken right leg sustained in an accident at McPherson's Tire Sales Tuesday afternoon.

Dale, driving the truck, backed off to release his companion and struck a parked car belonging to Ethel Viola Foote, Trenton, doing $150 damage to the car.

Picton Will Provide Athol Fire Protection

PICTON (Staff) — An agreement for fire protection services between Picton and Athol township will be ratified within the next few days. Approved by town council Monday night, the proposed agreement offers fire protection to Athol at a stand - by charge of $2,200 annually.

The township has agreed to pay each firefighter answering a call $4 per hour provided this figure is subject to an agreement to be negotiated annually. It will be calculated from the time firefighters leave the Picton fire hall until their return and cleanup of equipment.

For an emergency fire in Athol township, Picton has agreed to supply a 500 - gallon storage combination pumper and tank truck complete with hose, nozzles and ladders, plus one auxiliary pump. Four firemen will be sent to answer each alarm, one of them a full time employee, the others, volunteer firefighters. All equipment and firemen will be under the direction of Picton fire chief Leonard Tripp.

Picton recently signed a fire protection agreement with North Marysburg and, subject to this township's approval, in the event of simultaneous fire emergencies in North Marysburg and Athol, firefighters will answer the first alarm turned in.

Dog Licences Discussed

The Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society is concerned about what it termed "the misunderstanding which appears to exist concerning the legal responsibility in the area of dog licence sales."

The problem was brought before the regular meeting of the society held yesterday. Mrs. Harold Crowe, president of the branch, suggested a meeting to clear up the misunderstanding.

"We have a legal agreement with the city of Belleville and under this agreement we have no authorization of any kind to sell dog licences in the city," Mrs. Crowe said.

As a courtesy, she explained, it was agreed that inspectors would carry dog licences in their vehicles and would sell these licences to the general public should the need arise.

In addition, the shelter located on Avonlough Road always makes certain that an animal leaving the shelter will carry current dog licence.

"This is a pound service and not a legal obligation," she said.

Mrs. Crowe also discussed the ways in which the society can help quail rural municipalities to provide adequate facilities for impounded animals and animal control services, and that the new legislation enacted by the provincial government requires that all municipalities meet the specified standards for public pounds.

The society has asked the municipalities in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties to send representatives to the next regional meeting to be held in Belleville at the animal shelter.

The date has yet to be announced.

MEET QUEBEC'S NEW PREMIER: ROBERT BOURASSA

From their earliest memories boyhood chums recall Robert Bourassa's ambition to become Premier of Canada's largest Province. At 36 years of age, his dream has been realized as he guides the destiny of 6 million Quebecers at a critical point in history. Only a year ago he was a political unknown who many considered joining Rene Levesque's separatist party. Today, he considers the challenge of his Liberal Party is to show that Quebec can remain a part of Canada". What makes Robert Bourassa unlike any previous Quebec Premier? YMCA Official Visits Belleville

An official of the YMCA National Council, Russ Davey, was in Belleville on Monday and Tuesday to assist the YMCA staff here draw up their fall program and reorganize the work load of employees.

Decision is pending on whether the Belleville Family YMCA will continue its community extension program that operated at two schools in the city last year.

Monday evening's program committee meeting of the Y saw Mr. Davey in attendance and certain new elements of this fall's program were ratified. These include new fitness classes for men, a class for women 20 to 30 pounds overweight and a kindergarten and swim for children under eight years of age. These programs will be open to both Y members and non-members.

Mr. Davey is now looking for a replacement for YMCA general secretary, Bert Messacar, who tendered his resignation in June.

Foreign Competition

While we may sympathize with Quinte area shoe workers who are complaining about the threat of losing jobs through competition from imported footwear it must be remembered that the customer is swayed by such things as personal choice, price and quality, and if the imported article is available, if it takes the individual's fancy and the price is right then it may get the nod.

Short of banning all imports or imposing heavy quota restrictions (these may indeed be necessary, to some extent at least, to protect the home product), the public will go right on being ruled by the considerations mentioned above.

As it is, the buying public does not always obtain what it wants. One woman has told us she is unable to find dress shoes in her size "five," and the tendency is when something is unavailable you may as well forget about it, for little or no effort is made by stores generally to obtain the desired article.

Take the sandal-like footwear known as thongs — or jandals as they are also termed. Another woman seeking these last week was told by two shoe establishments that they were no longer "in." Yet in another she was told they were "selling like hot cakes" and to come back shortly when a new shipment was expected.

Thus, the buyer of shoes, or whatever, faces conflicting information and occasionally a distribution to help, if not the runaround. Certainly if imported articles are available and as may happen, the purchaser finds them suitable, then home products must continue to face the competition involved.

Soviet Farm Shortages

It seems incredible that the Soviet Union is still wrestling with problems of food shortage and inefficiency in farm operations.

Former Premier Khrushchev, we recall, made frequent forays into the rural areas to exhort farmers to greater efforts. He was interested also in United States' achievements in agriculture, visiting the mid-western farm belt while on this continent — in the days when United Nations business brought him to these shores — and never missing an opportunity to discuss facts, figures and methods.

And there was that celebrated "kitchen debate" with then Vice-President Nixon at the U.S. exhibition in Moscow.

In any event, little apparently has changed on the Soviet agricultural scene, for the CBC's Ab Douglas reported the other day that the country is embarking on a new five-year effort to increase food production and in a drive for efficiency generally.

Douglas pointed out that in the western world ten per cent of the population are on farms and there is a surplus, while in the Soviet Union 30 per cent are involved yet they produce shortages.

Clearly there is something wrong with a system which causes such an acute lack of the necessities of life. Quite apart from that, it also demonstrates that the Soviets seem more concerned with domestic problems than with their old game of harassing the western world.

Air Disasters

Perhaps never before has an aircraft crashed and disintegrated in such devastating fashion as the Air Canada DC-8 did at Toronto. The tragedy is an unhappy interruption of a fine record of safe flying and for many families in Canada and the United States, grief at the loss of loved ones. It followed by only a day or two the crash of a British jet in Spain with similar heavy loss of life.

Cool Spot

Before flying up to Frobisher Bay, Prince Charles was quoted as saying, "I shall probably freeze to death, or get eaten alive by mosquitoes." Well it proved cool enough at about 41 degrees when he came down yesterday, wearing a coat and gloves and smiling at a little girl in a coat, slacks and wool hat. For the Queen this is indeed the coolest corner of her far-flung realm.

Togetherness

Now that school is out one sees younger members of families becoming re-acquainted. Like the boy of 15 or so carrying his small brother on his shoulders and a girl of about the same age taking her little sister for a stroll downtown.

Situation 'Terribly Dangerous'—Nixon

Middle East Power Politics Confused by Rhetoric

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon and his spokesmen, in sounding the alarm over the possible imbalance of power in the Arab-Israeli conflict, seems to have confused the situation at home, in the Middle East and, probably, in the Kremlin.

The original statements—which since have been clarified and restarted by "unnamed but highly placed" White House spokesmen—came in the president's hour-long televised "conversation" with three network commentators last week.

Pinpointing the Middle East as by far the most dangerous area for possible East-West conflict, Nixon suggested the Arab states wanted to drive the Israelis into the sea.

Subsequently the unnamed White House official, briefing reporters, was quoted as saying it was necessary to "expel" Soviet air combat power from Egypt before it became so firmly entrenched that it caused a shift in the power balance.

The idea of expelling the Russians raised as much concern here as did the "drive Israel into the sea" remark in Arab capitals.

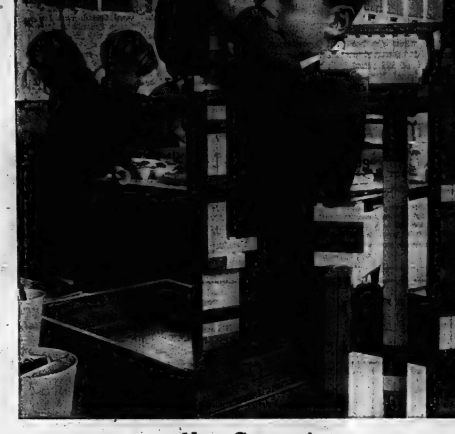
Reports from the Middle East indicate that even the more sophisticated Arab observers and analysts were incensed by revival of that kind of talk, which dates back to United Nations forums in the pre-1967 Middle East war days.

Diplomats there are said to be pointing to several public statements by Arab leaders—who are said to be even more emphatic in private—that they now are willing to accept Israel as a Middle Eastern state.

Meanwhile, at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., from which Nixon and his staff returned Monday, spokesmen were expressing concern and dismay at the impression their earlier pronouncements on the situation seemed to have made on the public.

They conceded they wished they had used a milder term than "expel" in reference to the Soviet air power that now spreads an umbrella of protection over Egypt.

The Nixon administration, they said, meant from the start that it hoped to eliminate the Soviet forces through diplomatic —and not physical—pressure.



They did not suggest what form such diplomacy would take, or what would be done if diplomacy fails.

The main idea of the exercise, it appears, was to educate the American public to the fact that Nixon meant exactly what he said in describing the Middle East situation as "terribly dangerous." He wanted to take away the public idea that this was just a regional conflict and to emphasize that it was one situation in the world—in his view—in which there was the potential danger of the superpowers being drawn into a conflict.

In the absence of any hint as to what the U.S. might do to restore the balance upset by the arrival of Soviet forces in Egypt, speculation centred on the U.S. sending planes and pilots over Israel to counter Soviet airpower over Egypt.

More likely, in the view of several diplomatic observers, is the reinforcement of the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. But the possibility of both the U.S. and the Soviets there having a military presence in the area—and perhaps confronting accidentally or on purpose in an attack on one another—is indeed "terribly dangerous."

No doubt such a possibility is as frightening in the Kremlin as it is in Washington and, in the view of some observers, may be the catalyst that will finally bring a new, concerted effort on both sides to find a final settlement.

Council 'Over-cautious'

'Free-thinking' Majority Among Youth Will Beat Drug Problem Says Citizen

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I was disappointed in what I consider to be the over-cautious decision of City Council in cancelling the planned Rock, Pop and Brotherhood of Man Festival. Mr. Hockley's eloquent (and pedantic) comments on the situation moved me to applaud the motives of the young people concerned, and the members of city council who supported them.

In this materialistic age, perhaps it is not significant that a fine ideal was embodied in what these youngsters hoped to accomplish by their festival. However, a few of us dewy-eyed sentimentalists still believe that any endeavor which sets out to display and encourage the finer attributes of men deserves assistance and encouragement. It should be marred by a few black incidents, these should serve only to illuminate the whole.

Although we look back on our teenage years with nostalgia, we tend to forget what soul-searching and torment we endured then in trying to sort out a life plan for ourselves. We are too quick to condemn the young for their rebellious and questioning ways. Mr. Peace and Brotherhood of Man Festival. Barely ten miles from the tenement areas of Belfast's heart torn by rioting is Lisburn. The town is a commercial and industrial centre and it is also headquarters of the permanent British army garrison now reinforced by thousands of troops brought in to counter the current outbreak of communal strife in Northern Ireland. And here, in a scene reflecting the other side of life in the region — the industrial and educational progress of the postwar years — is one of the 400 primary schools built in the past 25 years. Altogether, more than 600 new schools have been built and these, together with extensions, provide places for more than half of the school population. Here kindergarten youngsters of Harmony Hill Primary indulge in some building operations. (Northern Ireland government picture)

Logging and Conservation

Machines Are Damaging the Forests

Toronto Telegram

Logging techniques have changed vastly in the past 20 years to take the industrial age into the forest, but Ontario government protection regulations have not changed with them.

A trip through Northwestern Ontario public forest lands that have been logged by private interests under Government license provides ample evidence that our northern forests are under-protected.

Modern industrial logging methods, particularly in black spruce and jackpine regions, are efficient and profitable from the pulp and paper corporation's viewpoint. They are almost deadly to the future welfare of the forest from the citizen's and conservationist's viewpoint.

Huge machines, used to haul logs from the bush, and the even bigger trucks that carry them to pulp plants, require wide, permanent roads through forests. From these main roads, into the actual cutting areas every 60 or 100 yards on both sides.

Economics, not conservation, governs which trees shall be cut in black spruce and jackpine forests that cover most of northern Ontario. The result is that practically every tree is sacrificed in a licensed area. Tree-length logs are hauled out by great diesel powered machines or "skidders."

Operations are not carried out only during the winter when thin forest soils are frozen and, to some extent, protected. High plant investment requires year-round logging.

The result is wholesale destruction of fragile and thin forest topsoils. Protective mosses, undergrowth and humus are ripped off, exposing bare rock or mineral soils below. The shade cover that allowed a rich moist soil to accumulate on the forest floor disappears with the trees.

Rains and runoff gravitationally carry off more topsoil, decreasing and widening the gravel tracks left by the skidders, the trenches plowed by tree-length logs hauled from the forest.

What was a productive forest community, built up over scores of years or even centuries, has become an eroded, scrubland with all the odds stacked against early and successful regeneration.

Forest product industries are important to Ontario's economy and will continue to be so. This factor alone demands effective government action to ensure that public forests provide a perpetual yield.

Some woodland operators are conscientiously planning for this and protecting the forest during their logging operations. Many are merely extracting the most dollars in the shortest time from timber limits they lease from the Crown.

Queen's Park will have to take a new hard line on what's happening in the northern woods if future Ontario generations are to have healthy and productive forests.

School Out

Academic Standards Are Deteriorating Says Parent

Letter to The Hamilton Spectator

With the close of another school year, I find myself increasingly disturbed by the lowering of standards within the system.

With the modern concern for happiness at any cost, failure in anything has become a dirty word. And so in our schools, children who cannot read, spell or figure are promoted from one happy, lazy year to the next.

Surely disaster will fall when they ultimately reach the real world where (terrible as it may seem) people are still measured against standards of accuracy and productivity.

As a parent I am concerned that the schools are betraying my children by pretending to prepare them for the adult world. And by "the schools" I include the administrators (some of whom build empires), the teachers (who sometimes are less than dedicated) and the parents (who for so long have abdicated their responsibility for their offspring).

Am I alone in my concern?

Nobody Wants Arbitration

Saskatchewan Building Industry Seeks Pact

REGINA (CP) — With a threat of compulsory arbitration hanging over the bargaining table plumbers, electricians an employers are trying to settle disputes in Saskatchewan's construction industry.

Both sides say they hope the forced-settlement rule, passed in an emergency session of the legislature last week but not yet officially put into effect, won't have to become law.

Premier Ross Thatcher has promised that the controversial law amendments won't be pre-claimed—formally brought to life—by the cabinet if firm settlement proposals are laid down soon enough.

The amendments would broaden terms of a 1966 compulsory arbitration law that now applies to workers in gas, hospital, power and water services, and bring construction workers under similar rule.

Mr. Thatcher had set 4 p.m. CST today as a deadline for agreement between plumbers and contractors. But he said Tuesday that the two sides are "no closer to a settlement that we might consider another 24 hours" of deadline extension

J. E. Chase of Regina, chairman of the Saskatchewan Construction Association, said: "We don't think it would be in the interest of the employees or the contractors to go to compulsory arbitration."

Ken Buich, plumbers' union business agent in Regina, concurred. He said:

"I don't think anybody wants the thing invoked. It's a big threat over everybody's head."

The plumbers are to continue talks with employers today.

R. C. Almas, a member of the plumbing employers' negotiating committee, said: "It would appear that an end is in sight, for us at least. We have a tentative agreement. Of course, nothing is definite until it is signed."

If the proposals to an the plumbers' dispute are agreed on by negotiators, they could be submitted to the union members for approval or rejection Saturday. The employers could consider them earlier.

Electricians and their employers have been negotiating separately from the plumbers. The electricians' talks are to recess today while union representatives attend a labor relations board hearing on another matter in Saskatoon. The talks resume Thursay in Regina.

None of the spokesmen would disclose proposed settlement terms. The plumbers and electricians last week ended a five-month strike under threat of broadening the arbitration law, known as Bill 2.

The law was originally passed in another emergency legislature session called to deal with a strike four years ago by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union against Saskatchewan Power Corp.

That strike ended just before the law was to have been invoked. It was first invoked last December, to end a strike by non-professional hospital workers against Victoria Union Hospital in Prince Albert.

Nixon Is Urged to Deplore Conditions in Vietnam Prison

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Senator Charles Goodell, a leading anti-war critic, urged President Nixon Tuesday to make a public statement denouncing the United States from—and expressing his concern about—reports of inhumane prison conditions in South Vietnam.

The liberal New York Republican made the demand in a letter to the president Tuesday after two congressmen said they found more than 500 prisoners caged in atrocious conditions at the Con Son island correction centre, 69 miles off the coast, when they visited there Thursday.

Goodell also asked the president to investigate the use of money channelled to the South Vietnamese prison system through the Agency for International Development. The U.S. gives $442,000 annually to the South Vietnamese correction system.

The White House said only that it had not yet received Goodell's letter and could not comment. It referred all queries to the state department.

The state department said it had nothing to add to what American officials said in Saigon—that the U.S. was aware that prisoners were held at Con Son in so-called "tiger cages." But officials had discussed the matter with the Vietnamese authorities, and seen some improvement.

It was stressed in Washington, as well as in Saigon, that the U.S. has no direct control over Vietnamese jails.

In a bitter assault on the Saigon authorities, Rep. Augustus Hawkins (Dem. Calif), one of the congressmen who went to Con Son, declared in a written report to the House of Representatives Tuesday that the prison "represents the evils of a government that can only stay in power by suppressing the people and limiting their constitutional rights."

Hawkins said many of the prisoners he interviewed in the tiger cages—windowless pits embedded in concrete—were incarcerated without trial merely for participating in peace demonstrations.

Choking lime was thrown at them as a punishment, he said, and the men had lost the use of their legs and were unable to stand.

To get to Con Son, Hawkins, Representative William R. Anderson (Dem. Tenn.) and a staff aide, Thomas Harkin, broke away from a special 13-man committee sent on a fact-finding tour to Indochina by the House.

Anderson, G. V. Montgomery (Dem. Miss.), issued a 76-page report that dismissed Con Son in one paragraph.

Harkin publicly resigned from his position as the committee's full-time staff aide, charging that the majority of the committee tried to suppress the facts about the prison.

World Youth Parley Called

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The World Youth Assembly opens Thursday with the Soviet Union giving advance notice of controversy.

A total of 626 delegates, some of them hardly coming under anybody's definition of youth, are expected to be on hand from 100 countries and some colonies and agencies.

The Soviet Union, represented by a delegation of 15 "youths", served notice Tuesday it would demand the expulsion of the South Korean and South Vietnamese delegations because youths from other parts of the divided countries are not present.

At a news conference of the Soviet, Byelorussian and Ukraine delegations—total 15 at five delegates a country, spokesmen also protested the presence of the Nationalist Chinese delegation but gave no indication they would pursue the matter.

At the same time they gave only passing mention to the fact that Communist China is not represented at the assembly, or for that matter, in the United Nations.

Despite the fact the delegates to the assembly are regarded as individuals—they will not even wear plaques giving their country of origin—the Soviets made views of 50,000,000 Soviet youth and 27,000,000 youth organization members and will speak the official line of their country.

The Soviet delegation is led by Gennady I. Yanayev, 33, chairman of the Soviet Committee on Youth Organizations. Some other members of the delegation are 29.

The planners of the assembly had recommended a top age of 25 and many delegates seen around New York and the UN appeared in their teens.

The assembly is being held as one of the major celebrations of the UN's 25th anniversary.

The financial problems that have plagued the assembly from the start have not been solved. Voluntary contributions came to $579,194. The biggest single sum was $112,500, the take of productions of the musical Hair in several American cities and Toronto. More is expected from this source.

Canada, which gave cash and free airline trips, is the third largest contributor behind the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Successful Living

Life Has Its Benefits After the Age of 40

By DORIS CLARK

"I'm almost 41," Margaret confided in her friend, "and I feel better than ever before in my life. Maybe life does begin at 40."

For some reason, it seems to have been an age with a stigma attached. Jack Benny hailed at 39. Remember the radio serial called "The Romance of Helen Trent," which claimed in its message the fact that romance and happiness can come to a woman even beyond the age of 36?

I say all the fuss is a fallacy. By the time she reaches 40, the average woman's children are all in school. She has more time than ever before to spend as she wishes. She can take a part - time job; get involved with volunteer community work; take on the presidency of the Home and School; learn oil painting; or simply concentrate on improving her role as a homemaker.

Granted, there may be occasional hot flashes and periods of weariness. But the women who is enthusiastic about life will scarcely notice these. She may well emerge from her first bout with middle age as a more fulfilled person. — Dorothy Turcotte.

Dear Doris: Why is the government so interested in the condition of my lungs while it could care less about the condition of my liver?

Has anyone ever suggested that liquor bottles be labelled with a warning to the effect that the contents may lead one to become an alcoholic? May damage the liver?

Does smoking cause family breakdown? Or cause one to abuse innocent strangers, or bring about car accidents?

Smoking may harm the individual, but drinking may harm innocent strangers. — Which is Worse?

Dear Which: And that's for sure. But with alcoholism research going on in foundations set up for the purpose in practically every province, and with health articles harping on the theme, as well as human relations columnists like me forever pointing out the evils of alcohol, it isn't exactly being neglected.

But people — many people — believe what they want to believe; and we are inclined to select our own kind of poison!

Confidential to Oldest Girl: Would it help to be told that your Dad does care about you? That he feels a responsibility for turning you out perfect and forgets the human part?

When he does something that needs improving he sulks in with what is supposed to be sure-fire correction technique: couched in no uncertain terms in order to drive his point home. What he forgets is that you need to be reminded that he doesn't hate you.

O. K., then. I'll remind you. And let this be your reminder for all time to give your own little ones (when they come) the understanding they need, first: even when they get to be teen-agers.

Church Members Honor Retiring Pastor

MARMORA — On the occasion of his retirement as pastor of the Free Methodist Church of Marmora and Beaver Creek, Rev. W. A. McMillan was feted at the old Beaver Creek School last Tuesday evening.

Appreciation of the services rendered during his ministry in Marmora was voiced by Ritchie Wells. After a short program, Ward-en John Wilcox, on behalf of parishioners, presented Rev. McMillan with a gift of photographic equipment and a purse of money.

With a total of 43 years in the ministry, Rev. McMillan served 13 years in Ireland, coming to Marmora in 1958. He and Mrs. McMillan are planning a six-weeks' trip to visit their son, Barclay McMillan and his wife, in West Germany, but will continue to reside in Marmora, having purchased a new home on Cameron Street.

His duties in the Free Methodist Church will not officially terminate until a new minister is named in August.

Large Sized Loaf Of Prune Bread

By MARY MOORE

Between 8:30 p.m. yesterday and 8:30 this morning I had a hard time saving my slice of this perfect prune bread for my secretary Betty to taste. During the evening at one time or another there were eight people tasting it, so I knew I had a winner.

PRUNE BREAD
(Yeast; 1 large loaf)

1 pkge. granular yeast
1 tsp. sugar (first amount)
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup very hot tap water
2 tbsps. margarine
3 tbsps. sugar (second amount)
1 tsp. salt
3¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 egg
Grated rind 1 large orange (1 tbsp.)
1 cup chopped pitted uncooked prunes

In large mixing bowl soak yeast and sugar (first amount) in lukewarm water 10 min. To the hot tap water add the margarine, sugar (second amount) and salt and let stand until lukewarm. Add ½ to soaked yeast liquid along with 2 cups of flour and the egg and orange rind and beat for 5 min. Mix in 1½ more cups of flour as well as you can, scrape down sides of bowl, cover and let rise 2-2½ hrs. or until more than doubled in size.

Punch down dough and turn out on floured board with some of remaining flour. This dough is soft so sprinkle the cut prunes over it then fold dough over them, turn dough over to floor it well and begin kneading until you have kneaded in and used up all remaining flour. (NOTE: If dough is a little sticky you may add one or two more tablespoons flour without doing any harm.) Shape into loaf and put in large buttered loaf pan. (This is too much dough for a standard loaf pan so if you do not have an extra loaf pan break off enough dough to shape about six buns and bake them when risen on buttered pan at 350 deg. F.for 45-50 min. until it is a deep rich gold.

Cool on rack and slice with saw-edged knife. Toasts perfectly.

B and P Club Panel Discusses Changes

HALIFAX (CP) — Women in the 70s are facing a new and different world and they must change with a changing society, Sylva Gelber of Ottawa, director of the women's bureau of the federal labor department, said Tuesday.

Miss Gelber told the biennial convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs that if she were president of the organization she would ask: "Where are the young women?"

She said the members must find a way to bridge the gap between themselves and the new generation of women taking part in Canadian life today.

Women now had the opportunity to choose their futures and to decide whether to stay at home or to continue their education and take jobs.

Miss Gelber was a member of a panel discussing women's future.

Another participant, Senator Muriel Fergusson of Fredericton, said that in the last years since women have had the vote in Canada, only 14 women have been elected to the House of Commons and there have been only nine women Senators.

Mary Rocan of Regina, director of the women's bureau of the Saskatchewan labor department, said by the end of 1980 women combined close to one-third of the total labor force in Canada, and working mothers made up a quarter of the female force.

In future, women will have to have higher educational qualifications and occupational skills if they are to choose the kind of employment they want, and will have to be prepared to accept other qualified women as supervisors, Miss Rocan said.

A deep pink velvet matching bow was worn in their hair and each carried a cascade bouquet of blue-tinted carnations.

Miss Ruth Dulmage, sister of the bridegroom was junior bridesmaid. Her gown and flowers were identical to that of the flower girl.

Going Back to School Also Brings Problems

TORONTO (CP) — Going back to school at the age of 30 or so is lots of fun, two Toronto women have discovered. But with the return to school also come plenty of problems.

Phyllis Eckel, a widowed mother of three, has just completed Grade 13 at Thistletown Collegiate Institute.

When her husband died in a car crash a year ago, she decided to follow up her ambition and become a school teacher.

She never knew how many problems she would encounter.

There is the question of whether students will accept her, for example.

Mrs. Eckel said she was timid on her first day at school, considering that she was in her early 30s and the students next to her just about 18. But in the end, she said, accepted her without difficulties.

Then there is the embarrassment when a teacher looks at her for an answer to a problem and she doesn't know it.

She feels uncomfortable about that.

There is the noise of high her sometimes.

There is the lack of time when she has to do her homework and write essays and care for her three children. Sometimes the money situation is tight.

Mrs. Eckel lives on the insurance money she got after her husband's death and her mother takes care of the baby-sitting so she is able to when she is at school.

She said she signs her own report card — sometimes she censures her and her teachers.

One teacher wrote on her card: "A conscientious student."

She said he may have been joking.

Jean Templeton, an actress and writer who worked at once at the University of Toronto last year, said she also found that the noise bothered her.

"After the age of 30, that noise factor hits you. I used to eat with a woman who was 48. I loved her—she was older than me. We used to huddle together at our meals and look around for older students.

"We felt like outsiders. One day the other woman saw a grey-haired man and said, 'Oh, look, there's one of us.' I looked and told her to forget it. He was a professor."

She said the age gap between her and younger professors can create problems.

"You get out of the habit of saying, 'Yes, Sir, No, Sir,' and when a lab instructor who might be younger than you gets snappish, your tendency is to snap back. Or you might be flippant and because they're younger, they don't get the joke."

D. H. Webster, head of guidance at Thistletown, said he hasn't heard of any teachers opposed to the idea of adults in their class.

"They may go a little easy on them if an assignment is late, they may be more understanding because they know the student will do it and knows it must be done."

He said the school tries to encourage adults to take subjects they can cope with, keeping in mind what their eventual job will be.

"We wouldn't advise French, for example, when they've been out of school for a while. As for math, well, some have to have it. But subjects like art and geography can be handled even if one is rusty."

Watching TV Is Escape Into Fantasy

VICTORIA (CP) — Watching television is an escape into fantasy for most children, according to a study being conducted by a University of Victoria sociologist.

"The trend is quite clear," Dr. Goodwin Chu said in a recent interview. "Most of them watch television to get entertainment and relaxation. The things they prefer are fantasy-type programs."

He said more than half the youngsters who filled out questionnaires for his study said their favorite programs were those which feature violence.

The sociologist began his study about a year ago with a $2,500 Canada Council grant, and plans to wind it up early this fall.

"Our main objective is to learn about television's role in the socialization process of a child."

In the past, Dr. Chu said, three major forces shaped a child's life: family, friends and school.

Now there is a fourth: television.

On questionnaires, 327 Victoria youngsters in Grades 8, 9 and 9 were asked to rate those four influences according to importance in the following goals: how to get along with others; how to obtain knowledge; how to be a good citizen; how to be happy.

They rated family, friends and school, in that order, as important factors in the first three.

As for happiness, television was rated higher than school, but not as high as family and friends.

Asked what they thought they got out of television, 51 per cent mentioned things like violence, relaxation, and entertainment. Dr. Chu interpreted this as meaning they "got their kicks" by watching TV.

Another 25 per cent said they didn't know what they got, while 39 per cent mentioned some kind of knowledge or lesson to be learned.

Asked whether television portrays life as it is, 39 per cent said it does, 30 per cent said it doesn't, and 26 per cent were not sure.

Program preferences ran as follows: crime and westerns, 50 per cent; comedies and situations, 24 per cent; family shows, 28 per cent; news and documentary, 5 per cent.

Viewing time averaged three hours per student daily, Monday to Thursday. One student said he put in about 25 hours in front of the set in that four-day period.

On weekends the average ranged from four to five hours daily.

Dr. Chu said he learned most children would rather play with friends that watch TV. But he also believed children who have poor relations with their parents are more likely to turn to television.

Dr. Chu, who studied in Taiwan for his BA and took his MA and PhD at Stanford, said his study is likely the first of its kind in Canada. The results will be published in a sociology journal.

Uninvited Guests

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Women's Caucus, a militant group which demonstrated in the House of Commons in Ottawa recently protesting laws governing abortion in Canada, has invited itself to meetings of the Vancouver General Hospital abortion committee.

Caucus spokesman Kathy Walker says the group intends to take in the meetings and "confront the medical profession and the bureaucracy."

MINISKIRTS FADING

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The curator of the Africana Museum, discouraged by the current fashion trend, has begun a collection of miniskirts.

"We may never see them again," he says.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Davidson of Belleville announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Bonita Gail, to Douglas Lee Purdy, son of Mrs. Aletha Purdy of Belleville and the late Donald Jay Purdy. The marriage will take place Saturday, August 8, 1970 at 1 p.m. in Calvary Temple, Belleville.

Ann Landers

Mom Needs Help; Home an Armed Camp

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was alone when my first daughter was born because my husband said he couldn't be around anyone in pain. When the second girl was born he was stone drunk. The nurse asked me to sit in the car and sober up. It's been this way for the past 25 years. I could never depend on him for anything. Our two daughters were married at the same year and divorced within weeks of each other. My husband and I have always been at war over these girls. Whenever I wanted something and I said no, they went to him and he said yes. It's been that way since they were old enough to talk. So, of course, they are all messed up.

Now that both girls are divorced, they have moved back into the house. They pay no board or room. I am expected to cook for them, clean up after them, do their laundry and take their telephone messages. I told my husband I raised them once and once is enough. He says this is their home as much as it is mine and if I don't like it, I can get out.

My health is shot. I take too many pills and I drink too many Vodka sours. Our home is an armed camp — then against me. If anyone ever needed help, I do. Please try. — TOUCHING BOTTOM.

DEAR TOUCHING: Is there someone you can visit for a few weeks? A sister — a cousin — a friend? Your doctor should inform your husband that you need a rest and the sooner the better. When you return, call a family conference. Tell them you are going on strike. Refuse to do the girls' laundry or clean up after them. Enlist your clergyman's help. You need someone to talk to and someone who will talk to your husband and daughters.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son served two years in prison. Before Kev was sent away he had been married for seven years. He and his wife fought like cats and dogs the whole time.

Two weeks after Kev went to prison his wife divorced him. I thought this was a pretty low blow and told her so. We got into a big argument and I called her several names. She ended up telling me where to go and what I could do when I got there.

The first thing Kev did when he got out of prison was go straight to his ex-wife's place. He told me he knows all the things that are wrong with her but she loves him like a magnet. He wants to remarry her and try again.

Do you have statistics on how many marriages work out between couples who remarry after they have been divorced from each other? — CAN'T SEE STRAIGHT.

DEAR CAN'T SEE: You don't say if Kev and his wife had any previous marriages. The more often people marry the less chance they have of succeeding. Statistically, second marriages fare a little better than first marriages — if it is the second marriage for both. The chances for a second marriage succeeding between two average people who were married to each other are about 50-50.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it possible that I am allergic to my brother's wife? Whenever I am around her for more than 20 minutes I break out in a rash and my breathing becomes labored — like asthma. I never cared for her when we were in school together and I like her less now. The brother she married, was my favorite. I say was because she changed him. Is it possible that this girl—makes me sick? — CALAMINE LOTION.

DEAR CAL: It's more than possible. It's very likely. See a doctor, and tell him everything you have told me.

Split Jurisdictions Mar Ontario Fight Against Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — The engineer at the Ontario Water Resources Commission was dismayed when told by telephone this spring that the federal fisheries department had placed a prohibition on the export of fish caught in Lake St. Clair because of mercury contamination.

"Please let me know anything you can find out about it," he said. "We are crawling the results of research done on some fish samples we sent away, but we haven't heard anything but rumors."

The incident typifies the split jurisdictions and the lack of information which until now has hampered the fight against water pollution in Ontario. Nowhere are jurisdictions more broadly split nor knowledge so lacking as in provincial recreational waters.

The major problem in fighting pollution appears to be confusing authority. There are six provincial government departments involved. In addition, municipalities seeking tax revenue are fighting the province on subdivision. And then there is the big question: How do you differentiate between industrial and recreational pollution?

Until last fall, when a young University of Western Ontario researcher first told a water resources commission official he believed fish in the lower Great Lakes were contaminated by mercury, probably from industrial sources, no official agency in North America suspected it was possible.

And once suspicions were aroused, the research programs that began involved the provincial departments of energy and resources management, th e study group found five government departments were involved, and local municipal agencies as well, in cottage-property development.

Formation of the advisory committee, with deputy ministers among its membership and its own administrative staff, was the second indication that Premier Roberts recognizes the need for closer liaison in pollution-abatement programs.

General responsibility for all major abatement programs—air, water, and and noise—was given last year to George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management. His department already included the water resources commission, responsible for water quality, and the air-quality branch was transferred from the department of health.

Other departments have also recognized the need for closer co-ordination of their programs and have begun adopting pollution-abatement officers—the last one in the department of highways.

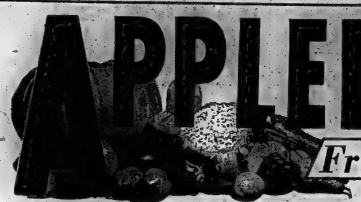
Government awareness of the problem is also one reason for the determination to make land-use planning a function of regional government, and to replace municipal health units with area boards with the resources to do adequate research and to co-ordinate their programs with provincial agencies.

Approval for new cottage subdivisions, a basic responsibility of the department of municipal affairs and the local municipal council, is influenced by the department of health, the water resources commission, department of lands and forests, occasionally the department of agriculture and the local health and planning boards.

The study group found, however, that local agencies were not always doing their job well. Because some municipalities failed to adopt subdivision control and land-use control by-laws, "a very useful control is being inadequately used," it said.

And although new cottage subdivisions affected the quality of water, neither planning nor health officials were always consulted before approvals were granted.

The study group found that further problems develop because of a division in responsibilities between municipal and provincial agencies, and by suggesting that liaison should be improved it implied that liaison does not always exist.



While it is the responsibility of the local medical officer of health to appraise proposed subdivision plans on the adequacy of their sewage disposal and water supply systems and to give approval for septic tank installations, it is the OWRC which is responsible for prosecution of offenders, including cottage and resort owners, for the discharge of inadequately-treated waste into provincial waters.

OWRC has many reports on the quality of water in lakes it has examined for Basif, but neither the department of health nor energy and resources management have reports on the findings of local health officers.

Because of the study group's findings, the province has been spurred by the advisory committee into beginning an upgraded survey of the 90,000 cottages in Ontario, checking the quality of their sewage disposal systems and pinpointing the estimated 10 per cent which contribute to pollution.

The committee estimated it will take from five to 10 years to complete the survey and to persuade or force owners to replace faulty sewage systems. At the same time, new cottage developments will be subjected to more rigid supervision under enforced subdivision control.

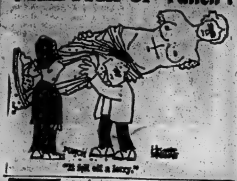
Ontario Cabinet Rejects Takeover of Union Gas Co.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet, on recommendation of the Ontario energy board, Tuesday rejected an application by Consumers' Gas Co. Ltd., Toronto, to take over the common shares of Union Gas Co. of Canada Ltd., Chatham.

The board, in a 137-page report, said the public interest "will be better served by the continuing independence" of the two companies.

The board said it had concluded that the application could only be granted if it was shown there would be a benefit to the over-all public interest.

Board estimates showed that the reasonable annual costs of combining the companies would be at least $4,600,000 by the fifth year. To meet the costs, the report said, the minimum annual benefits would have to be $6,600,000 before income taxes.



But the potential savings and benefits would not exceed $3,700,000 a year in the fifth year, less than half the benefits required.

Despite the wide gap between reasonable costs and the estimated savings and benefits indicates that if the acquisition proceeds, the companies will not be as well able to offer good service and rates as they will be under independent operation," the report said.

Consumers' Gas made its application Dec. 15, 1965. It sought the right to acquire outstanding common shares of Union Gas to give it 20 per cent of outstanding shares.

The company's application was opposed by Chatham, Sarnia, Dutton, Delhi, Wallaceburg, Blenheim, Wardsville, Windsor, London, Hamilton, Bowmanville, the townships of Dover, Raleigh and Townsend, the National Farmers Union, a Chatham citizens' committee, Polymer Corp. Ltd., Dow Chemical Canada Ltd., the Windsor and District Labor Council, the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union and Charles Peters of Merlin, Ont.

THE PICK OF Punch

"It ain't all a story."

Think of all the cool things about a frost-free refrigerator freezer.

Every housewife should have one. Frost never forms. Not in the big refrigerator section. Not in the big freezer section. So there's no defrosting. Ever. And you know what that means.

No more dripping water to mop up. No more waiting for frost to melt. Your ice cube trays won't stick any more. No more re-freezing frozen foods.

You'll have more storage space, because you'll be free of all frost accumulation. And your frozen foods won't stick together.

Think about it.

Think of all the extra space you'll have for stocking up on food bargains.

And besides all that, think how much more attractive your kitchen will look with a sleek new frost-free refrigerator freezer.

NOW is the time to buy. See your local appliance dealer today.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is epileptic catching? Is it hereditary? Do repeated attacks cause mental retardation or insanity? My younger brother has had epilepsy since having petit mal. What is that? Can anything be done for it? I'll appreciate your reply. — Miss C.

Comment: I could answer your first three questions with one word: No. But the subject is so important I believe it deserves more than a cursory reply.

We have no evidence that epilepsy is contagious. And I think most doctors will agree that it is not usually an hereditary condition. In many cases where there is a family history of attacks, we find that the one likely to inherit the strain is free from epilepsy.

As for its effect upon the mental processes, I am sure it will make you feel better to know that people with epilepsy have normal intelligence.

After all, epilepsy is not a disease, but a name for a collection of symptoms. The name comes from the Greek meaning "seizure." It describes what happens when a group of brain cells abnormally discharges, much electrical or nervous energy.

Attacks vary. In the petit mal type of attack there may be a fleeting, brief fit of blankness. It may last only for a second or two.

In the so-called grand mal type of seizure there may be convulsions and loss of consciousness which last up to a number of minutes. Another variety is called a focal seizure. And still another, a psychomotor seizure, which produces senseless muscular contractions and violent emotional outbursts.

Most cases of epilepsy arise in childhood. In some cases they outgrow it. Nevertheless, a doctor should be called in early. Seizures vary, but some say that in about 30-70 per cent of cases no direct cause can be found. In others, there is a history of head injuries, serious head accidents, infection or tumors which pinpoint original source of the trouble.

I have seen a fairly large number of epilepsy patients in my own practice. There are at least two million epileptics in the United States. The true number is unavailable because many hide the presence of the symptoms whenever possible.

Yet, the stigma of epilepsy is gradually being erased. (As with tuberculosis, VD, etc., years ago.) Less and less do we see laws which forbid epileptics from marrying, limiting their schooling, not allowing them to drive, or preventing them from accepting jobs they can handle well.

We now have many drugs to choose from in controlling the seizures. They work well. In at least half of all cases medicine can completely control attacks. In about another 30 per cent patients gain partial control. Surgery is considered only when proper medication hasn't helped and when there is specific indication for it.

Miss C., I hope these facts bring at least a little cheer into your home.

Epileptic Attacks Don't Harm Brain

'New Left' Discovers Print

All over the United States, radical and "movement" organizations have spawned their own print shops, run by their own pressmen, to churn out an increasing number of posters, pamphlets, handbills and flyers.

Whether it's to mobilize a march on Washington or advertise courses at "Omega U.—an alternate university," the rebel presses are rolling.

By the thousands, their folded-and-stapled brochures, decorated with crude graphics, are being given away at campus tables or sold in standard subculture outlets: Barbara's Bookshop in Chicago, The Grazma in Berkeley, The Militant Labor Forum in New York an scores of others.

A glance at the mail order listings of the New England Free Press, a Boston-based group, indicates the scope of the subject matter: Che-Guevara and Cuba, Vietnam, China, Black History, Ecology, Anti-draft, Algeria, Female Liberation an the Sexual Caste System.

Profits are either low or nonexistent—even for the occasional commercial jobs some do. Salaries rarely go beyond $50-$75 a week. The pressmen are generally highly mobile, non - professional students reposts whose technical training consists of learning from a committed friend.

With few exceptions, most of the print shops have sprung up within the last two to three years—some as recently as the last few months. And many purchase their first presses and paper with help from what they call "liberal money" from neighborhood pacifists.

They believe that for the time being, print is the best way of getting at across their mostly anti-capitalistic message.

BULLFROGS ARE FISH!

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The state fish and game department classifies bullfrogs as game fish. James C. Simpson, chief of the fishery division, says they were put in that niche years ago because the frogs needed protection and "obviously they are not game birds or animals."

Priests, Students Sentenced in Spain

BURGOS, Spain (Reuters) — A Spanish military court sentenced two priests and two students Tuesday night to a total of 54 years' imprisonment for crimes ranging from sheltering terrorists to armed robbery.

Rev. Jose Maria Mackinlay-Cuevas of Bermeo, and Rev. Francisco Bilbao of Malaca-Ibon Basque country diocese—received three years in prison each.

Father Madariaga was accused of harboring a member of the extremist Basque nationalist movement, Eta, who had escaped from prison last year.

Father Bilbao was found guilty of distributing pamphlets containing illegal propaganda against the Spanish government.

Ignacio Orbeta Berrentua, 24, an Eta activist, received 20 years in jail on charges of armed robbery, banditry, and terrorism.

Ignacio Vilar Echeverria, 23, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment for terrorism and banditry and was found guilty of putting a bomb in the Bilbao stock exchange in March, 1969.

Ombudsmen Law Ready for Study

TORONTO (CP) — Proposals of Ombudsmen providing for the appointment of civil servants to investigate complaints against them will be studied by legislation but will not be passed or even introduced in the Ontario Legislature, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Tuesday.

Mr. Wishart confirmed in an interview that legislation based on the recommendations in the McRuer report on human rights has been drafted for cabinet consideration but government policy still has to be decided.

J. C. McRuer, former chief justice of Ontario who conducted the study on civil rights between 1964 and 1968, said "it would make for more efficient government if there was some channel through which complaints with regard to the administrative processes of government could be directed."

He proposed a bureau headed by an appointed commissioner with powers to investigate complaints and make recommendations to government departments or, failing action, to the legislature.

His report said it is more important that there be a municipal ombudsman than a provincial one, and suggested the office should be created at the regional government level.

Painters' Pay Boosted

HAMILTON (CP) — After four months of negotiations a settlement was reached Tuesday between Local 205, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America and the Federation of Painters and Contractors of Hamilton.

The agreement represents a 77-per-cent or $1.35-an-hour increase, boosting the painters' wages to $4.40 from $3.05 an hour, retroactive to July 1.

The local represents about 300 painters.

Proof of Almost Any Theory on War Can Be Found in Vietnam

Within the span of four months, Associated Press staff member Daniel De Luce has seen both North and South Vietnam. His 13-day visit in the North in February was the most extensive permitted to a Western correspondent. Now, he has gone to the South to look at conditions there. In the following story De Luce, an assistant general manager of The AP, tells of some contradictions.

By DANIEL De LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

In Hanoi as well as in Saigon, a visiting American can find "proof" of almost anything he wants to believe about the war.

With comparable forces of sanction and the same assurance that time is on the speaker's side, warring leaders in North and South Vietnam have told me allies that they see signs in 1970 of ultimate victory despite the war's painful course.

In this little cockpit of Asia, after a generation of struggle and five years of major U.S. participation in combat, contradictions still thicken the fog of war.

Last February in Hanoi, North Vietnam's foreign minister, Nguyen Duy Trinh, gave me the Communists' interpretation of current events:

The South Vietnamese masses want independence above all else—a country from which all foreign military forces have retreated—and they will continue their patriotic self-sacrifice until this is achieved.

Because the United States is arming a huge South Vietnamese army under a small clique of generals in Saigon, the war will be protracted. But in the end, national liberation forces will prevail, a few generals may flee to their secret fortunes in Switzerland and South Vietnam will arise an independent, neutral state living in peace.

That is Hanoi's version.

Lam commands I Corps Tactical Zone, two infantry divisions, and five provincial governments. His forces near the 17th parallel are South Vietnam's shield against "northern invaders."

"Why do our people continue to fight? Because they can't stand to live under Communist rule," said Lam.

"We know that if we like to be free, we must fight."

In North Vietnam, the troops I saw of the people's army looked smartly trained and appeared to be provided with the best of the nation's resources.

In South Vietnam, the 18 months since the Americans' policy of Vietnamization started have been good for the South Vietnam Army (ARVN).

Good heroes has delayed ARVN with military hardware from American reserves, an financed an increase of 300 per cent in regular troops, with American grants.

It is not among South Vietnamese leaders but among some American officials, in private remarks and casual hints, that a visitor finds doubts about the ultimate outcome.

North Vietnamese leaders do not have the problem of morale among a host of foreign advisers, because they are on their own. The confidence and determination in North Vietnam are not displayed in an echo chamber of foreign doubts.

Military Alert Ordered in Bangkok

BANGKOK (AP) — The Thai government ordered a full-scale military alert in Bangkok early today amid signs that a serious political crisis is brewing over new tax increases.

The prime minister, Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, told reporters he had ordered the garrisons of the 1st Army, known as the "coup army" because of its leading role in past coups d'etat, to stand by for trouble.

Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chullasapya, chief of staff, said the alert was a precaution against Communist infiltration into the capital which the police department had detected.

It appeared, however, that the predominantly military government was showing its muscle to scare off hostile public reaction to recent sharp increases in import duties and sales taxes which have forced up the prices of almost all commodities.

Ambitious Zwick's Plan Unveiled to Board

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Turning garbage into a thing of beauty and a joy for thousands is a simple formula.

It's also an inevitably, costly, time - consuming process.

But, now for Belleville, that process has landed into a new phase with production of design concepts of what East Zwick's could be — one day.

For years, Belleville citizens have been donating their garbage to fill sterile swampland east of Zwick's Island park.

Yesterday, future development plans for the city dump were unfurled for the city parks board by landscape architect Gary L. Heise, of Toronto consultants Johnson, Sustronk, Weinstein and Associates.

Up for scrutiny by the parks board were two designs that could be the blueprint basis of an ambitious municipal waterfront project to extend the Zwick's park complex across Highway 14.

The designs envision a shoreline area that could permit pitch - and - putt golfing, a tobogganing hill, boat docks, a bowling lawn, swimming pool, picnic and play grounds.

The layouts are not ultimate — as all agreed at yesterday's meeting.

Even before a start is made, there must be much feedback — between board members, their civil servants, designers and the community at large.

What it comes down to basically, emphasized Mr. Heise, in planning on a community - needs basis.

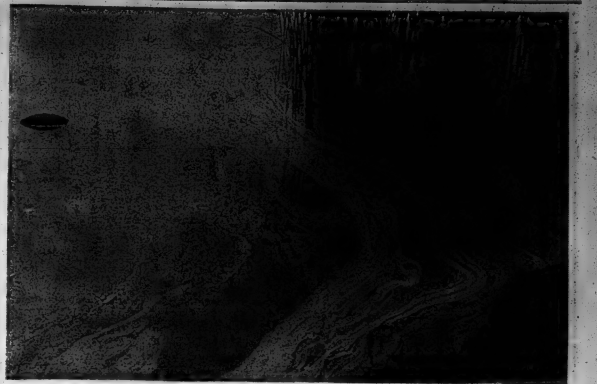
"Planning . . . is not any mystical, magical feat. It's simply trying to meet the needs of the community," he said.

"It would be nice if you could build it in two years" agreed parks superintendent Lloyd Spry. "This could be a 10, 15 or 20 — year project."

Availability of municipal funds is fundamental in the project's long - drawn time element.

But cost is not the only factor in completion of a total recreation concept. Before some facilities could be built, the landfill base would need years to settle.

Thus, for instance, Mr. Heise noted, it could take 15 years before a swimming pool could be constructed on the site.



Both designs suggested yesterday have common elements — among them a proposed road skirting the east flank of the project, feeding into Dundas Street East.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey pondered the possibility of designing it as a boardwalk.

But, as a start, the board will begin groundwork by building contours in the present flatlands of the dump area.

This would give a basic layout to the area for future design, noted board member Don Templeman.

Then, the project "could move from facility to facility as money becomes available," he added.

Scene at Zwick's Island - - - Shape of Things to Come?

Slime and filth are now part of the identity of the Bay of Quinte as the water near Quinte area shorelines takes on the appearance of a polluted bog. Bespeaking the heritage that could be left for generations to come, is this scene at Belleville's finest park, Zwick's Island. Part of the problem is the advent of summer temperatures which warm the water and assist the slime in forming. However, the major source of the iridescent swirls is waste from boats and sewage and they speak of more polluted times to come. A discarded tire floating along the shoreline testifies to the carelessness of a citizen who sees the bay as a dump rather than an important body of water and source of enjoyment.

A Possible Future

A look at how East Zwick's recreation area may someday appear was given the city parks board yesterday—Landscape artist Gary L. Heise outlines blueprint possibilities for future development.

Woman Says Teenagers Frightened Her Children

A woman tried to fend off teenage youths frightening her children at Zwick's Island while men in the area ignored her plight, the city parks board was told yesterday.

One girl fainted when she fell from a swing being violently pushed by the teenagers, Ald. Robin Jeffrey said.

The youths also scared youngsters on a playground merry-go-round, she said.

The woman later related the incident to her husband who phoned the alderman.

"He's going to do something about it," said Ald. Jeffrey. "He was very disgusted because there were men over there and they didn't do anything to stop it."

When the woman tried to intervene, the youths directed "nasty comments" at her. Trying to protect her own and other children, the woman could not get to a nearby pay telephone to call police, said Ald. Jeffrey.

Parks superintendent Lloyd Spry said it was the first such complaint he had heard about at Zwick's.

The department now has two employees in the park, while the recreation department also has two supervisors on duty. They have instructions to call recreation officials on any situation they can't handle.

Station Lot Crash Injures Three

TRENTON (Staff) — A local girl is in Trenton Memorial Hospital today with several head and facial lacerations following an early morning accident just north of town.

Marilyn Fosbary of Trenton was injured when the car in which she was a passenger struck a sign standard on the lot of Mac's Esso Station on Highway 33 just north of here at 7.10 a.m.

Gary Phillip Buck, 24, of Trenton, was in the passing lane when a car just ahead of him started to turn left, causing him in swing into the service station in an attempt to avoid a collision.

Mr. Buck and Marcella MacLean of Trenton were injured in the accident say provincial police from the Brighton detachment who are continuing their investigation.

Damage to the 1964 Buck vehicle totalled $1,000.

Wayne P. Suddard Is Appointed

Wayne P. Suddard, 29, has been appointed assistant postmaster in Picton.

An employee of the post office for the past 16 years, he has acted as assistant postmaster in the past and was appointed acting assistant postmaster following the death of former postmaster B. H. Greenfield.

A native of West Lake, Mr. Suddard has lived in Picton since 1945. Married, with two children, he is a sports enthusiast and an official of the Picton Elks Lodge.

Two Picton Men At Kiwanis Meet

PICTON (Staff) — Two Picton Kiwanians have returned from the annual convention of Kiwanis International, held this year in Detroit, Michigan.

Donald Stewart, president of the Picton club, and Lieutenant Governor Chris Lockyer, represented the district when T. R. Johnson, a Denver, Col., banking and finance executive was elected president of the international service organization.

The 55th annual convention drew 15,000 people, Kiwanians and their families to the motor city.

Quinte Pollution Problems Not Solved

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Pollution of the Quinte area's recreational waters is expected to be as great this year as last.

But steps are being taken in the direction of a solution and the outlook over the years is for strides toward overcoming the problem eventually.

Publicity given the pollution question during the last year or two is making an impact on people and the official bodies empowered with controlling the environment.

"Liaison among government departments is better today than it was even two years ago," says Lloyd Ellenton, chief public health inspector with the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit here.

Greatest handicap on the local scene is lack of staff. At present, four qualified inspectors and two Ryerson students are handling the workload in Hastings county.

The health unit is responsible for testing water, approving septic tank installations and carrying out inspection and control of sewage disposal in recreational waters.

About 75 to 80 per cent of the time of the local staff is devoted to advising on and inspecting septic tank installations for both permanent homes and summer cottages.

"Septic tank inspection has been required by law for about 60 or 70 years, but is only now being enforced," says Mr. Ellenton.

Only recently has the private waste disposal situation loomed large enough in the governmental mind to cause it to appoint public health inspectors to handle control.

"People are aware of the pollution hazard and co-operation is good on an average," the chief inspector says. Although designing septic tank installations at cottages is costly, most of those informed of the need for new systems have been anxious to correct the factors polluting their environment.

This summer, one of the Ryerson students here is conducting a survey of Oak Lake as his graduation thesis. When his report is completed, cottagers will be informed of the corrective steps necessary to overcome potential hazards on the heavily populated lake. So far, those advised of undesirable situations have sought advice on proper installation and have been willing to do the necessary work.

Sampling of recreational waters on the lower Moira and its mouth is done weekly during the summer. Usually, by mid-July, the sewage pollution is high enough to require placarding against swimming.

Zwick's Island has not been placarded for two years nor have the swimming areas at O'Brien's Bridge and the Corbyville dam.

The municipal park at Tweed, on Stoco Lake, is usually placarded by mid-July each year. But Mr. Ellenton sees an improvement coming with the plans to build a new sewage system in Tweed village, the source of the contamination.

Other encouraging moves are the abandonment of the garbage dump in Belleville east of the bay bridge causeway, the new sewage treatment plants at Belleville and Trenton, a new lagoon system of sewage in Madoc, expected to be in operation by fall, and the steps being taken by the Dunstar company in Trenton to clean up pollution from their paper manufacturing plant.

The arsenic pollution in the Deloro area almost defies solution, in the opinion of public health officials here.

Most of the southern part of the pre-Cambrian shield that begins about Highway 7 in the north of Hastings, is composed of arseno-pyrite ore. Water leaching through the rock invariably has an arsenic content.

In the early 1930s, three members of a family living east of Madoc died of arsenic poisoning from drinking water from their well drilled in the rock. Since then, an awareness of the situation and water testing of newly drilled wells has averted similar tragedies.

Off-job Accidents New Concern

Government agencies and corporate industry have become more safety conscious and the results are apparent. Now, employees are generally safer on the job than at home, according to M. C. MacLeod, safety officer for Ontario Hydro, the guest speaker at yesterday's Kiwanis luncheon.

Mr. MacLeod explained that one of the key problems now is to make workers safety conscious off the job. He mentioned that with many organizations employees must wear safety belts in company vehicles.

"What happens when they leave work though? Often they rush out from work, get into their cars and sit on the seat belts," he said.

Off-the-job accidents have caused considerable problems for employers because they are often responsible for employees losing weeks, even months of work.

Mr. MacLeod pointed out that 50 per cent of such accidents are caused by human negligence and only 50 per cent by faulty equipment. One irony of the situation, according to the speaker, is that "people worry about electrical failure," and DON'T unwind the house; they fear air crashes, yet use faulty ladders."

Electrical accidents still occur frequently in Ontario, the speaker noted. But, if we lowered hydro wires, people would hang out their washing on them.

Mr. MacLeod added that "perhaps people have respect for electricity because they live with it every day.

"More people injure themselves tripping than they do falling from a height. The greatest injury hazards are "extension cords and all those things people are planning to fix or pick up but have not found the time for," the speaker said.

Pointing out the importance of the human element in car accidents, Mr. MacLeod stated that "most accidents occur on straight roads in sunny weather and in good mechanical condition."

Whatever the mishap, human negligence is most often the cause in off - the - job accidents, Mr. MacLeod concluded that negligence may take over when people check out at the end of a routine work day and that living dangerously may be part of one's exercise of independence, costly though the result may be.

End of an Old Debate

For decades, Belleville residents have debated the feasibility of Dundas Street bridge across Moira River. Now it's a reality. Its designers this week announced its completion after a year's work. Next project: Road approaches to bridge.

Dodgers' Davis Likes Footing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Davis cracked four hits and drove in four runs on the synthetic turf of the Houston Astrodome Tuesday night, leading the Los Angeles Dodgers past the Astros 7-3 for their sixth consecutive victory.

The swift center fielder, batting .305 over-all, has hit at a .517 clip (30 for 58) on artificial playing surfaces in Houston, San Francisco and St. Louis.

Davis hasn't had a shot yet at the Astrodurf of Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium, where the runaway Reds blanked San Diego 2-0 behind right-handers Gary Nolan and Clay Carroll.

The power-packed National League West Leaders have hit just four home runs in nine games at their new park, but their pitchers have hurled four shutouts in the last six.

Elsewhere, the New York Mets nipped St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 and clung to a half-game East Division lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who beat Philadelphia Phillies 6-2; San Francisco Giants downed Atlanta Braves 8-5 and the Chicago Cubs slugged Montreal Expos 10-7.

The Dodgers snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning on Lee Gelvleson's rap-scoring pinch single and then wrapped it up with four runs in the eighth, the first three on Davis' bases-loaded triple. Davis also knocked in the tying run in the fifth with one of his three singles.

Despite their streak, the second place Dodgers remained 8½ games behind the Reds, who reeled off their fourth straight victory as Nolan, 10-4, and reliever Carroll combined to scatter seven hits.

Reds pilot Sparky Anderson said the Astrotart "makes everybody a better fielder . . . the ball bounces true."

Ron Swoboda drew a bases-loaded walk on a 3-and-2 pitch with two out in the ninth, giving the Mets their fifth straight victory. Jerry Grote's third hit, a single by Tommie Agee that extended his hitting streak to 18 games and an intentional walk set the stage for the deciding walk issued by reliever Sal Campisi.

Yanks Look Other Way

It was only three weeks ago that New York's resurrected Yankees were eyeing first place in the American League's East Division. Now they're peeking over their shoulders instead.

Nine losses in the last 11 games—the latest a 6-2 whipping in Baltimore Tuesday night—have dropped the Yanks 6½ games off the Orioles' pace.

Boston won the first game 8-4 but the Tigers bounced back with a 4-3 decision in the 10-inning nightcap. Elsewhere, Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from Washington Senators 7-3 and 7-5, Milwaukee Brewers took two from Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 12 innings and 1-0, Minnesota Twins topped Oakland Athletics 4-3 and Kansas City Royals edged California Angels 4-3.

Three weeks ago, New York's mini-Bombers had swept to within 1½ games of the first place Orioles.

New York rallied for a run in the ninth inning Tuesday to tie the score at 2-2 momentarily. But a walk, Frank Robinson's single and an error loaded the bases in the bottom of the 10th. Then Brooks Robinson crashed a grand slam homer to win it for Baltimore.

Mike Cuellar won his 10th, retiring 14 straight batters over one stretch after allowing an early homer to Yankee pitcher Mel Stottlemyre.

Rookie Steve Maddox, whose eighth inning double had tied the score, gave Detroit its second-game victory over Boston when he opened the 10th with a home run. Reggie Smith and Mike Andrews hit consecutive homers for the Sox.

Smith had five hits and four RBIs in the doubleheader.

Milwaukee moved past Chicago into fifth place in the West by sweeping the White Sox.

Ted Savage's pinch homer in the 12th inning broke up the opener for the Brewers and rewarded Marty Pattin, who went all the way, with the victory. In the nightcap, Lew Krausse pitched a four-hitter and turned in Milwaukee's first shutout of the season. Mike Hegan scored the game's only run when he doubled, moved up on a sacrifice and came in on a throwing error.

The sweep gave Milwaukee four straight victories. Chicago has dropped eight of the last nine.

Elder's Second Not Good Enough

LA BAULE, France (Reuters) — Jim Elder of Canada's equestrian team pulled off a brilliant second-place performance in the third qualifying round of the world jumping championship Tuesday, but it wasn't enough to win him a berth in the finals.

The 36-year-old Aurora, Ont., rider guided Cudrey Stables' Sloesan around the Grand Prix course with a perfect performance on two rounds. However, a one-quarter point time fault put him back to second position behind David Broome of Britain. Only three riders in the field of 25 managed to complete the two rounds without a knockdown.

Broome's win Tuesday gave him an eight-point lead over Elder in the over-all standings over the three qualifying competitions, and shut the door on Canada's chances to compete for the World Cup.

Only four men could qualify for the finals of the world competition.

No Room for Clay?

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Cassius Clay's scheduler return to the ring here Thursday night was put in doubt Tuesday.

The Charleston county council voted unanimously Tuesday to refuse a contract for the use of the 4,000-seat county hall for an exhibition bout by Clay, deposed heavyweight champion.

The council acted because no deposit had been placed by promoters of the match to secure the contract for the hall.

Clay, 28, also known as Muhammed Ali, was to step into the ring for the first time in more than two years to spar three rounds apiece with two opponents Thursday.

Clay was to receive only expense money for his benefit appearance. Proceeds were to go to a charity for underprivileged children.

Howard's 73 Best Among Area Juniors

JEFF HOWARD
Led Area Juniors

Belleville — Jeff Howard fired one of the lowest scores recorded in a junior golf qualifying round at Pine Valley Thursday, a three - under - par 68.

He was one of more than 1,000 boys 18 and under trying for berths in the Ontario championships at 19 golf clubs in nine districts throughout the province.

Records were not kept in the days when Kitchener's Gary Cowan was playing in the qualifying event but Ontario Golf Association officials fail to recall a junior shooting three under par in such an event.

The OGA will select the 150 lowest scores to compete in a 36-hole junior championship at Mississauga July 30-31.

Trenton Golf and Country Club member Jeff Howard toured the par 71 Bay of Quinte layout in 73 yesterday to top area junior hopefuls. CFB Trenton's Alan Graham and Bay of Quinte's David Smith each shot 77 as 31 bantam (13 and under), juvenile (14 and 15), and junior golfers (16-18), tried to make the qualifying standard.

A shining 78 made 15-year-old Steve Knapp of Napanee the runaway juvenile area leader. Next best was 87's by Bay of Quinte's Doug Ridley and Trenton's Alan Weese.

Lowest bantam round was a 108 shot by the Belleville club's Ross MacLeod.

At Glen Eagle in west Metropolitan Toronto Bob Street, Lars Melander and Tibi Mazzaggat had even - par scores at 72.

Chris Edwards of Owen Sound scored 77 and in Galt, Kim Reuter and John Heibein each had 72.

Glen Paterson of Chedoke shot a 71 to lead the juniors at Hamilton - Glendale. At Dundas Valley the junior leaders were John Wilmont of Hitchview and Ian Patterson of Brantford.

Rob Child of Welland Highland scored 76 as the junior leader at Lookout Point. Bob Phillips of the Barrie scored an 84 to lead 13 others at Midwestbrook.

Tom Henry Jr. of Peterborough led the area juniors at Kawartha with Rob Russell of Catarraqui had a five-shot lead with 73 in the junior section at Glencairn.

At the Bay of Quinte, Trenton's Jeff Howard led the juniors with 73. In the third Kitchener - Waterloo qualifying, Brian Peer of Brockville led the juniors at 78.

Horton Removes Sting

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Tommy Horton, 23-year-old rising star of the English golf world, putted all the sting out of this famous Old Course today with a record - equalling six-under-par 66 and the early lead in the 1970 British Open championship.

Horton, holder of the South African title, and among the first dozen in the last four British Open competitions, put together five 33s and turned the 6,-351-yard links into his servant.

He had only 30 putts. A 20-footer on the home hole just missed by an inch or he would have replaced Jack Nicklaus, Peter Allis and Bernard Hunt in the record books rather than just joining them.

Belleville's Ambassadors On Canada's Biggest Team

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville's two weightlifting ambassadors were among the largest contingent of athletes ever sent to international competition at Trenton's Commonwealth Games team left Montreal Tuesday night.

Apollo Sherbell coach Ken Carr-Brainz and heavyweight hopeful Price Morris were among the 11-member weightlifting group that hope to do their share of medal-mining for the 200-strong Canadian team at the Games, which officially open July 16 in Edinburgh.

"Price has a chance at a silver or bronze medal in the 242-pound class," Carr-Brainz said Monday over a half-packed suitcase. Most of the Belleville coach's hopes were pinned on the burly shoulders of Hamilton's 20-year-old Russ Price, who beat Morris and established a Canadian record three-lift total 1,045 pounds in the May 23 Game trials in Belleville.

Morris' best total is 1,030, which he accomplished in 1967, one of five years he held the Canadian heavyweight title. He is capable of more. He is the only Canadian ever to clean and jerk 400 pounds and a week ago tied Price's 344-pound native press record in an unofficial Apollo Club competition.

Carr-Brainz figures Price and Morris to be clearing British lifter Louis Martin for Commonwealth gold-medal honors.

Belleville fans may get the opportunity of seeing their city's athletic representatives in action July 23 from 8.30-9 p.m. The CBC is carrying one-day delayed television reports of the nine sports in which Canadian team members are participating.

Morris and the 242-pound lifter will actually be competing the evening of Wednesday, July 22, beginning at 7.15 p.m. Edinburgh time.

Trenton laid their claim to Morris' last week when town council engineered a $300 grant to help defray the cost of his trip.

Morris, a Sidney Township resident, is an employee of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, which had originally turned down his request for remuneration while in Scotland representing Canada.

Trenton council and PUC will split a $300 donation to Morris and permit him to take two weeks paid holidays to cover his five - week absence.

"It's sure nice to know communities will support amateur athletes now and then," scoffed a happy coach Carr-Brainz.

Printers Steal Mariners' Wind

The Intelligencer made six runs in the opening pair of innings stand up for a 6-3 victory over Morch Mariners, to increase their Belleville Softball lead to five points.

Dave Feeney worked four innings for the winners to run his season record to 3-0, before being bailed out by Eve Culloden. The pair allowed six hits and four walks, while fanning three batters.

Wilson Bulpit took the loss. He gave up seven hits and one walk, striking out two batters.

Bill Hoard continued to lead the Intell batting attack, slamming a triple and two singles, giving him nine hits in his last three games. Merv Thompson tripled and Harold Redquest doubled, with Maurice Switzer and Pat Brown adding singles.

Cal Galnforth with a two-safety homer and Mike Follins, who had a pair of singles were the top batters for the Mariners Larry Ell, Clint Halladay and Harold Puchanan got the other safeties.

Western Juniors Getting Cold Shoulder

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is planning two national Junior A championships for this winter—but unless internal strife can be quelled, the best teams may not be represented.

Ontario and Quebec hockey associations who, with the Western Canada Hockey League, form The Big Three that govern Junior A structure in Canada, said Tuesday they would not meet the WCHL in a national final unless there is equal treatment for all.

"The meeting is going to recommend to the board of directors of the CAHA that the Memorial Cup be the trophy for tier 1 competition in Canada," said CAHA President Earl Dawson following the closed meeting.

"However, Ontario and Quebec said they wouldn't compete against the WCHL unless they were placed on the same footing with them in matters of finance and permission to use over-age players—21 and under—up to four on each team."

Dawson said he would arrange a meeting between the National Hockey League negotiating committee and that of the CAHA with Ontario and Quebec representatives "there to state to Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, their objections."

The WCHL returned to the CAHA fold about three weeks ago after operating as an outlaw league.

The CAHA was directed by the NHL negotiating committee to give the WCHL victory in the form of travel grants. The OHA and the Quebec association are not receiving any travel grants," Dawson said.

In addition, the WCHL was permitted to honor current commitments to over-age players.

"In fairness to Mr. Campbell, the idea was to clear up existing arrangements, phasing out such arrangements during the next couple of years," Dawson said.

He said he feels "their criticism is justified."

"We should treat all teams in tier 1 the same. This business of over-age players is something many teams in Canada requested. We were allowed by the NHL to give it to the WCHL but they were quite emphatic that no other teams in Canada should have it."

The second national final would be parallel to the Memorial Cup playoff, but down a grade in competition and would include junior leagues in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, Northern Ontario, the Ottawa district and the Maritimes and possibly Quebec, Dawson said.

Als' Forecast Looking Better After 27-23 Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes overpowered Winnipeg Blue Bombers 27-23 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday night.

It was the first pre-season test for both teams, last-place finishers in their respective conferences last year.

But for about 10,000 shirt-sleeved fans who turned out on a warm summer night, the balanced performance of the new Alouettes made some of the brighter predictions seem plausible.

Montreal went ahead 17-9 in the first quarter and never looked back. The Als led 17-13 at half-time and 27-13 after three quarters.

Quarterback Sonny Wade fired two touchdown passes, both in the opening quarter, after Pierre Guindon had put the Als on the scoreboard with a 22-yard field goal.

Wade's first scoring throw was a sharp screen pass to Rick Smith, who broke down the sidelines for 61 yards. Less than four minutes later Wade hit Peter Dalla Riva at the goal line from 18 yards out.

Ollis Carson, 21-year-old import from North Carolina Central, scored the other Alouette touchdown-a 22-yard run in the third quarter.

Guindon added three converts and a third quarter 11-yard field goal.

Winnipeg place-kicker Gene Lakusiak booted 10 points on two fields goals, three singles and a convert.

Bob Hoimandi and John Quillen scored touchdowns and Ed Ulmer kicked a 42-yard single to complete the Bombers scoring.

Wally Gabler and Don Weiss, who came into quarterback briefly in the fourth quarter, both had trouble operating behind the front line that collapsed repeatedly under the charging Als.

Wae was sure and threatening, even though all-star receiver Terry Evanshen wasn't dressed for the game.

Fresh Yankee Gets Fourth Run At International

MONTREAL (CP) — Fresh Yankee will get a fourth chance to win the $125,000 Roosevelt International Trot July 18 at Westbury, N.Y.

The seven-year-old mare, owned by Duncan McDonald of Sydney, N.S., and driven by Joe O'Brien of Albertare, P.E.I., took the lead in the stretch Tuesday night and won the Canadian trotting championship at Richelieu Park by more than five lengths, to qualify for the International.

The trotter posted a snappy 2:02.1 mile and increased her Canadian record earnings to $589,435 with her $7,500 first-place share of the $15,000 purse.

Old Course Toothless?

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — A field of 134 of the world's greatest golfers tee off today in pursuit of the 99th British Open golf championship and for the first time there was a chorus of voices saying that somebody is taking the fire out of the Old Course.

To hear golfers beefing that the 6,951-yard, par-72 course has been softened is rather like listening to mountain climbers who say Mount Everest is a piece of cake.

Yet, this is happening as the most dramatic British championship in a long time pitted defender Tony Jacklin against Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Roberto de Vicenzo and innumerable other kings of the golf world for the next four days of 72 holes.

"They've taken the fire out of it," said Guy Wolstenholme, an Englishman who led the amateur field here with 283 in 1969 when Kel Nagle of Australia just beat Palmer by one stroke. Wolstenholme now has turned professional.

"They sprinkle the greens, they sprinkle the fairways and they've taken the sting out of the tail of the Old Course," the tall Briton observed.

"Once you could see your face on the shining greens," Wolstenholme said.

"This was the magic of the Old Course. Now they are turning it into just another target golf American course and something is lost."

Trevino Top Dollar

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Trevino continues to lead in money winnings and point standings in the Professional Golfers Association tournament schedule.

Trevino, leader in both categories for the 15th consecutive week, has won $144,785 and scored 1,1154 points so far this year, according to figures released Tuesday.

Dick Lotz is runner-up in the money with $107,063, followed by Gary Player, $89,963; Dave Hill, $88,031; Bruce Devlin, $87,449; Tony Jacklin, $86,764; Bob Lunn, $82,492; Miller Barber, $79,909; Frank Beard, $74,519; and Jack Nicklaus, $73,135.

Lunn is second in points with 964.4, followed by Beard, 887.4, Homero Blancas, 880.6, Bob Charles, 863.1, Hill 862.5; Lotz, 850.6; Barber, 857.0; Larry Hinton, 835.2 and Bruce Crampton, 793.5.

Waite Two-hits Stinson's to Keep Juniors Out Front

Rollins Construction and the Elks Juniors continued their season - long battle for first place in the Consolidated Softball League, standings Tuesday night by both picking up important victories, but in considerably different ways.

The Juniors ruined their two - point bulge over the Construcktionmen by edging Stinson's 3-0 in an exciting pitcher's duel while Rollins had an easier time of it while - washing City Hotel 9-4.

Only six hits were accounted for in the Juniors-Stinsons game with Ted Waite giving up just two of them, both bunt singles. The stocky Junior hurler used good control and a wicked fast ball to stymie the Stinsons. He fanned six batters and walked only one.

A single by Steve Ling in the top of the sixth and a wild pickoff attempt on his steal scored Lorne Hatchford, providing all the runs Waite needed. Waite proved to be the hitter too as he punched a double and a single. Hatchford's single rounded out the Junior hitting.

Bob Swarn was late's unlucky victim as he allowed only four hits and walked only one batter on the Stinsons mound. He fanned two batters in his seven - inning stint.

Trenton Tough

Foster's Thorlew Peerven ran into some tough Trenton competition Tuesday evening resulting in a 3-1 loss to the host team in BOBA Peewee Group II action.

P. Hendrick fired third strikes past 12 Thorlew batters in picking up the victory. He also had a double as did Sutton to pace the Trenton hitters.

Ted Foster had ten strikeouts in a losing cause.

Two singles by McConnell and Jerry Hill plus a triple from batting leader Ralph Plaus were the big blasts for Rollins as they remained within reach of the Juniors. Singles from Bill Goodfellow, Wes May, and Brian Harder completed Rollins eight-hit attack.

Mark Sheridan started on the City mound but found the going rough, giving up three runs on four hits and two walks. He fanned five Rollin batters. Bob Ebbler relieved in the fifth and allowed the other three runs. He fanned three batters and walked two.

No Evidence of Fire Before Air Canada Jetliner Hit Runway

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Don Jamieson climbed some theories Tuesday on the cause of the Air Canada jetliner crash which took 109 lives in Toronto Sunday, but offered no final conclusion on what went wrong.

In a news release Mr. Jamieson said a public inquiry into the accident will be set up under the Aeronautics Act after the current investigation by transport department and National Research Council teams is completed.

The minister said that flight 621, attempting to land at Toronto International Airport Sunday morning in a stopover between Montreal and Los Angeles, looked normal until it came within 100 feet of the ground.

"At this point, the rate of descent was observed to increase and become abnormally steep."

"The aircraft bounced over the initial portion of the runway and veered slightly to the right. The No. 4 engine on the outer right wing separated from the aircraft and was followed by a ball of flame."

There was no evidence of any fire aboard the plane before it hit the runway.

An examination of air-ground communications between the plane and the control tower had established that no emergency was declared by the crew nor was there any evidence of alarm on the part of the crew.

Markings on the runway showed the plane's undercarriage was in landing position.

Although there had been another jet departing from the runway on a normal time separation prior to flight 621's touchdown "conditions were such that any possibility of wake turbulence from the departing aircraft as a factor in the accident is considered to be extremely remote."

After the No. 4 engine separated from the plane, power was applied and it climbed to approximately 1,500 feet when the other starboard engine and the wing tip fell off.

The aircraft then went into a steep spiral and hit the ground in a left wing nose-down position at a shallow angle.

Five-man Inquest Jury Is Sworn In

TORONTO (CP) — A five-man inquest jury was sworn in Tuesday to determine the cause of Sunday's crash of an Air Canada DC-8 jetliner that killed 109 persons.

Dr. H. B. Cotnam, chief coroner for Ontario, took the jury on a tour of the crash site four miles north of Toronto International Airport, then adjourned the inquest until some time in September.

Dr. Cotnam said that Capt. Peter Hamilton, pilot of the giant jet, will be the main subject of the inquest.

The jury was told by Dr. Cotnam that it is to determine "when, where, how and by what means Peter Hamilton and others came to their deaths."

Dr. Cotnam told jurors that they are not allowed to ask anyone questions "with respect to how this crash happened or anything like that."

The jury also toured the airport runway where the DC-8 briefly touched down on a landing attempt before again taking to the air only to crash minutes later.

Meanwhile, the grisly job of trying to identify the remains of bodies of the victims continued at nearby Woodbridge Memorial Arena. Provincial police said all the remains have been taken from the crash site to the arena.

Strict security measures were in force and only Air Canada personnel and others with proper identification papers were allowed into the arena.

Some 40 relatives of the victims who had arrived from Montreal, Halifax and Los Angeles were not allowed into the arena either, but were asked to fill out detailed reports on physical appearance of the victims and on clothing and jewelry worn at the time of the crash.

Stranded Americans Fly Home

PARIS (AP) — Hundreds of disappointed young Americans flew home from Europe Thursday in an emergency airlift arranged for 2,500 students temporarily stranded by the financial collapse of a tour agency.

T. Rodger Hyde, acting president of the agency, World Academy, said in Rome he hopes to have all the students home within five or six days.

Cincinnati-based World Academy has filed for bankruptcy, spokesmen said.

Many of the stranded students had worked and saved for the scheduled four-week study tour costing $1,200 or more.

Howe Tests Arthritic Wrist on Golf Links

TORONTO (CP) — Anyone who would bet against Gordie Howe is just about any game you care to name deserves all he can win.

So it may have been with an eye to the odds that the great winger of Detroit Red Wings said:

"I'm supposed to play a round of golf in Winnipeg Friday against some local boys. They shouldn't have too much trouble beating me."

Howe, in Toronto to open his two-week tour of the department store chain which hires him off-season as a sports consultant, exhibited a scar on his left wrist, a memento of surgery to correct an arthritic condition.

"I've missed five tournaments, including the Canadian open pro-am, so far this year because of this thing," he said.

He has put the cost of a couple of days ago and I still haven't got any feeling in parts of my hand.

"Fortunately, my doctor knows I like to play golf so he has given me a gutting rehabilitation scheme for my hand."

Howe injured the bone several years ago playing hockey but it didn't become painful until last season.

Howe, 41, says "my contract comes up for renewal this year, I'm going to ask for a two-year contract with a little raise. Then I'll start talking it one year at a time."

Howe said he had met his new coach, Ned Harkness, only once and was impressed.

"He's a very dedicated man. He'll also be very strict. He doesn't go for smoking or drinking. If some players want to smoke he had better find a tree to hide behind.

"And if someone wants to drink he might as well hide altogether.

Falcon Teams Up in Air

Falcons were flying high in minor soccer last night as both the bantam and peewee teams recorded wins.

The bantam Falcons got outstanding goaltending from Jim Marta to make Rob Vandervaake's goal stand up in a 1-0 win over Trenton.

The peewees exploded for seven goals, stopping Uptown Hillards 7-2.

Keith Farry came up with a three - goal effort to edge teammate Peter Crawford for high scoring honors. Bruce Keller and Steve Marvin counted the remaining Falcons goals.

Bob Barrigan and Dario D'Anna tallied for Uptown.

In mosquito action Coa Grill blanked Bob's Auto Body 3-0, getting scores from Rick Allen, Waterson and Walton.

The Penguins also displayed some fine defence in a 2-1 win over Station Street Food Market. Don Lasher and Pat Smith were the goalgetters.

Sixes Prove Winner

Six was the winning number for Belleville Minor Lacrosse teams Tuesday with all three winning teams tallying a half-dozen goals.

In the one novice game played Golden Mile stopped the Dairy Queen 6-1. Laurie Wilson was the top Golden Mile scorer, collecting a hat trick. Scott Summers, John Nicholson and Jim Nutal scored the other goals.

For the Dairy Queen, it was James Weston getting the only score. Dickens Voyager midgets needed all of their firepower, edging Larry's Imperials 6-5.

Andy Ricketts was best for the winners picking up two goals and two assists. Kerry Reid, Rick Ball, Steve Cowan and Robert Cook were the other goalgetters.

Danny Coulter and Ray Muldoon each scored twice for the Imperials. The other scorer was Duncan Pressnt.

The '77 Jets blanked Team No. 8 by 6-0 as Bob Locke (3), Darrell Donnelly (2), John Desormeaux and Frank Searle collected the goals.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

ROLLINS

CONSTRUCTION LTD.

WE'RE REALLY SORRY

to disappoint those of you who called about the 12-unit apartment houses you saw under construction to find they were all sold. With such value as we are offering in these buildings they just don't last. Although lots for 12-unit buildings are becoming scarcer and more expensive all the time, we have just acquired one more lot in the best part of town side. If you are interested in such a building give us a call. We have all the figures to show you how to really put your money to work.

WANT TO BUILD ON THE BAY ?

We have a lovely lot on Redmersville Road not far from Belleville. There's 150' frontage on the bay, let us build the house of your choice the way you want it built. Such lots as these are truly at a premium.

$1,900. DOWN
ONE NHA MORTGAGE

A new 3-bedroom bungalow plan now under construction on Herchimer Avenue near Victoria. The price — $19,500.00. Need we say more ?

FAMILY ROOM FIREPLACE.

A long split-level with just about everything but a high down payment. Kitchen has separate breakfast room looking onto family room. There is a built-in garage and 1½ baths. It's a beauty.

APARTMENTS

We still have some 2-bedroom apartments available for September first possession. All are broadloomed — all services included in rent.

Propane for Cars Proves Clean Fuel

TORONTO (CP) — Burning propane gas instead of gasoline in motor vehicles reduces air pollution from engines and results in better vehicle performance and longer engine life, an Ontario government study says.

The study was done by the Ontario department of public works. A sedan, a small van and a furniture van burning propane gas, were used for an unspecified period in normal duties in the Toronto area.

W. G. McGill, supervisor of the department's vehicle repair depot, said in an interview Tuesday the three vehicles have encountered no mechanical problems to date.

Indexes Rising

Three of the four indexes on the Toronto Stock Exchange rose during June. Industrials rose from 154.21 at the beginning of the month to close at 155.52. Golds rose from 143.66 to close at 127.71. Base Metals rose .17 to close at 90.03 and Western Oils dropped 7.11 to close the month at 123.59.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was mixed to fractionally lower in light to moderate trading today.

On index, industrials dropped .18 to 155.38 and base metals .11 to 90.18. Golds advanced .77 to 130.74 and western oils 1.37 to 116.87.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 294,000 shares, down from 327,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Losers outnumbered gains 52 to 41 with 116 issues unchanged.

Largest declines were in the bank, merchandising, food processors and real estate sectors.

Among losing stocks, Bow Valley was down ¼ to 17¾, Famous Players Theatres ¼ to 8, Kelsey Resources ¼ to 13½, Moore ¼ to 27¼ and Texas Gulf Sulphur ¼ to 13¾.

Union Gas lost ¼ to 12¼. The Ontario Cabinet ruled Tuesday that Consumers' Gas Ltd. of Toronto would not be allowed to purchase Union of Chatham, Ont.

Consumers' advanced ¼ to 25½.

Trading in Union was delayed for about 30 minutes this morning.

Tuesday, prices fell sharply in a second consecutive session of decline.

On index, industrials dropped 1.49 to 148.56, golds .45 to 130.27, base metals .36 to 89.27 and western oils 2.76 to 115.24.

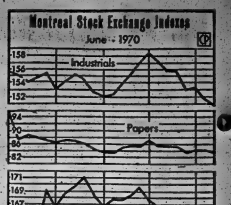
Volume was 980,000 shares, compared with 980,000 at the same time Monday.

Losers outnumbered gains 249 to 91 with 228 issues unchanged.

The market began to head sharply downward Monday after drifting aimlessly since mid-June.

Trading has been in the doldrums for several weeks and has crawled to a near-halt during the last three sessions.

Friday was the slowest trading session in more than 10 years. It was also the first time in more than a decade that less than 1,000,000 shares traded hands.



Analysts say the lack of buyers has forced brokers to give concessions on shares in order to sell.

Investors' wariness of the market will not be, dispelled until there is a major economic upturn, observers say.

Investors have viewed trading with jaundiced eyes since the end of a spectacular three-day rally in May.

Largest losses Tuesday were in beverage, construction and materials, industrial mining, merchandising, pipeline and trust and loan sectors.

Among declining stocks, Falconbridge was down 1¼ to 141, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 1¼ to 32¼, Canada Cement LaFarge 1 to 34, Pacific Pete 1 to 17, Seagrams 1 to 44, CPR 1 to 50¼ and Texas Gulf Sulphur ¾ to 14¼.

Indexes Mixed

Indexes on the Montreal Stock Exchanges were mixed during June. Industrials fell from 155.07 at the beginning of the month to close at 150.94. Utilities were up 1.83 to 123.28. Banks were down to 162.74 at month-end. Papers dropped 11.41 to close at 83.69.

RCAF Memorial at Trenton To Be Lighted by Laser Beam

OTTAWA (CP) — The first use of the laser beam in a purely architectural application is to be built into the new Hall of Canadian Aviation History and RCAF Memorial at Trenton, Ont.

Projected vertically through a shaft from the basement of the $3,000,000 structure, the laser should provide unique lighting effects both inside and outside, says project planners.

Lasers are light sources with unusual properties, used in medicine for eye surgery and cancer research, and in industry for ultra-precise cutting and welding.

They also can be reflected and used for precise measurement of distant objects.

Dr. B. P. Stoicheff, a physics professor at the University of Toronto, has said that since laser reflectors were placed on the moon by United States astronauts, movements of the moon in relation to the earth in the order of .4/c feet can be detected.

Dr. Stoicheff says the laser principle involves speeding up the normal action of atoms in a gas-filled tube and directing a portion of the resulting light through a mirror at one end of a tube.

The concentrated beam of energy thus created doesn't spread out like the light from a flashlight but remains narrow. It can be projected great distances without apparent loss of intensity.

Dr. Stoicheff recently demonstrated various color ranges and possibilities of reflecting and deflecting the beam for Dr. Eric Arthur, the prominent architect who served as one of the judges for the RCAF Memorial design competition.

At the same time Dr. Stoicheff, whose work in the field has earned him the name "Mr. Laser," convinced a group of airmen accompanying Dr. Arthur that the laser planned for the memorial project would not be a hazard to aircraft flying through it in the air-busy Trenton area.

The memorial, soon to be built on defence department property beside the Trenton air base, was designed by Montreal architect Victor Prus, a wartime RAF pilot.

The laser beam feature fits in with the spirit of the building, which symbolizes the essence of flight. Its walls are to rise at a gentle angle from the surrounding terrain to culminate in a central glazed cupola similar in structure to an aircraft's cockpit canopy.

From this focal point the laser beam cuts into the sky, pointing the way to the stars.

Sydney J. Harris Tells

How Spellings Change

A school - teacher was telling me the other night that some of her fourth-grade pupils refer to the bomb we dropped on Hiroshima as the "Adam bomb."

Since Adam was the first man, they reason analogically that the first of a new type bomb should likewise be called the "Adam". It makes a certain kind of linguistic and psychological sense; and, indeed, a good deal of our language has been formed in this unconscious way.

Perhaps the most prominent current example is the widespread use of "chaise lounge" for what the French call a "chaise longue" or long chair. Since it is primarily for lounging, popular speech has converted it into a new phrase that will probably drive its prototype out of the languages altogether.

Sometimes a word changes simply because people begin pronouncing it a special way: a "nickname" was originally an "ekename," but somehow the "n" from the article became attached to the second word. Contrariwise, the snake known as an "adder" was originally a "nadder," but the initial letter became clipped off and attached to the article.

(In the same way, a newt was once an "ewt," an augur was a "naugur," an umpire before 1420 was a "numpire," and even the familiar orange was called a "norange" by Chaucer.)

Spelling also changes at popular whim, no matter how much the scholars may resist. Sir Isaac Pitman first spelled like the French "surloin," meaning beneath the loin, but was slowly turned into the English "sir," meaning nothing at all.

And we took the Old English "brydguma" (meaning "bride-man") into "bridegroom," because in the 15th and 16th centuries, "bride" referred to a person of either sex. "Groom" here has nothing to do with grooming.

Popular usage turned "hillyhock" into "hollyhock" for a flower that came from the Holy Land and had no relation at all to holly. It also turned the French "jarlen almond" into the "Jordan almond," even though it hasn't the remotest connection with Jordan — any more than the Jerusalem artichoke has to do with Jerusalem (it's a corruption of the Italian "girasole," sunflower, which the artichoke resembles in leaf and stem.)

We make words mean what we want them to, regardless of their ancestry. "Carsan" a fairly recent loan-word from French, originally meant "place for storing anything," not exclusively cars"; and a "barn" formerly meant a "barley-place," and not a storage house for other kinds of grain and animals. The 'Adam bomb' may linger longer in the language than those fourth-graders might imagine.

Robarts Will Order Public Probe of OPP

Premier Grants Wishart's Wish

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said today he will order a public inquiry into the association of senior provincial police officers with George Duke, an Oakville businessman.

Mr. Robarts, spending two days in Honolulu on the way to Japan, said in a telephone interview with The Star: "It seems to me that there is a lot of misunderstanding, so I'll be quite happy to do it."

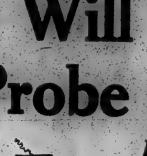
He was commenting on an announcement Wednesday that Attorney-General Arthur Wishart will ask for a public inquiry into the matter because of "misstatements in the press."

Mr. Wishart told a news conference he will ask Premier John Robarts on his return from a trip to Japan to order the inquiry which he hoped could begin in three weeks.

He said he had decided an inquiry was needed to correct "misapprehensions in the public mind created by misstatements in the press, particularly outside Metro Toronto," concerning the association between OPP officers and Mr. Duke, who has a criminal record for theft in the United States.

Mr. Wishart refused to detail the news stories he considered erroneous, but said these stories had resulted in newspaper editorials based on misstatements of facts.

Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto High Part, said the house early in June that senior OPP officials had associated with Mr. Duke who in turn had associated with present Dr. Shulman identified as members of the Mafia.



As a result of an OPP investigation of the allegations, two senior officers, Supt. Albert Wilson and Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger, have been charged under the Police Act with disobeying an order by continuing to associate with Mr. Duke after they were ordered to stop.

Mr. Duke has issued writs alleging libel by Mr. Wishart, Deputy Attorney-General A. Kendall Dick, OPP Commissioner Eric Silk and Dr. Shulman.

Mr. Wishart said he doubted the libel actions would have any effect on an inquiry.

Final say as to whether an inquiry will be held rests with Premier Robarts, who returns from a two-week visit to Japan July 25.

"The public must be reassured," Mr. Wishart said. "If I were to do the investigation on my own, my feeling is that the public would not be as satisfied as if the investigation was conducted by an impartial individual and the public was able to see it openly done."

"Anything to declare?"

Metro Area Postmen On Strike

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A series of rotating strikes in and around Metropolitan Toronto began with 185 workers in Aurora, Newmarket, Georgetown and north-end sections of the city staying away from work.

At the same time, post offices in Edmundston, N.B., and Grand Falls, N.B., were closed for "lack of work." Sixteen employees were affected in Edmundston and four in Grand Falls.

All 47 regional post offices in Quebec were reopened today following the return to work of Montreal postal workers who had held a 48-hour walkout.

Phnom Penh Uneasy
Ring Tightens Around Capital

From Reuters-AP

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are closing in on a circle of strategic towns around the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh as fears mount there of a major offensive in the next few weeks.

The brunt of the Communist buildup is around the besieged provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 78 miles north of Phnom Penh. Army spokesmen say the town is facing the biggest Communist concentration in Cambodia.

Reuters correspondent Johan Kerr reported from Phnom Penh today that military sources there say the North Vietnamese and their guerrilla allies are still moving in reinforcements and, with the area to the north of the town already in their hands, are biding their time for a big thrust.

Kompong Thom, on the main road between the capital and the tourist resort of Siem Reap, was the scene of bitter fighting last month, and last week when American planes helped South Vietnamese and Cambodian aircraft beat off Communist attacks.

Several U.S. Phantom fighter-bombers made low passes over Phnom Penh Wednesday but there were no reports of any actions by the planes in the vicinity of Kompong Thom.

But both Cambodian and South Vietnamese planes are believed to be in continuous action against Viet Cong forces near the port of Kompong Som, and along other infiltration routes farther to the north and east.

Washington sources said U.S. planes have flown more than 120 bombing flights against targets in Cambodia since American troops were withdrawn in South Vietnam last week.

In South Vietnam, the U.S. command disclosed today that Maj.-Gen. George W. Casey, commander of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, and six other Americans aboard his helicopter have been missing for two days.

The command also announced that a total of 61 Americans have been killed in action last week, the lowest weekly total in 3½ years.

Gen. Casey's helicopter was last heard from at 10:10 a.m. Tuesday, and searchers have found neither the craft nor its occupants, the command said.

The 48-year-old general was flying in a military mission of mercy to visit wounded members of his division.

Cornwall Mohawks Abandon Loon Island

CORNWALL (CP) — A group of Mohawk Indians Wednesday left nearby Loon Island where they pitched tents in late May to back up claims the land is theirs.

The Indians say they are leaving the island as a feature of good faith while the federal Indian affairs department still has two weeks to decide on their claim to the island, 17 miles east of here, and next-door Stanley Island.

The Indians meticulously cleaned up the area they occupied, carting tents and personal belongings back to St. Regis Reserve by truck.

They say the land is theirs by natural, historic rights but non-Indians hold leases on the land from the federal government and rent it out to cottagers, depriving the Indians of revenue.

The Indian affairs department is supposed to be protecting our interests," says Mike Mitchell, a 23-year-old recently elected to the reserve band council. "I don't see us getting too many benefits."

The Mohawks say Loon Island was settled by a reserve resident in 1858 by another Indian who had a "ticket of location," equivalent to a deed, for the island.

But they say the ticket was sent to Ottawa in 1859 and never returned because the federal government said it was no longer valid. The holder had sent it to the government when he began checking the legality of a lease on the island held by a white man.

Stanley Island is still occupied by a small group of Indians who fish and tend a small vegetable garden they planted in June.

They want the lease—which now is held by a white man—renegotiated because the Indians get only $8 a year for it. Cottages on the island rent for up to $200 a year.

Recorder Yields Clues For Probe Into Crash

TORONTO (CP) — An investigation official said Wednesday night that a flight recorder aboard the Air Canada Super DC-8 that carried 108 persons to their death Sunday) is revealing some clues as to the cause of the crash.

"We are starting to get some indications of what happened," said Richard Boldue, head of a federal government investigating team. "We are starting to put a few things together."

However, Mr. Boldue would not reveal the contents of the shock-proof recorder.

The recorder, a small digital computer, records in code a wide range of information every second the airplane is in flight, including cockpit conversation between crew members. It was recovered dented but intact from the crash scene four miles north of Toronto international Airport.

Mr. Boldue said the information from the recorder is in addition to facts his team of 24 investigators gathered for an interim report released Tuesday by Transport Minister Don Jamieson.

Mr. Jamieson's report said the flight was normal until within 100 feet of touchdown on the airport runway when the plane's descent became "abnormally" steep.

Prince and Sister Stroll to Great Slave Lake Beach Party

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The young folks on the royal tour had a night out Wednesday, taking in a beach party barbecue, while their parents attended a more formal affair.

Prince Charles, 21, and Princess Anne, 19, turned up at McNiven Beach on the shores of Great Slave Lake for a casual stroll among other young people.

But the stroll lasted only long enough for them to be recognized and be engulfed by the crowd, mainly as young and hip as any similar group.

The only way to keep track of the prince and princess, who were separated for most of their hour-long stay, was to watch the swarming masses of young people.

For every camera-bug, every starry-eyed Charles-admirer, there was opportunity galore. There was little jostling with the crowd apparently content simply to be near the royal pair.

Charles, who munched at a hamburger and later sipped at a soft drink from a cardboard carton as he strolled, asked one of the youngsters crowding him why he wasn't eating. Then in mock horror clutched his stomach and said:

"This thing must be poisonous. I've made a mistake."

But generally with the background noise of the rock bands and the non-listening of the hop dancing done on stage by the Saddleback family of Hobberna, Alta., the sounds of a group called the Stained-Glass Illusion, plus a special combo provided by the band of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, royal privacy was assured.

Charles' outfit was blue sweater, white shirt and tan slacks. Anne, her hair down, had on a brown pantsuit.

In the early part of their stay, Anne joined a group seated at a table just across from where the hamburgers, hotdogs and corn on the cob were being prepared.

Later she gravitated, with crowd following, to the other end of the park and carried on assorted conversations seated on a green plastic lawn chair.

One major concern involving the royal visit, which fits in with the centennial years of both the territories and Manitoba, has been that of the northern summer insect problem.

So far, the Royal Family has got off lightly. The mosquitoes were swarming at McNiven Beach but there was a breeze blowing and, with the repellants brought up by the visiting party, insect life was at the most a minor inconvenience.

The two young visitors left the beach at 10:30 p.m. MST in the arctic twilight while the Queen and Philip were attending a dinner given in their honor by Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

Today, the royal visitors will fly to Fort Providence, in the same general area at the south end of Great Slave Lake they visited Wednesday—Fort Smith and Pine Point.

Tonight, the Queen will make a radio broadcast to the people of the Territories.

Questionnaire Delivered Today To 1,200 Belleville Tenants

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Residents throughout the city who live in rental dwellings are going to be asked a few questions within the next week.

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board recently prepared a 27-item questionnaire being delivered today to a random selection representing 60 per cent of the city's rental residents.

The 1,200 questionnaires deal with questions such as the number of occupants, types of employment, length of residence, reasons for locating, and income ratio.

Zdenek Kvarda, chairman of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board explained that this rental housing survey is being conducted to provide a basis for planning the type and location of future rental units that will fulfil the needs of both existing renters and future residents.

The results of the survey will be in with the chapter on housing which will be included in the city's master plan.

Explaining further, he said, "We have no answers that we can give to housing developers who apply for building permits."

Frank Stokmans, principal planner, revealed that recent applications being received by the planning board were for row housing.

"This is a little crazy I think, because no one knows how successful this type of home is going to be. All they can see is that single units aren't selling so they try this other type, at random."

Continuing, he said, this survey will give the planning board a fairly firm idea of what the public desires in housing and "will give us the general trends."

The trends are all tied in with interest rates, income and the cost of housing, Mr. commented.

"These developers claim row housing is cheaper than other forms, therefore, they can charge lower rents.

"Everybody's going overboard."

"As the cost of living goes the way it is at this time, rental dwellings become more important," said Richard Danziger, current development planner.

In the past, rental units have been scrutied in the city at random, without any prearranged plans.

Mr. Stokmans said of these arrangements that developers would erect single dwelling units and then put together an apartment unit.

"We'll be able to control the mix of apartment and other rental dwellings with a set plan," he continued.

"But we have to have at least 80 per cent return on these questionnaires to advise accurately on future trends properly."

The residents being questioned were selected from the records of the assessment department in Trenton from regional Hastings County.

These were random checks of their books, selecting only addresses that contain relevant information to cover a diversified section of rental dwellers.

Later in July, similar questionnaires will be distributed throughout Sidney and Thurlow Townships.

The wording of the questionnaires returned to the planning board will be handled by the local employees. The answers will be selected by hand and are set up in such a way that they could be later adapted to punch cards.

Said Mr. Kvarda, "Belleville is experiencing a period of high population growth, and more and more people are moving to Belleville and seeking rental accommodation.

"Unless this survey is successfully, find out if people now renting accommodation are satisfied with the current type of rental housing available.

"If not, we can direct our tractors in the right direction for the future."

Residents to Be Questioned

Zdenek Kvarda, chairman of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board discusses the questionnaire being delivered to 1,200 rental residents in the city with principal planner Frank Stokmans, and current development planner Richard Danziger. The survey is being conducted to enable the planning board to advise contractors on the trend of desired rental housing in the city.

Teachers Pay, Status Dominate Board Meeting

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Teacher troubles continue to plague the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board.

At last night's regular monthly meeting of the board, the 21½-hours of deliberations open to the public were devoted to teacher disagreements.

Allowances paid to teaching principals was one issue. The other concerned teachers who are retiring this year because they have reached the 65-year age limit.

C. G. Merserau, acting superintendent, said some teachers were overpaid during the 1969-70 teaching year and others were underpaid.

"All through the year we have been adjusting salaries because it was difficult to figure out why some people were being paid what they were," he told the board.

The 15 teaching principals in the system are a particular concern, because "I couldn't figure out the basis on which they were being paid", Mr. Merserau said.

According to the agreement between teachers and board, the principals were given a supervisory allowance of $175 for each regular classroom teacher in their schools.

The teaching principals considered themselves as teachers in calculating the allowance due.

The board eventually confirmed their understanding with a resolution valid for the 1969-70 year.

Since the board has no contract with its teachers for the coming school year, the principals' allowance will be up for negotiation in the fall.

On the second issue, extension of teachers' contracts on a yearly basis after they reach retirement age, the board received a threat of legal action from one of the teachers involved.

Mrs. Cary Milne, a remedial reading teacher at St. Joseph's school, objected to having to retire because she had reached the age limit.

A motion by Msgr. J. P. Sullivan that Mrs. Milne and one other retiring St. Joseph's teacher, Sister Mary Clarissa be granted a one-year extension was defeated by a 6-4 vote.

Mrs. Milne based her objection to being retired on the fact the teachers involved did not receive written notice by May 31 that their employment would be terminated.

"Since it was not in written notice before May 31, we are still hired for the same positions we had last year. That is school law," she told the trustees.

Mr. Merserau told the board that its policy permits annual extensions of a retiring teacher's contract if the teacher submits an application, a statement of good health from her physician and has a recommendation from the superintendent.

Three St. Joseph's teachers reached retirement age this year, and one was granted an extension because she received one more year of teaching before becoming eligible for pension. Sister Mary Clarissa and Mrs. Milne were not refused extensions—Mr. Merserau said he had every intention of offering them a further year's service if he could find positions for them, but he had not yet succeeded in finding a spot in the system for them to fill.

Sister Mary Clarissa's request for extension was supported by a letter to trustees from Msgr. James Carley of St. Joseph's parish, registering "strong protest to the action" because Sister Mary Clarissa was treated at your hands".

Mr. Merserau told the board that a large number of young teachers just out of

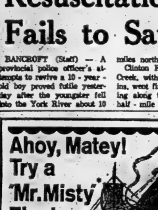
Resuscitation Attempt Fails to Save Boy, 10

BANCROFT (Staff) — A provincial police officer's attempts to revive a 10 - year - old boy proved futile yesterday after the youngster fell into the York River about 10 miles north of here.

Clinton Franzky, of Bird's Creek, with four young cousins, went fishing in the morning along the river about a half - mile below the spectacular York Falls.

While the others collected firewood, Clinton remained fishing with Wayne Franzky, whose line snarled on a rock in the stream.



Wading out to free his cousin's line, the boy suddenly disappeared from view. He was a non-swimmer.

Provincial police from here were on the scene within 15 minutes after one of the boys frantically cycled for help.

The boy's uncle, Garnet Franzky, and Const. R. F. Eves dived in the river seeking his body.

He was found by the officer in about a 10 - foot hole, and taken ashore where mouth - to - mouth resuscitation was hurriedly given without success.

Thieves Get Almost Mile Of Wire

Thieves have stripped a Bell Telephone line near the Oak Hills of almost a mile of copper wire.

Thieves climbed five poles to remove the wire — strung in ten 160-foot lengths between the poles near Thurlow township's seventh concession.

The theft didn't interrupt telephone service. Police say thieves apparently were able to determine which lines were live and which were dead.

They left three active telephone lines.

The wire is valued at $300 — $400.
